DEFINITIONS:

Established catalog prices. A form regularly maintained which is available for customer inspection and shows the current or last sales price to the general public (e.g., catalog, price list, schedule).

Commercial items. Supplies or services regularly sold to the general public.

Established market prices. Prices established during ordinary trade and that can be supported by data from sources independent of the vendor.

Sold in substantial quantities. When quantities regularly sold are sufficient to constitute a real commercial market, excluding models, samples, prototypes and experimental units.
