PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 111th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 156

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, APRIL 26, 2010

No. 59

House of Representatives

The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. MORAN of Virginia).

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
April 26, 2010.

I hereby appoint the Honorable JAMES P. MORAN to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NANCY PELOSI,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING-HOUR DEBATE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 6, 2009, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning-hour debate.

The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 30 minutes and each Member, other than the majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, limited to 5 minutes.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 12 o'clock and 31 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until 2 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. HINOJOSA) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer: Ever-present God, who knows us through and through, hasten to help us and strengthen the faith and unity of Your people.

Give us courage to attack what is evil and surrounds itself with negativity. History shows us You will fortify the just, lift up the lowly, and cleanse the pure of heart.

Empower us to accomplish what is good and give You the glory now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BURGESS) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. BURGESS led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 26, 2010.

Hon. NANCY PELOSI,
The Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM SPEAKER: Pursuant to the permission granted in Clause 2(h) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, the Clerk received the following message from the Secretary of the Senate on April 26, 2010 at 9:31 a.m.:

That the Senate concur in the House amendment to the bill S. 1963.

That the Senate passed S. 3253.

That the Senate agreed to with an amendment H. Con. Res. 255.

Appointments:

Commission on Key National Indicators
With best wishes, I am

Sincerely,

LORRAINE C. MILLER,
Clerk of the House.

HEALTH INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY RULEMAKING GIVES US AN IDEA OF WHAT TO EXPECT WITH NEW HEALTH REFORM LAW

(Mr. BURGESS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, 14 months ago this House passed in the stimulus bill a measure that contained $20 billion for information technology relating to health care. The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services published a rule on January 13 of this year to determine qualifications of what determined a so-called meaningful user and who will be able to receive this funding.

Mr. Speaker, this morning I spoke to the American Hospital Association. Our Nation's hospitals are almost unanimous in their dissatisfaction with the rules coming out of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. These rules are misguided, rigid, and in fact unattainable.

In fact, a bipartisan group of 248 members of this House of Representatives agreed. Further, instead of incentivizing compliance, these rules punish noncompliance. This undoubtedly gives us an idea of what we can expect with the rulemaking and regulation that will occur at the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Health and Human Services, Office of Personnel Management, and, for crying out loud, the Internal Revenue Service as they go through this same process addressing the new health care reform law. This will go on for years, and in fact decades, perhaps even generations.

Doctors, hospitals, information technology manufacturers, medical device manufacturers, and all Americans need to stay alert and pay attention to what's coming out of the agencies here in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of us to stay involved and active. The stimulus and the reform bill will affect how health care is delivered for generations to come.

ARIZONA VOTERS LIKE NEW LAW

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, while pro-amnesty advocates are busy criticizing Arizona's new immigration enforcement law, Arizona voters are registering their overwhelming support. According to a Rasmussen Reports telephone survey, 70 percent of likely voters in Arizona approve of the legislation, including 84 percent of Republicans, 69 percent of independents, and more than half of Democrats. These results are not surprising.

Arizonans are no different from other Americans. They want to see the Nation's immigration laws enforced. They are rightly concerned about the jobs that illegal immigrants take from citizens and legal immigrants, about their communities' safety, and about the substantial costs to taxpayers of illegal immigration.

If the Obama administration continues to ignore immigration laws, it should not be surprised if other States follow Arizona's example.

HONORING ANTHONY "TONY" J. CORTESE

(Mr. HONDA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and work of my friend, Anthony "Tony" J. Cortese. For the past four decades, Mr. Cortese was a proud and dedicated employee of the United States Postal Service.

I am proud to stand on the floor today in support of H.R. 4543, legislation to designate the Westgate Station Post Office in my district of San Jose, California, in memory of Mr. Cortese. I would also like to thank my good friend and the sponsor of this legislation, Congresswoman ZOE LOFGREN, for working closely with me on this effort.

Mr. Cortese was born in the San Francisco Bay area and moved to Santa Clara County with his family after his father took a job at the Ford plant in Milpitas. A few years after graduating James Lick High School in San Jose, Mr. Cortese started working as a letter carrier in the downtown San Jose post office.

Mr. Cortese was a tireless advocate for letter carriers in the region and made a significant impact on our community. In addition to his 42 years with the Postal Service, Mr. Cortese served 27 years as the president of the National Association of Letter Carriers Local 193. Under his leadership, this local procured a building for its members, secured expanded health benefits, and provided an open forum for discussion with union members, community advocates, and local elected officials.

Throughout his tenure, Mr. Cortese developed strong relationships with postal workers and management. His legacy and accomplishments at the Postal Service will not be forgotten.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the life of Anthony Cortese, and ask my colleagues to support naming a post office in his honor. I want to congratulate the family, and I want to give a personal thanks, because without his work my family would not have benefited from the kinds of things he has done in our community.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBER TO SELECT INTELLIGENCE OVERSIGHT PANEL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 4(a)(5) of rule X, and the order of the House of January 6, 2009, the Chair announces the Speaker's appointment of the following Member of the House to the Select Intelligence Oversight Panel of the Committee on Appropriations:

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ, Florida.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote incurs objection under clause 6 of rule XX.

Record votes on postponed questions will be taken after 6:30 p.m. today.

ANTHONY J. CORTESE POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4543) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 4285 Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, as the "Anthony J. Cortese Post Office Building".

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 4543

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. ANTHONY J. CORTESE POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 4285

Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, shall be known and designated as the "Anthony J. Cortese Post Office Building".

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Anthony J. Cortese Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. OLSON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and add any extraneous materials.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the House subcommittee with jurisdiction over the United States Postal Service, I am proud to present H.R. 4543 for consideration. This legislation will designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 4285 Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, as the Anthony J. Cortese Post Office Building.

Introduced by my friend and colleague Representative ZOE LOFGREN of California on January 27, 2010, H.R. 4543 was favorably reported out of the Oversight and Government Reform Committee on April 14, 2010, by unanimous consent. In addition, this legislation enjoys the overwhelming support of the California House delegation.

A 55-year resident of San Jose, California, Mr. Anthony Cortese was born in the East Bay city of Richmond, California, and graduated from James Lick High School in San Jose. While in his early twenties, Mr. Cortese began working for the United States Postal Service as a letter carrier in the downtown San Jose post office and continued to serve as a proud Postal Service employee for over 40 years. As a letter carrier, Mr. Cortese became an active member of his union, the National Association of Letter Carriers Local 193. Mr. Cortese climbed the ranks from shop steward to vice president, and in 1981 was elected union president, a position he proudly held for 27 years.

As president of Local 193 for nearly 30 years, Mr. Cortese devoted his efforts to advancing the well-being of his fellow letter carriers. Notably, Mr. Cortese successfully procured a union-owned headquarters building for the members of Local 193. He helped expand member health benefits and established an open, meaningful, and continuing dialogue between his union members and Federal, State, and local elected officials.

However, Mr. Cortese's service was not just limited to his efforts on behalf of his fellow letter carriers. Rather, Mr. Cortese's commitment to public service could be evidenced by his effort to benefit the entire San Jose community. Specifically, in 1990, Mr. Cortese established a local food drive initiative, sponsored by the National Association of Letter Carriers, that since 1991 has become a national food drive held every year on the first Saturday before Mother's Day.

Regrettably, Mr. Cortese passed away on February 11, 2007. However, while Mr. Cortese is no longer with us, his memory and legacy of public service will live on through his family, his friends, his community, and of course his fellow letter carriers.

Mr. Speaker, let us further honor the life and legacy of this letter carrier and former union president Anthony Cortese through the passage of H.R. 4543, which will designate the postal facility located at 4285 Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, in his honor. I urge my colleagues to join me and the bill sponsor, ZOE LOFGREN from California.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OLSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4543, designating the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 4285 Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, as the Anthony J. Cortese Post Office Building.

A graduate of James Lick High School in San Jose, Mr. Cortese started working as a letter carrier in his early twenties. He was known for his outgoing nature and ability to work collaboratively to get things done, whether he was resolving workplace issues or organizing charitable work in the local community.

As president of the National Letter Carriers Association Branch 193 for over 26 years, Mr. Cortese had one of the longest tenures of any local labor official. Not only did Mr. Cortese help build membership of more than 1,000 local postal workers into a political force, he also helped to initiate a food drive in which letter carriers collected donations for the Second Harvest Food Bank for families in the San Jose area. This program served as a pilot for what ultimately became a national food drive sponsored by the NALC. The program continues today and is just one of the generous contributions Mr. Cortese made to his community and his country.

Sadly, this outstanding citizen of San Jose died of a heart condition on February 11, 2007. He leaves behind his wife, Barbara; his daughter, Caroline; his sister, Mary; and his grandchildren, Austin and Ashley.

For his tireless efforts for his fellow postal workers and people in need throughout the country, it is fitting that we name the post office in Tony Cortese's honor.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LYNCH. I want to thank the gentleman from Texas for his kind remarks. And I would encourage my colleagues to join the lead sponsor of this measure, ZOE LOFGREN from California, in supporting H.R. 4543.

Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4543, a bill to designate the U.S. Post Office located at 4285 Payne Avenue in San Jose, California, as the Anthony J. Cortese Post Office.

For over four decades, Mr. Cortese was a proud and dedicated employee of the United States Postal Service. He was also a loving family man, respected community leader, and a friend to many of us in local government.

Mr. Cortese was born in the East Bay and moved to Santa Clara County with his family after his father went to work at the Ford Plant in Milpitas. A few years after graduating from James Lick High School in San Jose, Mr. Cortese started working as a letter carrier in the downtown San Jose post office.

Mr. Cortese was a tireless advocate for letter carriers in the region and made a significant impact on his community. In addition to his forty-two years with the Postal Service, Mr. Cortese served twenty-seven years as the president of the National Association of Letter Carriers Local 193. Under his leadership, Local 193 procured a building for its members, secured expanded health benefits, and provided an open forum for discussion with union members, community advocates, Postal Service supervisors, and local elected officials. Throughout his tenure, Mr. Cortese developed strong relationships with postal workers and management.

Mr. Cortese's service was not limited to advocacy of union members, but extended into the San Jose community and beyond. In 1990, Mr. Cortese started a food drive program through the Second Harvest Food Bank to help needy families in the San Jose area. Under Mr. Cortese's guidance, this program served as a pilot for what would become a national food drive sponsored by the National Association of Letter Carriers.

I urge all of my colleagues to join Congressman MIKE HONDA and me to vote in favor of this bill to honor our good friend, Anthony J. Cortese.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4543.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

HONORING THE LIFE AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF SAM HOUSTON

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 1103) celebrating the life of Sam Houston on the 217th anniversary of his birth, as amended.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The text of the resolution is as follows:

H. RES. 1103

Whereas Sam Houston was born at Timber Ridge Church, near Lexington, Virginia, on March 2, 1793;

Whereas Sam Houston as an enlisted soldier fought courageously in the War of 1812, and after receiving three near-mortal wounds at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend, rose to the rank of first lieutenant;

Whereas Sam Houston studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1818, and commenced practice in Lebanon, Tennessee;

Whereas Sam Houston became District Attorney in 1819, Adjutant General of the State in 1820, and Major General in 1821;

Whereas Sam Houston was elected to the United States Congress for the State of Tennessee in 1823 and again in 1825 before serving as Governor from 1827 to 1829;

Whereas Sam Houston moved to Oklahoma, served as an advocate for Native American rights and a representative of the Cherokee Nation, and then became a Cherokee citizen on October 21, 1829;

Whereas Sam Houston moved to Texas in 1835 and joined the movement to establish separate statehood for Texas;

Whereas Sam Houston was elected as the commander-in-chief of the armies of Texas in 1836;

Whereas, on April 21, 1836, Sam Houston's forces defeated Mexican President and General Santa Anna, securing Texas' long sought independence;

Whereas the city of Houston, Texas, was named after then-President of the Republic of Texas, Sam Houston, on June 5, 1837;

Whereas Sam Houston was elected the first President of the Republic of Texas and served 2 terms, followed by 2 years with the Texas Congress, after which he returned to serve as President from 1841 to 1844;

Whereas, after Texas joined the Union in 1845, Sam Houston was elected Senator to the United States Congress and served from 1846 to 1859;

Whereas Sam Houston once again resigned his position with Congress to serve as Governor of Texas from 1859 to 1861;

Whereas Sam Houston was deposed on March 18, 1861, because he refused to take the oath of allegiance to the Confederate States;

Whereas Sam Houston died in Huntsville, Texas, on July 26, 1863, and was then interred in Oakwood Cemetery;

Whereas Sam Houston is the only person in United States history to have been the Governor of 2 different States, Tennessee and Texas;

Whereas a memorial museum, U.S. Army base, national forest, historical park, university, and the largest free-standing statue of a United States figure recognize the life of Sam Houston; and

Whereas Sam Houston still stands as a symbol for Texas solidarity and is one of the most significant individuals in the history of Texas: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives honors the life and accomplishments of Sam Houston for his historical contributions to the expansion of the United States.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. OLSON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and add any extraneous materials.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, I present House Resolution 1103 for consideration. This resolution honors the life and accomplishments of Sam Houston for his historical contributions to the expansion of the United States.

Introduced by my friend and colleague, Representative MIKE MCCAUL of Texas, on February 24, 2010, House Resolution 1103 was favorably reported out of the Oversight Committee on April 14, 2010, by unanimous consent. In addition, the legislation enjoys the support of over 50 Members of Congress.

As we all know, Sam Houston, a 19th century American soldier, statesman and politician, played a pivotal role in the development of the State of Texas as well as our collective national history. As a soldier enlisted in the 7th Infantry Regiment, Private and then-First Lieutenant Houston fought courageously in the Battle of 1812 during which he received nearly mortal wounds at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend in March of 1814.

As a practicing attorney in the State of Tennessee, Mr. Houston served as a district attorney in 1819, as the State's adjutant general in 1820, and then as a major general in 1821.

As a United States Representative elected to the 18th and 19th Congresses, Mr. Houston proudly represented the State of Tennessee before his service as the State's Governor from 1827 to 1829. As a subsequent resident of the State of Oklahoma, Mr. Houston served as a vocal advocate in support of Native American rights and in 1829 was recognized as a member of the Cherokee Nation by the Cherokee National Council. However, Mr. Houston is best known for his relentless efforts to secure statehood for Texas.

In 1835, Mr. Houston moved to the Texas territory and promptly served as a member of the convention at San Felipe de Austin, a gathering of colonists designed to promote and establish separate statehood for Texas. One year later, Mr. Houston was elected to serve as commander in chief of the Texas army and in this capacity successfully led his volunteer Texas forces against those of Mexican General Antonio Lopez de Santa Ana in the Battle of San Jacinto. Notably, the battle culminated with the signing of the Treaty of Velasco, which recognized the Republic of Texas.

In recognition of his service, Mr. Houston was subsequently elected to serve as the first President of the Texas Republic, a position that he held from 1836 to 1838 and again from 1841 to 1844. Fittingly, the city of Houston was named after the President of the Texas Republic in 1837.

Mr. Houston also served the Texas Republic as a member of the Texas Congress from 1838 to 1840, and upon Texas' admission as a State into the Union, served as a United States Senator from the 31st through the 34th Congresses. Mr. Houston would also serve as Governor of the State of Texas from 1859 to 1861, making him the only person in the United States to ever have served as the Governor of two different States. Notably, Mr. Houston's tenure as a Texas Governor ended with his refusal to take an oath of loyalty to the Confederacy following Texas' secession from the Union, an act that Mr. Houston deemed illegal.

Mr. Houston died on July 26, 1863, at the age of 70. Fittingly, his last words, as spoken to his wife, Margaret, were reportedly: "Texas, Texas, Margaret . . ."

Mr. Speaker, let us honor the lasting contributions of Sam Houston to the State of Texas and our national history through the passage of this resolution, H. Res. 1103.

I urge my colleagues to join Mr. MCCAUL of Texas in supporting H. Res. 1103.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OLSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the resolution, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today in support of H. Res. 1103, introduced by a fellow Texan and colleague, Congressman MIKE MCCAUL, honoring the life and accomplishments of Sam Houston for his historical contributions to the expansion of the United States.

Sam Houston lived an amazing and vibrant life. Shortly after moving to Tennessee from his home in the State of Virginia, Sam was drawn to the Cherokee Indians, a tribe that would have a profound impact on his life.

At the age of 19, Sam Houston enlisted in the military to fight the British in the War of 1812, where he distinguished himself for his bravery and was wounded several times in battle. After the war, his attention shifted to the study of law. In 1823, he was elected to the first of two terms here in this body, the United States Congress, before being elected Governor to the State of Tennessee in 1827. In 1828, Houston resigned from Tennessee politics, returning to live with his longtime friends, the Cherokee Indians.

In 1835, Sam Houston left the Cherokee and his life in Tennessee and moved to Texas, where he quickly gained notoriety for his leadership in seeking independence from Mexico. In the wake of defeat at the Alamo on April 21, 1836, Houston rallied the armies of Texas to victory, decisively defeating Santa Anna and the Mexican Army at the Battle of San Jacinto, securing independence for Texas and his heroic place in the Nation's history.

Shortly after securing independence, Sam Houston was elected the first President of the Republic of Texas, beginning a long and successful career in Texas politics. He went on to serve a second term as President of the Republic before being elected as a United States Senator after statehood in 1845. In 1859, Houston continued his public service when he was elected Governor of the State of Texas and became the only person in U.S. history to serve as Governor in two States.

Though sometimes embroiled in controversy, Sam Houston was a passionate, dedicated statesman who played an important role in shaping this great Nation. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and honor the accomplishments of this important, if not heroic, figure in American history and the history of my home State, the great State of Texas.

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1103—Celebrating the life of Sam Houston on the 217th anniversary of his birth. Sam Houston was born March 2, 1793, in Tiber Ridge, Virginia.

General Houston was an American statesman, politician, and soldier. He is a key figure in the history of Texas, including periods as the 1st and 3rd president of the Republic of Texas, as Senator after annexation, and finally as governor.

In his early life, he moved to Tennessee, where he served in the military during the War of 1812 and later had a successful career in Tennessee politics. A fight with a Congressman led to his move to Texas, where he soon became a leader of the Texas Revolution.

Houston attended the Convention of 1833, representing Nacogdoches, and supported independence from Mexico. He was made a Major General of the Texas Army in November 1835, then Commander-in-Chief in March 1836, at the convention where he signed the Texas Declaration of Independence.

At the Battle of San Jacinto on April 21, 1836, General Houston surprised General Santa Ana and the Mexican forces, and in less than 18 minutes, the battle was over. General Santa Ana was forced to sign the Treaty of Velasco, granting Texas independence. During the battle General Houston was shot, shattering his ankle.

The settlement of Houston was founded in August 1836 by the Allen brothers. It was named in Houston's honor and served as capital.

Houston was twice elected president of the Republic of Texas. He served from October 1836 to December 1838, and again from December 1841 to December 1844. While he initially sought annexation by the U.S., he dropped that hope during his first term.

After the annexation of Texas by the United States in 1845, Houston was elected to the U.S. Senate. He served from February 1846 until March 1859.

He twice ran for governor of Texas, unsuccessfully in 1857 and successfully in 1859.

Despite Houston's being a slave owner and against abolition, he opposed the secession of Texas from the Union.

Despite Houston's wishes, Texas seceded from the United States in February 1861 and joined the Confederate States of America in March 1861. This act was soon branded illegal by Houston, but the Texas legislature nevertheless upheld the legitimacy of secession. The political forces that brought about Texas's secession also were powerful enough to replace the state's Unionist governor.

To avoid bloodshed, Governor Houston chose not to resist, and instead retired to Huntsville, Texas, where he died before the end of the Civil War. Today, Governor Houston has a memorial museum, a U.S. Army base, a national forest, a historical park, a university, and the largest free-standing statue of an American figure, in his honor.

Mr. OLSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, again I encourage my colleagues to join Mr. MCCAUL and Mr. OLSON of Texas in supporting H. Res. 1103, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the resolution, H. Res. 1103, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the yeas have it.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

STEVE GOODMAN POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4861) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1343 West Irving Park Road in Chicago, Illinois, as the "Steve Goodman Post Office Building".

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the bill is as follows:

H.R. 4861

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. STEVE GOODMAN POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1343 West Irving Park Road in Chicago, Illinois, shall be known and designated as the "Steve Goodman Post Office Building".

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Steve Goodman Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. OLSON) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and add any extraneous materials.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the House subcommittee with jurisdiction over the United States Postal Service, I am proud to present H.R. 4861 for consideration. This legislation will designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1343 West Irving Park Road in Chicago, Illinois, as the "Steve Goodman Post Office Building."

Introduced by my good friend and colleague, Representative MIKE QUIGLEY of Chicago, on March 16, 2010, H.R. 4861 was favorably reported out of the Oversight and Government Reform Committee on April 14, 2010 by unanimous consent. In addition, this legislation enjoys the support of the entire Illinois House delegation.

A beloved native of the City of Chicago, American folk singer and songwriter Steve Goodman was born on July 25, 1948, on Chicago's north side. Mr. Goodman graduated from Maine East High School in Park Ridge, Illinois, in 1965, and subsequently enrolled at the University of Illinois.

After 1 year, Mr. Goodman left the University of Illinois in order to pursue a musical career. In 1968, he began performing at the famed Earl of Old Town folk club in Chicago's Old Town neighborhood where he first attracted a large popular following and where he soon became a regular performer throughout the city. Mr. Goodman's subsequent and distinguished musical career evidenced his dual mastery of songwriting and performance as well as his genuine devotion to his hometown, and he left an indelible mark on both American folk music and on the city of Chicago.

As noted by the Chicago Tribune earlier this month, Mr. Goodman's collection of songs told "wondrous, intricate stories," and "if you were a fan and you lived in Chicago when he was alive, you couldn't help but feel like he was a private pleasure."

Notably, Mr. Goodman released 10 folk music albums during his life, which were followed by five posthumous releases. Included among his most enduring songs was the "City of New Orleans," a song about the Illinois Central's City of New Orleans train that was recorded by Arlo Guthrie and which became a top 20 hit in 1972. The song would also become an American standard, covered by such musicians as Johnny Cash and Willie Nelson, whose recorded versions earned Mr. Goodman a posthumous Grammy Award in the Best Country Song category in 1985. Mr. Goodman later received a second posthumous Grammy Award in the Best Contemporary Folk Album category in 1988 for his critically acclaimed album "Unfinished Business."

Additionally, Mr. Goodman is well-known for writing and performing a variety of humorous songs about the City of Chicago, including "Daley's Gone," which is a eulogy of the late mayor Richard J. Daley, and "A Dying Cubs Fan's Last Request," also "When the Cubs Go Marching In" and "Go, Cubs, Go!" in honor of his beloved Chicago Cubs. The latter song can be heard playing on the loudspeakers at Wrigley Field after every Cubs' home win.

In addition to his musical contributions, Mr. Goodman is equally remembered for the courage and positivity that he always evidenced throughout his 15-year battle with leukemia. While Mr. Goodman was diagnosed with the disease at the early age of 20, in the words of the Chicago Tribune, he was always "a little guy with a huge smile, and he was Chicago."

Regrettably, Mr. Goodman passed away on September 20, 1984, at the age of 36. Four days after his death, the Cubs clinched the National League's Eastern Division title, and on October 2, 1984, they played their first post-season game since the 1945 World Series. While Mr. Goodman had been asked to sing the national anthem for the occasion, Jimmy Buffet performed the "Star-Spangled Banner" in his absence and dedicated the song to Mr. Goodman, whose ashes were subsequently scattered at Wrigley Field.

Mr. Speaker, let us honor the life and legacy of Mr. Goodman through the passage of this legislation, H.R. 4861, to designate the West Irving Park Road Post Office in his honor. I urge my colleagues to join Mr. QUIGLEY of Chicago in supporting H.R. 4861.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OLSON. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4861, designating the facility of the United States Post Office, located at 1343 West Irving Park Road in Chicago, Illinois, as the "Steve Goodman Post Office Building."

Born on July 25, 1948, in Chicago, Illinois, Steve Goodman began his lifelong musical career as a teenager. After graduating from Maine East High School in 1965, Mr. Goodman entered the University of Illinois and started a band called The Juicy Fruits with friends from the Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity.

After 1 year, he left college to pursue his musical career full time. He was a regular performer in Chicago, and often supported himself by singing commercials. He often performed, but he was known as an excellent and influential songwriter. Known more prominently in folk music circles than in commercial venues, Mr. Goodman's music represented a chronicle of the times, including his many, many humorous songs about Chicago.

His legendary creation of the "City of New Orleans" got the attention of top recording artists, such as Arlo Guthrie, Johnny Cash, Judy Collins, Chet Atkins, and Willie Nelson, who all recorded this much-loved song. He was also known as a diehard Cubs fan, and his songs were often played at Wrigley Field. In 1984, his beloved Cubs won the Eastern Division title in the National League for the first time.

