These allocations are from the second distribution for fiscal year 2010 and represent, along with previously distributed initial allocation and reserve requests, approximately 90 percent of the total amount available for TAA training for this year. The remaining funds are being held in reserve by the Labor Department for distribution as needed at the end of the fiscal year.  "America's workers, including those who have been adversely impacted by trade, deserve our full support," said Secretary of Labor Hilda L. Solis. "By working through our states, we will ensure that workers are able to acquire new in-demand skills and that they can get back to earning family-supporting wages."  The TAA program seeks to provide workers with the opportunity to obtain the skills, resources and support needed to become re-employed. These funds will be used to provide career training and pay for associated administrative costs. They will be distributed by July 15.  The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 included a major expansion and reform of the TAA program, and authorized an increase in the maximum amount of TAA	7/14/2010 12:45PM	Trade Adjustment Assistance; funding;
