Re: In the Matter of Rambus Inc., FTC Docket No. 9302

Dear Mr. Rosen:

Among the documents for which Micron sought in camera treatment in this matter under Commission Rule of Practice 3.45(b), 16 C.F.R. § 3.45(b), are one hundred and seventeen (117) trial exhibits. Micron designated all but one of these documents as Restricted Confidential under the protective order.

Section 1(o) of the August 5, 2002 Protective Order governing discovery in this matter reserves "Restricted Confidential" designations for Confidential Discovery Material that: 1) is current; 2) contains highly-sensitive information such as trade secrets or documents of a like nature; 3) and the disclosure of which to Rambus's General Counsel John Danforth or in house counsel Robert G. Kramer would likely cause a) substantial commercial harm or b) personal embarrassment to Micron.

By inspection fourteen (14) of these documents do not qualify as Restricted Confidential under the protective order: 1) MR0082159-60; 2) MR0082150-51; 3) MR0082136-37; 4) MR 130011-12; 5) MU 49188-89; 6) MR20005748; 7) MR 135139-41; 8) MR20006342-43; 9) MR20007188-90; 10) MFTC 200502-35; 11) MFTC 100000229; 12) MFTC 211248-58; 13) MFTC 211238-44; and 14) MFTC 228549-51. These documents, and a copy of the protective order, are enclosed with this letter for your review.

Seven more of these documents consist of agreements or correspondence, from 1997 and earlier, between Texas Instruments and Rambus: 1) MR20005866-67; 2) MR20005991-92; 3) MR20005984-85; 4) MR20005900-03; 5) MR20007331-40; 6) MR20007326; and 7) MR20006936-41. These are also enclosed for your review.

Please review these documents against the requirements of Section 1(o) and notify me whether Micron will agree to change its designations for these listed exhibits to Confidential under Section 1(n) of the Protective Order.

In addition, Rambus would like to disclose each of these twenty-one (21) documents to the following people: Rambus's General Counsel, John Danforth; Rambus in house counsel, Robert Kramer and Paul Anderson; Rambus's CEO, Geoffrey Tate; and Rambus directors Dr. Mike Farmwald and Professor Mark Horowitz. Please let me know if Micron agrees to this additional disclosure under Sections 7(h) or 10(b) of the Protective Order.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Adam R. Wichman
