

Parent-Teen Activity Series

Tip of the Month

When you move to a new location, try putting up photographs of your friends along a wall in your home. These are people who matter most to you. When you've made new friends and are putting up new pictures, place your old photos in a special album. Include written notes/thoughts about your experiences that go along with the photos. Remember that this photo wall is for everyone in the family and that you each have memories and special friends that you want to keep close to you every day.

Parent-Teen Activity Series

Tip of the Month

When you move to a new location, try putting up photographs of your friends along a wall in your home. These are people who matter most to you. When you've made new friends and are putting up new pictures, place your old photos in a special album. Include written notes/thoughts about your experiences that go along with the photos. Remember that this photo wall is for everyone in the family and that you each have memories and special friends that you want to keep close to you every day.

Parent-Teen Activity Series

Tip of the Month

When you move to a new location, try putting up photographs of your friends along a wall in your home. These are people who matter most to you. When you've made new friends and are putting up new pictures, place your old photos in a special album. Include written notes/thoughts about your experiences that go along with the photos. Remember that this photo wall is for everyone in the family and that you each have memories and special friends that you want to keep close to you every day.

Parent-Teen Activity Series

Tip of the Month

When you move to a new location, try putting up photographs of your friends along a wall in your home. These are people who matter most to you. When you've made new friends and are putting up new pictures, place your old photos in a special album. Include written notes/thoughts about your experiences that go along with the photos. Remember that this photo wall is for everyone in the family and that you each have memories and special friends that you want to keep close to you every day.