ENFORCEMENT PROCEEDINGS

COMMISSION SUES SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA BASED UNREGISTERED BROKERAGE FIRM

On July 21, the Commission sued a Southern California based business, United Custodial Corporation, alleging that it was operating as an unregistered broker-dealer. The lawsuit, filed in federal court in Los Angeles, alleges that from approximately 1993 through April 2000, United Custodial's affiliate company, San Clemente Securities, sold interests in bank-issued FDIC insured certificates of deposit, or CDs, to the public. The CDs were issued in the name of, and held by, United Custodial, as custodian on behalf of San Clemente's customers. The Commission's complaint further alleges that as part of this custodial relationship, United Custodial received, held and disbursed investor funds and received, held and delivered investor securities, thereby operating as a full-clearing broker-dealer. Inasmuch as United Custodial is not registered with the Commission as a broker-dealer, the Commission charged United Custodial with violations of the broker-dealer registration and capital reserve provisions of the Exchange Act.

United Custodial has agreed to settle this matter by consenting to a permanent injunction without admitting or denying allegations in the Commission's complaint. In addition, United Custodial has agreed to maintain the engagement of a CPA firm to provide oversight of all disbursements from UCC. United Custodial has also agreed to transfer the CD assets of San Clemente customers to an appropriate custodian within 180 days. If a new custodian cannot be found within that period, United Custodial has consented to the appointment of a receiver for those assets. [SEC v. United Custodial Corporation, Civil Action No. 00-07907, JSL, Mcx, C.D. Cal.] (LR-16633)
