Physical Activity Kit (PAK) OVERVIEW

Physical Activity Kit (PAK): Staying on the Active Path in Native Communities...a lifespan approach!

The Physical Activity Kit (PAK) Staying on the Active Path in Native Communities...a Lifespan Approach strategy refines an effective and efficient method to package, implement, evaluate and disseminate culturally appropriate physical activity for American Indian/Alaska Native and other communities. The primary goal of the PAK is to increase the time spent in moderate to vigorous physical activity (MVPA) by promoting age and culturally appropriate physical activities across the life span of Native American communities. These physical activities are appropriate across age spans (Young People, Adults/Family, and Older Adults) and include various levels of activity: Warm-up (flexibility) Cardiovascular, Strength, Cool-down (flexibility).

The PAK strategy is a collaboration/partnership with:

- University of New Mexico Prevention Research Center (UNM PRC)
- The Indian Health Service with representation from IHS Headquarters (Divisions of Office of Clinical and Preventive Services: Health Promotion & Disease Prevention, Head Start, Nutrition, and the Community Health Representatives) and IHS Area Offices (Albuquerque, Portland, and Oklahoma).
- PAK Field Teams with representation from:
 - Aberdeen Area Teams: Rosebud Sioux Tribe, SD and Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate, Agency Village, SD
 - Albuquerque Area Teams: Isleta Pueblo, NM and San Felipe Pueblo, NM
 - Bemidji Area Team: Sault Sainte Marie Tribe of Chippewa Indians, MI
 - Billings Area Team: Northern Cheyenne, MT
 - Navajo Area Teams: Ft. Defiance/Navajo/Window Rock, AZ and Sheep Springs, AZ
 - Phoenix Area Team: San Carlos Apache Tribe, AZ
 - Portland Area Teams: Plummer Coeur d'Alene Tribe, ID and Bellingham Lummi Tribe, WA

Pictured: 2007 PAK Teams & Partners

The PAK strategy includes: 1) create a 'package' of physical activities that are culturally appropriate to American Indian and Alaskan Native communities; 2) train interested Field Teams from across the Nation to implement and field test the PAK in their communities; 3) conduct the PAK Summit/Reunion to collect information regarding the modification, acceptability and usability of the PAK in their communities; and 4) develop a strategy to distribute and disseminate PAK to American Indian and Alaskan Native Communities across the United States.

Introduction of PAK Books

PAK promotes the building of positive attitudes towards fun and creative physical activity that reinforces the lifestyle of living in a Native American community.

PAK Young People Book #1 contains fun and interactive physical activities for school-age children that can be used in the classroom or group settings. The physical activities include individual, partner and group activities.

PAK Mt. Pathways¹ Challenge Book # 2 focuses on participant's progress through five trails with increasing levels of physical activity.

PAK Modified American Indian Games¹ Book # 3 contains traditional games that have been modified to provide more opportunity for activity while retaining the original nature of the games.

PAK Exercise Breaks Book # 4 contains simple and short duration (2-10 minutes) activity breaks that can be done in a small space with no equipment and set-up.

PAK Young Children Book #5 contains physical activities and movement for infants, toddlers, and preschool children.

PAK Adult/Family¹ Book #6 contains a variety of physical activities that can be done as a family. Activities include a community event which evolves around the Great Race as participants learn about the race between the two-legged and four-legged.

PAK Older Adults Book #7 contains physical activities from the Healthy Body Awareness² : Ats' iis' Baa' a' hwon dzin (English translation -Healthy Body Awareness) a physical activity and nutrition education program for Navajo elders.

PAK Resources Book #8 contains titles, descriptions and web links for physical activities resources.

Native American Aerobic Dances: Native American dance has been with us for as long as the beat of the drum has been heard. When we hear the beat we feel it in our feet and hearts. Dances can be done almost anywhere and with any number of people and are in PAK Young People Book #1, PAK Adult/Family Book #6 and PAK Older Adults Book #7.

² Healthy Body Awareness: Ats' iis' Baa' a' hwon dzin (English translation –Healthy Body Awareness)

Traditional Pow Wow Dances: Pow-wow dancing is a great way to meet new friends and enjoy the company of others. It is a great form of exercise for anyone no matter what their fitness level and are in PAK Young People Book #1, PAK Adult/Family Book #6 and PAK Older Adults Book #7.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended that children and adolescents participate in at least 60 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity most days of the week, preferably daily. (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, <http://www.cdc.gov/nccdphp/dnpa/physical/>).

Children and adolescents can choose any type of moderate to higher intensity physical activity, such as brisk walking, playing tag, jumping rope, or swimming, as long as it adds up to at least one hour a day.

