Army Regulations

There are two types of laws that may apply to you in contingency operations: FEDERAL and HOST NATION. Federal Laws are enacted by Congress and enforced by agencies like the U.S. Army. Therefore, U.S. Army regulations are based on federal laws. Relevant regulations include:

Army Regulation 200-2 describes how environmental considerations influence planning and decision making.

Army Regulation 200-3 the Army Natural Resource management plan, including threatened and endangered species.

Each base camp should have an environmental SOP that combines all environmental law and regulations into a single set of environmental guidelines. The SOP should tell you how to comply with the law. Environmental SOP's are based on the guidelines specified in the regulations.

Important Federal Environmental Laws

The Army's environmental regulations are based on federal law. There are seven environmental laws that apply to your everyday activity. They include:

The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA)

Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA)

Clean Air Act

Clean Water Act

National Historic Preservation Act

Endangered Species Act

Federal Facilities Compliance Act
