

Department of State Retrospective Review Plan Report May 2012

Agency/Sub-agency	RIN/OMB Control Number	Title of the Rule/ICR/Initiative	Actual or Target Completion Date	Anticipated savings in cost and/or information collection burdens; anticipated changes in benefits (please quantify, and provide a baseline, time-horizon, and affected groups)	Progress updates and anticipated accomplishments
State; PM	1400-AC90	Revision of USML Category I (Firearms)	Proposed Rule publication planned for Spring 2012	Regulatory clarification. This will lead to reduction of burden, in many instances, by eliminating the necessity of an export license from the Department of State. This reduction in license volume will result in cost savings to the defense industry, as fees paid by defense manufacturers and exporters to register with the Department of State are determined in part by the number of licenses submitted. Regulatory clarification also should lead to burden reduction through the decreased use of the commodity jurisdiction determination procedure, for a USML that clearly delineates defense articles should lead to less ambiguity on the part of exporters.

Some of the fees will be higher or lower from the last publication of the final Schedule of Fees to reflect the Department's actual costs of providing the services, as produced by the 2009 Cost of Service Model (CoSM), the Department's activity-based costing model.	Published February 2, 2012 as 77 FR 5177. Amends 22 CFR Part 22.

State; CA	1400-AC86	22 CFR 42.24 -- IASA Hague Adoptions	Final Rule targeted late Spring 2012	This regulation implements the International Adoption Simplification Act, which provides, among other things, for adult sibling adoptions by U.S. citizen parents. The legislation also enables the extension of certain benefits of the Hague Convention to American citizen parents by a regulation that advances the public interest while safeguarding adopted children. Under this legislation, U.S. parents can adopt siblings who would otherwise be ineligible for adoption due to their age. This age-out protection eliminates unnecessary cost and resource burdens to those who seek adult sibling adoptions by permitting U.S. parents to file an immediate relative petition for the adult sibling of an already or concurrently adopted child. Additionally, this rule advances a cornerstone policy of immigration law; family reunification. The objective of this regulation is to minimize the costs and burdens on individuals by making the adoption process more transparent and protect the interests of the adopted child. Under this amended rule, the general public will continuously benefit from cost savings as U.S. parents and will be able to adopt siblings which meet the definitions of the International Adoption Simplification Act. This amended regulation benefits families and the general public interest as it allows the reunification of siblings at no significant added cost to the Department.	Interim Final Rule published on November 1, 2011. Comment period closed December 1, 2011 with comments received. Final Rule in clearance with publication targeted Summer 2012.