Recommendations on how to increase physical activity based on your current activity level.

If...	Then...
You do not currently engage in regular physical activity,	You should begin by incorporating a few minutes of physical activity into each day, gradually building up to 30 minutes or more of moderate-intensity activities.
You are now active, but at less than the recommended levels,	You should strive to adopt more consistent activity: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Moderate-intensity physical activity for 30 minutes or more on 5 or more days of the week, • Vigorous-intensity physical activity for 20 minutes or more on 3 or more days of the week.
You currently engage in moderate-intensity activities for at least 30 minutes on 5 or more days of the week,	You may achieve even greater health benefits by increasing the time spent or intensity of those activities.
You currently regularly engage in vigorous-intensity activities 20 minutes or 3 or more days of the week,	You should continue to do so.

It is recommended that older adults participate in at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity on 5 or more days of the week. (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Physical Activity Recommendations, <http://www.cdc.gov>).

What is "moderate-intensity physical activity?"

Moderate-intensity physical activity refers to any activity that burns 3.5 to 7 Calories per minute (kcal/min) (Ainsworth et al., 2000). These levels are equal to the effort a healthy individual might burn while walking briskly, mowing the lawn, dancing, swimming for recreation, or bicycling.

What is "vigorous-intensity physical activity?"

Vigorous-intensity physical activity refers to any activity that burns more than 7 Calories per minute (kcal/min) (Ainsworth et al., 2000). These levels are equal to the effort a healthy individual might burn while jogging, engaging in heavy yard work, participating in high impact aerobic dancing, swimming continuous laps, or bicycling uphill.

Warm-up Activities (Flexibility)

- Warm-up activities should be done before any other kind of cardiovascular or strength activities. They get your body ready to work a little harder. They help protect you from getting hurt while doing other activities.
- Walk a few slow laps inside or outside before starting these warm-up activities. Or, you can start them as soon as you get out of the vehicle, when your muscles have already been moving from getting out of the vehicle and walking into the building.
- Hold a chair or wall lightly for balance if you are doing these activities standing up.
- Many of the warm-up activities are light stretches. Do not over stretch or lock your joints and muscles.

Cardiovascular Activities

- Cardiovascular activities help your heart, lungs and blood vessels work better.
- These activities will probably make you sweat, get hotter, have a red face, and have faster or heavier breathing than normal and a faster heart rate.
- Guidelines suggest getting 30 minutes of cardiovascular activity on most days of the week. These 30 minutes can be broken down into 3 - 10 minute sessions.
- If you have not been doing much activity, start with only about 5 minutes of cardiovascular activity. Increase your time by 5 minutes a day each week as you feel comfortable.
- Cardiovascular activities should be done after warming up.
- Everyone has a different level of effort that they need to work in order to get benefits from cardiovascular activities. You will get used to your body's response to these activities. You should always make sure that you can still talk during these activities – this is called the "talk test." If you cannot talk, you are probably working too hard and should slow down and take a break.
- After you have been doing these activities for a while, you may want to make them more difficult. You can do the following things to make activities more difficult but still stay safe:
 - Stand during the activities instead of sitting.
 - Increase the time that you do each activity.
 - Increase the intensity, or speed for each activity. For example, march more quickly, or punch your arms forward more quickly. Note that you should increase the time of the activity before trying to increase the intensity.
 - Add arm movements to activities that involve only your legs.

Strength Training

- Exercising your muscles will help you be able to keep doing the activities that you have to do everyday (such as cooking, cleaning, dressing, bathing, taking care of grandchildren).
- Strength activities should be done slowly and smoothly. Don't lock your joints when you are lifting weight.
- Do not hold your breath when you are doing strength activities! This is very important because holding your breath will make your blood pressure go up.
- Breathe out when you are lifting or pushing and breathe in as you relax.
- Cut lengths of exercise bands about 3 feet (36 inches) long. Your senior center may have both thin and medium bands. The medium ones will make the activity a little harder for those who want that.
- Your muscles may be a little sore when you start doing strength activities. If they are very sore, though, you probably overdid it. Rest for a few days and start more slowly.
- A "set" is one group of 8 - 15 repeated movements. You should rest for about 1 minute between each set.
- At first, you should only do 1 set of each activity. Work up to 3 sets after a few months.
- When you can easily do a movement 15 times, you should lift more weight when you do the movement. Easy weights that you can find at home are frisbees, small cans of food, small bottles filled with water or dirt.