Sadly, Mr. Goodman died of leukemia before he could sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" for that first divisional post-season game. He was 36 years old. Jimmy Buffet filled in, dedicating the song to Mr. Goodman. Subsequently, some of Mr. Goodman's ashes were scattered at Wrigley Field.

I appreciate the opportunity to recognize this man of Chicago, Steve Goodman, who is world renowned for his many musical accomplishments.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LYNCH. I thank the gentleman from Texas for his kind remarks, and I urge my colleagues to join with the gentleman from Chicago, Illinois, Congressman MIKE QUIGLEY, in supporting H.R. 4861.

Mr. QUIGLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4861, a resolution to name the Post Office at 1343 West Irving Park Road after Steve Goodman.

Steve Goodman was a true Chicagoan, a legendary folk singer and songwriter and a faithful Cubs fan.

Sadly, Goodman succumbed to leukemia in 1984 at the young age of 36 after a courageous 15-year battle with the disease.

Over the course of his illness, Goodman wrote some of the most enduring American folk songs, including "The City of New Orleans," for which he won one of his two Grammy awards, and the great Chicago tune "Lincoln Park Pirates."

Goodman's career was inexorably intertwined with Chicago's Old Town School of Folk Music, where he learned his craft and befriended folk music luminaries such as Roger McGuinn of the Byrds, Bob Gibson, Bonnie Koloc, and John Prine.

While older Goodman fans are no doubt aware of his connection to the Cubs, best exemplified by his song "A Dying Cubs Fan's Last Request," in recent years younger generations have come to know Steve Goodman as the writer and performer of "Go, Cubs, Go," the anthem played at Wrigley Field following Cubs' wins.

Steve's spirit lives on after every Cubs home win, as thousands of fans happily head home from Wrigley singing, "Go Cubs, Go . . ."

With the passage of this legislation, it's possible that the strains of this happy tune will be heard on the steps of the Steve Goodman Post Office, not a mile up Clark Street from Wrigley Field.

Naming the Post Office at 1343 West Irving Park Road after Steve Goodman is a small but fitting way to honor the life and work of a man whose music was always imbued with emotions and scenes of everyday life.

I urge the swift passage of this legislation. Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. LYNCH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4861.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the yeas have it.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until approximately 6:30 p.m. today.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 37 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess until approximately 6:30 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mrs. HALVORSON) at 6 o'clock and 30 minutes p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, proceedings will resume on motions to suspend the rules previously postponed.

Votes will be taken in the following order:

H.R. 4543, by the yeas and nays;

House Resolution 1103, by the yeas and nays;

H.R. 4861, by the yeas and nays.

The first electronic vote will be conducted as a 15-minute vote. Remaining electronic votes will be conducted as 5-minute votes.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. KILPATRICK of Michigan. Madam Speaker, I was unable to attend to several votes today. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye" on final passage of H.R. 4543, "aye" on final passage of H. Res. 1103, and "aye" on final passage of H.R. 4861.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. GUTIERREZ. Madam Speaker, I was unavoidably absent for votes in the House Chamber today. I would like the RECORD to show that, had I been present, I would have voted "yea" on rollcall votes 221, 222, and 223.

ARIZONA'S IMMIGRATION LAW

(Mr. BACA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, last Friday, Arizona State Governor Jan Brewer signed into law Arizona State bill 1070 which would require police officers to act on "reasonable suspicion" to determine a person's immigration status and turn them over to ICE. President Obama referred to the law as "misguided."

Forcing Federal immigration duties onto local law enforcement officers is not the right way to fix the broken immigration system. It violates the presumption of innocence granted to everyone by the Constitution of the United States.

In fact, I as a Member of Congress because of the color of my skin may be approached in Arizona and be asked for my legal documentation. They may question whether it's authentic or not authentic.

This law is unjust and will only lead to an increase in racial profiling. We must never forget that America was a nation founded by immigrants.

I call on all of us to consider a national boycott of all industries in Arizona and to wear a band on our sleeves to protest against this unjust law and to show that this is not the American way. We must not tolerate unjust laws inspired by racism and hate.

IN SUPPORT OF H.R. 2499, THE PUERTO RICO DEMOCRACY ACT

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Speaker, on Wednesday, the House will consider H.R. 2499, the Puerto Rico Democracy Act. I am proud to support this bipartisan bill which would allow the residents of Puerto Rico the opportunity to voice their opinions on the status of the island's relationship to the mainland, to the United States, through a federally sanctioned plebiscite.

Nearly 4 million U.S. citizens currently reside in Puerto Rico and my congressional district in South Florida is home to nearly 20,000 American citizens of Puerto Rican descent.

Although Puerto Rico has been a U.S. territory for more than 100 years, Congress has never asked those American citizens residing in Puerto Rico to express their opinion on the territory's political status. This bill does not exclude any viable status option nor does it provide for a change in status to be automatically implemented. Instead, the bill initiates a long overdue process of consultation with the U.S. citizens of Puerto Rico.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the Puerto Rico Democracy Act when it comes to a vote later this week.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 4753

Mr. JOHNSON of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to remove myself as a cosponsor of H.R. 4753, the Stationary Source Regulations Delay Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY MONTH

(Mr. McNERNEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. McNERNEY. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize April as Occupational Therapy Month, an important occasion to acknowledge the contributions that occupational therapists and occupational therapy assistants make every day to help people live healthier lives.

Occupational therapy professionals work tirelessly with people of all ages to them prevent injuries, recover after an accident, and adjust their lives to new physical challenges they may experience. In my home State, occupational therapy professionals provide essential health and rehabilitation services to thousands of Californians each year. In facilities throughout my district like Lodi Memorial Hospital and the Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Manteca, skilled occupational therapy practitioners help my constituents achieve functional independence every day.

I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting April as Occupational Therapy Month and in applauding the work of occupational therapists and occupational therapy assistants throughout the country.

ASSESSING NEW HEALTH CARE LAW

(Mr. ROONEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROONEY. Madam Speaker, last week the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services' Office of the Actuary released a memo estimating the financial effects of the new health care law. Not surprisingly, they found that costs will increase and access to care will be threatened as this legislation is implemented over the next 10 years.

According to the independent report, "Providers for whom Medicare constitutes a substantive portion of their business could find it difficult to remain profitable and, absent legislative intervention, might end their participation in the program—possibly jeopardizing access to care for beneficiaries." Put simply, the new law will force many doctors to stop seeing Medicare patients, leaving seniors in my district out in the cold.

Additionally, the report claims that "total national health expenditures in the United States during 2010 to 2019 would increase by about 0.9 percent. The additional demand for health services could lead to price increases, cost-shifting, and/or changes in providers' willingness to treat patients with low-reimbursement health coverage."

The new health care law will drive up costs and make it more difficult for many Americans, especially seniors, to get the care they need.

REMEMBERING SERGEANT JASON A. SANTORA

(Mr. BISHOP of New York asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BISHOP of New York. Madam Speaker, I rise with a heavy heart following the loss of Army Sergeant Jason A. Santora, who was killed this past Friday fighting Taliban insurgents in Afghanistan.

Sergeant Santora was from Farmingville, New York, in my district of eastern Long Island. He graduated from Sachem High School in 2003 and joined the Army in 2006, becoming a member of the elite Army Rangers.

He was assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment at Fort Benning. Although only 25 years old, he was serving his fourth tour of duty. He served two in Iraq and was 2 months into his second tour as a team leader in Afghanistan's Logar Province.

Sergeant Santora's unit was on a mission to target a compound believed to be a Taliban terror nest when it was ambushed from multiple directions by heavy machine-gun fire. He died of wounds sustained in that gunfire and was posthumously awarded the Purple Heart, Bronze Star and Meritorious Service Medal. The commanding officer of the 75th Ranger Regiment honored his courage by describing Sergeant Santora as a warrior, a true patriot, and an absolute hero who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of our Nation.

Madam Speaker, during the difficult days ahead, my thoughts and prayers are with Sergeant Santora's family—his father, Gary; his mother, Theresa; and his sister, Gina. On behalf of New York's First Congressional District, I thank Sergeant Santora for his service, his gallantry, and his selfless commitment. A grateful nation will always remember his sacrifice and honor his memory.

NATIONAL AUTISM AWARENESS MONTH

(Mr. PAULSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PAULSEN. Madam Speaker, I rise today because April is National Autism Awareness Month. Autism affects nearly one in every 110 children born in the United States and is the fastest growing developmental disability.

With approximately 1.5 million Americans currently living with autism, we have a responsibility to support research and provide resources to support those living with autism. Studies have shown that early diagnosis and treatment can lead to better outcomes for children with autism. In fact, early identification and treatment can help reduce the symptoms of autism, increase progress for children as they enter school and reduce the need for more intensive support in the future.

But to do that, we must work hard to increase the awareness of autism across the country. That's why I'm proud to be an original cosponsor of House Resolution 1033, which officially designates April as Autism Awareness Month. I look forward to working with my colleagues in the days and months ahead on both sides of the aisle to bringing awareness to this important effort going forward.

RECOGNIZING 85TH ANNIVERSARY OF WHBC RADIO

(Mr. BOCCIERI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOCCIERI. Madam Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the 85th anniversary of WHBC-AM Radio, the oldest radio station in Stark County and Canton, Ohio.

Founded in 1925, WHBC was the first Catholic station in the country. It later changed formats and quickly became one of the shining, trusted voices of northeast Ohio. In the golden age of broadcasting, parents and children would gather around the radio and listen to WHBC.

Bing Crosby's music was soothing and simple. Dragnet was exciting and fun. A father and son could listen to a ball game and the Indians win their last World Series in 1948.

Today, WHBC is as diverse a station as the citizens of northeast Ohio. WHBC gives people the facts, and its programming gets to the heart of who we are as northeast Ohioans. Fans can listen to their favorite teams in the car, or as I like to do, turn down the television and listen to WHBC's play-by-play. I listen to WHBC because it's a quality radio station and has maintained that standard for 85 years.

Congratulations.

REPORT ON HEALTH CARE REFORM LEGISLATION

(Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Pennsylvania. Madam Speaker, throughout the health care reform debate, I focused on four tenets. We needed to improve affordability, access, quality and choice. I said when the bill passed that it did not fulfill those requirements.

It gives me no pleasure to show you where the actuary report for the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services agrees with me.

Affordability. “By 2011 and 2012, the initial $5 billion in Federal funding for high risk pools will be exhausted, resulting in substantial premium increases to sustain the program.”

Access. The report projected that Medicare cuts would drive about 15 percent of hospitals and other institutional providers into the red, “possibly jeopardizing access” to care for seniors.

Quality. Some 18 million uninsured are estimated to go on Medicaid for their primary coverage, which will fail to provide meaningful access.

And finally, Choice. “We estimate that in 2017, when the provisions will be fully phased in, enrollment in Medicare Advantage plans will be lower by about 50 percent.”

If you chose Medicare Advantage, half of you will be out of luck.

TWO SEALS NOT GUILTY—THIRD SHOULD BE ACQUITTED TOO

(Mr. POE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, two of our three Navy SEALs responsible for catching one of the worst terrorists in the world—Ahmed Hasim Abed—have been acquitted of all alleged assault charges related to the terrorist’s capture.

Abed planned the 2004 ambush and murder of four Blackwater security guards in Fallujah, Iraq. These Americans were set on fire, mutilated, dragged through the streets and hung from a bridge over the Euphrates River.

Our SEALs captured this crybaby terrorist. He later accused them of punching him. Two SEALs have been acquitted—the other should be acquitted as well.

Last week I visited the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, and met with 10 amazing, intense midshipmen from my congressional district in Texas. The remarkable class of 2010 is expected to graduate over a thousand midshipmen, but only 27 will be selected for the SEALs program.

Our SEALs are the best that we have. We are forever indebted to these great warriors for their service to American freedom. We should give the Navy SEALs that captured Abed medals and send them out there to capture another one.

And that’s just the way it is.

ARIZONA’S IMMIGRATION LAW

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, what are the people in Arizona supposed to do? What are the people in Texas supposed to do? Or New Mexico?

I hear this rhetoric on the floor here about how the law in Arizona is unconstitutional. I’ve looked at that. I don’t think its unconstitutional. And I think they have an obligation to protect the people of Arizona from the drug terrorists that are coming across the border in droves. They’re bringing drugs illegally into the United States. We’ve got illegal aliens coming across in droves in the Arizona area into the United States and the government of the United States is doing absolutely nothing.

The border between us and Mexico is 1,980 miles long. We’ve talked about securing that border for a long time, and we have not done it. Those border States have to deal with this on a daily basis and the law enforcement agencies down there have a Herculean job to deal with.

And so I would just like to say to my colleagues, I don’t think it’s racial profiling for them to stop people that they suspect of being here illegally who may be dealing in drug trafficking and who may be threatening the lives of people down there because the crime rate is going out of sight. Let’s support the people of Arizona and the law enforcement people down there. They have a right to make sure that they’re safe.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 6, 2009, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

GEERT WILDERS AND NOW “SOUTH PARK” ARE DENIED FREEDOM OF SPEECH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, freedom of speech is under attack in the West today, brought to you by the same radical Islamic terrorists who use religion to kill in the name of hate. I’ve talked about Dutch lawmaker Geert Wilders, who is on trial in Amsterdam for insulting Islam. You see, he made a documentary movie about real terrorist acts and real radical Islamic clerics encouraging violence in the name of hate. Instead of being grateful for shining a light on this problem, the Dutch Government is putting Geert Wilders on trial. He is charged with discrimination and incitement to hatred, all for showing the world how radical Islamic clerics discriminate and incite people to hatred. Wilders spoke the truth, and he got charged with a crime in his own country.

The Dutch Ministry of Justice says it doesn’t matter if Wilders was telling the truth. The Dutch court says it’s irrelevant whether Wilders’ assertions actually are correct. What is relevant to the court is Wilders cannot speak freely about radical Islam because it might offend somebody. In the Netherlands the truth is no longer welcome in a court of law.

Geert Wilders now lives under a threat of a 5-year prison sentence from his own government for freedom of speech for the right to tell the truth. His trial is set to resume in July, the trial where the Dutch court says truth doesn’t matter. It only matters if Wilders’ words hurt somebody’s feelings. You see, Dutch law is intolerant of people who are intolerant of violence in the name of Islam. And that’s a recipe for disaster. By denying free, truthful speech, the Dutch Government by its actions is encouraging radicals to incite violence worldwide.

Dutch filmmaker Theo van Gogh, grandnephew of the legendary artist Vincent van Gogh, also made a film the radical clerics didn’t like. His was about Islam’s harsh treatment of women and how they brutalized women and used them as property. The result, van Gogh was murdered in the streets of Amsterdam as he rode his bicycle to work. His partner in the film, now a former member of Parliament, fled the country in fear.

Kurt Westergaard is one of the 12 artists who drew a satirical cartoon about the prophet Mohammed. So radical clerics incited their followers to murder people in the streets around the globe. Most of the clerics admitted later they had never seen the Mohammed cartoons. And Westergaard now lives in hiding under an armed guard. So much for freedom of the press and freedom of speech.

Now the threats of violence are spreading to the United States. The popular animated TV program “South Park” insults everybody. It’s a comedy program that uses satire to make social statements. “South Park’s” creators, Matt Stone and Trey Parker, did a series of episodes that insulted various world religions, including Islam. The 200th episode broadcast depicted all the founders of the major religions. Mohammed was dressed in a bear suit because Islam forbids its followers to depict the religion’s founders.

One radical Islamic Web site called “Revolutionary Muslim” is upset about the program, so they issued threats saying “South Park” creators Stone and Parker would end up like Theo van Gogh, in other words, dead. And they put up the crime scene photos of van Gogh with his throat slit and a knife protruding from his chest. They also gave out the TV network address of Comedy Central in New York, addresses for Parker and Stone’s Los Angeles production company, and their residences. The radical Web site said they published the addresses so people could go out there and protest. Yeah, right.

The trouble is we have seen worldwide how these radicals protest. They kill people. Because of the threats of violence and fear for the safety of everyone from the receptionist to the series creators, Comedy Central censored and spiked a follow-up program. Free speech was intimidated again by radical Islamics. These terrorists are being handed veto power over free speech through threats of violence and murder.

No charges have been brought in the United States against the author of these radical Islamic Web sites. Meanwhile, Geert Wilders is still on trial in the Netherlands for warning the world about these haters for speaking the truth.

And that's just the way it is.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. WOOLSEY addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

SIMPLIFY THE TAX CODE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ALTMIRE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ALTMIRE. Madam Speaker, I rise tonight to speak on behalf of America's small business owners and small business owners in western Pennsylvania who have recently finished filing their taxes with the Federal Government and have struggled over the past year to provide goods, services, and jobs during this recession.

As we all know, April is tax month for American citizens. And as a member of the Small Business Committee, I had the opportunity to hear testimony by Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Douglas Shulman on April 14. Commissioner Shulman walked through the service and disclosures provided by the IRS during tax preparation season. He described outreach being performed on many levels to aid small businesses in complying with the convoluted tax system they faced as American job creators.

While the IRS has a responsibility to use its funding to conduct outreach and facilitate voluntary compliance with tax laws, it's Congress that has the responsibility to hear the calls of America's small businesses for more streamlined and simplified tax regulations.

The outreach and disclosure by the IRS is certainly helpful. However, I would prefer to see it become less necessary. If America's small business owners were not spending so much valuable time deciphering codes and regulations, they could be growing their businesses to earn profits, create jobs, and lead America back to prosperity just as they have always done through past recessions. Less time spent complying with the Tax Code would increase tax revenue by allowing small businesses to focus more time on running their businesses, meanwhile saving the IRS time and money in outreach and instruction on their intricate rules and requirements for every small business in America.

I hope that by April of next year Congress can find the time to work on behalf of America's small businesses and simplify the Tax Code.

VISIT TO WALTER REED ARMY MEDICAL CENTER AND BETHESDA NAVAL HOSPITAL WITH JEROME AND RACHEL LEE AND LEX

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES. Madam Speaker, on April 12 of this year I had the honor and privilege of visiting the wounded warriors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center and Bethesda Naval Hospital with Jerome and Rachel Lee and their dog Lex. The Lees' son Dustin, a marine, was killed in Iraq in 2005. Lex was his military working dog and was severely injured in the attack.

The Lees are a remarkable family. They continue to visit the wounded warriors that return from Iraq and Afghanistan. This is how they remember their son. And they gave for this country a very special young man. The interaction between Lex and the wounded was amazing. To see these brave men and women smile at the sight of Lex was truly a touching experience for me personally. Lex is one of them and continues to fight through his injuries. The shrapnel still lies in his back. In fact, Lex has been awarded the Purple Heart.

The Lees also had a wonderful experience meeting retired United States Senator Bob Dole as he was recovering from an accident. Senator Dole was kind enough to invite the Lee family into his room at Walter Reed and speak with them for several minutes. It was truly remarkable as I watched former Senator Dole, a war hero himself, as he pet and bonded with Lex.

I would like to thank the Humane Society, who sponsored this trip for the Lee family, Connie Whitfield, wife of United States Congressman ED WHITFIELD, who joined us on this tour. They, Mrs. Whitfield, and the United States Humane Society, went above and beyond for this family.

There are many other people to thank, but I would like to especially thank my dear friend Major General Mike Regner, who was very instrumental in uniting the Lees and Lex. Major General Regner is currently serving in Afghanistan, but I would like to note that he was remembered during the Lees' visit at Bethesda and Walter Reed. And the family is very grateful to him. Major General Regner helped them adopt Lex, their son's best friend and partner.

Madam Speaker, because of that trip that I took with the Lees to Bethesda and Walter Reed, and the number of young men and women both at Walter Reed and Bethesda who have been severely wounded for this country, I would like to close, as I normally do on the floor of the House, I would ask God to please bless our men and women in uniform. I will ask God to please bless the families of our men and women in uniform. I will ask God in His loving arms to hold the families who have given a child dying for freedom in Afghanistan and Iraq. And I will ask God to please bless the House and Senate here in Washington that we would do what is right in the eyes of God for today's generation, but also tomorrow's generation. I will ask God to give strength, wisdom, and courage to President Obama that he will do what is right in the eyes of God for today's generation and tomorrow's generation.

Madam Speaker, I will ask three times, God, please, God, please, God, please continue to bless America.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DEFAZIO addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. MORAN of Kansas addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

DISPELLING THE MYTHS SURROUNDING H.R. 2499

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Ms. ROSLEHTINEN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. ROSLEHTINEN. Madam Speaker, as a cosponsor of H.R. 2499, the Puerto Rico Democracy Act, I would like to take some time this evening to dispel some of the myths that surround this legislation.

The Puerto Rico Democracy Act provides for a formal consultation with the people of Puerto Rico regarding the island's political status. H.R. 2499 authorizes the Government of Puerto Rico to conduct an initial plebiscite. Eligible voters would be asked whether they wish to maintain the current political status or to have a different status. If the majority favors the current status, then the Government of Puerto Rico would be authorized to ask voters this question again at 8-year intervals. On the other hand, if a majority of the voters favor a different status, the Government of Puerto Rico would be authorized to conduct a second plebiscite among the three nonterritorial status options recognized under U.S. and international law.

What are those three options? They are, number one, independence; two, statehood; and, three, sovereignty in association with the U.S., which is commonly known as free association.

Opponents of this bill, of H.R. 2499, contend that the two-step process stacks the deck against the current status and in favor of statehood. This is simply not the case, Madam Speaker. H.R. 2499 does not exclude nor favor any status option. Under this legislation, the purpose of the first plebiscite is clear: to inform Congress whether the majority of Puerto Ricans consent to the current political status.

Only if a majority of voters expresses its desire to change the current status is a second vote mandated on the three alternatives: independence, statehood, and free association.

This two-step process was recommended by the President's task force on Puerto Rico's status. This task force was initiated under the Clinton administration, and it was finalized by the Bush administration. The task force called upon the expertise of 16 Federal agencies in recommending a fair process for consulting with the U.S. citizens of Puerto Rico.

Opponents of H.R. 2499 propose that the option of an enhanced commonwealth should be included as a status option during the second plebiscite. Well, this enhanced commonwealth, as envisioned by the bill's detractors, perpetuates the false hope that Puerto Ricans can have the best of both worlds:

They can have U.S. citizenship and national sovereignty;

They will receive all Federal funds and will have the power to veto those laws with which it disagrees.

If included as a viable option, an enhanced commonwealth proposal would permanently empower Puerto Rico to nullify Federal laws and court jurisdiction and to enter into an international organization and trade agreements, all while being under the military and financial protection of the United States.

It is no surprise that this proposal has been soundly rejected as a viable option by the U.S. Department of Justice, by the State Department, by the Clinton administration, and by the Bush administration.

Another misguided concern surrounding H.R. 2499 is that the bill fails to include an "English only" provision. It is premature to discuss this matter until the conclusion of the first and second plebiscites. H.R. 2499 does not require Congress to admit Puerto Rico as a State nor even to set the statehood process in motion if a majority of voters ultimately chooses statehood. If the people of Puerto Rico express a preference for statehood and if Congress is inclined to act upon that preference, further Federal legislation would be required. That legislation and not H.R. 2499 would be the appropriate vehicle in which to address any potential language-related condition on Puerto Rico's accession to statehood.

I would like now to change focus and to highlight the overwhelming bipartisan support behind H.R. 2499. Introduced by the Resident Commissioner, this bill enjoys the backing of more than 180 cosponsors from both political parties, and it is strongly supported by Puerto Rico Governor Luis Fortuno, a former House colleague, who introduced similar versions of this bill in the past. This bill is also endorsed by numerous leaders in the Puerto Rican legislature and local government, including the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President of the Senate, and many other local officials.

Given the strong support, Madam Speaker, I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting this bill when it comes to a floor vote later this week.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

PASS COMPREHENSIVE IMMIGRATION REFORM NOW

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, over this weekend, the Governor of Arizona raised up the idea of prayer, and in her remarks, she indicated that she prayed for strength and that she prayed for our State.

I rise today to pray for Arizona, for this Nation, and for those who would think a law that was signed by the Arizona Governor raises any level of constitutionality. Yet I agree with the Governor of Arizona. They have been waiting very long, and there is a crisis that is necessary to address.

Madam Speaker, many of us on this side of the aisle have tried over and over again. Former President George Bush, in the last administration, tried, but that's where reasonable minds will disagree.

So I'd ask the Governor to ask her own party:

Why do they fail to stand up and be counted on a fair, comprehensive immigration reform proposal that, in years past, included border security as well as the opportunity for access to legalization?

So the actions this past week are a travesty, hypocritical, and not sincere because you'd ask the question: What is a legal contact? What are the law enforcement authorities of the State of Arizona to do in the midst of the work that they have in protecting the community from the array of criminal acts by anyone regardless of their background? There are burglaries, thefts, and rapes, robberies and actions that require the intervention of State and local law enforcement.

What is a legal contact? Is it a person who is rushing his pregnant wife to the hospital and who is stopping to ask a police officer, Will you lead me through the lights to the hospital? Is that a legal contact?