State; CA		22 CFR 41.54 -- Issuance of Full Validity L Visas to Qualified Applicants	Final Rule published February 14, 2012 (77 FR 8119)	Extending the validity for L visas reduces unnecessary burden on U.S. employers and allows consular officers to perform their duties in a cost-effective manner. The revised rule extends the validity period of L visas issued to foreign nationals to a period equal to that afforded to U.S. travelers. As the previous rule tied L visa validity to the length of the underlying petition, for many nationalities seeking L visas, validity will increase by two years. In 2010, State issued approximately 145,000 L visas, over half of which to nationals of India. Nationals from France, England, Mexico, South Korea, and Japan comprised the remaining majority of L applicants. Under the new regulation, applicants from these countries, accounting for over two-thirds of all L applicants, are entitled to 60 month validity periods, a substantial increase from the previous limit of 36 months. By extending the validity period to 60 months, over 100,000 L applicants in 2010 would have received an added two years of validity without having to renew their visa. Applicants save time and resources as they are not required to renew their visas outside the United States as frequently, a process that results in inconvenience to the visa holder and disruption to business. By permitting an L visa holder to remain in the United States for a longer period of time, L employees may remain at work, providing continuity for employers and making America a favorable destination to conduct business. As a result, the Department benefits from both reduced processing costs and eased administrative strain at overseas embassies and consulates as the extended validity period saves consular officers almost 3500 hours in interview time, a significant resource saving for State. Reduced renewal applications due to longer validity allow consular officers to more efficiently process applications, making Department operations more cost-effective to better facilitate legitimate travel. Expanding the validity for L visas will not significantly affect small businesses as L visas are for intracompany transferees, primarily issued only to employees of large multinational corporations such as Deloitte, IBM, and Honeywell.	Final Rule published on February 14, 2012 (77 FR 8119).
State; CA	1400-AD17	22 CFR 41.2 -- Exemption or Waiver by Secretary of State and Secretary of Homeland Security of passport and/or visa requirements for certain categories of nonimmigrants	Targeted September 2012	This regulation will reduce fraud and address security concerns created by the previous rule which allowed temporary workers from certain Caribbean nations to enter the United States without a visa. The regulation will require a passport and a visa for individuals proceeding to the United States as an agricultural worker if they are a British, French, or Netherlands national, or a national of Antigua, Barbados, Grenada, Jamaica, or Trinidad and Tobago, who has residence in British French, or Netherlands territory located in the adjacent islands of the Caribbean area, or has residence in Antigua, Barbados, Grenada, Jamaica, or Trinidad and Tobago. The rule will lessen the possibility that persons who pose security risks to the United States or will potentially violate their immigration status improperly gain admission to the United States. Extending the visa requirement to these Caribbean H-2A agricultural workers will better protect them from employment and recruitment-based abuses by ensuring that they have been informed, and are aware of, their rights and responsibilities during the visa process. This regulation will prevent	Rule has been drafted and is in final clearance with OMB.

State; CA	1400-AD21	22 CFR 41.22 -- Officials of Foreign Governments	Targeted September 2012	This regulation permits family members of diplomats assigned to the United States to accept employment with international organizations and obtain visas that reflect their status as employees of such organizations, rather than dependents of their diplomatic family member. Amending this rule clarifies existing policy and renders conditions for employment more clear to spouses of "A" visa holders. By facilitating employment with international organizations, the regulation promotes an important policy of the U.S. government to support international organizations operating within its borders. The Department faces no added burdens with this amended regulation as the process of visa issuance remains the same for affected visa applicants with only the resulting classification changing. At the same time, international organizations will benefit significantly from a facilitated hiring process for the spouses of "A" visa holders, making their operations both more cost-efficient and continuously-staffed. These benefits will continue annually as the Department will issue these visas upon request from the applicant. The savings will come at no added cost to the Department as there will be no added burdens to current practice.	Rule has been drafted and is in clearance.
State; CA		22 CFR 41.2 -- Exemption or Waiver by Secretary of State and Secretary of Homeland Security of passport and/or visa requirements for certain categories of nonimmigrants	Targeted September 2012	This regulation revises an existing regulation to comply with a court decision requiring joint action between DHS and the Department of State. The amended provisions permit a waiver of the visa and passport requirement for individuals traveling without them due to unforeseen or emergency circumstances. The Department of State is publishing the regulation with extensive coordination with the Department of Homeland Security after a court directed that the regulation be promulgated as a joint action between the two agencies. The Department will also publish this rule with a period for public comment. The published rule will provide clarity to industry, rendering the bifurcated role between both agencies more clear to airline carriers. Implementing this regulation will provide clarity to industry, saving businesses an average of $48,000 per year in fines. In FY08 and FY09, the two years preceding the court's invalidation of the regulation, 32 carriers were assessed fines for non-compliance as a result of transporting aliens without a valid visa or unexpired passport due to an unforeseen emergency. The fine, $3000 for each alien, amounts to an average of $48,000 in fines per year. By rendering more clear the shared role of the Department of State and the Department of Homeland Security in implementing the rule, the Department hopes to make business practices more predictable for industry. The savings will come at no added cost to the Department as there will be no added burdens to current practice.	In drafting.
