This Bureau of Justice Statistics Report was prepared by the Urban Institute under the supervision of Steven K. Smith and Mark Motivans of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS). This report was prepared under BJS grant number 05-BJ-CX-K004. Principal staff at the Urban Institute were Laura Winterfield, William Adams, Avi Bhati, Kamala Mallik Kane, Christine Arriola, and Yan Yuan. Layout and design were by David Williams. Tracey Kyckelhahn of BJS provided statistical review. Carolyn C. Williams and Joanna Bradford of BJS provided editorial review.

This report is made possible through the cooperation of the following Federal agencies and their staffs: The United States Marshals Service (USMS), the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), the Administrative Office of the United States Courts (AOUSC), and the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys (EOUSA). The staff who provided expert advice about the source records include: Joe Briggs (USMS); Steven Schlesinger and Catherine Whitaker (AOUSC); and Barbara Tone, Siobhan Sperin, and Sharon Newman (EOUSA).

Highlights

The number of suspects investigated by U.S. attorneys increased between 2003 and 2004, from 130,078 to 141,242. About three-quarters of those for which the investigation was concluded were prosecuted — either before a U.S. district court judge (58%) or before a U.S. magistrate (20%) — and 22% of those investigated were not prosecuted by U.S. attorneys.

The number of defendants prosecuted in Federal courts increased by 23% between 2003 and 2004, from 94,916 to 116,363.

The number of offenders under post-conviction supervision increased 29% between 1990 and 2004. At the end of fiscal year 2004, the number of offenders on post-conviction community supervision was 109,712 compared to 84,801 during 1990. Over 73% of those under post-conviction community supervision were on post-incarceration supervised release (77,332) or parole (3,098).

Arrest

During 2004, Federal law enforcement agencies arrested 140,755 suspects for violations of Federal law. The U.S. Marshals Service arrested and booked 29% of those for immigration offenses, 25% for drug offenses, 17% for supervision violations, 12% for property offenses, 6-7% each for public-order and weapon offenses, and 3-4% each for violent offenses and to secure and safeguard a material witness.

Several Federal agencies were moved to the new Department of Homeland Security in 2003, including the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Coast Guard, the Customs Service, and the Secret Service. During 2004 the agencies that comprise Homeland Security were responsible for about 37% of arrests and bookings. Within the Department of Justice, the U.S. Marshals Service made 28% of the arrests, the Drug Enforcement Administration 9%, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation 7%.

Federal criminal case processing, October 1, 2003, through September 30, 2004

Prosecution

During 2004 U.S. attorneys initiated criminal investigations involving 141,212 suspects, and they concluded their investigations of 148,229 suspects. Twenty-seven percent of the suspects were investigated for drug, 26% for immigration, 18% for property, 15% for public-order, 10% for weapon, and 4% for violent offenses.

Of the suspects in criminal matters concluded, U.S. attorneys prosecuted 86,482 in U.S. district courts and 29,881 were disposed of before U.S. magistrates. During 2004 U.S. attorneys declined 22% of matters concluded.

Suspects in criminal matters involving drug and weapon offenses were more likely to be prosecuted in a U.S. district court (75% and 70%, respectively) than were suspects involved in violent (59%), property (53%), immigration (51%), or public-order offenses (38%). Suspects involved in property offenses (such as fraud) or public-order offenses were more likely to be declined for prosecution (about 40%) than were suspects investigated for violent offenses (32%), weapon (26%), drug (15%), or immigration (1%) offenses.

Pretrial release

Of 83,364 pretrial cases commenced in 2004, 33% of defendants were released after either an initial or detention hearing, while 67% were detained, and less than 1% were dismissed.

During 2004, 40% of the 78,219 defendants who terminated pretrial services were released at some time prior to their criminal trial. Defendants charged with property offenses or public-order offenses were more likely to be released prior to trial (70% and 63%, respectively) than were defendants charged with weapon (32%), drug (29%), violent (27%), or immigration (5%) offenses.

The proportion of defendants released prior to trial decreased from 62% during 1990 to 40% during 2004.

Defendants having a prior criminal history of serious or violent crimes were less likely to be released than those without a prior criminal history; defendants with a greater number of prior convictions were less likely to be released than those with fewer prior convictions. About 21% of the defendants with a prior violent felony conviction were released before trial, while 60% of defendants with no prior convictions were released. Forty percent of defendants with one prior conviction were released, as compared to 31% of defendants having two to four prior convictions and about 24% of defendants having five or more prior convictions.

Eighty percent of defendants released prior to trial completed their periods of release without violating the conditions of their release. Twenty percent of defendants released violated the conditions of their release, and 8% of defendants had their release revoked. Defendants charged with weapon or drug offenses were more likely to commit at least one violation of their conditions of release (34% and 29%, respectively), while defendants charged with weapon, violent, or drug offenses were more likely to have their release revoked (16% for weapon offenses and 11% each for violent or drug offenses) than were other defendants.

Defendants released during 2004 were more likely to violate the conditions of their pretrial release than those released during 1990 (20% compared to 12%).