What is a determination of reasonable probability? Is it brown skin? Is it someone who is dressed in yard clothes? What is the determination of reasonableness? There is no answer to that other than it is patently unconstitutional.

Yes, I want comprehensive immigration reform, which is a term that many have demonized—you have to run away from it now—but we in Texas have lived with this for a very long time, the men and women of all economic levels—the business community, the non-profit community, the faith community. The Houston-Galveston Diocese, our cardinal, the cardinal in the Houston area, has raised his voice, along with many faith leaders, to say that now is the time for real comprehensive immigration reform.

I am ashamed of the law that was written and signed, because it bears no fruit. Of course, there are law enforcement officers in the region, and certainly, I'm not from the area whose only voice is to claim airtime and to shout ridiculous comments: I can lock them up. Anybody, I can lock up. This is not to say that there is not empathy and sympathy for the borders in Arizona. There is a need now for comprehensive immigration reform for Arizona, for New Mexico, for California, for Texas—for all of America.

Though, I will tell you, Madam Speaker, if a young person comes to me in my district who came here from a foreign country—in this instance, France—who has been in our school system, who did not know the process and who is now unstated but who has never been in trouble and who is going through school—he is an immigrant, but unfortunately, status—then he is no less than the immigrants from Ireland, than the immigrants from Italy and the immigrants from places elsewhere who came to this country and who helped to build it and to make it a better place. Maybe he is no better than the immigrants who came in shackles, like myself, and their ancestors, who came in the bottom of the belly of a slave boat; but we found a way to regularize them. This Congress must find a way to regularize this process and all of the families who are huddled in fear, who have never perpetrated a crime.

I want to thank the leadership of this House and the leadership of the Senate, both of which are courageous enough to take the battering and the abuse of those who misuse the Constitution and who believe they are doing something. They are not.

Should they be responded to? Madam Speaker, they should. My answer is that we pass right now comprehensive immigration reform to save America, to save our dignity, to save the Constitution, and to stand for the values we believe in.

THE UNCONSTITUTIONALITY OF MANDATED HEALTH CARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. CARTER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. CARTER. I thank you for yielding, Madam Speaker, and I thank you for this night so that we can get together and talk about something that is still on the minds of almost everybody in the United States because, quite frankly, even though this bill has passed both Houses of Congress and even though it has been signed into law by the President, the overwhelming majority of the people in this country are waking up every day to find out there is something else that nobody knew was in this bill and are finding out about something else that is being imposed upon the States and on the people of this country that nobody knew was going to happen.

It's because it was a 2,400-page bill, or something like that, which nobody ever read, and it was voted on and passed when there were people who were responsible for its contents who couldn't tell you what was in it. In fact, I believe the Speaker of this House made a statement: We need to pass this bill so we can learn what's in it. That's kind of when the worrying started in this country. It was when people started hearing those kinds of things from our leadership.

So we are now at a point where there has been a lawsuit—and we talked about this. I believe it was last week or the week before last. We talked about the fact that a lawsuit has been filed by the attorneys general of multiple States in this country. Well, this is a growing process. When we last talked, there were 20 States that had joined in this lawsuit, and here we are on April 26, 2010, and we have 22 States. So two more States have joined in this process, and there is at least the possibility that we could add, maybe, another five or 10 States to this lawsuit.

So, right now, as it stands right now, it is my understanding—and I can be corrected. I do not claim to be a great historical scholar of the Supreme Court of the United States. I have read cases, which was required by my profession, and I have taken constitutional law in law school. I had great constitutional law debates among my law school colleagues when we were young, would-be lawyers. In my practice of law and as a judge, I've had some periphery of the constitutional requirements that are set out by the Supreme Court, but I don't claim to be an expert on it.

I am told that, since the Court started, this is probably the largest single group of States to have filed suit on behalf of their individual States and to have joined together on an issue. Now, I may be wrong about that, and I certainly will be corrected if somebody wants to correct me, but it's close.

We've got 50 States in this Union, and 22 of them are already in this lawsuit. So, if we pick up three more States, we'll have half the States in the Union involved in this lawsuit. Even 22 is really kind a mind-boggling number. It also represents 44.56 percent of the population of the United States.

So, within these red States that you see on this map here—those dark States as compared to the light States, if anybody is still watching in black and white—that represents almost half the population of this country who are asking the question, and the question is very simple:

Does the Constitution grant Congress the power to mandate the coverage that's set out in this bill?

Now, that is a big question, but it focuses down to a much narrower issue. There are more issues here, but the most narrow issue is if Congress has the authority to mandate that people who are living within the continental United States must buy certain products, namely, health insurance, from designated sellers of that product, which will mean some insurance company. The issue is that they have to, that they cannot have an option, that they cannot say "no," and that if they say "no" that they can be fined under the IRS Code and can be required to pay up to a $2,000 fine for not purchasing health care. There are some ranges in that. The fine can be less, but if it's $1, it's a fine punishing you for not buying a product.

Now, the great debate is broadly about the Ninth and 10th Amendments, but it is specifically about the commerce clause as set out in the Constitution of the United States. So every attorney general in every one of the States you see here—and this is a pretty nice cross-section. We've got the east coast, one on the west coast, a whole bunch of southern States, a whole bunch of western States, and a whole bunch of midwestern States which are in this fight, and they are asking a real simple question about the commerce clause.

But as I said, it's like we wake up every morning and we have new things to talk about, about this plan.

A recent Center for Medicine and Medicare Services has come up with some new findings on this bill. Let's examine these together. I'm glad to have my friend, Mr. BURTON here, who is going to join me and we will talk about some of this stuff.

Twenty million Americans who currently can't afford health insurance will buy a policy under duress from the threat of fine and IRS action. This is what they found: Four million Americans will still not be able to buy and will be fined $33 billion a year and still not have health insurance. Fourteen million Americans will lose their employer-sponsored health insurance as a direct result of this new law. Twenty-three million Americans will still have no health insurance coverage in 2019 after the bill is fully implemented. And 21 percent of the gross domestic product of the United States will be spent on health care after the law is implemented, which is higher than if Congress had done nothing. So if nothing would have happened, we spent 21 percent of the gross domestic product.

So we were sitting here, and the first thing we were told is the reason we need to pass health care is we need to get a cheaper product. I mean, we need to save money. We need to reduce the deficit, reduce the debt.

Well, we haven't reduced the spending because it's going to be 21 percent of the gross domestic product, which is larger than it is today, and it's estimated it's larger than it would have been if we hadn't done anything.

So these are facts that sort of jar you into reality that we have got a product that every American sitting around the coffee shop tomorrow morning ought to be talking about, that everybody in every office building, on every farm and ranch, and every small business in America ought to be asking questions about what has become the new law of the land.

I think the attorneys general of the multiple States in this country, they started asking these countries as the process was going through, and as they discovered nightmare after nightmare after nightmare as it pertains to the States, they started getting rattled and they started to say, This can't be. We can't be imposing this kind of will under the Commerce Clause.

So I think it's important that we look at the Ninth and the 10th Amendment and the Commerce Clause, and I'm going to start off, and then we're going to talk about some constitutional law here with my good friend DAN BURTON. We're going to see how we figure this.

I think everybody out there learned in school we have a Constitution and we have amendments to that Constitution, which are just part of the Constitution. They just came at a different time. And the amendments have a lot to do with individual rights to liberty in this country. And when our Founding Fathers were looking at this project and what they were doing, they were going from sovereign States. The people of Virginia considered themselves—Virginia was a sovereign State. That meant a sovereignty-laden State. And they were meeting in Philadelphia to see how much sovereignty they would surrender and what they would create in the form of a Federal republic.

And remember what Benjamin Franklin said when asked as he walked out the door what kind of a government they had created, and he said, A republic, if you can keep it, because it depends upon those who were given that gift to keep that republic, which means it has some basic concepts which our Founding Fathers were ingenious about creating, and one of them was the balance of power, that there would be offsetting power between the three branches of government which would balance out the power so no overwhelming power would lie in any one branch of the government.

There are three branches: the executive, which is the President and all the various executive agencies of the government; and then the legislative, which is the House and Senate; and then the judiciary, which is the entire judicial system of the United States, capped off by the Supreme Court of the United States.

So when they wrote this, they wrote the Ninth and the 10th Amendments. And the Ninth Amendment says, "The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others," other rights, "retained by the people."

Because our Founding Fathers took the position which learned people of that time were debating and putting forth that the rights that are set out in our Bill of Rights and the other rights that are defined in our Constitution are, first and foremost, the rights of the people. Each individual person has those unalienable rights.

So when they sat down and they started to put this thing together, they said, now, any rights we didn't talk about still belong to the people. So just because they didn't write it down in the Constitution—freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, and all the ones you learned in school—there are more rights than that because those rights lie with the people.

The 10th Amendment says, "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution"—the Constitution defined the powers of the United States Government—"nor prohibited by it to the States," in other words, aren't specifically set out for the States, "are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

So what they were basically saying is there are powers out there that this Constitution doesn't cover.

Now, I think we all know that the Constitution has been an evolving process because the big job of the Supreme Court of the United States is to tell us what things mean when you start applying events to the Constitution. There is a clause in the United States Constitution which is called the Commerce Clause. And it says the U.S. Congress shall have the power "to regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes."

"Commerce" is the big word, and the question is, what is commerce? And I think if you went to a business school and talked about commerce, you would find out that they are basically talking about the buying and selling and trading and working with goods and services. It would be pretty much what you're talking about. The economic activity, buying and selling and so forth.

Now, a more liberal court started expanding the Commerce Clause slightly, and the one that really kind of threw everybody off was a case where some folks during the Depression were growing wheat in their own backyard. They were grinding that wheat and making it into bread and they were eating the bread. And the question was, is that wheat in commerce? And the court said because it was competing with other wheat that was being ground into flour and made into bread, it was being sold, and therefore it at some point had an effect upon the commerce involving bread and wheat.

Even though it was only consumed by the family, they expanded it to say that was commerce. And from that the idea came up, and it was cropped up and was challenged and failed several times in the Supreme Court to be carried that far, was that the Commerce Clause, if you take it that far, it will cover everything. And really this bill that we're talking about, this one right here that we just got the report on, this bill is going to be the ultimate decision of whether the Commerce Clause means "commerce" covers everything or not because in this bill, the only thing you have to do to be required to buy health insurance by the government is be alive.

If you are a human being and breathing, you have to buy health insurance. If you have it and you get to keep it, then you've got health insurance, but if you don't have it, now it's no option. You have to buy it.

Now, the first thing you will hear people say is, yes, but you've got to have insurance to drive an automobile and you have to have it. That's true, but that is insurance that is protecting other people from your negligence or your mistakes as you drive your automobile, and it's an issue for the State in protecting the State because it makes sure that people are able to protect those that they might injure when they use a dangerous weapon. And, by the way, it's kind of interesting that the courts have ruled that an automobile can be used to enhance punishment in a criminal case because it is a deadly weapon. So basically they are insuring against the misuse of the deadly weapon called the automobile.

That's not what we're talking about here. We're talking about you have got to have health insurance whether you're sick or whether you're well. You have got to have it. And if you don't, you have got to pay a fine, and that fine is going to be in the nature of an excess tax.

So there's a good place for me to yield to Mr. BURTON to talk about how he sees this and what thoughts come to his mind as we look at this really challenging constitutional issue.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding. And I want to tell her how much I appreciate her coming down and taking the time to give this Special Order. It took a lot of preparation to explain this to our colleagues and anybody that might be paying attention to this.

There is no question in my mind that the 10th Amendment of the Constitution is being violated by the bill that we passed, and that's why we have 22 States that have joined in this suit. And I'm glad that they are doing that.

As a matter of fact, on March 29, the Attorney General of Indiana, Greg Zoeller, expressed his intent of having Indiana join in filing the suit against the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, which is the Obama care we're talking about. And here is what he had to say, our Attorney General:

He said, "There are significant constitutional questions regarding the Federal Government's authority raised by the legislation passed. I believe it's necessary that these ultimately be brought before the United States Supreme Court, and as the Attorney General of Indiana, I will join in the most appropriate legal actions available to represent the significant interests of our State, the State of Indiana, in this matter." And he prepared a 55-page report on this that he gave to our legislators in Indiana regarding the Patient Protection and Affordability Act. And he believes, as the other attorneys general do, that this is unconstitutional.

Now, my colleague just talked about the automobile business and how people have to have car insurance. Well, they don't have to drive a car. And if they don't drive a car, they don't have to have car insurance.

This is the first time that I can remember in my life that the Federal Government is telling people they have to buy something. I have never heard of this and I have never read anything that would lead me to believe that the Federal Government has the authority to tell people that they have to buy something.

Now, there have been times in the past when the Federal Government tried to take over the entire commerce of the United States. Back in the 1930s during the Roosevelt administration, they passed a law called the National Recovery Act, and the National Recovery Act gave the Federal Government control over the entire economy of the United States regarding commerce. And there was one case that came to mind that I read in a book called "The Forgotten Man." I don't know if my colleagues read it or not. But it involved two itinerant people from the Middle East that came to the United States and they started selling chickens.

Back in those days, they didn't have frozen chickens in the supermarket. So when people would come to them to buy chickens, they had them in crates, and they would let the people that came to buy the chickens reach in and pick the chickens they wanted. Well, the National Recovery Act, which was controlling the commerce of the United States, had individuals, like the IRS is going to have under this bill, that would come out and tell the people what they could and couldn't do. And the National Recovery Act representative came out and told these two gentlemen that they could not let the people pick the chickens that they wanted.

I know this sounds crazy. They said because the people that came in and bought the chickens first would pick the fatter ones and they would get the benefit of being there first. And the fellows that owned this company said, Well, this is the way we've always done it. We let the people pick the chickens they want. So they didn't change. They continued to conduct their business that way, and they were indicted under the National Recovery Act and they were convicted, and the case went all the way to the United States Supreme Court.

Justice Brandeis wrote the opinion, which was 9-0, against the National Recovery Act, which went out the window. Justice Brandeis sent a message back to the President saying, Don't send us any more legislation like this, because if you do, we'll find it unconstitutional as well.

That was the first time that I know where the Federal Government starting taking over the entire area of the commerce of the United States. Even then, even then, I don't believe there was a time when they said somebody had to buy something, which would violate the 10th Amendment of the Constitution. Now the National Recovery Act was found unconstitutional, but the 10th Amendment, as far as I can remember, never said you have to buy something. And that is what this bill does and that is why the attorneys general from 22 States are saying, You don't have that power.

As you said, Mr. CARTER, very clearly, the power is not delegated to the United States by the Constitution. The power is not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the States are reserved to the States respectively. And so what's happening here is the Federal Government is overstepping its bounds and violating the 10th Amendment and taking away from the States their right to regulate this industry or to deal with whether or not people should or should not have to buy these things. And the attorneys general are saying very clearly this is a State's right and we don't think the Federal Government has the right to do this under the commerce clause.

So I would just like to add a couple of other things that go along with this, Mr. CARTER, and that is the cost that it's going to be to the American people. The estimated deficit that is going to be created by this, as far as the health care bill is concerned, is about $385 billion or $395 billion over the next 10 years.

But the fact of the matter is, it's going to cost a lot more than that. The estimated costs, according to CBO, based upon the information that was sent to them, was that it was going to cost about $850 billion or $860 billion over 10 years, and the amount that was going to be as far as the deficit was concerned was about $300-some billion.

But the fact of the matter is they only have 6 years of coverages, but they have 10 years of taxes. So when you take 10 years of coverage and 10 years of taxes and you look at what it's going to cost the American people, it's going to run up over $2 trillion—money we don't have. And the deficit already is out of control. The budget we passed this year was $3.85 trillion—or last year. And this year they won't even send us a budget because they know it's going to be more than that.

The shortfall in spending that increased the debt, our debt to our kids and grandkids, was $1.4 trillion last year. It's going to be $1.6 trillion or more this year, and it's going to get worse as the years go by over the next decade or two. And so in addition to violating the Constitution, as I believe this does, and in addition to having 22 States file suit against the Government of the United States because of this bill, this is going to cost an arm and a leg that we don't have. We don't have this money. And who's going to pay for it?

Well, we borrowed money from China. We owe them about $800 billion. We borrowed $600 billion from Japan. If you add it all up, we are probably into the trillions and trillions of dollars that we owe the rest of the world. If they ever cash in on what we owe them, I don't know how we are going to pay for it.

The fact of the matter is, right now, because of the cost of this legislation and the other programs and the deficits that are taking place right now, I really believe that the Federal Government is going to have to print a lot of money. And when they print money, they inflate the money supply and we have what is called inflation. What they try to do is try to figure out a way to stop that inflation by raising interest rates or increasing taxes.

Now the administration is talking about a value-added tax like they have in Europe. And the value-added tax in Europe is running about 20 percent in many countries. And if you buy a car for $10,000, for instance, and you add the value-added tax to it, you're up to $12,000. Another 20 percent. The American people can't afford it. We can't afford the inflation, we can't afford the taxes, and what it will do to the economy and jobs is unbelievable, not to mention that it violates the Constitution of the United States.

So if I were talking to the American people tonight, Mr. CARTER—and we can't talk to the American people; we can only talk to each other and the Members of the Congress—I would say there's a lot more to this than just the violation of the Constitution. There's no question in my mind that there is that violation, but the cost to us and our kids and our posterity is going to be unbelievable. This country can't afford to spend the money the way we are doing it. We can't afford to raise taxes like they are talking about. We can't afford a value-added tax and we can't afford to see jobs slip away from America and go offshore to other countries. That is what I think this is leading to.

This administration believes in a European-style socialistic approach to government, and we have to stop that. I want to pat the attorneys general on the back from those 22 States for leading the charge in dealing with this constitutional abuse of power, and I wish them the very best and I hope that every State in the Union, Mr. CARTER, I hope every State in the Union will join in this fight because the Federal Government should not usurp the rights of the people of this country and the several States. And our Forefathers never planned for that. And that is why they gave the States the ultimate power instead of leaving it with the Federal Government. They said that those powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution are reserved for the States. And that is the way it ought to be.

I want to thank you once again for taking this Special Order. You're one of my heroes.

Mr. CARTER. I thank my friend, regaining my time. Let me point out something that I think is interesting. In all of the flak we sometimes raise, we disagree with some of the rulings of the United States Supreme Court rulings—and I and others that I know have done that throughout my entire lifetime and had great constitutional issues that are banged around everywhere, and some of us said, What kind of craziness is that? But it's kind of interesting that Justice Brandeis, in that opinion, 9-0—that means everybody thought it was right—pointed out that by the very nature of our Constitution and the very nature of what we created in the way of a Republic, this concept of a centralist-controlled economy, a central-controlled economy, doesn't fit what was founded in this country.

We started down that path in the 1930s. And Brandeis and the Court slammed on the brakes and put a stop to it. It was very ridiculous, some of the things they did. There's the famous kosher meat case that went on and a bunch of other cases. Just ridiculous. Can you imagine the Federal Government going into your local butcher shop and telling your local butcher how he can do things? Is that the world we want? That is a centrist-controlled economy.

Now, at the same time, the world was experiencing this in other places. In fact, we in our lifetime have seen the rise and collapse of central-planned economies. The National Socialist Party of Germany in the Second World War, besides losing a war, proved that a centrally controlled economy was an ineffective way of doing the economy without letting the markets work. The Soviet Union collapsed, continuing to try to keep a central-controlled economy run by the one Big Government entities that had fingers in everybody's world. It didn't work. It didn't work. The Chinese had the same thing. Even though they still claim communism, they are rapidly rushing towards capitalism because they are getting rich and prosperous for all levels in their country under the capitalist system, which they never could do with their centrally controlled economy.

Why we would even think to go in that direction is beyond me. I think my colleagues think that is the solution to our problems. I do not think so. I think our Founding Fathers intended for us to have things both at the local, at the city, the State, the national level. I think they had a concept of the small family all the way up to the big government. They specifically wrote these little-used provisions, by the way, into the Constitution, to make it clear that there were certain things that didn't belong in the Federal Government.

I'm very hopeful that that is the way that this Court at this time, in the 21st century, with all the history that has passed and all the court cases have passed, will look at this and say, If we can tell them they've got to buy what kind of health insurance, then what's next? How far will we expand this? Can the next administration, whoever it may be, say you have to buy General Motors cars because we own around 50 percent of the stock, the American people, or can it just say, you know, we've got a fledgling industry over here. You can only buy that computer or that pair of socks. But you can't buy those socks. Not until you've got five pairs of those socks. And you want the Federal Government doing that?

I don't think anybody in their right mind in this country wants that to happen. But the start, the crack in the dam, the slow drip is going to be what they have proposed, which is going to be a slow drip that is going to create massive costs to this country. By the way, my friend, Mr. BURTON, wasn't even talking about the cost to the States. Those are Federal costs. They imposed upon the States costs the States didn't have any say in whatsoever.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Would the gentleman yield on that point real quickly? Our Governor, who I think is one of the best Governors in the country, Mitch Daniels, he said that passing this would put 500,000 people more on Medicaid in the State of Indiana. I just wanted to validate the point that you just made. This is going to be a tremendous burden on States all across this country because they are going to shift an awful lot of the burden that is on the Federal health care system to the States. In Indiana, we are going to be spending billions of dollars more over the long haul because they are going to put 500,000 people more on Medicaid. I don't know that that is the exception. I think every State in the Union is going to suffer like that. Those are costs we are not even talking about.

Mr. CARTER. It is. Reclaiming my time, we are joined by my good friend and colleague, classmate, a fellow Texan, Dr. BURGESS, who has spent most of his life on these issues, and certainly his time in Congress. Since the day I met him, he has had the best ideas I have heard on health care, but he's been a voice crying in the wilderness. He does know what we're talking about. I'll be glad to yield to Dr. BURGESS to educate us on what he sees these issues are and where this thing is going.

Mr. BURGESS. I thank the gentleman for yielding. I must say, it's humbling for a simple country doctor as I to come down here and talk constitutional issues with the great constitutional scholars of our time.

Mr. CARTER. Right.

Mr. BURGESS. Judge, you mentioned something that is so important. So many people are concerned about what they see happening. And I see by one of the posters that you have there that almost 45 percent of the United States population, or State attorneys general representing almost 45 percent of the population, now are suing over the constitutionality of these health care mandates. Remember, all of that has happened within a 4-week time span of us passing this very flawed piece of legislation. There's no way to know what the next 4 weeks will bring; but certainly as more and more people evaluate this, as more and more people dissect through that very flawed product that was passed by the Senate on Christmas Eve, and then we just, for whatever reason, picked up and agreed to it over here in the House the end of March.

As more and more people look at that and see the drafting errors and see the inconsistencies that are contained within that legislation, I believe that that number will in fact become much higher by the time we get to Memorial Day. It will grow in numbers through the month of June. By the time we get to Independence Day, I've got to believe that that number, there is going to be a startling percentage of the United States population that is now against this bill.

The problem with this bill is it never enjoyed popular support. People want to criticize Republicans for being obstructionists in this process but, honestly, they did not need a single Republican vote. They have a 40-majority vote on the Democratic side. This was all an internal argument on the Democratic side with getting this darned thing passed. As a consequence of not having popular support, they had to coerce, cajole, threaten, and malign Members on their own side in order to get the votes necessary to pass this.

Now, right after it passed, Judge CARTER and I were part of a press conference, and our attorney general, Greg Abbott, was one of the first attorneys general to step forward and say, Under the commerce clause, I don't think you can do this. He wrote a very powerful letter to our two Senators earlier in the year. And I just wanted to quote a couple of paragraphs from this thoughtful and lengthy letter that Greg Abbott wrote to our Senators.

He writes, "The individual mandate is constitutionally suspect because it does not fall within any of these categories. The mandate provision of H.R. 3590 attempts to regulate a non-activity."

Let me just stop for a second. "Attempts to regulate a nonactivity." Are there any other nonactivities we do during the course of the day that we're willing to give over the regulation of those nonactivities to the Federal Government? I think the judge and the minority made the point. Of course there are not.

Continuing to quote from the letter, "The legislation actually imposes a financial penalty upon Americans who choose not to engage in interstate commerce—because they choose not to enter into a contract for health insurance." Quoting further, "In other words, the proposed mandate would compel nearly every American to engage in commerce by forcing them to purchase insurance, and then use that coerced transaction as a basis for claiming authority under the commerce clause."

Continuing to quote from Greg Abbott's letter, "Congress' own independent, nonpartisan research agency, the Congressional Research Service, expressed doubts about the commerce clause's applicability in a report that was issued last July: 'Despite the breadth of powers that have been exercised under the commerce clause, it is unclear whether the clause would provide a solid constitutional foundation for legislation containing a requirement to have health insurance. It may be argued that the mandate goes beyond the bounds of the commerce clause.'"

