DRUG COURTS and VETERANS TREATMENT COURTS: A Proven Budget Solution Serving Our Veterans

A Congressional Briefing in Conjunction with

The Addiction, Treatment and Recovery Caucus

9:00 AM – 10:00 AM, Thursday, October 27, 2011
Room B-339, Rayburn House Office Building

Over 2,700 communities have found a solution in Drug Court. Chances are, your District either has a Drug Court or is considering implementing one. Come learn:

- Why Matthew Perry supports Drug Courts
- How Drug Courts save money and cut crime
- How communities now use Drug Court to serve Veterans in need
- Why a federal investment in Drug Courts is needed

What is a Drug Court? Drug Courts are this nation's most effective justice intervention for seriously drug addicted offenders. By leveraging the authority of the court, Drug Courts supervise participants closely while keeping them in treatment long enough to transform into sober, employed, tax-paying members of their community. Now, Drug Courts and Veterans Treatment Courts are serving justice-involved Veterans, helping them to connect with the benefits and services earned through military service.