Adjudication

During 2004, 92,645 defendants were charged in Federal courts with a criminal offense, 88% of whom were charged with felonies. Of the defendants charged with felonies, 37% were prosecuted for drug, 22% for immigration, 18% for property, 13% for weapon, 6% for public-order, and 4% for violent offenses. The number of defendants charged with a felony immigration offense increased by 11% between 2003 and 2004, from 15,997 to 17,687.

Criminal cases were concluded against 83,391 defendants during 2004, 87% of whom had been charged with felonies. The proportion of defendants convicted in the Federal courts increased from 81% during 1990 to 90% during 2004. The proportion of convicted defendants who pleaded guilty increased from 87% during 1990 to 96% during 2004.

About 92% of defendants charged with felonies were convicted. The conviction rate was similar for the major offense categories: 96% of defendants charged with immigration offenses, 92% of drug defendants, 91% of property and violent defendants, 90% of weapon defendants, and 87% of public-order defendants.

Sentencing

Defendants convicted during 2004 were more likely to be sentenced to prison than those convicted during 1990. During 2004 about 78% of defendants were sentenced to prison compared to 60% of those sentenced during 1990.

Ninety-three percent of felony violent offenders received prison terms, as did 94% of felony weapon and drug offenders, 90% of felony immigration offenders, 70% of felony public-order offenders, and 60% of felony property offenders.

The 58,106 offenders sentenced to prison received, on average, 59.7 months of imprisonment. Offenders sentenced for felony violent offenses, felony weapon offenses, and felony drug offenses received longer average prison terms (96.2, 84.3, and 83.6 months, respectively) than those convicted of felony property, immigration, or public-order offenses (27.4, 26.9, and 43.6 months, respectively).

While the proportion of defendants sentenced to prison is at an all-time high, average prison sentences have declined from the peak attained during 1992. During 1992 the average prison term imposed was 62.6 months; for drug felony offenders, the average term was 84.1 months. Violent felony offenders, however, received a longer sentence in 2004 (96.2 months compared to 94.8 months in 1992).

Average length of prison sentences imposed, by offense, October 1, 2003 - September 30, 2004

Most serious offense of conviction	Average sentence length
All offenses	59.7 mo
Felonies	61.2
Violent offenses	97.2
Property offenses	27.4
Drug offenses	83.6
Public-order offenses	43.6
Weapon offenses	84.3
Immigration offenses	26.9
Misdemeanors	5.6

Appeals

Between 1994 and 2004, the number of appeals received by the U.S. Courts of Appeals remained relatively stable — between about 9,000 and 12,000 annually. However, the proportion of criminal defendants appealing some aspect of their conviction decreased from 21% during 1994 to 12% during 2004.

During 2003, 12,517 criminal appeals were filed. Eighty-seven percent of all appeals filed were appeals of convictions for offenses sentenced under the sentencing guidelines. Sixty percent of the guideline-based appeals filed challenged both the conviction and sentence imposed. Of the 11,076 appeals terminated during 2004, 73% (or 8,135) were terminated on the merits. In 83% of the appeals terminated on the merits, the district court ruling was affirmed, at least in part.

Corrections

Community supervision

Between 1990 and 2004, the number of offenders on community supervision increased by 29%, from 84,801 during 1990 to 109,712 during 2004. While nearly equal proportions of offenders were serving terms of probation and post-incarceration supervision (parole or supervised release) during 1990, during 2004 over 73% were serving a term of post-incarceration supervision (70% supervised release and 3% parole) while 27% were on probation. Drug offenders comprised 12% of offenders on probation, 54% of offenders serving terms of supervised release, and 40% of offenders on parole. Property offenders comprised 38% of offenders on probation, 22% of offenders serving terms of supervised release, and 8% of offenders on parole.

A total of 15,721 offenders terminated probation during 2004. Most of these offenders (82%) completed their terms of probation successfully. Eleven percent of probationers terminating supervision during 2004 committed technical violations; 5% committed new crimes.

A total of 32,930 offenders completed terms of supervised release during 2004. Of these offenders, 62% successfully completed their terms without violating conditions of release; 22% committed technical violations; and 14% committed new crimes.

A total of 1,391 offenders completed terms of parole during 2004. Of these offenders, 49% successfully completed their terms without violating conditions of release; 27% committed technical violations; and 17% committed new crimes.

Introduction

This Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) report presents an overview of case processing in the Federal criminal justice system. The data presented are compiled from the BJS Federal Justice Statistics Program (FJSP) database. The FJSP database includes data provided by the U.S. Marshals Service, Drug Enforcement Administration, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, Executive Office for the U.S. Attorneys, Federal Bureau of Prisons, and U.S. Sentencing Commission. The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, in addition to providing data describing defendants in criminal cases processed by the Federal judiciary, provides data describing defendants processed by the Federal pretrial services agencies and the Federal probation and supervision service. The data can be downloaded from the Federal Justice Statistics Resource Center at <<http://fjsrc.urban.org>>.