And then finally just to conclude from Greg Abbott's letter, "If there are to be any limitations on the Federal Government"—let me just underscore that "any" one more time. "If there are to be any limitations on the Federal Government, then 'commerce' cannot be construed to cover every possible human activity under the sun—including mere human existence. The act of doing absolutely nothing does not constitute an act of 'commerce' that Congress is authorized to regulate."

A very powerful letter by the attorney general, issued last January to our two Senators as the Senate was working through this health care bill.

You know, I've been so concerned about this bill that we passed that I wake up in the middle of the night almost every night wondering what the future holds. And Judge, you're so right. In some ways, you kind of get this mental image of this omniscient central planner—albeit a benign and kind and eloquent central planner—moving data points around on a big spreadsheet somewhere. That's what the administration of health care has become in this country. Look at the job that we have turned over to the Department of Health and Human Services and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, another small Federal agency called the Office of Personnel Management, and yes, for crying out loud, the IRS involved in regulating health care. These Federal agencies are now tasked with writing the rules and regulations out of this 2,700-page behemoth that, again, passed the Senate on Christmas Eve as a vehicle to allow the Senators to get out of town ahead of a snowstorm.

No one read that darn thing. No one knew that what was in that darn thing. They just passed it so they could get out of town. They always intended to come back and make it better in conference or some other secret coordinated meeting with the White House where they would come up with an amalgamated product, but they didn't do it. They didn't follow through. They just picked up this Senate bill. A lot of people don't understand. The Senate bill actually has a House number. It's H.R. 3590.

Now, why would a bill passed by the Senate dealing with health care have a House number? Well, because it began as a House bill. It began over here at the end of last summer as a bill to regulate housing. CHARLIE RANGEL introduced it from the Committee on Ways and Means. It passed the House. I voted against it, for the record, when it was a housing bill. It went over to the Senate and lay fallow for a period of time until the majority leader of the other body decided that they needed a vehicle for this health care reform. They decided not to affix a Senate number to it. The House had passed a bill. They chose not to pick up our House bill that dealt with health care. They picked up our housing bill and amended it. And one of the first amendments was to take the language out of it.

So now they have an empty bill, a number, and literally nothing else. They stuck in all of these little special deals that they had to strike. And the question wasn't, What is the best possible health care policy that we could come up with? In fact, if that question had been asked, maybe they would have used Governor Daniel's use of consumer-directed health plans in his State and how he's held down cost. But they didn't do that. They said, What will it take to get your vote? And whatever that answer was was the piece that was inserted in that bill. That's why you've got an amalgam of so many disconnected pieces in this 2,700-page monstrosity that is now H.R. 3590.

Once that thing passed to get them out of town on Christmas Eve—and it was literally a Christmas tree that night when they passed it. But once they passed that bill, they all expected to come back to a conference committee or some other vehicle to amend and improve this bill. But when the Senator from Massachusetts was elected as a Republican, it threw a big kink in their plans. They decided the only way to get—and remember, the goal here was not to fix problems that are besetting the American people in our health care system. The goal was to get a bill to sign. The goal was a signing ceremony in the East Wing of the White House. The goal was for the President to sign a bill during his first term.

It's almost like they didn't care what was in it. They didn't care what the health care policy was. It can be as bad as you can possibly imagine. The drafting errors can be rampant throughout the entire bill. But we got a signing ceremony, by golly, and no other President of the United States has ever had that achievement before. And now the rest of us are left with this travesty that's called a health care bill. Doctors, nurses, and hospitals and, indeed, even insurance companies, and of course regular American patients are going to have to deal with this for the next several generations.

We have to rip this thing out root and branch. One of the ways to do that is for the attorneys general to proceed with their lawsuit and be successful in their lawsuit, which is why I so appreciate the gentleman coming to the floor of the House, making the American people aware of what is going on, why the attorneys general are pursuing this, and maybe, maybe we will get some relief for the American people, and then we can go back and do the things they were asking us to do in the first place—fix the problems, not destroy the system.

I will yield back to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. CARTER. I thank the gentleman for a great description of one of the reasons, when they say, you don't want to watch people make sausage or legislation is because there's no telling what goes in it. And that description of the House bill being gutted of language and changed to a health care bill, I think that's going to be a real eye-opener to the civics classes around the country as to how that thing functioned. And, you know, that's part of the nervousness that we're seeing in the American people, and they're concerned about what's going on up here. That kind of overwhelming power play is just—it's contrary to the old fair play that's deep down inside what makes Americans great. So I appreciate you describing it.

I see Mr. BURTON's risen again. I will yield to him.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I thank my colleague from Texas for yielding.

I just want to follow up on what my other colleague from Texas just said. He was quoting the attorney general of Texas, Mr. Greg Abbott, and there was one clause in his letter that I thought bears repeating. He said, "If there are to be any limitations on the Federal Government, then 'commerce' cannot be construed to cover every possible human activity under the sun—including mere human existence. The act of doing absolutely nothing does not constitute an act of 'commerce' that Congress is authorized to regulate."

And this parallels what we were talking about earlier with the National Recovery Act, because it was designed to cover everything back in the 1930s. We talked about a couple of examples. And this attorney general is quoting pretty much what Justice Brandeis was talking about when he wrote the opinion, the 9-0 opinion that destroyed the National Recovery Act, saying that the Federal Government didn't have the right to run everything. And I think that's exactly what your attorney general is talking about.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. CARTER. As he was reading from Attorney General Abbott's very well-written letter and he mentioned that particular thought, my thought was, You can let your imagination run wild if we are opening the commerce clause to existing. If existing puts you in commerce, then I think the sky is the limit. And more so, the sky is the horror, because ultimately it can be such an abusive power. And I am not pointing a finger at any administration, but there could be an administration down the road that imposes where you can live. Or one that is really interesting, because there are actually countries in this world that do this, and as we were talking about it, it popped into my head—in some European countries, Western European countries.

You know, there's a misconception—I think my colleagues know this, but if not, I want to at least put my two cents worth in—a misconception that everybody has the same freedoms we've got. Wrong. Just because they've got TV shows that we like or something like that doesn't mean they've got the same kind of free society we have.

The British system has the right of habeas corpus, but there are plenty of countries that don't have the right of habeas corpus. There are plenty of other rights. It's kind of interesting. In European countries, after the war, they wanted people to vote, so they made it mandatory. The government made it mandatory to vote. And if you don't vote—it's just like our health care bill—you get fined.

Now, they don't have a constitution like the United States that limits the power of their government. I'm not saying it's all bad. But to me, if I was a guy who didn't want to vote, they say, Okay. Pay $50 or you've got to vote. And then what's the next step, Pay $50 or you have to vote for my party or for my leader. And where does it stop?

Things that are done in good conscience when you open up the power of the Federal Government like this interpretation of the commerce clause, you can use your imagination and your knowledge of history to see how it could become, at some future time, more and more and more depriving of the liberties that we enjoy. So this is about a whole lot of stuff, and it's a whole lot of stuff that upsets you.

On the issue of Medicare, I think Texas is $8 billion—isn't that right?

Mr. BURGESS. If the gentleman will yield, several of the State senators have written to me, and, in fact, I believe I'm quoting Governor Perry correctly in that it would be a $23 billion cost over the 10 years. We do our budget for a 2-year time period, so for the next five budgets.

Now, as the gentleman knows, Texas has not been hit quite as hard as some other States by the recession, but it's still been hit. In the next election, the people who are elected for the next State legislature, for the next State senate are going to have to deal with a budgetary environment that is going to be a great deal tighter than any since probably 2002 or 2003. As a consequence, Governor Perry has tasked all of the various interim Senate committees and House committees to look for 5 percent of savings across the board in the State budget. So they are serious about getting their budget into balance. Of course, by law, they have to do this, and they are looking for every State agency to cut its budget by 5 percent. That's significant when, at the same time, the Federal Government is now saying, because of the increase in Medicare enrollment that you're going to be required to take, the budgetary expansion brought about by this health care bill will be $23 billion over the next 10 years at a time when every other State agency is being constricted.

So are we saying that federally mandated health insurance is more important than education of Texas children? Apparently we are. Are we saying that the federally mandated health care entitlement is now more important than State transportation issues or State security issues? Apparently we are.

But I know this is a serious problem that is being faced by the State legislators and the State senators, and I have heard from several of them over these past several weeks and the weeks leading up to the passage of this bill. And I know, of course, the Governor has been quite outspoken about the fact that they are going to have to cut their budget at the State level, and I believe every State agency has been asked to come up with 5 percent, a nickel in savings out of every dollar that is spent at the State level.

And it's actually not a bad idea for us. If we were to actually do a budget this year—which I'm not sure we are. For whatever reason, the Democratic leadership does not seem to think that's important, even though this country is in financial crisis, to squeeze 5 cents of savings out of every dollar. It's certainly something most Americans understand in running their own business. During times when I ran my medical practice, I would be faced with budgetary shortfalls, and I understood the concept of saving a penny or two or three or four or five out of every dollar you spent. And the Governor has wisely asked his State agencies to do that. We don't seem to be quite so knowledgeable here at the Federal level sometimes.

I will yield back to the gentleman.

Mr. CARTER. I thank the gentleman for yielding back.

Let me say this. I think it's very interesting because Governor Perry's saying that we've got to cut 5 percent. I say hooray for that. I think that's the right way to go about it. But this bill tells us, we've got to set up—somebody in our State has to help administer this bill. And ultimately, we've got to come up with these pools, regional pools. We are pressuring our States to make this thing work, and our States say, We don't want that thing. And we certainly don't want the expense of doing it at the expense of our taxpayers' dollars because we're trying to tighten our budget.

You're right, we are lucky in Texas, fortunate that the economy hasn't hit us as hard. In fact, in my district in recent times, probably the hardest hit we received from this Chamber right here and the one across the way, when the President signed the nationalization of student loans and wiped out 500 jobs in Killeen, Texas. In Killeen, Texas, 500 jobs is a lot of jobs, and 500 jobs in central Texas is a lot of jobs, and that's just the tip of the iceberg of what ill-conceived ideas can do.

This one here is a constitutional challenge to our Federal Government and our Supreme Court. I have great confidence that they will accept that challenge, and I am hopeful that they will say, You can't expand the commerce clause to breathing. It just can't go that far. You don't need commerce because you exist.

If it is, then I would argue that there are no controls on the Federal Government's ability to do things to impose burdens upon your life. I think that is the real underlying issue here, and it is of great importance.

But even more so than that is when we came up with the concept of Medicaid, and Congressman BURGESS, he worked under Medicaid as a doctor. He knows what it is. But Medicaid is a contract between the individual States and the Federal Government to come up with a solution for poor people's health care. It was designed for the poor, the underprivileged. And it was designed that the States and the Federal Government, the Federal Government would have the ability to work with the States to put together a contract and the State would provide so much resources and administer the program, and the Federal Government would provide so much resources.

This bill, without any input whatsoever not only from the Republicans, no input from the Republicans in the House of Representatives, but no input from the States. They got their contract renegotiated by the Federal Government without their say. Now they have this huge financial and bureaucratic burden that is being placed upon the States by the fact that part of the way they were able to get the solution, all of the people not covered by health care, was to take a big chunk of people and just stick them in Medicaid, and say oh, by the way, States, we decided this is what you're going to do, and you're going to do it. We'll pay our share, maybe, but you've got to pay yours. And you've got to administer the program.

I think that some of the States, and I know in the Florida case, they are raising that issue. They are saying: Can you impose this upon the States at this level? I don't know.

The main issue is the commerce clause. That is the imposition of burdens not anticipated when the deal was struck. I think that is an important part of everything that we are talking about here.

You know, there are people who say oh, that CARTER and that bunch, they are a bunch of right wing nuts down there on the floor. They are all upset about this and they call them Socialists. Well, yeah, but did you look at this map? Have you looked at this map? I wouldn't call several areas of this country that is marked in red as bastions of conservatism by any stretch of the imagination, not that they don't have the right to be the State that they are. I am not criticizing them for their beliefs, but this is not some right wing conspiracy out of central Texas, okay; this is a cross-section of the country. The West Coast, represented by Washington State, certainly a progressive State, proud to be a progressive State; we have Pennsylvania over here on the east, and Michigan in the Midwest. This area up here is the heart and soul of the declining auto industry with all of their terrible problems. Everybody at night ought to say a prayer for the people in Michigan right now because they are having the hardest time of anyone in this Union right now. And we need to correct that as best we can.

More than that, I would at least submit that The Washington Post is certainly not something that Rush Limbaugh and the boys read and consider their newspaper, but let's see what The Washington Post said on March 21: The individual mandates extends the commerce clause's power beyond economic activity to economic inactivity. That is unprecedented. Congress has used its taxing power to fund Social Security and Medicare. Never before has it used its commerce power to mandate an individual person engaged in an economic transaction with a private company. Regulating the automobile industry by paying cash for clunkers is one thing, making everybody buy a Chevy is quite another.

That was in The Washington Post. I would argue and I think they would argue with me it is a liberal newspaper. But this is not a liberal or conservative fight. This is about freedom and liberty and our Constitution.

I yield to Congressman BURGESS.

Mr. BURGESS. I was going to agree with the gentleman that The Washington Post is not likely to be found in the Rush Limbaugh stack of stuff that he uses on his radio program everyday.

But the freedom argument is one that is so important. Under the Medicaid provisions, as I understand and read the bill that was passed by this House, individuals who earn at or below 133 percent of the Federal poverty level, if they are not covered by any other insurance, since they are going to be required to have insurance, will, in fact, be required to have Medicaid. They will not be allowed to purchase insurance in the exchange, as other Americans will. They will simply be placed into the Medicaid program.

That, too, is unprecedented. In any of the social entitlements that we have had in the past, never had we required someone by virtue of their income level to be within a certain Federal aid program.

The implications of that are startling and may well go far beyond the boundaries of where they exist today with the passage of this law. It may be a much more startling recession or receding of freedom than we have seen in this country. Really, it would be unprecedented the loss of freedom that will accompany this bill.

I will yield back to the gentleman because I know time is short, but that is an extremely important point that the gentleman just made.

Mr. CARTER. Reclaiming my time, 23 million Americans will still have no health coverage in 2019 after this bill is fully implemented. So with all of the big imposition on the privacy of American citizens, and the big imposition on our government of mandating them that they have to buy a product, and if they do everything that they are supposed to do and if the States can find the money to run the Medicaid problem, and if they can get the various agencies up and functioning and somewhere find the money to pay the salaries to run them, and if we create this bureaucracy, we will still have 23 million Americans that won't have health care coverage. Hmm.

If your goal was to cover everybody, you failed. I don't think it is really the goal to cover everybody. I think the goal is to put control of another part of the American economy and Americans' lives in the hands of the Federal Government. That's what I think this is about. And that is what I think it has always been about since we started this discussion.

That is why the American people were telling us what we want to talk about is cost. This stuff costs too much. What can you do to get the cost down? There is no cost savings in any of this; there is only cost imposition.

So the one thing that I think we have a great shortage of in this town with present company excepted is common sense. But I have great confidence in the average American, whether he be the Wall Street fat cat or the guy working in the grocery store in Round Rock, Texas, they have common sense to know what is good form and what is not good form. I think that is why we are seeing people getting up off the couch and making their voices heard because this doesn't make common sense. This is not the kind of world we signed on to. It is not the kind of world we fought wars for.

We have an issue that it seems to grow in intensity as the weeks go by. It is almost the gift that keeps on giving in that there is just more to talk about every week. I, too, like Congressman BURGESS, lie awake in the middle of the night and can't get back to sleep thinking about what is coming down the road and what we have to do.

Many of my colleagues don't believe this, but I understand we are about to have a report come out on this, just as an aside, all of the Members of Congress and all of their office staffs were, on page 157 of this bill, taken out of their health care program and put under the pools. It is a very interesting challenge.

HONORING TWO TRAILBLAZERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. CHU). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Madam Speaker, now that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle have completed their hour of speaking of how that long-needed, hard-fought for health insurance and preventive services for those who have had little or no access to health care ought to be taken away, praising the AGs, as they were, who are challenging the law through which we Democrats provided the opportunity to every American for health and wellness, we are now going to turn to remembering two individuals who all of their lives worked to ensure that access to health, education, and economic opportunity was available for all.

Some of my colleagues spoke of the life and legacy of Dr. Dorothy Irene Height last week when Congresswoman FUDGE's resolution was on the floor, but the Congressional Black Caucus wanted to use this time this evening to continue that tribute and also pay tribute to Dr. Benjamin Hooks. I consider it a great honor and pleasure to anchor this hour of tribute to two of our Nation's trailblazers, two drum majors for justice, to incomparable human beings whom we mourn because they are no longer physically with us, but who will forever be with us in spirit and through the rich legacy that they both have left.

Individually, as communities of color and as a Nation, we are far better because they passed this way and touched our lives during their earthly journeys. The people I am speaking of are Dr. Benjamin Hooks and Dr. Dorothy I. Height.

On Dr. Hooks, although I had the honor of meeting him, I didn't get to know Dr. Benjamin Hooks personally. But everyone knows or ought to know of the little old country creature that he referred to himself as, but which surely grossly understated the measure of this luminary of civil rights and champion for a better America.

A native Tennessean, civil rights leader, Baptist minister, attorney and judge, in fact, the first black judge to serve in that position in Tennessee and in all of the South after reconstruction, he, like Dr. Height, has made an immeasurable contribution to this country that will continue to reverberate for generations to come.

His life experiences in high school, and particularly in World War II, and his conquering of them all, I think is what served to fuel his passion and his determination to ensure equality and justice for everyone in this country regardless of race, color, religion, creed or nationality.

In a different and less strident partisan time, he was appointed to the FCC, the first African American commissioner, by President Richard Nixon, as was my father to the Federal district court in the Virgin Islands.

That Congressmen RUSH, BUTTERFIELD, and I must continue to raise the same issues today that he championed: the need for more minority ownership of radio and TV stations, for more diversity in employees in the industry, as well as for more positive image of African Americans in the media, is not at all reflective of the cogency of his argument or the determination of his effort, but more of the depth and intransigence of the institutional racism that continues to exist in this country.

An unrelenting supporter and advocate for self-help, he revived the NAACP during his legendary tenure of 20 years, while furthering and strengthening its missions, goals and ideals. He, like Dr. Dorothy Height, is the recipient of both the President's Medal of Freedom and the Congressional Gold Medal.

It is not enough that the University of Memphis works to carry on his league see through the Benjamin Hooks Institute for Social Change, it is up to those of us on whose behalf he served to live his life and these words of his: "If anyone thinks we are going to stop agitating, they better think again. If anyone thinks we are going to stop litigating, they had better close up the courts. If anyone thinks we are not going to demonstrate and protest, they had better roll up the sidewalks."

The Congressional Black Caucus, through our positions, our advocacy, and our legislative efforts here in Congress, live those words every day and are proud to join the NAACP in taking up the torch he has passed to us with pride.

Let me say a few words about Dr. Height. This country is indebted to her for so many rights and privileges that we enjoy today, from her work opening doors at YMCAs, to her empowering of communities in Mississippi and elsewhere, to her leadership in the struggles for women's rights and civil rights, her uplifting of the African American families through the Annual Family Reunions, her enrichment and advancement of the National Council of Negro Women, and all of the many ways she helped shape policy and found ways to address old and new ills in our community. There is not anyone who has not benefited from her life of service.

I want to spend my time, though, talking about the times and ways in which I was privileged to play what was but an infinitesimal part in her work. First, it was always an honor to be in her presence. But in addition to the invitations, the receptions, meetings, social activities, she also pulled me into her work with young women and health. I was able to be part of her efforts on HIV and AIDS. I had the opportunity to address her town halls, most recently a little over a year ago, a town hall on preventing obesity and lead poisoning in children in black and other poor communities.

And I got to be a part of her planning and developing the 12 or so sites for her anti-obesity programs across the United States. She always made sure that my district, and she did in this case, the U.S. Virgin Islands, was a part of it.

But it wasn't always just the big national issues. She understood the demands of leadership, especially on black women. And so she brought us together to counsel, support, and encourage us from time to time.

It's hard to put in words the deep pride and yet the humble gratitude that I had the opportunity in some small way to get to know Dr. Height, to be one of her countless mentees, to be even a small part of her efforts that I was in recent years. To have had her smile on me was a great blessing that will stay with me and continue to encourage me and guide me as long as I live.

In a few minutes I am going to yield to some of my colleagues and our chairwoman, BARBARA LEE. I want to just read a couple of quotes here, first on Dr. Hooks. This is a quote from President Bush, who bestowed on him the Presidential Medal of Freedom: "For 15 years, Dr. Hooks was a calm, yet forceful voice for fairness, opportunity, and personal responsibility. He never tired or faltered in demanding that our Nation live up to its founding ideals of liberty and equality."

Julian Bond, the chairman emeritus of the NAACP, praised Dr. Hooks at the time as well, saying: "Benjamin Hooks had a stellar career—civil rights advocate and leader, minister, businessman, public servant—there are few who are his equal," Bond said.

And another quote on Dr. Benjamin Hooks from the president and CEO of the Joint Center on Economic and Political Studies, Dr. Ralph B. Everett. And he said: "Throughout his life and career, the Reverend Dr. Hooks never flinched in the face of enormous challenges, and his expansive dreams were always grounded in the concerns and aspirations of the least fortunate. As we carry on the work of building a better and more inclusive society that affords opportunity to all, we all have Dr. Benjamin Hooks' shining example to keep us on the right path."

Dr. Marian Wright Edelman wrote of Dr. Height on her passing. She started with a quote from Dr. Dorothy Height which reads: "We African American women seldom do just what we want to do, but always what we have to do. I am grateful to have been in a time and place where I could be a part of what was needed." And we are really grateful that she was in a time and a place where she was needed. Dr. Edelman says, and I quote again: "When she passed away on April 20 at age 98, we all lost a treasure, a wise counselor, and a rock we could always lean against for support in tough times."

At this time I am joined by the chairwoman of the Congressional Black Caucus, Congresswoman BARBARA LEE. And I would like to yield her such time as she might consume as she joins me in these tributes.

Ms. LEE of California. Thank you very much. Let me thank the gentlelady from the Virgin Islands for that very moving tribute and for anchoring the Congressional Black Caucus's Special Order tonight.

Madam Speaker, this month our Nation and the world lost two towering giants in the pursuit of freedom and justice for all, Dr. Dorothy Irene Height and Dr. Benjamin Hooks. Both lived long and fruitful lives and leave legacies that will endure for generations to come. Tonight we pay tribute to Dr. Hooks and Dr. Height, two trailblazers, two giants who paved the way and opened the doors of opportunity for countless numbers of Americans.

This week Dr. Height will be laid to rest, and she will be forever remembered as a bold and brilliant African American woman who blazed many trails and opened many doors so that we all could lead freer and more prosperous lives. A matriarch of the civil rights movement and a staunch advocate of women's rights, Dr. Height wore many hats throughout her life, both literally and figuratively, with elegance and with dignity, with excellence and with determination. I am going to miss her so much. She showed us that the fight for women's rights and our struggle for civil and human rights were not mutually exclusive. She was a coalition builder in our work for justice for all.

A couple of months ago, as I was listening to Congresswoman CHRISTENSEN's remarks about her personal involvement with Dr. Height and how she grew to love her, I myself had many, many experiences that brought me very close to Dr. Height. And I can remember one of the last times that we were together. She called and she insisted that I participate, and this was a couple of months ago, in the National Council of Negro Women's annual conference in Maryland. And of course, as Dr. CHRISTENSEN knows, when Dr. Height calls, you answer because you know it's important. There is no way you say no.

But Dr. Height, she knows the schedule here on the Hill because she was constantly here helping us with our outside strategy to move the Congressional Black Caucus's agenda forward. Well, she called and she said she knew how busy I was, she said, but just come out to Maryland for the breakfast. I said, Okay, Dr. Height, I will be there. Well, I got there early, it may have been like 7 o'clock, 7:15, dragging. But there she was in her beautiful hat, sitting at the head table to greet me.

And being with Dr. Height, I tell you, that day I realized that I was in the presence of greatness. And I know, as with all of us, especially the women of the Congressional Black Caucus, whenever she introduced us it was amazing, because she knew so much about each of us and she humbled us by the things that she would say about us. And we would wonder how could this great woman say these nice things about us. I mean, you know, we look up to her as a legendary shero, but yet she always, always lifted us up and made us feel like we may be part of her.

From her legendary stewardship as the national president of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., to her unprecedented 41-year tenure at the helm of the National Council of Negro Women, Dr. Height, she was a woman of courage and strength. Her commitment to equality was reflected in so many of her pursuits—in fact, in all of her pursuits.

In the 1930s, for example, Dr. Height traveled across the United States to encourage the YWCA chapters to implement interracial chapters. After dedicating more than 60 years of her life to the YWCA, Dr. Height remained proudest of her efforts to direct the Y's attention to the issues of civil rights and racial justice. She was so committed to this work. In fact, the Y named Dr. Height the first director of its new Center for Racial Justice in 1965.

