

Current Aircraft Equipment List

The aircraft equipment list is originally issued by the aircraft manufacturer and is required to be maintained by the Type Certificate Data Sheet (TCDS). An aircraft and its installed components and parts must continually meet the requirements of the original Type Certificate or approved altered conditions. The aircraft equipment list is normally submitted in the form of a multiple page document for transport type aircraft.

An air carrier operating under an approved weight and balance program may not be required to maintain an equipment list if an alternative means is documented in the approved system.