Each agency reports on cases processed during a given year in an annual statistical report. These reports are often incomparable across agencies due to the varying methods the agencies use to report case processing activities. As reported by an inter-agency working group, headed by BJS, the differences in the case processing statistics are attributable, in part, to the differing needs and missions of the agencies. The working group found the following differences in reported statistics:

- the universe of cases reported during a given period — some agencies report on those case processing events that occurred during a particular period, whereas others report on those events recorded during a particular period; and
- many of the commonly used case processing statistics — suspect/defendant processed, offense committed, disposition, and sentence imposed — are defined differently across agencies.

BJS, through its FJSP, has recognized the incomparability of these annual statistical reports and has attempted to reconcile many of the differences identified by the working group. For instance, by combining databases from several years, BJS is able to report on those cases that actually occurred during the reporting period. Commonly used case processing statistics are made comparable across stages by applying uniform definitions to data obtained from each agency. Because definitions in the FJSP are consistent with those categories in BJS programs describing State defendants convicted, sentenced, or imprisoned, the comparison of Federal and State case processing statistics is facilitated.

The 2004 Compendium, 19th in a series which includes 1984, 1985, 1986, 1988, 1989, 1990, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003 describes defendants processed at each stage of the Federal justice system — arrest by Federal law enforcement agencies (chapter 1), investigation and prosecution by the U.S. attorneys (chapter 2), pretrial release or detention (chapter 3), adjudication in the U.S. district courts (chapter 4), sentencing (chapter 5), appeal of the conviction and/or sentence imposed (chapter 6), and corrections (chapter 7) — for the 12-month period ending September 30, 2004 (the Federal fiscal year). Prior to 1994, the Compendium was reported on a calendar-year basis.

The tables presented report events that occurred during the Federal fiscal year — October 1, 2003 - September 30, 2004. Generally, the tables include both individual and organizational defendants. Organizational defendants are not included in tables showing defendants sentenced to incarceration, or tables describing offenders under post-conviction community supervision. Juvenile offenders charged as adults are included in the reported statistics. Felony and misdemeanor distinctions are provided where possible (see "Offense classifications" in Methodology).

Organization of the Compendium

Each chapter of the Compendium describes a major stage in the processing of criminal suspects and defendants. Each chapter contains Chapter notes that describe the universes of data used in the tables and information relevant to the interpretation of individual tables. The Compendium contains the following:

Chapter 1 describes arrests made by Federal law enforcement agencies for violations of Federal law, including the characteristics of arrestees; warrants initiated and cleared by the U.S. Marshals Service are also reported.

Chapter 2 describes decisions made by Federal prosecutors in screening criminal matters and the characteristics of defendants in cases prosecuted or declined for prosecution.

Chapter 3 describes the pretrial release and detention practices of the Federal judiciary, including the characteristics of defendants detained or released pending trial.

Chapter 4 describes actions by the Federal judiciary in adjudicating defendants in cases filed by the U.S. attorneys.

Chapter 5 describes the sentences imposed by the Federal judiciary on convicted defendants.

Chapter 6 describes appeals of criminal convictions and sentences imposed in the Federal courts, including the original offense charged.

Chapter 7 describes defendants under Federal correctional supervision — probation, parole, and supervised release — including the outcome of the supervision (successful completion or violations).

The Methodology section describes the procedures followed in analyzing data and developing tables.

The Glossary contains definitions for terms used in the Compendium. Since many terms used in the text and tables have specialized meanings (either because they refer to Federal law or because of reporting procedures by the Federal agencies supplying the data), readers are encouraged to check the glossary for exact definitions of tabulated data.

Modifications in the 2004 Compendium

The 2004 Compendium does not contain text or tables describing the demographic characteristics of convicted offenders in chapters 4 and 5, as it has historically. Nor does it contain any text or tables describing Federal prisoners in chapter 7, as is usually the case. The reason for these exclusions is that BJS did not receive 2004 data from the United States Sentencing Commission nor from the Federal Bureau of Prisons, respectively.

Notes to reader

The tables in the Compendium were constructed to permit valid comparisons within each table and to allow the reader to compare percentages (but not raw totals) across tables. It should be understood, however, that the total number of subjects/defendants shown in a particular table may not equal the number of subjects/defendants involved in a particular stage of processing, since some records could not be linked and some data sources did not include information on particular data elements classified in a particular table. Data notes indicate the exact universe for individual tables.

The Compendium is a statistical presentation of Federal criminal justice information with limited analyses of trends or explanatory factors underlying the statistics. Analyses of Federal justice statistics may be found in special reports and other publications, some of which are cited in the Compendium. Assessment of changing patterns in the Compendium tabulations may depend on detailed examination of sub-categories not shown in the tabulations or may require other sources of information, such as knowledge of legislation or Federal agency procedures.

Chapter 2

Prosecution

Federal criminal cases may be brought by the U.S. Attorney's Office, by the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice, or by other authorized law enforcement agencies, such as the U.S. Marshals Service. The 93 U.S. attorneys serve as the chief Federal law enforcement officers within their respective districts.