Imagine, in the thirties, this African American woman who put up a one-woman resistance movement to the segregation of the Y—and she won. One person made that difference in the thirties.

As a leader of the United Christian Youth Movement of North America,

Dr. Height worked to desegregate the Armed Forces to stop lynching. Yes, she knew lynching very well in her day. Not too many years ago this country has that stain which we still have to remind ourselves of. She worked to stop lynching, to reform the criminal justice system and to establish free access to public accommodations at a time when racial segregation was the standard, mind you—and I know Dr. CHRISTENSEN remembers that. I remember that very well. That was the standard. Resistance to integration was often fierce. Dr. Height remained forever vigilant. She remained true to her convictions. Even when it was not the comfortable thing to do.

A lifelong advocate for peace and equality, Dr. Height was especially committed to empowering women and girls. She stood toe to toe with our great male civil rights leaders. Oftentimes, she was the only woman in the room, the only woman on the platform. She was steadfast in her dedication to ensure that black women's issues and concerns were addressed. She was forever dedicated to helping women achieve full and equal employment, pay, and education.

Dr. Height was an internationalist. Before many of us began our work on the continent of Africa or in the Caribbean, Dr. Height, as the President of the National Council of Negro Women, had chapters, and she did work in the villages in Africa—work that was visionary, work that touched the lives of so many women, children, and families. She knew that she was a citizen of the world and that she had to work both domestically here in our own country and internationally if, in fact, she were going to be a leader in our global movement. She is an internationally renowned woman.

Dr. Height led the NCNW, helping women and families combat hunger. She also established the Women's Center for Education and Career Advancement, in New York City, to prepare women for entry-level jobs. During her tenure as the President of the NCNW, they were able to buy a beautiful building right up the street, near the Capitol. It's a site where slave traders legally operated what was known as the Center Slave Market. To this day, it is the only African American-owned building on this corridor, proving that she was not only a great leader but an astute businesswoman as well. I'll never forget the evening of the fundraiser where she was able to raise the money to retire the debt, to burn the mortgage.

I mean Dr. Height was an unbelievably clear woman in terms of financial stability and economic security for the organizations that she was a part of, and now we have a building on Pennsylvania Avenue—again, the site of the Center Slave Market. We heard her tell the story of how she found this building which was on that site, and we heard the story about that site, which is too long to talk about tonight, but there is a wonderful story about that. How she ended up purchasing a building on that site was, really, I think, the hand of God. Dr. Height remained a fighter until her last breath.

During my time here in Congress, especially as chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, I always knew that I could call on Dr. Height and that she would be there to support our efforts. Of course, last year, she attended President Barack Obama's first signing of a bill into law at the White House, the Lilly Ledbetter Act. She was present for the unveiling of the Shirley Chisholm portrait and for the bust of Sojourner Truth here in the Capitol. She worked diligently on various issues with the Black Women's Roundtable and the Black Leadership Forum, and she often participated in panels here on Capitol Hill.

Just recently, she joined our efforts to support the 2010 census. She was here in the Rayburn building, you know, helping us organize, giving us the message, speaking to young people, and just saying that we have to make sure that everyone is counted because, if everyone is not counted, they will be counted out. She knew what she was talking about.

We listened to Dr. Height. Many times, we attended many of her fundraisers, and I believe they are uncommon heights. Oftentimes, Dr. Height would talk, maybe, for 20 minutes, for 30 minutes, for 40 minutes, for 45 minutes. The older she got, the more she wanted to tell her story. Even with her talking about so much, people did not get antsy and did not want to leave. They wanted to listen to this great woman who knew Mary McLeod Bethune and Eleanor Roosevelt. We were mesmerized every time we were in her presence, and we wanted to listen. We did not want to leave.

Her passion was really an inspiration to all of us here in Congress. It's hard to imagine that, in the thirties, she provided this resistance movement. I will tell you that we love her, that we celebrate her life—and we do. We mourn her death.

Last week, an individual who I was privileged to meet and to know, Dr. Benjamin Hooks, was laid to rest. He was born on January 31, 1925, in Memphis, Tennessee. He was the fifth of seven children. In life, he was a civil rights leader, a minister, an attorney, and forever a champion of minorities and the poor. He was a man of all seasons. While studying prelaw at LeMoyne-Owen College in Memphis, Dr. Hooks became acutely aware of the realities of racial segregation.

In an interview with U.S. News and World Report, he once recounted and said, I wish I could tell you every time I was on the highway and couldn't use a restroom. My bladder is messed up because of that. My stomach is messed up from eating cold sandwiches.

So, after graduating from law school at DePaul University, Dr. Hooks returned to his native Memphis where he earned a local reputation as one of the few African American lawyers in town. Thoroughly committed to breaking down the practices of racial segregation which existed in the United States, Dr. Hooks fought prejudice at every single turn.

He said, At the time, you were insulted by law clerks, excluded from white bar associations, and when I was in court, I was lucky to be called "Ben." He recalled this in an interview with Jet Magazine. Usually, it was just "boy." Yet he said the judges were always fair. The discrimination of those days has changed, and today, the South is ahead of the North in many respects in civil rights progress, he said—an ordained Baptist minister, and he could preach.

Dr. Hooks joined the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, SCLC, and he became a pioneer in the NAACP's sponsored restaurant sit-ins and other boycotts of consumer items and services. Dr. Hooks was the first African American Commissioner of the Federal Communications Commission, a board member of the SCLC, and the first African American criminal court judge in Tennessee history. Twice a month, he flew to Detroit to preach at the Greater New Mount Moriah Baptist Church. Dr. Hooks was a true public servant who committed his life to empowering communities of color.

As the executive director of the NAACP from 1977 to 1992, Dr. Hooks increased the NAACP's membership by several hundred thousand people and raised critical funds for the association. He was instrumental in establishing a program in which 200 corporations agreed to participate in economic development projects in black communities.

In 1986, the NAACP recognized Dr. Hooks for his lifetime commitment to civil rights by awarding him the Spingarn award, the NAACP's highest honor. He also rightfully received the Presidential Medal of Freedom. What a man. What a man. He is going to be missed. We miss him already, and I know, though, that the NAACP has taken up Dr. Hooks' mantle and has mounted a very, very active, focused, and committed campaign to the principles and to the work of Dr. Benjamin Hooks.

So, with the passing of Dr. Height and Dr. Hooks, our Nation mourns the loss of true national treasures. Dr. Height's leadership in the struggle for equality and human rights and women's rights serves as an inspiration to all. Dr. Hooks will be remembered as a man who ceaselessly demanded that America live up to its founding principle of justice, equality, and liberty. They will be truly missed.

So, in the memory of Dr. Height and Dr. Hooks, it is the duty, I think, of all Americans to pick up and to carry this baton of freedom and justice. The world is a better place for everyone because Dr. Hooks and Dr. Height lived their lives according to really what they believed that God put them on this Earth to do. I think we all have a responsibility to keep their legacies alive.

Congressman CHRISTENSEN knows, and every Member of this House knows this is a very intense, busy, hard job. We work here day and night. We go to our districts day and night. And whenever we get weary or think that we can't go any further, I am reminded of Dr. Height and Dr. Hooks, who exemplified the words of a gospel song that many of us sing oftentimes in church on Sunday. These words: I ain't no way tired. I've come too far from where I started from. Nobody told me that the road would be easy, but I know he didn't bring me this far to leave me.

Even when the road was very difficult, and it was very difficult for these two great human beings, they kept going. They didn't get tired. They kept going because they knew their purpose and they knew that one day they would rest in peace. That day has come. But their spirit will live forever in the work of the Congressional Black Caucus and in the work of all of those that they touch. May they rest in peace.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Thank you, Congresswoman LEE, and thank you for your leadership of the Congressional Black Caucus. And we know that under your leadership we will take up the mantle, take up the torch that they have left for us and carry on their legacy.

I would like to say to Mrs. Frances Hooks, who is always at her husband's side, his right hand and probably his left hand too, you were an integral part of all that your husband accomplished, and we thank you too for your contributions. On behalf of the Congressional Black Caucus and on behalf of the people of the Virgin Islands, we extend condolences to you and the family. We in the Virgin Islands have also benefited by the work of Dr. Hooks.

And to Dr. Height's sister Anthanette Height Aldridge, and her family, to the council, to the Delta Sisterhood, and especially to two outstanding women who I consider to be Dr. Height's daughters, the Honorable Alexis Herman and the Reverend Barbara Williams Skinner, we extend condolences on behalf of the Congressional Black Caucus again and on behalf of my Virgin Islands family and the gratitude of all us for allowing and welcoming us into the life of Dr. Dorothy Irene Height.

As many people have said, both Dr. Hooks and Dr. Height leave big and awesome shoes to fill, but their lives continue to speak to us and what they are saying, what I hear them saying, is step right into those shoes, fill them any way you can, and keep marching on until victory is won.

THE AMERICAN ENTERPRISE SYSTEM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 2009, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. KING of Iowa. Madam Speaker, I appreciate your indulgence this evening and the opportunity to address you here on the floor of the House.

Not having had the opportunity to listen to the dialogue of the previous people, I will take this up where the front of my mind and my conscience happens to be, and that is what is happening with and to America, what are our priorities, where are we going to go from here, presuming that we could actually reverse many of the things that have taken place over the last 1½ years or longer.

Madam Speaker, I would ask your indulgence to just cast your mind back into the last 1½ years or so, this being April 2010. In fact, I would take us back into August and September of 2008, perhaps a little more than 18 months by now. And what we have seen happen is that we saw a concern about the potential economic collapse of the free world, the fear that global currency and the confidence that allows us to trade in that currency could collapse and that we would see the free market economy and the markets within the world, including the Dow Jones and a number of the other market indexes, the Nikkei market, European market, and that list goes on, those lose the confidence of the investors if that happened, if the investors pulled their money out, if, in fact, there was any money to be pulled out, we could have seen a downward spiral that could have been a crash of our economic system that could have potentially eclipsed that of the Stock Market Crash that precipitated the Great Depression in October 1929.

We saw the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Paulson come to this Capitol on September 19, 2008, and make a request, a very serious request, and some might characterize it as a demand, for 700 billion taxpayer dollars, 700 billion taxpayer dollars to inject into this economy in a fashion that he saw fit, in a fashion that wasn't necessarily laid out for us. We didn't understand particularly his presentation. We heard the words he said but it wasn't definitive. It wasn't clear. And as we found out after the $700 billion worth of TARP passed, even those words didn't hold so very accurately when we looked at the actual practice of how the $700 billion was spent.

So, Madam Speaker, that was the start of this long saga of what America's free enterprise economy, what is left of it, might look like and how we might manage these finances.

It's interesting to me that since that time, I have done some traveling around the world and I recall listening to Angela Merkel and the leaders in Germany the following February, if my memory serves me correctly, so it would be February of 2009, say to us, America, you're spending too much money. You should not dump the $700 billion in TARP in. It is a waste of money. It is irresponsible. You need to pull back. Their proposal in Germany, even though that is a social democracy, a nation that wants to have as much of it, apparently, within the hands of the government to manage as they can and a minimal amount within the free enterprise system, they have a different belief in it than we have.

They had a $450 billion plan; ours was a $700 billion plan followed by a $787 billion plan, coupled with $1 or $2 trillion disbursed by the U.S. Treasury that wasn't within the province or the guidance of this Congress, and I think it's awfully hard to track what that might have meant.

Theirs was $450 billion. I believe the number was $80 billion in targeted expenditures and the rest were loan guarantees. So one might argue the German approach to this—the people that originated socialized medicine, by the way—was they would spend $80 billion in an economic stimulus plan. Now, granted, their economy is not as large as ours, but $80 billion versus $700 billion, and another $787 billion, Madam Speaker, and we have the Germans admonishing us because we're spending too much money in trying to stimulate the economy in this robust Keynesian approach. And then since that time we've heard the President of France lecture us on the dangers of appeasement.

Oh, what a world we have today. How so much it has changed in the last 2 or 3 years, Madam Speaker. How so much the philosophy that has made America great has been pushed to the sidelines, hasn't emerged very much in the thought process, the decisionmaking component of this, at least, even though it remains in the hearts and minds of the American people.

So, Madam Speaker, here we are today, $700 billion in TARP spending, gone, spent, blown. This, yes, was initiated under the Bush administration, as was the nationalization of several financial institutions and the beginnings of the nationalization of AIG. However, the balance of all these things that I'm about to talk about came about under the Obama administration. And everything that I'm talking about, from the $700 billion TARP funding all the way through to today, was supported by either then-Senator Barack Obama, candidate for the Presidency Barack Obama, or the President of the United States, Barack Obama. That policy is indistinguishable whether he supported it as a Senator, whether he supported it because he was a candidate for the President or because he supported it as the President-elect or the President of the United States.

And George Bush gave some deference to Barack Obama on how he would approach this economy. One day

I hope to have that conversation with President Bush. But, in any case, there's no component of this voracious appetite for overspending and pushing government into every corner of our private sector lives, there's no aspect of this that wasn't supported by the President of the United States, Barack Obama.

The American people know that and they understand it, Madam Speaker. And so what we have seen, we have seen the support for the $700 billion in TARP. In fact, this Congress limited the first half of that to $350 billion. And that went, essentially, without strings attached. And the balance of that, the other $350 billion, had to be approved. This was in October of 2008, so it had to be approved by a Congress to be elected later and by a President to be elected later. We know what happened. The second $350 billion was approved by the Congress elected in November of 2008 and approved by the President who was elected in 2008, Barack Obama.

So this entire lexicon of things that happened economically, good or bad, are not the fault of George Bush. They are not laid at the feet of the previous President. These are the responsibilities of this Congress, the House, the Senate, under the leadership of Speaker PELOSI, the leadership of HARRY REID down that aisle, and the leadership of Barack Obama, whom I have sometimes described as a ruling troika, Madam Speaker. That would be, as I warned America about during that same period of time, if you elect Barack Obama as the President of the United States and re-renew the Speakership of NANCY PELOSI—in other words, reelect the Democrat majority here in the House—and you continue to expand the majority of the Democrats in the United States Senate, we will have created, and this is something that I believe is part of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, a ruling troika in America—that ruling troika being the President, Speaker PELOSI, HARRY REID, who could, by my words then, upheld to be true since then, go into a phone booth, the three of them—haven't done so literally, but figuratively they have—and decided what they would do to America.

Their accountability isn't to the American people. It isn't to the will of the American people. Their accountability is only to the members of their own caucus as to whether they would not just reelect them as leaders but decline to un-elect them as the leaders of their caucus. That is the only restraint that is on them and then the restraint of pushing policies that they couldn't pull the votes to get past.

It came very close here in the House a couple of times. And I have respect for political operators that have an ability to get those tough votes through and get them passed. In fact, if it's the right thing to do, it's a hard thing to run a good country—in fact, a great country—if you can't get those tough votes accomplished. But I will suggest, Madam Speaker, that many of the things that have happened in this Congress, the 111th Congress and the 110th Congress that preceded it, are anathema to the American vision and anathema to the American Dream, that they run contrary to the principles that made America great.

I can take us down this path. TARP is one of them. The Federal Government's business isn't to come in and decide which businesses are too big to be allowed to fail and then put a huge bill against the taxpayers, their children and their grandchildren; borrow the money from the Chinese and the Saudis; and then make decisions on which businesses should be allowed to succeed, with government help, and which businesses should be allowed to fail.

This country has got to be run by free enterprise, by the free markets; and if businesses fail, they have to be allowed to fail. And investors need to be able to come in and pick up the pieces at the discount that is available when they go through chapter 11 or 7. Their assets are still there. They can be managed by other corporate entities or noncorporate entities, for that matter.

It isn't that if a bank went under or if AIG the insurance company went under that all of a sudden all of the assets that they have are dispersed or sunk into the ocean somewhere. The hard assets are still there. The accounts are still there. They can still be managed by some entity that comes in and picks up the pieces. I have seen this happen a number of times far too close to make me comfortable within the banks that were closed back during those years in the farm crisis years of the eighties.

It happened over and over again, hundreds and hundreds of banks went under. And when they went under, they were recapitalized. New board of directors. New investors came in and picked up those shares of stock. They looked at the loan portfolios, they looked at the deposits, and they made management decisions to put that bank back on a profitable track. Many of those banks, most of those banks, and I don't know that I could say all of those banks actually got turned back into profit. Yes, there were banks that were closed. There were those whose doors were shut and didn't open again. But many banks came under new ownership because they were sold back into the private sector. Even though the FDIC found themselves brokering assets of banks no longer solvent, they did not hold on to the assets of those banks and operate those banks as if they were players in the private sector.

But what we have seen happen with this Obama White House is entirely different than what we saw during the farm crisis years of the eighties. First, this idea of too big to fail. Too big to fail, Madam Speaker. No one in America's britches should be too big to fail.

Too big for their britches, but they can't fail.

I'd point out a presentation that was made to us about 3 years ago at an 8 a.m. Wednesday morning meeting which I host, a breakfast which I host and have done so for 5½ years, the Conservative Opportunities Society. One of the very smart financial presenters there—since that is off the record in that meeting, I can address what he said, but not his name—we were talking about the subprime mortgage crisis. And he said, When you're in the business, the investment banking business, where he'd been for 30 years, what you do in this business is—and he paused for effect and said, Pretty much whatever everybody else does. That way, if they're making money, you're making money. But if things melt down and there is a bailout, then you will be bailed out with everybody else.

Madam Speaker, it's not hard for me to imagine what that does to the investment minds of people that are operating investment banks if they know implicitly, not explicitly, that they can take a lot of risks and they are never really going to go under because the Federal Government will come in and bail them out. That was the implicit guarantee in banks that were too big to be allowed to fail. And it was followed through upon by this government, by this President, in this administration, in this time, and approved by him as a United States Senator and approved by him as a candidate for the Presidency.

Too big too fail became too big to be allowed to fail. Too big to be allowed to fail. The Federal Government would come in, and if we didn't have the money to bail out these businesses, then we would tap into the United States Treasury, who would borrow it and borrow it from the Chinese and the Saudis and anybody else that could invest in U.S. bonds and pick up these businesses.

So the Federal Government nationalized three large investment banks in the aftermath of this September 19 visit to the Capitol by Henry Paulsen, then the Secretary of the Treasury. Three large investment banks, ownership taken over. Ownership or control taken over by the Federal Government. AIG, the insurance company, $180 billion invested in an insurance company, was guaranteeing securities.

And then we back this up to the late seventies when the Community Reinvestment Act was passed because there were lenders that were not willing to make bad loans in bad neighborhoods. They had drawn red lines and concluded the asset value was diminishing, not appreciating, and the return on that investment, let's say the collateral value was shrinking. Therefore, if they loaned against that collateral value, they would find themselves upside down in those mortgage loans. So they drew lines around the neighborhoods where the value of assets was going down.

Now, some argued that it was a racist decision. I don't know that. I wasn't in those rooms and I don't know those people. For all I know, I never met the people that were making those decisions. If it was for the racist reason, it's kind of like racial profiling. If that is your only reason, then it's wrong. But if it's an indicator that makes you look at the totality of the record, okay, then it may not be wrong. But lenders were drawing a red line around these neighborhoods, and they refused to make those loans into those neighborhoods.

And there was a political decision made in this Congress that they were going to force lenders to make loans into those neighborhoods that had red lines drawn around them. That was the Community Reinvestment Act. But the problem was that they couldn't get the banks to make enough loans into those neighborhoods because the collateral value was going down and the underwriting requirements for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac prohibited them from picking up on the secondary market some of those bad loans.

So in 1978 I believe was the year when the Community Reinvestment Act was passed. They expected that there would be a lot more loans made into these neighborhoods that were redlined. There were more lines made but not enough to satisfy the organizations out there in the inner city. The community organizers—we can ask the President about community organizers. What do they do? They advocate for taxpayer dollars and redistribute those taxpayer dollars into the neighborhoods. They don't contribute to the free enterprise economy. They just tap into the taxpayers, distribute those taxpayer dollars, and in exchange trade off for political power. That is what community organizers do.

So these community organizers concluded that they weren't going to get enough loans into those neighborhoods so they came back to this Congress and lobbied this Congress in the nineties to make changes in the Community Reinvestment Act and, by the way, because of the Community Reinvestment Act, they also found out that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac had strict enough underwriting requirements, that because of those capital requirements and the underwriting requirements, Fannie and Freddie, the secondary loan market, the GSEs in the United States, could not pick up those loans off of those lending institutions.

And so they have refreshed the Community Reinvestment Act and made it a little more strict, but also into the bargain they lowered the underwriting requirements for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. Now we have created a scenario for real bad loans in bad neighborhoods, real net loss to the lenders. But the lenders weren't on the hook so much because as soon as they could make a loan into a neighborhood that was approved by organizations like ACORN, they could peddle that loan off into the secondary market and Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac would pick up the entire tab on that and the original lender would be off the hook.

So there's plenty of incentive for the original lenders to be retail marketing bad loans in bad neighborhoods as long as they could package them up, sell them into the secondary market under Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac then got to this point where they could see that they need to divest themselves of some of those loans, and they sliced them and diced them, and turned around and spun them back into the tertiary market and beyond.

So as this mortgage market was moving along, it was still moving slowly through the nineties. And we got towards the end of the nineties, and actually to the year 2000, when George Bush was elected, we had at the end of the nineties the bursting of the dot-com bubble. When the dot-com bubble was burst—and I suspect it was pierced by the class action lawsuits that were brought against Microsoft by the State attorneys generals, my State Attorney General Tom Miller included—in fact, one of the ringleaders in the lawsuit against Microsoft. I actually think that the dot-com bubble would have burst anyway. Because what it was, it was a speculator's bubble. Yes, there was value in our ability to store and transfer information more effectively than ever before. The speculators invested in that. They bet that would return on their investment and these technology companies would blossom and make huge profits and they would cash in on them.

But this bubble was created out of that speculation, and the thing that wasn't corrected for some time until the bursting or the piercing of the dot-com bubble was the inability for the market to consider that having that technological ability to store and transfer information more effectively than ever before didn't necessarily translate into profits for companies. You have to produce something more efficiently in order for the value of that company to be there.

So, with the Internet, for example, whatever the Internet does to improve the productivity of all of our companies—and anybody that is engaged in business will know that it does improve your productivity as a company—you have the value of that productivity as to what it's worth, not what you speculate you can store or transfer for information.

The only other things that you got to add to that dot-com bubble value was the increase in productivity and the value that you have for recreation. So if people surf the Internet, and they were willing to pay for that, that was a component of our economy.

But the dot-com bubble burst. And as it collapsed, we were seeing the end of the Clinton administration. That was the recession that they talked about during that period of time. And as George Bush was elected, we saw Alan Greenspan make an evaluation—and I suspect this is accurate, and he would have a different opinion of it perhaps—but that we needed to make some adjustments in this economy in order to compensate for our declining economy because of the bursting of the dot-com bubble. Remember, the bubble burst, and it left a depression within our economy. And I don't use that in economic terms. I use that in, let's say, literal terms.

So Alan Greenspan looked at that and decided that we need to recover this economy. How do we do this? Well, unnaturally low interest rates. We're going to promote more mortgage loans. We are going to create a housing market and a housing boom, and we are going to use that to fill the hole in the dot-com bubble. That's the scenario that was playing out.

So unnaturally low interest rates with an encouragement for people to borrow money on terms that they hadn't seen in their adult lifetimes, you couple that with the Community Reinvestment Act, passed in the seventies, refreshed in the nineties, coupled with the lowering of the capital and the underwriter requirements of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and an aggressive lobbying part on the part of ACORN, who came to this Congress and lobbied to lower the underwriting standards for Fannie and Freddie and to push the Community Reinvestment Act, and ACORN finding themselves and putting themselves in a position in the communities whereby they got to approve or disapprove of the effort of the lending institutions to make bad loans in bad neighborhoods.

Now we have cooked up the perfect economic witch's brew, Madam Speaker, that resulted in the toxic mortgages that nearly brought down the global economy. That's a component of the scenario which nearly brought down the global economy. And as these investment banks, lending institutions picked up the mortgage loans on the secondary market, Fannie and Freddie tranced them, sliced and diced them, packaged them, shuffled them, cut the deck, sorted them out and began to sell them on up the market.

AIG, the insurance company, was looking at these bundles of mortgage-backed securities, setting a premium risk rate on these bundles and charging that premium. And whenever they were packaged and bundled and marketed for a profit, the people that were doing that were taking their profit out and passing the risk on, and AIG was passing judgment on that risk with no check and no balance and no one looking over their shoulder, and no one knew the market. They just trusted that AIG would know the answer because, after all, they were the premiere insurance company. They had been growing by leaps and bounds. But their agents were skimming—I don't know if

I would say “skimming” is a fair enough word. But their agents were taking a profit out for the marketing of the policies and the premiums, but there was no continued responsibility and liability.

