If an embassy grows to more than 35 U.S.-based employees the post may, with the concurrence of their regional bureau, submit a request to OBO for DCM FFA&E that will be provided if/when funding becomes available. The Bureau of Diplomatic Security (DS), with U.S. Marine Corps reimbursement, funds FFA&E for Marine security guard quarters. ICASS funds FFA&E for ICASS personnel.

- d. The Office of the Under Secretary for Public Diplomacy and Public Affairs (R) funds items particular to its needs (e.g., information resource centers are considered unique to public diplomacy).

- a. Provision is subject to the availability of post-held funds. The IAHB should establish a joint country policy, specifying the kinds and number of items for each residence, and provisions for varying needs and special conditions. The post housing guidelines must contain the approved IAHB supplemental FFA&E policy.
- b. The U.S. Government may furnish other items in addition to basic and supplemental FFA&E. These items will be furnished routinely if the post IAHB and the SRPM establish a joint policy among agencies utilizing the housing. The parent agency and regional bureau must also approve. In addition, Departmental furniture packages and replacement items must be used to the fullest extent possible.
- c. Food freezers may be provided for residences when the IAHB determines that conditions warrant. Post must determine the adequacy of the local electricity supply and give consideration to the following conditions: isolated post location; lack of commissary services; long distance from shopping facilities; restricted seasonal availability of meat, seafood, etc., on the local market; and the need to import large quantities of food to supplement the local diet.