Investigations are most commonly referred to a U.S. attorney by a Federal investigative agency:

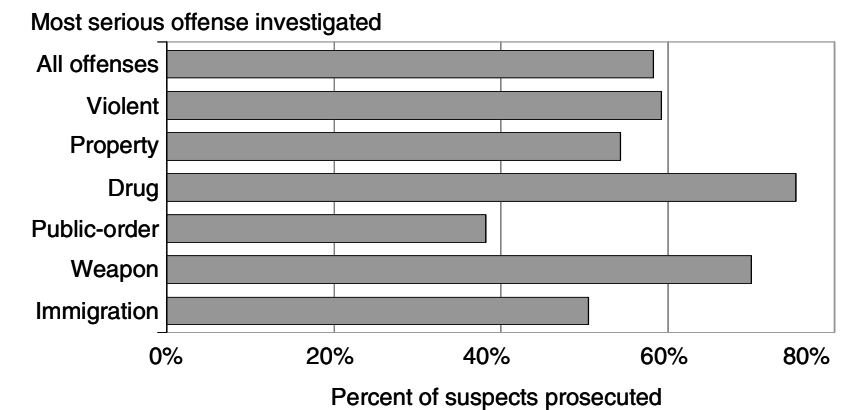

- Federal Bureau of Investigation
- Drug Enforcement Administration
- Citizenship and Immigration Services
- Customs and Border Protection
- Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms
- Secret Service.

Investigations are also referred by a State or local investigative agency. Investigations may also be initiated — and cases brought directly — by U.S. attorneys or by the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. This chapter reports on suspects that were at least partially investigated by U.S. attorneys.

U.S. attorneys' decisions

After criminal investigations are initiated and criminal suspects are referred to them, U.S. attorneys may file charges against defendants in a U.S. district court, or they may file cases before U.S. magistrates, who have the authority to adjudicate misdemeanor offenses (18 U.S.C. § 3401); because of the relatively less serious nature of these cases, and because they are handled by magistrates, the U.S. attorneys count these cases as criminal matters disposed by U.S. magistrates. U.S. attorneys may also decline to file charges for reasons such as weak or insufficient evidence, minimal Federal interest, lack of resources, or lack of criminal intent. Matters that are declined may be referred to another authority for prosecution or be settled through alternative resolution procedures.

Figure 2.1. Suspects in matters concluded: Percentage of suspects that were prosecuted in U.S. district court, by most serious offense investigated, October 1, 2003 - September 30, 2004

The decision to prosecute a suspect in a criminal matter depends upon many factors, including the Attorney General's priorities, U.S. attorney priorities and resources, laws governing each type of offense, and the strength of evidence in each case.

During 2004, 58% of the suspects investigated by U.S. attorneys were prosecuted in U.S. district court, and U.S. magistrates handled an additional 20%. Suspects were prosecuted at different rates depending on the offense involved (figure 2.1). Suspects in immigration matters were the most likely to be prosecuted; 51% had charges filed against them in U.S. district court and an additional 48% had charges filed before a U.S. magistrate. The rate of prosecution was similar for drug offenses, with 75% of suspects having charges filed in district court and 9% having charges filed in magistrate court. About two-thirds of suspects in weapon and violent offense matters were prosecuted, with most (74% and 68%, respectively) being prosecuted in district court.

Public-order and property offenses were the least likely to be prosecuted. Thirty-eight percent of public-order suspects were prosecuted in U.S. district court, and 22% were concluded by magistrates. Fifty-four percent of property suspects were prosecuted in district court.

Suspects in matters received (table 2.1)

During 2004 there were 141,212 suspects in new matters received for investigation by U.S. attorneys. These suspects were investigated for —

- drug offenses (27%)
- immigration offenses (26%)
- property offenses (18%)
- public-order offenses (15%)
- weapon offenses (10%)
- violent offenses (4%).

The number of suspects investigated for immigration offenses increased by 76% between 2003 and 2004, from 20,341 to 35,858. Investigating and prosecuting terrorism threats and related persons and enterprises was the

In 2004, 5 Federal judicial districts along the U.S.-Mexico border (Western and Southern Districts of Texas, Southern District of California, District of Arizona, and District of New Mexico) comprised 32% of all matters referred to U.S. attorneys highest priority for U.S. attorneys in 2004, although violent crimes — particularly those involving firearms — as well as identifying, disrupting, and dismantling drug trafficking organizations continued to be high priorities. Other areas of special emphasis during 2004 included corporate fraud, civil rights prosecution, and trafficking in persons.¹

Disposition of suspects in matters concluded (tables 2.2-2.6)

Upon receiving a matter a U.S. attorney may either decline it for prosecution immediately or investigate further. Upon conclusion of the investigation, U.S. attorneys may file criminal charges in a U.S. district court, refer the matter to a U.S. magistrate, or decline the case for Federal prosecution. Of the 148,229 suspects in criminal matters concluded during 2004 —

- 58% were prosecuted in U.S. district court
- 20% were referred to U.S. magistrates
- 22% were declined for Federal prosecution.²

Suspects prosecuted in U.S. district court (table 2.2) — U.S. attorneys prosecuted 86,482 suspects in U.S. district courts during 2004. The likelihood of prosecution in U.S. district court varied widely across offense categories. Suspects involved in immigration and drug offenses were more likely to be prosecuted than suspects in other types of offenses. U.S. attorneys filed charges in district court against —

- 75% of suspects involved in drug offenses
- 70% of those in weapon offenses
- 59% of those in violent offenses
- 54% of those in property offenses
- 50% of those in immigration offenses
- 38% of those in public-order offenses.

