8:00 am - 9:15 am

Research and Discussion Roundtables

Grand Ballroom III/IV

Participants have the opportunity to meet one-on-one with expert practitioners and researchers to ask questions or present individual issues for comments by the experts. Selected experts will be available in the topic areas listed below. Continental breakfast will be served.

Community Mapping, Planning, and Analysis for Safety Strategies (COMPASS)

This roundtable discussion will focus on the Office of Justice Programs' COMPASS Initiative. Participants will have the opportunity to interact with program staff and representatives from the Seattle, Washington and East Valley, California COMPASS sites .

Erin Dalton Curran

Program Specialist
Office of Research and Evaluation
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC

Mental Health Issues in Criminal Justice

There are many issues associated with persons with mental illness becoming involved with the criminal justice system. From arrest to incarceration in prisons and jails, to release back into the community under parole supervision, complicated questions of how to identify, treat, and monitor these offenders arise.

Jennifer Edwards

Chief
Policy and Publications
Corrections Program Office
Office of Justice Programs
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC

Police Use of Technology

Current technologies under development by NIJ will be discussed at this roundtable. Issues affecting selection, implementation, evaluation, and adoption of technologies will also be covered.

Steven M. Edwards

Senior Social Science Analyst
Office of Research and Evaluation
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC

Sex Offenders in the Community

This roundtable discussion will focus on the challenges associated with managing sex offenders in the community and the resources available to jurisdictions to improve their current sex offender management strategy.

Renee Giger

Grant Manager
Corrections Program Office
Office of Justice Programs
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC

Publishing with the National Institute of Justice

This roundtable will highlight how NIJ makes decisions to publish, what happens after the final research report is finished, and what researchers can do to publicize the findings from their work.

Jolene Hernon

Publications Manager
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice
Washington, DC

Crime Mapping Research

This roundtable discussion provides the opportunity for participants to discuss issues of spatial analysis and crime mapping with staff of the Crime Mapping Research Center and other interested participants.

Eric S. Jefferis

Social Science Analyst
Crime Mapping Research Center
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice

Issues in Racial Profiling

This roundtable will provide attendees the opportunity to discuss issues regarding research on racial profiling with NIJ staff .

Robert J. Kaminski

Social Science Analyst
Crime Control and Prevention Division
Office of Research and Evaluation
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice

Evaluating Multijurisdictional Task Forces

Recent statewide evaluations of Multijurisdictional Task Forces (MJTFs) are producing results valuable for future decision making. Sustaining MJTF activities is a major priority for many states, and findings are helping to determine why, when, and how task forces can and should be supported. Additional findings are leading to new definitions of task force operations, organization, and expected outcomes. The presentations will describe the evaluation methods used, results produced, and the prospects for future research.

Robert A. Kirchner
Director of Research
Glacier Consulting, Inc.
Annapolis, MD

Confidentiality and Human Subjects Protections at NIJ

This roundtable discussion offers the opportunity to visit with NIJ's Human Subjects Protection Officer to engage in a dialogue on the topic of human subjects' protection, to identify specific or generic problems in the area, and to voice any concerns related to the issue. Such concerns might include questions about NIJ's policies or procedures on confidentiality and human subjects' protections, possible solutions to problems concerning human subjects' protection, current activities, and future directions of federal human subjects' protections, or problems with Institutional Review Board requirements and NIJ confidentiality protections.

David E. Kleffman
Human Subjects Protection Officer
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice

Addressing Officer Stress: NIJ's Corrections and Law Enforcement Family Support (CLEFS) Program

This roundtable discussion will provide an opportunity for practitioners, researchers, and others interested in this issue to engage in a discussion regarding NIJ's efforts to learn about unique occupational stressors experienced by corrections and law enforcement officers, and the impact stress has on their lives—their work, relationships, and health. In addition to a number of ongoing demonstration projects, NIJ is embarking on a field test of a model for comprehensive stress prevention and stress management programs for officers and their families.

Amy M. Mazzocco
Program Manager
Office of Development and Communications
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice

Project Reentry: Transitioning Offenders to the Community

This roundtable discussion will focus on the concept and principles of reentry and the importance of partnerships in achieving successful integration of offenders into the community.

Phillip K. Merkle

Special Advisor
Corrections Program Office
Office of Justice Programs
U.S. Department of Justice

Breaking the Cycle

Breaking the Cycle (BTC) is a multi-site research and demonstration program designed to develop and test a comprehensive strategy for addressing substance abuse among offenders. The goal of BTC is to ensure that criminal justice agencies focus on the challenge of reducing drug use and drug-related crime among offenders under supervision. There are four elements in BTC programs: 1) early intervention; 2) judicial oversight; 3) use of graduated sanctions and incentives; and 4) close collaboration between criminal justice agencies and drug treatment. Discussion will be centered on the program and its implementation in several sites.

Janice T. Munsterman

Social Science Analyst
Criminal Justice Systems Division
Office of Research and Evaluation
National Institute of Justice
U.S. Department of Justice