So I'll suggest that when people make investments and they pass those investments up the line and they can take profit out of them at every step along the way, it's kind of like the reverse of the value-added tax, isn't it, Madam Speaker, where every time you can bundle up some mortgage-backed securities, package them up, get AIG to set a premium on that and get a guaranteed return rate because AIG's premium is there, pass that on up the line, you take your margin out of that, it's kind of like selling the wheat and paying the tax to the Federal Government and sending the invoice along with it while the guy at the mill grinds the wheat into flour. He takes the invoice from the value-added tax and uses that for his credit, and it goes on up the line. He pays his 10 percent tax and goes to the baker, and the baker then uses the two invoice credits of the 10 percent on the wheat and the value added that is another 10 percent on the increased amount on the flour that's milled from the wheat that goes to the baker who pays the tax of what's left on the value added before it goes to become the bread.

The same was going on during the era of the Community Reinvestment Act and Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and the tranche mortgage-backed securities and AIG guaranteeing, passing that thing all of the way up the line. It became, yes, there was foundational value underneath these mortgages. That is the market value of the real estate, but it also was a huge chain letter that was marketed all of the way up through. And when the investors in the world lost confidence that they no longer knew the value of these bundles of mortgage-backed securities, then that happened, then we were threatened with an economic meltdown, Madam Speaker.

That is kind of how we got here. And now, as the economy spirals downward, or more or less the threat of the economy spiraling downward, we look to a President who is a Keynesian economist on steroids. He believes, and I have certainly heard it directly from his lips in very short range that Franklin Delano Roosevelt lost his nerve on spending and that he just didn't spend enough money. If he would have spent a lot of more money, it is the view of the President, whom I take at his word, that the Great Depression would have been over in the 1930s and we wouldn't have had to wait until World War II that brought about the most effective economic stimulus plan ever. That would also be the President's view.

But I will submit when the stock market crashed in October of 1929 and we saw my Iowa President do some things that FDR may well have approved of, and FDR went in with the New Deal, which, in my view, was a really bad deal, and in President Obama's view was a pretty good deal and could have been a better deal if he spent a lot more money, it didn't bring about a recovery from the Depression that started in October of 1929, but what it did when the Federal Government borrowed a lot of money, and they borrowed it from the American people in the form of bonds, they created a lot of make-work projects, had to pay the interest, had to pay the principal, we had all of this debt going on at the beginning of World War II. And then we had to take on a lot more debt. But at least during that period of time, had we not borrowed all of that money, not spent all of that money, then the United States economy would not have had to service all of the interest and service all of the debt.

Interest and principal. Could it be that the people in this country have forgotten what interest and principal is and what it takes in cash flow to service the debt. And will they ever figure out what it is like to be on the other side of this?

I recall a very good neighbor and a wise mentor friend of mine, Dennis Lindberg, who has since passed away, told me a story about when he was a young man and how he had the experience of paying interest at a very young age. He said to me, I decided early on that if I was going to have anything to do with interest, I was going to be the one collecting it.

But this government looks like they will have a lot to do with interest, and they will forever be the ones paying the interest rather than collecting the interest.

So this economy has been diminished by the burden that has been put upon it, just like it was diminished in the 1930s by the burden put upon it. The stock market crashed in October of 1929, and it didn't recover during the Great Depression years of the 1930s. It didn't recover during World War II. The stock market was still struggling to get back to where it was at the end of World War II, at the beginning of the Korean War, at the end of the Korean war. It wasn't FDR who solved the problem. FDR delayed the recovery by borrowing all of that money and spending all of that money in the New Deal during the Great Depression. The stock market didn't come back to where it was in 1929 until Franklin Delano Roosevelt had been dead for 9 years; 1954 is when the Dow Jones Industrial Average recovered to the place where it was when it crashed in October of 1929. All of those years, 9 years after Franklin Delano Roosevelt passed away.

And I want to give him a tip of the hat and a nod, and a significant measure of respect for the way he led this country in World War II. He was solid. He was an anchor, he was stalwart, and a commander in chief. He had a vision for full, all-out 100 percent war demanding total surrender from our enemies. I can take some issue with some of the decisions made along the way; but on balance, Roosevelt was a very good wartime President. I just don't think he was a very good depression-era President.

And this President, I have no idea what kind of wartime President he would be. We are not in a depression. Some will say we are in the Great Recession. That is the vernacular that has been adopted most. But this Great Recession that we appear to be in has spent a lot more money than was spent during the Great Depression of the 1930s. The result, I believe, will be similar.

If you take a business, we can think in terms of a small business, a small business that generates $100,000 a year in gross receipts, and perhaps has a $10,000 mortgage with a 10 percent loan on it. This is so I can do the math as I am talking. So your $100,000 in gross receipts needs to pay the proprietor, pay the utility bills, and all of the overhead, as well as the interest. So if you are grossing $100,000 with a $10,000 loan, then 10 percent of that loan would be $1,000. And if you are paying $1,000 in interest, and let's just say you are going to retire that debt on a 10 year loan, so you pay 10 percent of the principal each year.

The first year it would be $1,000 in interest and another $1,000 in principal; $2,000 out of your $100,000 goes to pay the debt, to service the debt you have. And then you have to take your margins, your expenses out of the remaining $98,000 and have enough to feed the proprietor and keep the proprietor engaged in the business.

Let's just say that all of a sudden, we have this economic crisis and the business is having trouble. It gets flooded or burned out or whatever it might be, and along comes on the Small Business Administration or some other entity, and they say we can keep you in business, but you can't stay in business unless you borrow $100,000 and we will inject that $100,000 of capital into your business. Well, that is nice. You get to stay in business.

Now you have $109,000 worth of debt to service, but I will just go with the $100,000 because I am speaking off the cuff and I can do the math as we fly. Now your interest burden is not $1,000 on the $10,000 debt you had, it is $10,000 interest on the $100,000 debt you have, and the 10 percent you were paying on principal of the $10,000 debt, that $1,000, now becomes $10,000.

So your business that was servicing with $2,000 a $10,000 debt, now has to have two $20,000s to serve the $10,000 worth of interest and the $10,000 worth of principal on your $100,000 debt.

You have taken your ability, your gross receipts in the business are similar or the same. You can only service $2,000 on the old way of financing with the $1,000 of interest and $1,000 worth of principal, $2,000 out of your $100,000 gross, but when they give you this nice loan that you borrowed $100,000, now you have to figure out how to service $10,000 worth of interest and $10,000 worth of principal out of a $100,000 worth of gross receipts. Instead of it being 2 percent, now it is 20 percent.

I hope this example, Madam Speaker, is explanatory to the President of the United States, to Larry Summers, to the people that are looking at this economy and believing that John Maynard Keynes had some answers. He had answers all right, but they were the wrong ones, Madam Speaker.

We need to reduce the debt. We need to reduce spending, and only when we do that can we have a free market economy that will work its way out of this and let us be able to pay the interest and pay down the debt so that this economy can finally get around to the side where it is not constantly burdened servicing interest and debt as opposed to the legitimate functions of government.

We did had 2 or 3 years here where we had a balanced budget. There are some reasons for that. I will give Bill Clinton a little credit. And I will give the Republican Congress a lot of credit. They came in here revolutionaries and they decided that they were going to choke spending down, and they did that. I think also, though, the economy outgrew their predictions and so they were a bit surprised when they balanced the budget.

I think Bill Clinton was a bit surprised when the budget came balanced. Those are the fortunate happenstances of history. We need to be more prudent than that even.

We are going to have to go back. This debt commission that meets tomorrow, that starts out with Erskine Bowles and former Senator Alan Simpson as co-chairs, they are going to examine all of this debt and figure out how to look at the debt and the income to bring America into something that is more responsible. I don't think that they think that they are going to balance the budget or make a proposal that will balance the budget. I think they believe that they are going to look at the spending and the income and make some kind of a recommendation that would help compensate the calamity that we are in.

But, Madam Speaker, I would submit that if you want a committee to produce a result, write up that result. Tell me the result you would like and present it to me, and I can appoint for you the committee that will produce the result that you want. That is how it has been done around this Hill since time immemorial, how it is done in the real world, how it is done in the city council meetings and the county supervisory meetings and within the outside committees of our State legislatures. And that is not a criticism of the people who sit on that debt commission.

They are good people by and large and by balance. But they do not represent, I don't believe, the creative ideas in the United States. First of all, I look through that list of people on the commission; I don't find a single person on that commission that supports a national sales tax. I don't find a single person that has advocated for the abolishment of the IRS and the Federal income tax. Not one. Smart people there, yes. Their decisions, though, and their positions, from what I have seen, are not economic positions exclusively. They are pragmatic economic decisions that are tempered by their judgment of political reality.

So couldn't we at the very least, if we wanted to provide solutions for America, couldn't we set all of our politics aside, take away all of this pragmatism that is political pragmatism, not economic realism, throw that off to the side, park it over there in the parking lot, can't we clean out all of the political jargon that's there and sit down and first ask the question: What would be the smartest thing we could do economically in this country? And in the process of doing that, how do we fund this government, the necessary components of the Federal Government?

Madam Speaker, those are the basic questions I have been asking about this country for 30 years. And I am making a recommendation to the debt commission. And I trust that they will overhear this discussion that you and I are having tonight, Madam Speaker. But it comes down to this: if we were going to devise a tax policy for the United States starting from scratch, that proverbial blank slate or a blank piece of paper, that tax policy, Madam Speaker, would not be the Internal Revenue tax or code. We would not generate the IRS. We would not look at this as a tax on income.

Because here is what Ronald Reagan once said. Ronald Reagan once said, "What you tax you get less of." He also said, "What you subsidize you get more of." But I will stick with the tax side of this. What you tax you get less of. The tax is a punishment. We here in America tax, and that is in quotes "punish" all productivity in the United States.

If you have earnings, savings or investment, if you punch the time clock and go to work, if you start a business and put your sweat equity matched up with what capital you might have, package that together and start a little factory or a service company, or start marketing an invention, whatever it is that you might do, the IRS will come along and identify that productivity and tax it, punish it, shrink it, take away your incentive to produce it.

Production is what drives this economy, not spending. That's a Keynesian mistake. It's not and never has been an economy that is driven by government spending or the Federal Government borrowing and bonding and putting cash in the hands of people so they spend it into the economy to get this to recover. That is not the answer.

Our answer is we need to produce. We need to increase the production in America, in competition with the rest of the world, and market more goods and services and drive our gross domestic product up. And when we do that, we will see prosperity, the prosperity that comes from our efficiencies, from our productivity producing goods and services that have value. And so when Ronald Reagan said, "What you tax you get less of," he was recognizing that we punish productivity.

The Internal Revenue Service and the income tax code are completely dedicated to taxing all productivity in America, punishing all productivity in America, setting aside everything that is good and productive about our economy and taxing it.

So if you punch a time clock and you go forward and you earn wages, you are taxed on it. At least the payroll tax. The Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid tax, that is on there. You will pay your income tax when you reach a certain threshold. If you have earnings, savings or investment, if you are going to cash in your dividend check, your capital gains, your interest check, all of that's taxed by the IRS.

If you go through life and you acquire an equity base, a net worth, and perhaps you pay the tax on all of your income as you go along, and maybe even your investments didn't appreciate in value and were never taxed in that fashion—if they were you would have paid it—but you have a nest egg of, let's say, $10 million, which is a pretty good lifetime of work, this year you could die and pass it along to your children because the Democrats are asleep at the switch. They would like to tax your estate. They just haven't gotten around to doing that, partly because the gavel in the Ways and Means Committee has been in three different hands, all of that within 24 hours by the way.

All of your productivity, all of your earnings from your work, all of your earnings from your investments and your management of whatever business you might start or your dividends, your capital gains, your interest income, your estate tax, all of that is taxed, all of that is productivity, all of that is punished by the Federal Government today. So what do we get? We get less productivity. We get less investment because the cost of capital goes up. And we get less savings because the interest income on the savings will be taxed by the IRS.

We will have fewer dividends because companies are looking to figure out how they can avoid the corporate income tax in order to not pay out the dividends that come from the profits. And their dividends themselves are taxed. When the board of directors cashes in on those dividends, they are looking at the tax liability; so they are thinking, let's roll it. I don't want to take that out because the IRS will come in and tax.

And by the way, investments in foreign lands, if they are repatriated into the United States, there will be a capital gains tax against that or an income tax against that as well. So there is in the order of $13 billion in private sector capital that is stranded overseas that isn't coming back to the United States because there is a penalty there for bringing it into this economy. If we would just suspend the tax on all the capital overseas, we would see trillions come back into the United States. Five trillion perhaps in the first year, most if not all of that in the succeeding years.

That's why the fair tax is the right way to go. There are many good reasons why the fair tax is the right way to go, Madam Speaker. But the biggest reason—two big reasons—one big reason is the fair tax ends the IRS. It ends the Internal Revenue Code. It ends the punishment to productivity in America. It stops the punishment of earnings, savings and investment, and lets a person earn all they can earn, save all they want to save, invest all they want to invest, and in fact take the proceeds from the investments out and move them around, put them in an investment where they will return better rather than having to pay tax when you cash that check in.

So now we have all of these people that are involved in tax avoidance, all the tax attorneys that are involved, H & R Block involved in tax avoidance because the taxes may be avoided, they are delayed; but in effect they are often not circumvented. They must be paid eventually. Most of them. That's what this Tax Code is set up to do.

My position is this: I am for H.R. 25. I am for the national sales tax. I am for the fair tax. And what it does, it takes all tax off of productivity, it abolishes the IRS, it puts the tax over on consumption, where it provides an incentive for savings and investment. When you tax consumption, that encourages people to invest and save. And they can build their nest egg. And the capital comes back to the United States. That big chunk of that $13 trillion comes back to the United States.

And all of these high-rise buildings that have highly paid tax lawyers in it and the corporations that have whole floors of their buildings dedicated to tax attorneys, tax advisers, accountants for the purpose of avoiding taxes, all that goes away. And that human capital, the very smart people, moral, hardworking, ethical people who have legitimate jobs in today's environment, they could turn their focus into producing something that has value rather than tax delay or tax avoidance.

Think what it would be like to take all of those smart brains and turn them loose to help us figure out how to be more productive. Some of them will go out and start a business. Those businesses will go up, and they will be publicly traded businesses eventually. Some of them will go to work for other companies, and they will add to the value of those companies because of their creative ideas. Some of them will be such good nuts-and-bolts accountants that they'll find other ways for companies to make money, and it might well be their companies. Some are entrepreneurs, but the creativity of America is diminished because we're locking up a bunch of human capital to audit and punish the productivity of the American people.

What sense does that make, Madam Speaker? Why do we have a sense of class envy against people who would be productive and who would make money?

Now, I'm not among them. I'm not going to die a rich man, Madam Speaker. There is nobody in my lineage who's going to pass it along to me. I've dedicated my life to this public service and have made a little money in my time, not enough to talk about and certainly not enough to brag about, but I've engaged in this free enterprise economy.

I started a business in 1975 when I had a negative net worth of $5,000. I went out and bought an old, beaten-up bulldozer, an old D-717A. That machine was so decrepit that I couldn't even put it to work to make my first dollar until I took the welder out and welded on it for 2 weeks before I could get it stuck together enough that I could put it to work. I put it to work. After 3 hours, I watched the old pressure gauge go from the peg of high pressure all the way down to zero—just about like that. As that happened, I dropped the throttle down and shut the machine off. I had to tear the engine all the way down and had to put it all the way back together in the rain. My wife was standing there, 4½-months pregnant with our first child, and I was torquing head bolts on a D-7, in the rain, in September. That's how we got started.

I have an appreciation for what it takes to start a business, to make that business go, to grow that business to where we can hire people and can pay wages and benefits. I certainly have an appreciation, Madam Speaker, for walking into my construction office sometime in the early 1990s when I first noticed this. My secretary had taken our Christmas tree and had decorated that Christmas tree with gold silhouettes of Christmas trees, of Santa and a sleigh, of baby Jesus, of the Star of Bethlehem, of snowflakes. Each one of those on that tree was engraved with the name of either an employee, a spouse or one of their children, and there were enough who were dependent upon King Construction to decorate that entire Christmas tree. That was the time it really hit me that the decisions that I made affected the lives of all of those families and their children. It was something that weighed on me heavily but that also gave me great joy during that time—to see that we had built something that so many people were dependent upon, something that was good and just and honest and decent and productive. Of course, the tax burden on that was one of the anchors that we had to drag all the way through.

So I had come to a conclusion that I wanted to eliminate the IRS, that I wanted to end this punishment for productivity, that I wanted to put the tax on consumption, to let people earn all they could earn, to save all they could save, to invest all they wanted to invest, to accept the proceeds of their investments, and to move them around without penalty. Sell anything you want to sell. Take your capital gains. Put it in the bank, and do what you want to do. Yet, when you spend the money, pay the tax.

I understand, and I would think that anybody at this level of government should understand that businesses don't pay taxes. Corporations, sole proprietorships, LLCs don't pay taxes. They collect taxes for government. They pass the costs of taxes through to the consumer, but they don't pay taxes. If they didn't pass those costs along, they would be broke, and we all know that. Businesses are effective and efficient collectors of taxes for government, but they are not taxpayers. So we can get to two principles here:

One I've spoken about in some depth, which is that taxing productivity reduces our productivity. Increasing our productivity is a solution for our economy, so we should take all of the tax off of productivity, and we should put it on consumption.

The next principle is that businesses don't pay taxes. They collect taxes from consumers. So why wouldn't we just allow the 44 or 45 States which currently have a sales tax to use the engine that they have, the system that they have, to collect the sales tax in the same fashion that they're collecting it at the retail outlets within their States now? No exemptions. We'd have to tax sales and service. Yes, government would have to pay that tax. They're paying it today in the embedded costs of the things that they buy. The government has to pay tax. There has got to be a tax on sales and service, and it would only be the last stop on the retail dollar.

So, if it's a farmer, for example, rest easy because, if you go out and buy a new combine or a planter or a tractor or a rotary hoe, or whatever it is that it might be that you need, you wouldn't have to pay sales tax on that equipment because that's a business input cost. So you can buy equipment. You can put it into your fleet. You can work it, but you don't have to pay sales tax on that equipment because it's a business input cost; but if you buy, for example, a cap to put on your head while you ride around in that combine or while you pull that planter on that new tractor, you'd pay sales tax on the cap because that's a personal item. That's how the differentiation comes down. We would have to tax all goods and services.

So, if people are sitting there thinking, well, my pharmaceuticals will be exempted, no, sorry, we can't exempt them either. Pharmaceuticals wouldn't be exempted. Neither would Pabulum or Pampers or any of these products that we would call "food" or preferred items for those organizations or entities that we think we'd like to untax, because, as soon as we start creating exemptions, then there's another exemption that has equal or more merit. Pretty soon, it would narrow the tax base to the point where the rate would be too high and we couldn't sustain this. It has to be no exemptions. All tax on sales and services must be paid.

If you were to go out and build a new house, you would pay a sales tax on the materials—on the lumber, on the plumbing, which are all of the things that go into a new house, and on the labor. Though, if you would sell that new house the next week, there would be no sales tax on it because it would be a used house, and the tax would have already been paid on the materials and on the labor. Now, that might seem like a high cost for a new house except that the cost of those materials that would go into the house would be, on average, 22 percent cheaper. That's because there is an embedded Federal tax in everything that we buy, which averages at 22 percent. Remember, these businesses don't pay taxes. They pass them along to the consumers. Here is how it works, Madam Speaker:

Their businesses will factor it into their prices, and they must. That $1 widget has an average of 22-cents' worth of embedded Federal taxes in the price. So, if you would pass this national sales tax, the Fair Tax, you would see competition drive the price down. Your $1 widget would be priced then at 78 cents. Twenty-two percent of the embedded cost of that $1 widget would go down to 78 cents. Yes, you'd have to add back in a 23 percent embedded national sales tax in that on the sales and on the service. Yes, that would take that up to just a skosh over $1 again. Yet people would get 56 percent more in their paychecks. They would have a lot more money to spend. The retail prices wouldn't look a lot different when you'd be done paying the tax than they would today, but the difference is that everybody would see how expensive the Federal tax is, and they would make less demands on government because it would make everyone a taxpayer.

Let me tell you the story of little Michael Dix, who is the son of an outstanding once and future State legislator in Iowa. Little Michael was about 8 years old when this happened. We have a 7 percent sales tax in the State, in many of the regions, and I trust it was in this one. He'd saved up his money, and he wanted to go in and buy a little box of Skittles—those little sweets that are there on the counter. They were 89 cents, and he'd saved his money and had counted it out. He went in and got his Skittles out and laid them up on the counter at the convenience store. He counted out his money, the 89 cents, all the way up to the right penny.

The lady who ran the checkout register rang it up, and said, Okay. That'll be 96 cents.

He looked at her, and he said, But they're 89 cents. That's what it says on the box.

She said, Well, no. You've got to pay the Governor. You've got to pay the tax.

So there he is with the 89 cents, having saved it to buy his Skittles. It's a transaction that's pretty important to Michael Dix, as it should be to any young child that age. He found out that he had to pay the tax and that she wanted 96 cents.

He turned to his dad, and he said, Dad, I have to pay tax on Skittles?

Imagine, Madam Speaker. Imagine what that does. I don't think Michael Dix is going to be a guy who's going to grow up demanding that the Federal Government produce more things for him. I don't think he's going to be one who's going to tolerate higher taxes. I think this young man is going to grow up to personal responsibility, very well aware of how burdensome the Federal and the State governments are. He'll make sure that when government provides a service that it's a good value for that and that it's a necessary service, not one that's frivolous—or, man, he's going to know always that the money came out of the pocket of Michael Dix and that it didn't come out, necessarily, of the pocket of some anonymous person.

It's personal. The national sales tax, the Fair Tax, makes this personal, Madam Speaker. It makes it personal for millions and millions of kids who are growing up in America and who are making billions of transactions. Every time, they're being reminded that the Federal Government is expensive. An expensive Federal Government that makes everybody a taxpayer becomes a Federal Government that those taxpayers demand less of. More freedom. Less taxes. That's the equation.

The national sales tax, the Fair Tax, H.R. 25, is transformative. It's transformative from an economic standpoint because it takes all of the taxes off of productivity, and it puts all of the taxes on consumption. It provides an incentive for earnings, savings, and investments. It abolishes the punishment for production, which is a tax on corporate, personal, and business income tax and taxes on capital gains, investments, interest income, and all of the components—the State tax included. It does all of those things. The Fair Tax does everything good that anybody's tax reform does. It does them all. It does them all better, and the American people are getting closer to understanding what this means.

The American people can visualize what happens—a world without the IRS, a world without punishment for production, a world that has little kids growing up like Michael Dix, who is now a young man who understands that paying taxes is a personal experience. It's transformative, Madam

Speaker, for this country to move down the path of a national sales tax and toward abolishing the IRS.

Some will say they support a national sales tax, H.R. 25, the Fair Tax, provided that we first repeal the 16th Amendment, but that sets up an impossible bar. Can we imagine any piece of legislation that we would predicate upon the passage of a constitutional amendment? What if we had the flat tax and we had to pass a constitutional amendment before we could adopt the flat tax? What if we had to pass a constitutional amendment before we raised the debt ceiling? What if we had fixated in the Constitution of the United States a debt ceiling that we couldn't surpass? I think that would be a good thing, actually. I'd like to ratchet it down from where it is now. We couldn't pass that constitutional amendment. The bar is too high. The bar is too high to set the standard that passing the repeal of the 16th Amendment is a condition to adopt a national sales tax. Here is the reality of it:

H.R. 25, the Fair Tax, does this. It starts the process for the repeal of the 16th Amendment and abolishes the IRS. It abolishes the Income Tax Code in its entirety.

Can we imagine the American people freed of the burden of the IRS—freed from the fear of audit? The American people get 56 percent more on their paychecks. They make their own decisions on when to pay their taxes, and the IRS becomes a thing of history, and the Internal Revenue Code—the punishment, the tax on all productivity—is gone.

Do we think for a minute, Madam Speaker, that this Congress of the American people would tolerate the reestablishment of the IRS or the reestablishment of the Income Tax Code? No, they would not. In fact, they would be so glad to get 56 percent more on their paychecks and would be so glad to have the freedom to make the decisions on when to pay their taxes rather than having the IRS tell them, You shall pay it out of every dollar that you make, that they would never tolerate the reestablishment of the IRS nor the reestablishment of the Tax Code. It's that simple. They would, I believe, chase the 16th Amendment down with a great joy that they would be relieved of it, and they would eventually abolish it and repeal it.

Yet, to set the condition as a bar to pass the Fair Tax, it is too high a bar. It's not an impossibility, but it's an extreme difficulty, and it becomes a semantics argument rather than a practical one. So, Madam Speaker, I'll make this point:

In 30 years of making this argument, I have never run into an argument for some other tax reform that is economically superior to the national sales tax, to the Fair Tax. I have not run into that argument. I have not been in a debate where I thought that the other side made a point that I had trouble addressing economically. The only point that they can make is that, in their judgment, it's too difficult to pass politically.