Differences in rates of prosecution within major categories were substantial. For example, among violent offenses —

- 76% of robbery suspects were prosecuted
- 51% of murder suspects were prosecuted
- 47% of assault suspects and kidnapping suspects were prosecuted
- approximately 43% of sexual abuse suspects were prosecuted.

Among suspects investigated for property offenses, those in counterfeiting matters had the highest rate of prosecution (64%), while those investigated for arson and explosives had the lowest rate of prosecution (46%). Among suspects investigated for public-order offenses, the rates of prosecution also covered a wide range:

- tax law matters (61%)
- nonviolent sex matters (53%)
- civil rights matters (8%)
- traffic matters (11%).

Suspects in matters concluded by U.S. magistrates (table 2.2) — During 2004 U.S. attorneys referred 20% of all the criminal matters they investigated to U.S. magistrates. Cases concluded by U.S. magistrates are, by statute, misdemeanors.³ Immigration offenses comprised 60% of all matters concluded by U.S. magistrates, whereas in 2003 immigration offenses were 18% of matters concluded by magistrates. Also disposed by U.S. magistrates were —

- public-order offenses (16%)
- drug offenses (13%)
- property offenses (7%)
- violent offenses (2%)
- weapon offenses (2%).

For most offenses the likelihood that a U.S. magistrate concluded the matter was relatively low. Offenses having comparably high rates of disposal by magistrates included traffic offenses (89%); and conspiracy, aiding and abetting and jurisdictional offenses (72%).

Suspects in matters concluded and declined, by investigating agency (table 2.3) — During 2003, 45% of suspects in matters concluded were investigated by components of the Department of Homeland Security and the Justice Department investigated 33% of suspects in matters concluded. In addition, independent Federal agencies and State/local agencies investigated 9% of suspects in matters concluded.

The declination rate for suspects in matters investigated by components of the Department of Homeland Security was fairly low, at 11%. For suspects in matters investigated by components of the Department of Justice, the declination rate (31%) was a bit higher than the overall declination rate (22%). Declination rates for other investigating agencies included:

- Small Business Administration (69%)
- Land Management Bureau (68%)

³At the time that U.S. attorneys receive them, matters may not be classifiable as felonies or misdemeanors. If a U.S. magistrate disposes of a case — or what the U.S. attorneys call a “matter” — its offense level has been determined, by statute, to be a misdemeanor.

- Railroad Retirement Board (58%)
- Environmental Protection Agency (54%)
- National Park Service (8%)
- U.S. Army (5%)
- U.S. Marine Corps (3%)
- Citizen and Immigration Services (2%).

Suspects in matters declined for Federal prosecution (tables 2.2, 2.4-2.5) — Twenty-two percent of the matters concluded by U.S. attorneys in 2004 were declined for Federal prosecution (table 2.2). Declination rates for offenses were:

- public-order offenses (40%)
- property offenses (38%)
- violent offenses (32%)
- weapon offenses (26%)
- drug offenses (15%)
- immigration offenses (2%).

The decision to decline Federal prosecution is based on a number of factors, including the lack of a prosecutable offense, an alternative resolution, or case- and suspect-related reasons (table 2.4). Of the 31,866 declinations during 2004 —

- 25% occurred because of case-related reasons, mostly due to weak evidence (21%)
- 23% occurred because there was no crime or criminal intent was lacking
- 25% occurred for other reasons, such as agency requests (10%) and lack of resources (6%).

Not all suspects whose matters were declined by U.S. attorneys avoided prosecution. Twenty-one percent of the suspects in matters declined were referred to another authority for prosecution (table 2.5). An additional 4% were settled through alternative resolution procedures. Suspects involved in weapons-related offenses constituted the largest number who were referred by U.S. attorneys to other authorities for prosecution or resolution. Thirty-two percent of the weapons-related suspects whose matters were declined prosecution by U.S. attorneys were referred for other prosecution or resolution, as were —

- 31% of drug suspects
- 20% of violent suspects
- 19% of public-order suspects
- 14% of property suspects
- 13% of immigration suspects.

Within major offense categories, the likelihood that suspects in matters declined for prosecution were referred to other authorities for prosecution or alternative resolution varied among specific offenses. Within property offenses, referral occurred with 29% of persons involved in counterfeiting, compared to 6% of suspects in embezzlement cases. Within public-order offenses, 54% of escape suspects were referred to other authorities or had their case settled through alternative procedures, compared to 4% of suspects in civil rights cases.

