

Chapter 14—Publication to Recovery.gov

FederalReporting is the portal for all recipients who are required to report under Section 1512 of the Recovery Act. Recovery.gov is the website created by the Recovery Act to serve as a portal for the American public to review and track all funds disbursed and received under the Act.

When the reporting cycle ends on Day 29 after the end of the quarter, reports are automatically transitioned from Submission Status to Published Status and all the data for the reporting cycle is published on Recovery.gov by midnight on Day 30. All questions regarding the data displayed on Recovery.gov should be directed to Recovery.gov.

The following graphic shows the relationship between the FederalReporting.gov and Recovery.gov.

Several days after the close of the reporting cycle, the Continuous Quality Assurance period begins. FederalReporting.gov becomes available to recipients and federal awarding agencies to review and comment on reports, with recipients making any necessary changes or corrections. The data is updated on Recovery.gov every two weeks until approximately two weeks prior to the start of the next reporting cycle.
