Join your colleagues for the next program in the Safety Net series! The Library of Congress Preservation Directorate and the FEDLINK Preservation Working Group are cosponsoring a workshop on small emergency recovery and large pre-recovery action for paper and film-based materials in collections.

This program, designed for federal library and archives staff who have received previous disaster planning instruction, will investigate

- o determining if materials need to be moved off site to a vendor for recovery
- o recovering a small amount of damaged materials in-house
- o making decisions on what to recover, what to discard and what to send to a vendor.

The continuing Safety Net series is a collaborative effort of the Library of Congress Preservation Directorate, the FEDLINK Preservation Working Group, and the FEDLINK Safety Net, a voluntary federal library mutual disaster assistance network.