Well, when you tell the American people that the IRS is going to be gone and that we're going to put those smart, good people at the IRS to work in the productive sector of the economy instead of in the burdensome sector of the economy, they're going to cheer. They're going to stand up, and they're going to applaud. They've done that for me over and over again.

The time is right. The economy is in a sad condition. We don't have a President who understands this free market economy. I don't think he believes in it. He has been nationalizing it right and left. He has been nationalizing the three large investment banks; AIG, the insurance company; Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac; General Motors; and Chrysler. The Student Loan Program has been completely taken over by the Federal Government. ObamaCare has swallowed up the most sovereign thing that we have, our bodies. Our skin and everything inside it has now been taken over and is managed by the Federal Government.

This President and this majority in Congress don't begin to understand the sovereignty of the individual or the free market system that we have, but the American people understand, Madam Speaker. The American people are going to be given a choice this November. They are going to choose freedom. They are going to choose liberty. They are going to choose constitutional conservatism. I look forward to the transformation, to the freedom, and to the liberty that comes from the people who step up to their own personal responsibility.

I thank you so much for your indulgence and for your attention here this evening, and I yield back the balance of my time.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. CUMMINGS (at the request of Mr. HOYER) for today on account of business in the district.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois (at the request of Mr. HOYER) for today.

Ms. FUDGE (at the request of Mr. HOYER) for today on account of official business.

Ms. KILPATRICK of Michigan (at the request of Mr. HOYER) for today.

Mr. CULBERSON (at the request of Mr. BOEHNER) for today on account of illness.

Mr. FLEMING (at the request of Mr. BOEHNER) for today on account of unavoidable travel delays resulting from inclement weather.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. ALTMIRE) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Ms. WOOLSEY, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. ALTMIRE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. DEFazio, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas, for 5 minutes, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. POE of Texas) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. POSEY, for 5 minutes, April 29.

Mr. FORBES, for 5 minutes, April 27 and 28.

Mr. DENT, for 5 minutes, April 28.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, for 5 minutes, April 27 and 28.

(The following Member (at her own request) to revise and extend her remarks and include extraneous material:)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, for 5 minutes, today.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. KING of Iowa. Madam Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 10 o'clock and 25 minutes p.m.), under its previous order, the House adjourned until tomorrow, Tuesday, April 27, 2010, at 10:30 a.m., for morning-hour debate.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIV, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

7168. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Alkyl (C12-C16) Dimethyl Ammonio Acetate; Exemption from the Requirement of a Tolerance [EPA-HQ-OPP-2009-0479; FRL-8816-5] received April 7, 2010, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

7169. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Kasugamycin; Pesticide Tolerances for Emergency Exemptions [EPA-HQ-OPP-2008-0695; FRL-8808-7] received April 7, 2010, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

7170. A letter from the Director, Regulatory Management Division, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting the Agency's final rule — Thifensulfuron methyl; Pesticide Tolerances [EPA-HQ-OPP-2009-0134; FRL-8818-9] received April 7, 2010, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

7171. A letter from the Secretary, Department of the Army, transmitting notification that the Average Procurement Unit Cost (APUC) and Program Acquisition Unit Cost metrics for the Army's Advanced Threat Infrared Countermeasure and Common Missile Warning System (ATIRCM/CMWS) program, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2433(e)(1); to the Committee on Armed Services.

7172. A letter from the Assistant Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting modernization priority assessments for the National Guard and Reserve equipment for Fiscal Year 2010; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 111th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 156

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, APRIL 26, 2010

No. 59

Senate

The Senate met at 2 p.m. and was called to order by the Honorable MARK R. WARNER, a Senator from the Commonwealth of Virginia.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Lord, God, our Heavenly Father, You continue to open to us new horizons of hope. We praise You that our daily work is intended by You as a blessing and not a burden. Lord, we do not ask that all difficulties be removed but for strength and wisdom to handle them. Give our lawmakers enough faith to live this day with courage. Help them to be steadfast in the face of temptation and earnest in working for liberty. Fill their hearts with Your spirit that they may run the race of life with high honor.

We pray in Your matchless Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable MARK R. WARNER led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. BYRD).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, April 26, 2010.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable MARK R. WARNER, a Senator from the Commonwealth of Virginia, to perform the duties of the Chair.

ROBERT C. BYRD,
President pro tempore.

Mr. WARNER thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, following my remarks and those of Senator MCCONNELL, we will go to a period of morning business until 3 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak during that period of time for up to 10 minutes each. Following morning business, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 3217, the Wall Street reform legislation. At 5 o'clock the Senate will proceed to vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the motion to proceed.

FINANCIAL REGULATORY REFORM

Mr. REID. Mr. President, last week, I criticized the Republican leader for the way he was handling Wall Street reform. I even criticized him for a series of meetings he held in New York and the result of the meetings. I want the record to be very clear, however, that I in no way was impugning the integrity of my friend from Kentucky.

The senior Senator from Kentucky and I have fundamental policy differences on a number of issues, but no one should take my disagreement with my friend to question his honesty.

Wall Street reform is as complex as the financial instruments that fueled a worldwide recession. But voting to start on the Wall Street reform is as simple as right and wrong. This bill and the debate are about the ability to trust our financial system again. They are about giving families the peace of mind that they will be able to keep their homes, that their savings will be safe.

We have a responsibility to bring accountability to Wall Street because each of us is accountable to the American people. We owe our States' constituents and our Nation's taxpayers the promise that they will never again have to endure a financial crisis such as the last one.

Today, the vote to begin debate on Wall Street accountability will answer many questions. It will reveal who believes we need to strengthen oversight on Wall Street and who does not. It will demonstrate who believes we need to strengthen the protections of consumers and who does not.

In light of the extraordinary effort we have seen from the Republican leadership, it will force each Senator to publicly proclaim whether party unity is more important than economic security. I know many on the other side would like to pretend that is not what is at stake. But we are not fooled and neither are the American people, two-thirds of whom we learned today support cracking down on Wall Street.

This past weekend I was in four different counties in Nevada. I heard the same thing everywhere I went, from everyone with whom I spoke. They said: Get this done. So many Nevadans are suffering because of the mess Wall Street created, and they know better than anyone that we have to fix it. Democrats agree.

That is why we stand for guaranteeing taxpayers that they will never again be asked to bail out big banks and that no Wall Street firm can become too big to fail.

Democrats stand for giving families more control over their own finances and for giving consumers more clarity so they can make the right financial decisions.

Democrats stand for protecting the life savings of hard-working Americans from Wall Street's gambling. We stand for making our financial system more transparent so we can rein in risky bets before it is too late.

In short, Democrats stand for bringing more accountability and transparency to Wall Street. As far as I can tell, the only thing Republicans stand for is standing together. They boasted about banding together at this time at all costs, even at the cost to our national economy. But a party that stands with Wall Street is a party that stands against families and against fairness. Among the many reasons we need to reform Wall Street is that those who work there have conspired for too long under the cover of darkness. They have acted recklessly because they know they will not be held accountable for their risks.

They do not think twice about using working families as pawns in a get-rich-quick scheme. I would direct everyone to read the best seller, "The Big Short," by Michael Lewis. It is stunning in describing what they do with our money on Wall Street.

When you come to Nevada to gamble at one of the casinos, you are at least gambling with your own money. The people on Wall Street are gambling with our money. We know Wall Street does not like this bill. Of course it does not. It changes the system big bankers and hedge fund managers have taken advantage of for years.

Look at the rules of the road on Wall Street. Traders get to gamble away someone else's money with little risk and large reward. They get to take home their winnings and ask taxpayers to save them from their losses. That is how the system worked when they brought our economy to the brink of collapse.

Sadly, today the problem is it is still the way the system works. That is what we are going to correct with this legislation, a bill that is the product of months of bipartisan discussions, a bill that embraces Republican ideas and Democratic ideas.

This afternoon's vote is a vote merely to begin debate; it is not the end of the process, just the beginning. All we are asking is to be able to start debating. My Republican colleagues certainly do not hesitate debating this bill in press conferences or in interviews. So why would Senators object to debating it on the floor itself, the Senate floor?

Moving to this bill will move this issue from the sidelines to the playing field. It will bring these proposals onto the Senate floor so we can amend them, improve them, and act upon them. It will ensure this debate is part of the legislative process, broadcast live on television so every American around the country can watch and weigh it. Let's have that debate.

There is one more reason we need to reform how this financial system works. For far too long, too many on Wall Street have bet on failure—yes, on failure. They have made billions betting on the housing market collapsing or other failures in the economic system.

We will see this afternoon whether enough Republicans on Capitol Hill are determined to bet on failure also. I hope not.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader is recognized.

FINANCIAL REGULATION

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, later today, the Senate will cast its first vote in the debate over financial regulation.

And let me just say this at the outset: Republicans are united in our desire to protect the taxpayer from those who would put them and our Nation's financial system at risk through recklessness, stupidity, greed, or some combination of the three.

But as we consider this legislation today, Republicans are also acutely aware of the fact that government solutions to big, complex problems like this one are rarely as effective as they are made out to be, especially when they are rushed.

And Republicans are conscious of something else this afternoon too: when it comes to fixing the problems that we see in the economy or in our healthcare system or anywhere else, the days of taking the Democrats' word for it are over.

There is a reason public confidence in government has slipped to one of its lowest levels in half a century, and it is not because Congress takes its time to get legislation right. The reason Americans are so mistrustful of government at the moment is because on issue after issue, they feel as though they are being sold a bill of goods. The reason there is such a serious trust deficit out there is because what Americans see is so rarely what they get from Washington these days.

Just consider the national debt, for example. The International Monetary Fund is right now warning us that mounting government debt is perhaps the greatest single threat to the global financial system. As a Senator, the President seemed to understand that. He said America's debts and deficits were spinning out of control and that it was a failure of leadership not to address them. Yet under his administration, the debt has increased over $2 trillion. In February, we ran the largest monthly deficit ever. And this year alone, we are expected to run a deficit of $1.4 trillion.

What about the stimulus? Congress passed this trillion dollar bill about 18 hours after the legislative text was available, because Democrats said they needed it right away to keep unemployment from rising above 8 percent. A year later, unemployment is hovering around 10 percent. It is even higher in Kentucky and other States. We have lost some 4 million jobs since the President took office, and every day, it seems, we hear about some new wasteful project funded by this bill.

Then there is health care. The White House and its allies in Congress told the American people again and again and again that this legislation was absolutely necessary in order to cut the cost of care and to ensure our Nation's economic security. Americans were skeptical. They wanted us to take our time. But Democrats said they could not wait. They cut their deals and jammed it through.

Now we are beginning to see who was right in that debate.

Last Thursday, a report out of the Department of Health and Human Services concluded that the health care bill falls short of the President's goals. Rather than cutting costs, it is expected to increase them.

The White House also said the bill would not raise taxes on the middle class. Yet now we are finding out that nearly 15 million middle class Americans, as defined by the White House, will get hit with a tax increase. The White House said premiums would come down too. Yet now we are learning that premiums will keep going up.

Pick the issue. Whether it is the stimulus, the debt, health care, bailouts, you name it, the concerns Republicans raised are being validated. And Democrats have the nerve, in this debate, to say that we are the ones who are being dishonest.

As I said, all of us want to deliver a reform that will tighten the screws on Wall Street. But we are not going to be rushed on another massive bill based on the assurances of our friends on the other side. It is just this kind of rush that gets us a $13 trillion debt, a trillion dollars for turtle tunnels and sidewalks to nowhere, and a so-called health care reform bill, the primary effect of which, so far as I can tell, is higher taxes, higher premiums, and higher costs. Americans have been rushed by this Congress before. They have seen the results. They are not going to be rushed again.

Now when it comes to financial regulations, my constituents have a fairly short list of demands. They do not want to be on the hook for recklessness on Wall Street. And they do not think any financial institution should be considered too big to fail. But if the Senate votes to get onto the Dodd bill tonight, there is good reason to believe we will never truly solve these core problems.

Some on the other side may deny this. But the fact is, the bill that the majority leader wants to bring to the floor tonight still contains a number of loopholes that enable future bailouts.

This is not just me talking. A finance reporter on National Public Radio last week said he could not find a single expert who was willing to agree with the administration's claim that this bill puts a stop to taxpayer funded bailouts, not a single expert who was willing to say this bill really solves the problem we were asked by our constituents to solve. Is not that reason enough to slow down?

If we can not look our constituents in the eyes and tell them with absolute certainty that we have addressed their core concerns, then tell me: Why are we voting on this bill?

The Democrats want us to trust them on this one. With all respect, Americans aren't in a trusting mood at this point. The burden is now on the Democrats to prove it when they say their legislation will or will not do something. To a lot of Americans that is what this debate has become. It is about proving to our constituents and to the rest of the country that Congress can actually deliver on its assurances.

Americans aren't inclined to take our word for it when we say this bill doesn't allow for bailouts, that it won't kill jobs, or that it won't enable the administration to pick winners or losers, like it did with the auto bailout. They have heard all that before. This time, they want us to prove it.

They want us to prove that this bill doesn't allow for bailouts or the kind of regulatory overreach that ends up punishing Main Street under the guise of reforming Wall Street. They want us to show them where it says in the text that the next time there is a crisis, the government will have to seek permission from the taxpayer if it is thinking about creating a new bank debt guarantee program. At the moment, we can't say this. That is unacceptable to my constituents. And it is unacceptable to the rest of the country.

We can solve this problem. But we won't solve the problem if we vote for cloture tonight. A vote for cloture is a vote that says we are done listening to the American people on this issue. And a vote against ending this debate is a vote for bipartisanship, for working out an iron-clad solution to the problem of too big to fail. A vote against ending this debate tonight is a vote that says it is no longer enough to tell our constituents to trust us. It is a vote that says this time, we will prove it.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. There will now be a period of morning business until 3 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The senior Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. I ask unanimous consent to engage in a colloquy with my colleague from Arizona, Senator KYL.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ILLEGAL IMMIGRATION

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, as is well known by my colleagues and most Americans, over the last several days, the Governor of Arizona signed legislation, which is controversial, which is designed to affect the issue of illegal immigrants into the country across the Arizona border. That legislation was enacted by the Arizona legislature and signed by the Governor because of the frustration the Governor and the legislature and, indeed, the majority of my constituents have over the Federal Government's failure to carry out its responsibility to secure our border. Many viewed this as a civil rights issue. There is no intention whatsoever to violate anyone's civil rights, but this is a national security issue. This is a national security issue where the United States has an unsecured border between Arizona and Mexico which has led to violence, the worst I have ever seen, and numbers that stagger those who are unfamiliar with the issue—such as 241,000 illegal immigrants were apprehended on the Tucson sector border of Arizona in the last year. Do the math. You have three to five times that number who actually cross, so we are talking about a million people crossing the border illegally.

This is not just a human smuggling issue. This is a drug issue. Our borders are unsecured, and the flow of drugs across the border is staggering. Last year in the Tucson sector alone, there were over 1.3 million pounds of marijuana apprehended, 1.3 million pounds on the Arizona border. The numbers of methamphetamine, cocaine, and other drugs crossing the border by the drug cartels is staggering. The Los Angeles Times reported last week that over 22,000 Mexican citizens have been killed in drug wars against the cartels. Have no doubt, this is an existential government between the Government of Mexico, the drug cartels, and the human smugglers who work together, and the security of the United States.

The violence has already spilled across our borders, and unless we get it under control, it will get worse. Three American citizens were murdered in Juarez, Mexico as they were trying to find their way home. A rancher in southern Arizona was murdered as he was out patrolling his own property. The people in southern Arizona have had their rights violated by the unending and constant flow of drug smugglers and human traffickers across their property. Their homes are being broken into. Their rights are being violated, their rights as American citizens to live in a safe and secure environment, as most of the pundits who are criticizing this legislation enjoy.

The fact is, our borders are broken. They are not secure. It is a Federal responsibility to secure our borders. It is not being done. Senator KYL and I have a 10-point plan that can be enacted immediately in order to secure the borders and secure them quickly.

Before I ask my colleague to comment, there is a question about whether we can secure our borders. Of course, we can. We have seen in the Yuma sector of Arizona a dramatic decrease in illegal crossings and drug smuggling. Again, I want to mention to my friend from Arizona, have no doubt that this is not just a human smuggling problem and people trying to cross the border illegally to find work. This is a human smuggling cartel aligned with the drug cartels that are sending drugs across our border and killing our citizens. The cartels and the human smugglers are a direct threat to the security of this Nation. Two weeks ago a highly organized syndicate that takes people who are coming across our border illegally to Tucson, puts them in vans, taking them to Phoenix and distributing them all over the country. These individuals come from as far away as China.

Have no doubt of the extent of the problem, the organization, the cruelty, the barbarity of the challenge we face, of the drug cartels and the human smugglers that are just south of our border, and the State of Arizona has been bearing the brunt of it. The administration has failed to act. We need 33,000 Border Patrol agents down on the border. We need the National Guard, 3,000 troops. We need to take a number of other steps Senator KYL and I will describe. This situation is the worst I have ever seen. It is time for the Federal Government to act. If you don't like the bill the legislature passed and the Governor signed in Arizona, then carry out the Federal responsibility to secure the border. You probably wouldn't have had this problem.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. May I ask my colleague, who has been down on the border fairly recently. He went to the Tucson sector which is a sector that has about half of all of the illegal immigration in the entire United States coming across; is that correct?

Mr. MCCAIN. I have. If it was 241,000 last year that were apprehended, there are estimates that as many as five to one are not apprehended. So that could have been over a million people who crossed the Arizona border illegally in 1 year. That is staggering in itself.

Mr. KYL. The point here is, the Tucson sector is one of two sectors in Arizona. It is maybe 60 percent of our southern border. The Yuma sector may be the other 40 percent. The Tucson sector ends at the New Mexico border. We are talking about a couple of hundred miles, give or take—not that much area when we consider the entire, more than 2,000-mile border all the way from the Gulf of Mexico to the San Diego area. About one-tenth of the entire border area accounts for over half of all the illegal immigration. My colleague was there within the last month or so. I was down in the Yuma sector. The reason I mention these two sectors is that it is literally the tale of two approaches to immigration reform. As Senator MCCAIN said, there is absolutely no doubt that application of the right principles and resources to the border can secure the border.

Let me give my experience in the Yuma sector and then ask my colleague to talk a little more about the Tucson sector. Those are the two sectors in Arizona. The Yuma sector has virtually eliminated illegal immigration. There is still substantial drug smuggling, and that is a lot of what they are focused on right now. How could this have happened? Mainly three things. First, they completed the fencing in that particular area. There are just a couple miles left to go, but they have 11 miles of very good, new double fencing in the urban area around Yuma and then vehicle barriers beyond that. There are some areas where it is even triple fenced. They have enough Border Patrol agents, though we have to be careful we don't take some from the Yuma sector to send over to Tucson where they need more, because it is a little bit like these wars abroad. Once you take the area, you need to have enough troops to hold the area or, when you leave, bad guys come back in. We need the Border Patrol there. If we could add some National Guard troops, as my colleague has recommended, it would absolutely be the final personnel solution. I can remember when the Guard was withdrawn and there was only one guardsman left in the Yuma sector, and they still stayed away. I am not even sure if he had his weapon with him. But let's put it this way: The bad guys on the other side of the border, whether it is the cartels or others, do not want to mess with the U.S. military. They won't. That is the reason my colleague, then-Governor Napolitano, and many others believe we need more National Guard on the border.

The third thing that brought illegal immigration in the Yuma sector almost to an end is called Operation Streamline. It is very simple. When you cross the border, you get thrown in jail. The first time it is for about 2 weeks; second time, 30 days. After that, it could be 60 days. The sheriffs tell us that about 17 percent of the people they apprehend are criminals in the United States or are wanted for crimes here. Obviously, that is the 17 percent you want to catch. You want to put them in jail. The rest of them want to come here for work. They can't work and make money while they are in jail. That is a huge disincentive for them to cross in that area. So what the Border Patrol and the Department of Justice did was to say, if you cross in this area, you go to jail. They stopped crossing in that area. They gradually expanded those areas until it finally covered the entire Yuma sector. Now illegal immigrant coyotes and cartel folks know that if they try to bring somebody across in the Yuma sector, immediately those people are going to jail. Then they will be going back home, so they don't try it anymore. As a result the statistics are, as Senator MCCAIN pointed out, in the Tucson sector you had almost a quarter of a million people last year apprehended. Who knows how many more were not apprehended. How many in the Yuma sector? This year, 4,946 so far—from a quarter of a million almost to 4,000. It wasn't always so in the Yuma sector. In 2006, 118,000 were apprehended. The next year, it went down to 37,000. We could see a big impact. And then 8,000, 7,000, probably 5,000 this year. We can see the impact of the fencing. The personnel and Operation Streamline have made a huge difference.

Mr. MCCAIN. May I ask unanimous consent, with the indulgence of my friend from Hawaii, for 3 additional minutes.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I have made my point here. Senator MCCAIN is absolutely right. If you want to do it, you can do it. You just have to apply the will and the resources. What worked in the Yuma sector could work in the Tucson sector, and almost all of those things are included in the 10-point proposal Senator MCCAIN and I have made.

Mr. MCCAIN. Could I also emphasize that the violence is worse than it has ever been. Mr. President, 22,000 Mexicans have been murdered on the Mexican border. American citizens have been murdered on our border. This is no longer a situation where someone from Mexico or some other country decides they want to cross our borders. These are highly organized, highly sophisticated, well-equipped, well-trained, armed cartels. Drug and human smuggling cartels coordinate with each other through these corridors. They have better communication than our enforcement agencies due to our lack of interoperability. They have sophisticated equipment. They are even sending drugs over using ultralights.

This is a struggle for the existence of the Government of Mexico. This is a struggle on our side of the border for the fundamental obligation any government has; that is, to provide its citizens with secure borders. Right now, our citizens are not safe, and therefore the Federal Government should be fulfilling its responsibilities to provide the necessary equipment and manpower to secure our borders. As my colleague from Arizona just pointed out, it can be achieved. It is now a massive failure on the part of the Federal Government. They should also fund it.

I thank my friend from Arizona, and I thank my colleague from Hawaii for his indulgence.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Hawaii.

FINANCIAL REGULATORY REFORM

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, enactment of emergency legislation in the fall of 2008 to stabilize the financial markets and the economy brought with it an obligation to reform our financial system to make it fairer for working families.

I support S. 3217, the Restoring American Financial Stability Act of 2010. I appreciate all of the extraordinary work done by the chairman of the Banking Committee and his staff on developing this vital legislation. Many of my colleagues on the committee and I worked together to develop a bill that protects, educates, and empowers consumers and investors. The legislation incorporates many ideas from Members of both parties. We must act quickly to enact this bill.

A lack of consumer protection was a core cause of the financial crisis. Prospective home buyers were steered into mortgage products that had risks and costs they could not understand or afford.

We must do more to protect consumers. This legislation includes essential protections to do so. The new Consumer Financial Protection Bureau has tremendous potential for restricting predatory financial products and unfair business practices. The bureau will work to prevent unscrupulous financial services providers from taking advantage of consumers.

The legislation also creates an Office of Financial Literacy within the bureau. The Financial Literacy Office is tasked with developing and implementing initiatives intended to educate and empower consumers. A strategy to improve the financial literacy among consumers that includes measurable goals and benchmarks must be developed.

I am also proud of the work we have done in the bill to better protect, inform, and empower retail investors. My proposal to create an Investor Advocate within the Securities and Exchange Commission is in this legislation. It is necessary to create an Office of the Investor Advocate within the SEC to strengthen the institution and ensure that the interests of retail investors are better represented. The Investor Advocate is tasked with assisting retail investors to resolve significant problems with the SEC or the self-regulatory organizations, SROs. The Investor Advocate's mission includes identifying areas where investors would benefit from changes in Commission or SRO policies and problems investors have with financial service providers and investment products. The Investor Advocate will recommend policy changes to the Commission and Congress in the interests of investors. I have highly valued the contributions of the National Taxpayer Advocate, Ms. Nina Olson. Ms. Olson has helped us develop policies that have improved the lives of taxpayers. A similar office in the SEC will benefit retail investors. The creation of the Office of the Investor Advocate has widespread support from consumer, labor, and industry organizations. Ms. Barbara Roper, director of investor protection for the Consumer Federation of America, has stated that:

For far too many years, investors have found it difficult to make their voices heard at the SEC on uses that are important to them while business interests have dominated the agency agenda . . .

The text of an amendment I had developed which clarifies that the SEC has the authority to effectively require disclosures prior to the sale of financial products and services is included in the legislation. Many working families rely on their mutual fund investments and other financial products to pay for their children's education, prepare for retirement, and attain other financial goals. We must ensure working families have the relevant and useful information they need when they are making decisions that determine their future financial condition. I appreciate the efforts of Senator MICHAEL BENNET on this issue.

