

Overview

In order to target possible sites for the Community-Based Care Transitions project, the most recently available readmission rates (July, 2006 - June, 2009) were downloaded from Hospital Compare.

State average readmission rates were calculated for each of the three reported conditions: Heart Attack (AMI), Heart Failure (HF) and Pneumonia (Pneu).

Hospitals in each state were then sorted by their reported readmission rates on each of the three conditions, and hospitals in the fourth (worst) quartile for each of the three conditions were selected.

Hospitals in each state were identified if they were in the worst quartile for all three readmission rates. Additional hospitals were identified that were in the worst quartile for any two of the three reported readmission rates.

Nationally, a total of 138 hospitals were in the worst quartile on all three readmission rates. These hospitals were located in 35 of the 56 states and territories.

Nationally, an additional 483 hospitals had readmission rates in the worst quartile on two of the three conditions. These hospitals were located in every state except Alaska.

(Maryland hospitals were excluded from this analysis since they were not included in the Hospital Compare data, and Critical Access Hospitals (CAHs) were also excluded, since they are not eligible to participate in the CCTP program.)

A total of 631 hospitals had readmission rates on either 2 out of 3, or on all 3 readmission rates in the fourth (worst) quartiles in their states.

We recommend that these hospitals be prioritized for possible participation in the Community Based Care Transitions project.
