

How Can I Become a Benefits.gov Partner?

Becoming a Benefits.gov Partner is very simple.

Step 1: Identify a Partner contact

Benefits.gov will use this person as its primary point of contact within your organization. Partner Contacts identify Agency Coordinators and are used to assist Benefits.gov in resolving any inter-agency issues that may arise.

Step 2: Identify agency coordinators

These people will identify and create a list of potential benefit programs within their respective agencies and the contact information of the “subject matter experts” for each individual program.

Step 3: Contact Benefits.gov

We'll take it from here! Benefits.gov will assign a Partner Manager to work directly with your subject matter experts to gather benefit program data and define eligibility rules for inclusion in our screening tool.

That's it!

Benefit program information published on the Benefits.gov website comes from you, the experts. Our staff works with the benefit program managers to seamlessly incorporate the eligibility rules and benefit information into a format that is meaningful to the individual citizen.