Processing times (table 2.6) — For matters concluded during 2004, the average number of months from receipt of a matter to its conclusion by a U.S. attorney as a case filing or declination or its disposal by a U.S. magistrate was 7.4 months (a median of one month). However, the time to process matters varied with the outcome of the matter. U.S. attorneys took an average of 4 months to file charges in U.S. district court, but over one-half of cases were filed within 1 month. Declinations took longer, with an average duration of almost 19 months, though one-half of declinations occurred within 13 months.

The processing time for matters disposed by U.S. magistrates also differed by the outcome. Matters resulting in a conviction took an average of 4.1 months to conclude, with one-half of cases concluding within 0.2 months. Matters that did not result in a conviction took longer to conclude — an average of 10.4 months, with one-half concluding within 2.1 months.

Processing times also varied with the type of offense involved. Suspects involved in immigration offenses were processed most quickly, with an average case processing time of 1.1 months (a decrease of 2.4 months from 2003) and a median time of less than 1 month. Processing times by offense were:

- weapon offenses (4.8 months on average and a median of 1.6 months)
- drug offenses (6.4 months on average and a median of 0.9 months)
- violent offenses (6.5 months on average and a median of 1.6 months)
- public-order offenses (13.3 months on average and a median of 4.7 months)
- property offenses (14.2 months on average and a median of 7.4 months).

Chapter notes

- 1) Tables 2.1-2.6 were created from the National LIONS system data files of the EOUSA. For table 2.1, only records which showed a matter received during 2004 were selected. For tables 2.2-2.6, only records which show a matter terminated by reason of declination, disposition by a U.S. magistrate, or filed as a case in U.S. district court from October 1, 2003, through September 30, 2004, were selected. In all of these tables, matters "declined immediately" — those cases in which the U.S. attorney spent less than 1 hour investigating — were excluded.
- 2) The number of suspects in matters investigated in table 2.1, and the number of suspects in matters concluded in tables 2.2 and 2.6 are not directly comparable to counts in the 1993 and prior compendia. In those years these statistics included appellants in appeals filed or appeals terminated. In table 2.1 of this Compendium and its corresponding tables in 1994 and subsequent compendia, the number of suspects in matters received is limited to suspects in criminal matters that were filed as cases in U.S. district courts, handled by U.S. magistrates, or declined for prosecution. In the 1993 and prior compendia, the number of suspects in criminal matters received included criminal appeals. To obtain a number of suspects comparable to the statistic reported in the 1993 and prior compendia, add to the data in table 2.1 of this Compendium the number of appellants in appeals that were handled by U.S. attorneys.

In tables 2.2 and 2.6 of this Compendium and their corresponding tables in the 1994 and subsequent compendia, the number of suspects in matters concluded also is limited to those suspects whose matters were concluded by a case filing in a U.S. district court, by declination, or by disposition by a U.S. magistrate. In the 1993 and prior compendia, this number included appellants in criminal appeals terminated.

To obtain a number that is comparable to the number reported in the 1993 and prior compendia, the number of appellants in appeals terminated and handled by U.S. attorneys needs to be added to the totals in table 2.2.

- 3) Offenses in the National LIONS system data files are classified by the title and section of the United States Code for the most serious offense investigated, as determined by the assistant U.S. attorney responsible for the matter. For tables in this Compendium, these citations were translated into the corresponding four-digit offense codes used by the Administrative Office of the United States Courts (AOUSC). These four-digit codes were then aggregated into the categories shown in the tables.

U.S. Code citations often do not permit detailed classification of drug offenses by the type of criminal activity involved. A person charged with conspiracy is classified under the substantive offense alleged (for example, conspiracy to defraud is classified as fraud) unless type of conspiracy cannot be determined from the U.S. Code citation. Unclassified conspiracies are included among "conspiracy, aiding and abetting, traffic, and jurisdictional offenses" in tables 2.1, 2.2, 2.5, and 2.6.

The most serious offense investigated is based on the criminal lead charge as determined by the assistant U.S. attorney responsible for the criminal matter.

- 4) In the tables in this chapter, the "all offenses" row or "total declinations" row (in table 2.5) includes records whose offense category (basis for declination) is missing or indeterminable. The percentage distributions in these tables, however, are based on the number of observations with nonmissing offenses (basis for declination) values. The number of missing values are reported either on a separate line or in a footnote.

- 5) Additional data for "lack of resources" as a reason for declination were discovered in 1999; these cases previously were coded as "unknown or indeterminate" in 1998 and prior years. Therefore, in table 2.4, the apparent increase in "lack of resources" as a declination reason (between 1998 and future years) is due in large part to this additional information and reclassification of declination reasons from "unknown and indeterminate."

The Federal justice database

Source of data

The source of data for all tables in this Compendium is the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) Federal justice database. The database is presently constructed from source files provided by the U.S. Marshals Service, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys, the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, the United States Sentencing Commission, and the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, in addition to providing data describing defendants in cases processed by the Federal judiciary, provides data describing defendants processed by the Federal pre-trial services agencies and the Federal probation and supervision service. Federal law prohibits the use of these files for any purposes other than research or statistics. A description of the source agency data files is provided in the table at the end of this section.