Cool-down Activities (Flexibility)

- Cool-down activities are done after your muscles and joints have been warmed-up well during other activities.
- Cool-down activities are mostly stretches to help you increase the flexibility of your muscles and joints. This is called increasing your "range of motion." So, unlike the warm-up stretches, you can do these stretches as far as you are comfortable – no stretching should hurt while you are doing it.
- Stretching will also help you to not be sore from cardiovascular and strength activities.
- Stretching should be done smoothly without bouncing.
- Breathe out when stretching out.
- When bending forward, keep your back and shoulders straight, bending from the waist. Bend your knees slightly if you are bending forward or down.
- If you have had a hip replacement, check with your doctor before doing lower body stretching.

Exercise Breaks

Young People

Introduction

Exercise Breaks is a physical activity program designed to provide an opportunity to engage in daily fitness activities. Good health habits include regular exercise. Good health habits, including a positive attitude toward regular physical activity, instilled during childhood, will likely carry over into adult life.

Research has shown that 20-30 minutes of physical activity, accumulated throughout the day in short bouts, can have important effects on health. It is not necessary to exercise strenuously for extended periods of time to benefit. Short periods of moderate intensity activity, akin to the way children normally play, are also beneficial.

Exercise Breaks

- are short in duration, lasting 2-5 minutes, or more
- are composed of simple activities
- are appropriate for limited space
- can be taken any time during the day

One to two exercise breaks will contribute significantly to the goal of a total of 30 minutes of activity each day for every child. One five-minute exercise break per day provides as much activity as one additional PE class per week.

Benefits of Regular Exercise

There are numerous physical and psychological benefits of regular physical activity, including:

- optimal growth of heart, lungs, muscles, bones and other tissues
- maintenance of healthy levels of body weight and body fat
- improved muscle and joint flexibility, muscle strength and endurance, and aerobic capacity
- stress reduction and improved psychological well-being
- enhanced self-esteem

Regular activity stimulates the brain as well as the body. Research has shown that children who are physically active are more alert and receptive to learning. A well timed exercise break can reduce restlessness, bring children back on task, and make for a more effective learning environment.

Objectives and Goals

Objectives:

- to promote enjoyable physical activity
- to develop a positive attitude toward physical activity
- to increase daily energy expenditure in physical activity

Goals:

- 1-2 Exercise Breaks every day
- minimum of 5-10 minutes of physical activity per day in exercise breaks

Using Exercise Breaks

To take an Exercise Break, simply pull an activity and have fun!

Most activities can be done in a small area. A few may require a bit more space. The space requirements, set-up and how to perform the activity are explained on each card.

Initially, use only 1-2 activities per break, and demonstrate each activity for the participants. Once participants have learned several activities, you can create combinations of activities to perform during a single break. Some examples of combinations are included.

As they master activities, allow the participants to lead Exercise Breaks. You may wish to reward participants who have worked especially hard with the opportunity to lead the day's break. This will make Exercise Breaks special, build enthusiasm, and contribute to self-esteem.

Using Music

Participants especially children enjoy moving to music. Select upbeat music and use it in the following ways:

- to signal the beginning of the Exercise Break
- as background music during the break
- for starting and stopping an activity
- for pacing

Combination Breaks

Combination Exercise Breaks are created from several activities performed during one break. "Combinations" can be created from several activities all designed to improve the same fitness component or from activities designed to improve different components of fitness.

Examples of "Combinations" are included. You may create new "Combinations" by selecting activities that work on different fitness components you wish to improve, e.g., stretching for flexibility, movements for aerobic endurance, and calisthenic-type activities to improve muscle strength and endurance. Appropriate durations (approximate time) for each activity are given on the cards.

Participants may also create their own combinations. Allow them to work singly or in small groups to create a combination. They can then take turns leading others through their creation.

The Pathways program promotes physical activity and healthful eating habits among children in Native American communities. Earlier in this century, heart disease was rarely noted among Native Americans. In recent years, however, heart disease has become the leading cause of death in Native Americans. Also, diabetes has become epidemic and is another leading cause of death. Several factors may be responsible for these dramatic increases, particularly the increasing prevalence of obesity. Obesity in childhood can impose a risk for obesity in adulthood. Pathways can be easily adapted in various communities and settings. Pathways targets changes in specific environmental, personal, and behavioral factors which influence health behavior.

Pathways is a school-based health promotion program that includes physical activity, nutrition/food service, classroom curriculum and family involvement. The primary purpose of the Pathways study was to prevent obesity among American Indian children by promoting increased physical activity and healthful eating behaviors. The Pathways intervention was conducted with 1,704 third through fifth grade children from 41 schools in seven American Indian Nations.
