NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION HONORS EMPLOYEES JUNE 16 IN ROCKVILLE, MD

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission held its 33rd Annual Awards Ceremony at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, June 16, at the Bethesda North Marriott Hotel and Conference Center to honor outstanding employees and their important contributions to the agency's success. During the ceremony, NRC recognized recipients of Presidential Executive Rank Awards, the NRC's Distinguished and Meritorious Service Awards, and the Edward McGaffigan, Jr. Public Service Award. These are the highest awards the agency gives to its employees.

"It gives me great pleasure to recognize the hard work and dedication of our employees to help the agency carry out its mission to protect public health, safety and the environment," said Chairman Gregory B. Jaczko. "The NRC is fortunate to have such highly qualified, diverse, dedicated and effective employees."

Each year the President recognizes a small group of career senior executives who achieve results and demonstrate strong leadership, integrity and excellence in public service with the Presidential Executive Rank Award. NRC gives awards to individuals for achievements of major significance or service of unusual value that contribute to the accomplishment of NRC's mission. The McGaffigan award is for an employee who demonstrates an extraordinary commitment to public service and exemplifies the integrity, professional dedication and moral character that former Commissioner McGaffigan exhibited in his decades of public service.