Reporting period

Wherever possible, matters or cases have been selected according to the event which occurred during fiscal year 2004 (October 1, 2003, through September 30, 2004). Files which are organized by their source agencies according to fiscal year nonetheless include some pertinent records in later years' files. For example, tabulations of suspects in matters concluded during fiscal year 2004 in this Compendium have been assembled from source files containing records of 2004 matters concluded which were entered into the data system during fiscal years 2004 or 2005.

Availability of data items

The availability of particular items of information is affected by the data source. For example, data on prosecutors' decisions prior to court filing are provided for cases investigated by U.S. attorneys but not for those handled by other litigating divisions of the U.S. Department of Justice. Criminal Division cases enter the data base once they are filed in U.S. district court, however.

Table construction and interpretation

The tables presented report events that occurred during the Federal fiscal year — October 1, 2003 - September 30, 2004. Generally the tables include both individual and organizational defendants. Organizational defendants are not included in tables describing defendants sentenced to incarceration, and offenders under post-conviction supervision. Juvenile offenders who are charged as adults are included in the reported statistics.

Unit of analysis

The unit of analysis in chapters 1 through 6 is a combination of a person (or corporation) and a matter or case. For example, if a single person is involved in three different criminal cases during the time period specified in the table, he or she is counted three times in the tabulation. Similarly, if a single criminal case involves a corporate defendant and four individual defendants, it counts five times in the tabulation. In chapter 7 the unit of analysis for incarceration, probation, parole, or other supervised release is a person entering custody or supervision, a person leaving custody or supervision, or a person in custody or supervision at year-end. For example, a person convicted in two concurrent cases and committed once to the custody of the Federal Bureau of Prisons in the indicated time period is counted as one admission to a term of incarceration. A person who terminates probation twice in the indicated time period, such as with a violation and again after reinstatement, is counted as two terminations of probation.

Interpretation

The tables in the Compendium are constructed to permit the user to make valid comparisons of numbers within each table and to compare percentage rates across tables. The total numbers of subjects in Compendium tables that are based on records linked between two files (for example, the demographic tables in chapters 4 and 5) are generally less than the total number of records in either source file. Accordingly, comparisons of absolute numbers across two or more tables in this volume and other data sources are not necessarily valid.

Offense classifications

Procedure

The offense classification procedure used in this Compendium is based on the classification system followed by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. Specific offenses are combined to form the BJS categories shown in the Compendium tables.*

Offense categories for Federal arrestees in chapter 1 are based on the FBI's National Crime Information Center (NCIC) offense classifications, which are converted into U.S. Marshals' four-digit offense codes, which, in turn, are aggregated into the offense categories shown in the tables. These categories are similar, but may not be directly comparable, to the BJS offense categories used in other chapters of this Compendium. For data from the Executive Office for U.S. Attorneys, which include United States Code citations but do not include the Administrative Office offense classifications, United States Code titles and sections are translated into the Administrative Office classification system and then aggregated into the offense categories used in the tables. Offense categories for prisoners in chapter 7 are based on combinations of offense designations used by the Bureau of Prisons. They are similar to the categories in other chapters and other tables in chapter 7, but may not be directly comparable.

Felony/misdemeanor distinctions

Felony and misdemeanor distinctions are provided where possible. Felony offenses are those with a maximum penalty of more than 1 year in prison. Misdemeanor offenses are those with a maximum penalty of 1 year or less. Felonies and misdemeanors are further classified using the maximum term of imprisonment authorized. Section 3559, U.S. Code, Title 18 classifies offenses according to the following schedule:

*These categories correspond to the Bureau of Justice Statistics crime definitions and, to the extent possible, are organized and presented consistent with BJS publications on State criminal justice systems.

Felonies

Class A felony — life imprisonment, or if the maximum penalty is death.

Class B felony — 25 years or more.

Class C felony — less than 25 years but more than 10 years.

Class D felony — less than 10 years but more than 5 years.

Class E felony — less than 5 years but more than 1 year.

Misdemeanors

Class A misdemeanor — 1 year or less but more than 1 month.

Class B misdemeanor — 6 months or less but more than 30 days.

Class C misdemeanor — 30 days or less but more than 5 days.

Infraction — 5 days or less, or if no imprisonment is authorized.

In this Compendium felony and misdemeanor distinctions are provided where the data permit these distinctions. Chapters 1 and 2 do not use this distinction because many suspects cannot be so classified at the arrest and investigation stages in the criminal justice process. Chapter 3 no longer reports this distinction because the Pretrial Services Agency no longer gathers this information. Chapters 4 and 5 distinguish between felony and misdemeanor offenses, as do tables 7.1, 7.3, 7.5, and 7.7. Tables 7.9, and 7.11–7.14 follow the convention of other BJS publications by separately tabulating offenders whose actual imposed sentences are less than or equal to 1 year and those whose actual sentences are greater than 1 year.

Most serious offense selection

Where more than one offense is charged or adjudicated, the most serious offense (the one that may or did result in the most severe sentence) is used to classify offenses. The offense description may change as the criminal justice process proceeds. Tables indicate whether investigated, charged or adjudicated offenses are used. In chapter 2 the most serious offense is based on the criminal lead charge as determined by the assistant U.S. attorney responsible for the criminal proceeding. In chapter 3 the major charged offense is based upon the Administrative Office's offense severity classification system, as determined by the pretrial officer responsible for the case. To select this offense, the officer ranks offenses according to severity based on maximum imprisonment, type of crime, and maximum fines. In chapter 4 the most serious offense charged is the one that has the most severe potential sentence. For chapter 5 conviction offenses are based on statutory maximum penalties. In chapter 6 offenses are classified by the offense of conviction. In tables 7.1–7.8, the most serious offense of conviction is either the one having the longest sentence imposed or, if equal sentences were imposed or there was no imprisonment, the offense carrying the highest severity code as determined by the Administrative Office's offense severity code ranking. In tables 7.9–7.16, prisoners are classified according to the offense that bears the longest single incarceration sentence.

Offense categories

For offense categories in all text tables, the following conditions apply:

"Murder" includes nonnegligent manslaughter.

"Sexual abuse" includes only violent sex offenses.

"Fraud" excludes tax fraud.

"Larceny" excludes transportation of stolen property.

"Other property felonies" excludes fraudulent property offenses and includes destruction of property and trespass.

"Tax law violations" includes tax fraud.

"Obscene material" denotes the mail or transport thereof.

"Wildlife" includes offenses previously included in the "Migratory birds" category.

"Environmental" includes some offenses previously included in the "Agriculture" and "Other Regulatory" categories.

"All other offenses" includes felonies with unknown or unclassifiable offense type.

"Misdemeanors" includes misdemeanors, petty offenses, and unknown offense levels.

"Drug possession" also includes other drug misdemeanors.

tables describing Federal prisoners, the offense with the greatest imposed sentence (for example, prison data in Chapter 6).

Guideline offense levels range from level 1 (the least serious offense) to level 43 (the most serious offense).

Old law — in this Compendium, defendants convicted and sentenced pursuant to laws applicable before the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984. (See also, "New law.")

Parole — period of supervision after release from custody before the expiration of sentence. The U.S. Parole Commission is empowered to grant, modify or revoke the parole of all Federal offenders. Pursuant to the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984, parole was abolished and defendants are required to serve the imposed sentence (less 54 days per year good-time for sentences greater than 1 year, but not life imprisonment), followed by a term of supervised release. Because of the number of Federal inmates sentenced under pre-Sentencing Reform provisions, the number of offenders on parole is declining.

Material is pornographic or obscene if the average person, applying contemporary community standards, would find that the work taken as a whole appeals to the prurient interest; and if it depicts in a patently offensive way sexual conduct; and if the work taken as a whole lacks serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value. (See Milla v. California, 113 U.S. 15 (1973).)

Possession — offense involving the possession of a controlled substance, acquiring a controlled substance by misrepresentation or fraud, attempting or conspiring to possess, or simple possession of a controlled substance in schedules I-V (as defined by 21 U.S.C. § 812). Also, possessing any punch, die, plate, stone, or any other thing designed to reproduce the label upon any drug or container is an offense under this category. Presentence Investigation Report (PSR) — following a presentence investigation, a report to the court prepared by the probation officer before the imposition of sentence, as required by law; unless the court finds that there is information in the record sufficient to enable the meaningful exercise of sentencing authority pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 3553, and the court explains this finding on the record.

The defendant may be released either on personal recognizance or unsecured bond or on financial conditions. An act of clemency available only to those found eligible by the court, probation offers a chance for reform and rehabilitation for the defendant. For this purpose, the defendant must agree to specified standards of conduct; violation of such standards subjects his liberty to revocation.

Procedural termination — a judgment based on the methods and mechanics of the legal process, including all the rules and laws governing that process. Procedural law is distinguished from "substantive" law, which involves the statutes and legal precedents upon which cases are tried and judgments made. See also, "Administrative case closure" and "Terminated on the merits."

Property offenses, fraudulent — property offenses involving the elements of deceit or intentional misrepresentation. Specifically includes embezzlement, fraud (excluding tax fraud), forgery, and counterfeiting.

Property offenses, non-fraudulent — violent offenses against property: burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft, arson, transportation of stolen property, and other property offenses (destruction of property and trespassing). These offenses are termed "non-fraudulent" only for the purpose of distinguishing them from the category "Property offenses, fraudulent," above.

Property offenses, other — offenses that involve the destruction of property moving in interstate or foreign commerce in the possession of a common or contract carrier. Includes the malicious destruction of Government property, or injury to U.S. postal property such as mailboxes or mailbags. Extortion is the obtaining of money or property from another, without his consent, induced by the wrongful use of force or fear. This offense code covers using interstate or foreign commerce or any facility in interstate or foreign commerce to aid racketeering enterprises such as arson, bribery, gambling, liquor, narcotics, prostitution, and extortionate credit transactions; obtaining property or money from another, with his or her consent induced by actual or threatened force; violence, blackmail, or committing unlawful interference with employment or business; transmitting by interstate commerce or through the mail any threat to injure the property, the person, or the reputation of the addressee or of another; or kidnaping any person with intent to extort.