I worked with Senator KOHL to develop title XII of the legislation, which is intended to increase access to mainstream financial institutions for the unbanked and the underbanked. About one in four families is unbanked or underbanked. Many are low- and moderate-income families who cannot afford to have their earnings diminished by reliance on high-cost or predatory financial services. Underbanked consumers rely on nontraditional forms of credit, including payday lenders, title lenders, or refund anticipation loans for financial needs. The unbanked are unable to save securely for education expenses, the downpayment on a first home, or other financial needs. Regular checking accounts may be too costly for consumers unable to maintain minimum balances or unable to afford monthly fees. Poor credit histories may also hinder their ability to open accounts.

More must be done to promote product development, outreach, and financial educational opportunities at banks and credit unions intended to empower consumers. Title XII authorizes programs intended to assist low- and moderate-income individuals establish bank or credit union accounts and encourage greater use of mainstream financial services.

Title XII will also encourage the development of small affordable loans as an alternative to more costly payday loans. Payday loans are cash loans repaid by borrowers' postdated checks or borrowers' authorizations to make electronic debits against existing financial accounts. Payday loans often have extraordinarily high interest rates.

Loan flipping, which is a common practice, is the renewing of loans at maturity by paying additional fees without any principal reduction. Loan flipping often leads to instances where the fees paid for a payday loan well exceed the principal borrowed. This situation often creates a cycle of debt that is very hard to break.

There is a great need for working families to have access to affordable small loans. This legislation would encourage banks and credit unions to develop consumer-friendly, small-dollar loan alternatives. Consumers who apply for these loans would be provided with financial literacy and educational opportunities.

One example of an innovative payday lending alternative that has been developed can be found at the Windward Community Federal Credit Union in Kailua, HI. Windward FCU has developed an affordable alternative to payday loans to help the U.S. marines and the other members they serve. This program was developed with a National Credit Union Administration, NCUA, grant.

More working families need access to affordable small loans. We must encourage mainstream financial service providers to develop affordable small loan products.

Finally, title XII will enable community development financial institutions to establish and maintain small-dollar loan programs. I appreciate all of the work done by Senator KOHL and his staff on title XII.

Working families often send substantial portions of their earnings to family members living abroad. In my home State of Hawaii, many of my constituents remit money to their family members living in the Philippines and other nations. Consumers can have significant problems with their remittance transactions, such as being overcharged or not having their money reach the intended recipient.

Remittances are not currently regulated under Federal law, and State laws provide inadequate oversight. The bill will modify the Electronic Fund Transfer Act to establish remittance consumer protections. It will require simple disclosures about the costs of sending remittances to be displayed in the storefront and provided to the consumer prior to and after the transaction. A complaint and error resolution process for remittance transactions would be established by the legislation.

We must act quickly to enact this legislation that will protect, educate, and empower consumers and investors.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are in morning business, with Senators recognized.

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, I can actually speak in morning business, not as if I were in morning business.

FINANCIAL REGULATORY REFORM

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, we will be voting at 5 o'clock this afternoon on a motion by the majority leader, and I can almost hear him now saying something about the party of no as we talk about the financial regulation bill. Well, I would say to my friend the majority leader that he is rapidly becoming the leader of the party of no by offering so many "no" motions because the motion this afternoon is one more of a record number of "no" motions offered by the majority leader to say no to more amendments, no to more debate, no to checks and balances on a runaway government in Washington.

What we on the Republican side have been trying to do on the financial regulation bill is to work with the majority party and the President to help fashion a set of rules and regulations that takes us from the financial crisis we had a few years ago, and which continues today in the lives of Americans everywhere, to complete a bill most of us can support so we can say to America and say to the world: These are our rules and regulations. We have done our job. We have set the rules. Even if Republicans capture control of the Congress in November—which we hope we do—these still will be the rules because we did this in a bipartisan way, the kind of way the President talked about when he campaigned for election a couple of years ago.

Well, unfortunately, that is not what has been happening. It has just been one "no" motion after another from the majority leader—a record number of them. And he will even bring that up, which I would respectfully say I would not do. Twenty-six times the majority leader has filled the amendment tree. That is a "no" motion that says no more amendments. He has done it nearly as much as the last five majority leaders combined. He has the record in saying no more amendments, no more debates, and no more checks and balances on what the Congress is doing. There have been 141 times the majority leader has filed cloture on the same day a measure came up. That is simply another no motion. It says no to more amendments, no to more debates, no to more checks and balances on the legislation Congress is considering.

Someone may say: Well, let's get on with it. Why do we need these checks and balances? We were reminded over the weekend of why we need the checks and balances. All of us remember the health care debate resulting in the health care law which passed this Chamber by a partisan majority. We were here day after day after day with the Democrats meeting in secret. The vote came up in the middle of a snowstorm, 1 a.m. in the morning, had to be done before Christmas, nearly 3,000 pages before it all got through. No check and balance on that bill. We were saying slow down. Wait a minute. This bill is making a fundamental mistake. It is expanding a health care delivery system we all know we can't afford, when instead we should be taking steps together to reduce its costs so more Americans can afford to buy health insurance.

So over the weekend, a report issued on Thursday by the Chief Actuary of the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services—he is the chief health actuary in the Federal Government; what did he say? Lo and behold, his analysis showed it will increase health care costs instead of lowering them. In other words, we will increase—we will increase—spending on a health care delivery system we all know we can't afford today. Yet off we went with our new $1 trillion bill. It will raise premiums on health care. It will threaten seniors' access to health care. It will threaten access for Medicaid patients, creating, in effect, a health care bridge to nowhere for a great number of low-income Americans who will find they can't get a doctor or, in Washington State, that Walgreens will not fill their prescription. This will make that problem worse. To those who are going to be serving as Governor between 2014 and 2019, it is very bad news because it talks about the increased cost of Medicaid, which is the largest government health care program, and how many of those costs are being passed on to States. I know, in our State, our legislature—Republican—and our Governor—a Democrat—have said we don't see how we can afford this. It is estimated to be roughly $1.1 billion, but potentially could be as high as $1.5 billion. It is going to cause State tax increases, tuition increases at the public universities, and I believe it will seriously damage American public education. Anyone can read this for himself or herself.

So over the weekend, the Chief Health Actuary of the Federal Government said the health care law does what we Republicans feared it would. But the psychology on the other side of the aisle was: We won the election. We will write the bill. We will pass it even by a partisan majority, unlike civil rights, unlike Medicare, unlike Medicaid, unlike social security. It was a purely partisan bill, with no checks and balances, and the American people see the results.

Here we go again, this afternoon at 5 o'clock. This should be a very different situation. It is a very important bill. It is the financial regulation of this country. This country produces 25 percent of all the money in the world every year. Twenty-five percent of the wealth is created by this country, for just 5 percent of us who are privileged to live here. So one would think we would be as careful as we could be in getting this done.

For a long time on this bill, many Members of the Senate on both sides of the aisle have been working on it carefully and in a bipartisan way. So why would we bring another one of these record-setting “no” motions up today to vote on? Why would we say—in the middle of debate and discussion to improve the bill—let's rush it on through; no, to more amendments; no, to more debate; no, to more checks and balances.

There are some pretty big issues to resolve to make sure we have it right. There is general agreement, I think, across both sides of the aisle that we want a situation where we don't have these big banks that are too big to fail. The Senator from Virginia, who is the Presiding Officer today and my colleague, and Senator CORKER from Tennessee worked for a year on this. I went to some of their sessions. It is complex stuff, but they were coming up with a bipartisan solution to the problem. One of the advantages of a bipartisan solution is, A, it might be more likely to be right; and, B, it almost certainly is more likely to be accepted. If there is a Corker-Warner or Warner-Corker solution, Republican-Democratic solution on banks that are too big to fail, then the American people might look up here and say: OK, if they both agree on it, maybe they are right. Maybe I will not worry about it, and I will not spend my next 3 years trying to repeal it. Well, the same thing was true on other parts of the issue, and I commend Senator DODD, the chairman of the committee, for starting out in that direction. He was working with Senator SHELBY on this side on consolidating bank regulators and consumer protection. Senator REED on the Democratic side and Senator GREGG were working on reforming oversight of derivatives. As I said, Senator WARNER and Senator CORKER were working on systemic risk, the too-big-to-fail issue. Senator SCHUMER and Senator CRAPO were working on securities and exchange issues and corporate governance issues. They weren't coming to an agreement on every single one of these issues—the last one is especially difficult—but they are making some real progress. Even yesterday, Senator SHELBY, who is the ranking member, and Senator DODD said on NBC's “Meet the Press”—Senator SHELBY said: “We are closer than we have ever been.” Mr. DODD added: “We will get it together.” Well, if we are closer than we have ever been and we will get it together, why are we having this “no” vote today? Why are we saying no to more amendments, no to more debate, no to checks and balances?

That is a serious question for the American people. If I were to suppose in my State what the major issue before the people of Tennessee is today, it is that many Independents, almost every Republican, and some Democrats would say: We need some checks and balances on a runaway Washington government. Well, here is an opportunity to have some checks and balances on a runaway Washington government and to get things right. Instead, we seem to have a campaign team at the White House that says, Let's play a little politics and make it look like the Republicans are in bed with the Wall Street bankers. They even said Republicans took contributions from Wall Street bankers, but when the newspapers added it all up, it looks like the Democrats got more contributions from the Wall Street bankers than the Republicans did. So if the race is about politics and if the race is about who took the most money from the Wall Street bankers, the Democrats win. That is not the basis upon which we should be deciding this. I like the way the committee was working on it for the last year: Republican and Democratic teams working to solve big, complex problems for the country that produces 25 percent of all the money in the world and is the acknowledged financial capital of the world. But, instead, we seem to have at least a fraction of the administration that says: We won the election, we will write the bill, and up comes the majority leader with another “no” motion, a historic, record number of “no” motions.

I am here simply to say this: This is a piece of legislation that presents President Obama and our Congress with a historic opportunity to do something right. We are coming out, we hope, of a great recession. We need some signals to our country and to the world that things are stabilizing. Every small businessperson or big businessperson I talk with says: A little certainty would help. We are not going to hire another person; we are not going to invest another dollar until we get a little more certainty in the business environment in America, and people are waiting to see how we are going to deal with this too-big-to-fail issue. Are we going to put up rules that will give big banks an advantage over community banks? Are we going to put in regulations that are so cumbersome that they move the financial capital of America from New York City and Chicago to Washington, DC, or even to London and Singapore and Shanghai, along with the jobs and the prestige and the opportunity for an increased standard of living that goes with it?

We have, within our grasp, an opportunity to do as Senator SHELBY and Senator DODD said. We are close to getting it together. We think we will get it together. If we were to get it together, if we were to be able to rely upon the work of Senator WARNER and Senator CORKER and the others I mentioned who worked together over the last year and stand together with the President and let him say: Republicans and Democrats have been working for more than a year on this. We have taken enough time to develop a consensus in the Senate, a consensus between parties, that this is the right thing to do for our country and we want to tell the American people these are the rules for financial regulation and tell the world that the United States of America is capable of governing itself and writing its rules and doing it in a bipartisan way, think of the signal that would send to this country and to the world. It might be a tipping point in the recovery from the great recession, that kind of signal from Washington, DC. I can't think of a better one. Yet the vote today is the opposite. It is another "no" motion. No to debate. No to amendments. No to working together. No to checks and balances.

I hope we prevail on this motion and I hope we will say yes to more amendments, yes to more debates and yes to checks and balances and I hope the result is a financial regulation bill affecting this country that all of us can vote for—or at least most of us can vote for; that we can proudly give each other credit for. That is the way we like to work. That is why we came to the Senate. When the country sees that, they will have more confidence in us, in this government, in the economy and the world may, too, and we will have taken an important step forward; and the President will be able to say: Look, this is the way I wanted to do it all along. This is what I campaigned on, and I am glad we have worked together to get 70 or 80 votes in the Senate to get a consensus on a financial regulation bill to get this country moving again.

I yield the floor, and I note the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, what is the business before the Senate?

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Morning business is closed.

RESTORING AMERICAN FINANCIAL STABILITY ACT OF 2010—MOTION TO PROCEED

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 3217, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Motion to proceed to the consideration of S. 3217, a bill to promote the financial stability of the United States by improving accountability and transparency in the financial system, to end "too big to fail," to protect the American taxpayer by ending bailouts, to protect consumers from abusive financial services practices, and for other purposes.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, as I understand it, there is a vote scheduled at 5 p.m., is that correct?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is correct.

Mr. DODD. And the time between now and 5 p.m. will be for general debate on the matter of the motion to proceed, is that correct?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is correct.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I see my friend and colleague from Delaware, Senator KAUFMAN. How much time does the Senator need?

Mr. KAUFMAN. About 16 minutes.

Mr. DODD. I yield 16 minutes to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Connecticut for the incredible work he has done on putting this bill together. It is a historic effort. It is the third historic effort he has taken on this year. That is not just a word, "historic;" it is putting into perspective the last 40 years. The Senator from Connecticut has been a leader on three truly historic pieces of legislation this year. I have never seen a Member do that. There were credit card reform, bringing up the health care reform bill, and now the financial regulatory reform bill.

I return to the floor to discuss the problem of too big to fail, which I remain convinced is a key issue in any financial reform bill. First, I urge my colleagues to vote yes on the motion to proceed, because these issues are of profound importance to our country and they deserve to be debated and voted upon.

For example, it was over 10 years ago that Congress debated and passed the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, which formally repealed the Glass-Steagall Act's sensible and longstanding separation of commercial banking and investment banking. While this landmark legislation passed the U.S. Senate by a 90-to-8 margin, there were some voices who spoke out then that the bill would lead us on a glided path to disaster.

I recently reread the speech given in 1999 by the senior Senator from North Dakota, and I was thunderstruck, truly, by how accurately BYRON DORGAN warned then about the future. There were eight people who voted against the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. They were Senators BOXER, Bryan, DORGAN, FEINGOLD, HARKIN, MIKULSKI, SHELBY, and Wellstone. I first came to this body as a staff person in 1973. I have seen times when a few people in the Senate—I don't think either party has a monopoly on it—get together and say the Senate is off in the wrong direction. Those eight people said that on that day. Senator DORGAN deserves a special recognition and award, because he predicted this in 1999, when he said:

We will, in 10 years time, look back and say: We should not have done that [repeal Glass-Steagall] because we forgot the lessons of the past.

He went on to say:

This bill will, also, in my judgment, raise the likelihood of future massive taxpayer bailouts. It will fuel the consolidation and mergers in the banking and financial services industry at the expense of customers, farm businesses, family farmers and others.

That is absolutely amazing. He absolutely totally completely nailed it. He predicted it would lead to "future massive taxpayer bailouts." I think we should listen to Senator DORGAN now and any prediction he makes about what we are going to do today in the Senate.

He also said quite presciently:

We also have another doctrine . . . at the Federal Reserve Board called too big to fail. Remember that term, too big to fail. . . . They cannot be allowed to fail because the consequence on the economy is catastrophic and therefore these banks are too big to fail. . . . That is no-fault capitalism; too big to fail. Does anybody care about that? Does the Fed? Apparently not.

These words would work just as well on the floor today. How many of us thought the term "too big to fail" was coined only in this recent disaster? Not Senator DORGAN. He knew and warned about too big to fail in 1999.

He also said:

I say to the people who own banks, if you want to gamble, go to Las Vegas. If you want to trade in derivatives, God bless you. Do it with your own money. Do not do it through the deposits that are guaranteed by the American people and by deposit insurance.

Again, right on point, and perfectly accurate today. BYRON DORGAN and Brooksley Born were warning about derivatives in 1999, but we did not listen. And America suffered a catastrophe of monumental proportions—less than 10 years after these prophetic words were spoken.

Finally, Senator DORGAN said:

I will bet one day [I think we are at that day] somebody is going to look back at this and they are going to say: How on Earth could we have thought it made sense to allow the banking industry to concentrate, through merger and acquisition, to become bigger and bigger and bigger; far more firms in the category of too big to fail? How did we think that was going to help this country?

Well, Senator DORGAN, you were right, and we have arrived at that day. Let me repeat: Did it help our country? Will it help our country in the future? Each Senator has to answer that question.

Senator DORGAN knew that further unbinding the financial industry would accelerate the process of deregulation and lead to far greater risks, ushering in a new era of too big to fail and an ever more casino-like version of financial capitalism. He knew that by lifting basic restraints on financial markets and institutions and, more importantly, by failing to put in place new rules to deal with the market's ever more complex innovations, that this deregulatory philosophy would unleash the forces that would cause our financial crisis and great recession of 2008.

I could not agree more with Senator DORGAN. Banks and other financial institutions that are too big to fail have become only more so today. They are so large, so complex, and so interconnected that they cannot be allowed to fail because their demise would threaten the stability of the overall financial system.

There are those on the other side of the aisle who propose to simply let them fail. They say the solution is to stand back and let these megabanks follow the normal corporate bankruptcy process. I call that “dangerous and irresponsible,” a slogan of an answer, not a real solution. President Bush did not allow that to happen, and no President should be faced with that decision again. When Lehman failed, our global credit markets froze and creditors and counterparties panicked.

We have the opportunity today to restructure our financial industry so that it will be safe for generations. That is what the Senate did in the 1930s when it passed the Glass-Steagall Act, and it withstood the test of time for six decades.

When I look at the current legislative approach, in my view it relies too much on regulator discretion and on a resolution mechanism that is ultimately unworkable for the largest and most complex financial institutions. Under this arrangement, the megabanks will still have incentives to arbitrate their capital requirements, thereby continuing to grow and take on even greater and greater risks.

The six largest U.S. banks have assets totaling more than 63 percent of our overall gross domestic product. Fifteen years ago, the six largest U.S. banks had assets equal to just 17 percent of gross domestic product. In 15 years, it went from 17 percent to 63 percent.

Instead of girding a broken regulatory system, Congress must act decisively now to end the “doom loop.” Senator DORGAN accurately identified and warned the Senate about in 1999. We need stronger statutory medicine.

I believe the time has come for Congress to draw hard lines and high walls in statute. We need statutory size and leverage limits on banks and nonbanks in order to eliminate too big to fail.

Senator DORGAN said he is working on an amendment to address this problem. I look forward to hearing more from Senator DORGAN about his proposals, and I hope the Senate will listen carefully to him since his credibility on this issue was born in the wisdom he showed in 1999.

Congress, which represents the people who are most hurt by the financial crisis, should not pass the buck to the very regulators who failed to prevent the crisis in the first place. Congress must do it, as it did in the 1930s, by separating commercial from investment banking activities and putting limits on the size and leverage used by systemically significant banks and nonbank players alike. This is a proposal I introduced last week with Senator BROWN and other colleagues.

Of course, there are those who make the argument that the problem is not really about size; that these institutions are not actually too big to fail. Instead, they say institutions such as Lehman Brothers were actually too interconnected to fail based upon interlocking counterpart exposures arising from credit derivatives and repurchase contracts.

But trying to contrast the distinction between too big to fail and too interconnected to fail is a distinction without a difference. The massive growth from the derivatives market, including that for credit derivatives, which intertwine the fates of banks, hedge funds, and insurance companies through side bets on whether mortgages, corporate bonds, or other assets would pay off, moved in lockstep with the runaway growth of the megabanks’ balance sheets.

All of these activities interconnected their fates, while also making them far more risky and far bigger, so big, in fact, that the failures would threaten the stability of the financial system.

As Senator BROWN and I emphasized last week, our bill is a complementary idea, not a substitute to the Banking Committee bill.

There are many regulatory provisions in that bill that are designed to make the megabanks less risky and less interconnected, and we strongly support them. But why gamble that the regulators will do a better job now and well into the future when they have the power today to impose a redundant fail-safe solution to limit the size and leverage of our biggest banks? We will not lose out globally, other than in a race to financial destruction. The limits Senator BROWN and I propose would shrink these banks from massively large institutions to only large institutions, at a size well beyond the level at which economies of scale are achieved.

As Senator DORGAN asked in 1999: Why leave oversized institutions in place when they are too big to fail? Instead, we should meet the challenge of the moment and have the courage to act to limit the size and practices of those literally gigantic financial institutions, the stability of which is a threat to our economy. But we can only meet these challenges once the bill reaches the Senate floor. Again, I urge my colleagues to vote yes on cloture and not stand in the way of the debate and collective wisdom from this body that this country so badly needs. If we are to prevent another financial crisis, we must move forward with this debate and act strongly in the interests of the American people.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I suspect sometime over the next hour and a half, Members will come to the floor—including the Presiding Officer—and I will be glad to take a few minutes and share some opening comments and then give him relief so he can be heard on this matter.

I thank Senator WARNER and my colleagues on the Banking Committee, both Democrats and Republicans. We have spent a lot of time together over the last 2 years now—longer, in fact, going back even before the arrival of my friend from Virginia.

When I became chairman of the Banking Committee in January of 2007, I was asked to pick up this issue. We began to look at the issue of the mortgage crisis in the country through all of 2007 and, of course, the following year when events began to unfold, culminating with the disaster we encountered in the fall of 2008.

The members of the committee have worked very hard. We have had literally hundreds of hearings and meetings, listening to people across the spectrum of how best to address these issues, filling in the gaps that led to the near collapse of our economy; what steps we ought to be taking to provide intelligent, thoughtful, commonsense regulation, as well as to see to it, in the process of doing so, we do not stifle the ability of this country to lead in the financial sector globally; as well as provide for the innovation and creativity necessary for our country to grow and prosper economically, the wealth creation that is necessary for our country. It has been a long and arduous journey.

I was speaking with BOB CORKER of Tennessee, with whom I spent a great deal of time, as I know the Presiding Officer has as well. I thank Senator SHELBY, my colleague and former chairman of the Banking Committee, who is the ranking member on our committee. We have spent a lot of time on these issues, including some time earlier this afternoon, and we will be meeting again depending on the outcome this evening one way or the other. We will continue our conversations to try to resolve some of these outstanding matters in a very long and complex piece of legislation.

I will not enumerate every member of the Banking Committee, but suffice it to say, to this juncture, the work they have done has been tremendously helpful and has produced a good and strong bill on financial reform.

Today the Senate faces its first vote on the issue, which will occur in a little less than 2 hours from now, deciding whether we can even go forward and debate the matter. My hope is our colleagues will allow us to debate this issue.

I understand there are differences. There is hardly unanimity in caucuses, let alone in the Chamber, on the way to go, particularly in areas involving systemic risk, dealing with the so-called too big to fail provisions, dealing with the provisions of how we administer the notion of exotic instruments, the derivative community, and the like. Significant discussions have gone on. The assumption we are going to resolve all of those issues prior to debating the issues is somewhat unrealistic if we are trying to reach accommodation on all the various matters that are included in the 1,400 pages of the proposal which we will have before this body.

Today my plea is not so much on the substance of what is here, although I am willing to discuss all of that because it is important our colleagues know what we have tried to achieve and accommodate in our legislation, but a plea to let us get to the debate.

I do not think the American people understand this. Regardless of where you come out on the issues, whether you stand on the various provisions of the bill, I do not know how to explain to people to make them realize how vulnerable we are today in the waning days of April 2010 as we were in the fall of 2008 when we saw what happened to our economy. Nothing has changed except, of course, jobs have been lost, homes have gone into foreclosure, retirement incomes have evaporated, and housing values have declined. Almost $11 trillion in household wealth has been lost. That is what has happened over the last 18 months.

We have yet to stand and address what caused that to happen in our country, to fill in those gaps to provide the regulation, put the cops on the beat, create provisions that would minimize the next economic crisis. And it will occur. There is nothing I have drafted that can protect our country from future economic difficulty.

As certain as I am standing here today, we will face yet another crisis or crises in the future. The question is, Are we going to be better positioned to minimize that crisis so we do not see the collateral damage that has been caused to businesses, individuals, retirement, homes—all of the things that we have suffered because we did not have in place the kind of safeguards that might have put a tourniquet on this problem in its earliest stages, not to have eliminated the crisis but certainly eliminated the damage it caused because we did not have the cops on the beat, we did not have the regulation, and we did not have what is exactly included in this bill to minimize the danger in the future.

I have tried to explain this issue. Obviously, it is complicated when you start talking in these words that are archaic; talking about credit default swaps and derivatives and systemic risk and all the other terminology that is used to talk about financial services. But let me try to phrase this in more graphic terms, if I can.

Imagine coming home from a weekend away. You have been away. You have taken your family out on a trip and you come home to find the front door swinging wide open, flapping back and forth. When you walk in the house, you realize you have been robbed. Your TV is gone, your furniture, your jewelry, important documents, cash, and family photos, all have been stolen out of your home. Maybe worst of all, there is broken glass and shattered pottery. Not only did they steal, but they decided to wreck the house as well. So you are angry and frightened, wondering what is coming next and how much it will cost you to replace your TV and your stereo. Then you find out, at the end of all this, that they have identified the robbers who have broken into your home and stolen everything and, by the way, you have to write a check to them. The very people who caused the damage are now going to get a check written out to them—those who caused the problem in the first place.

Well, that is what happened, in effect, 18 months ago. People came in and robbed our homes, in effect. In fact, they took the home, they took the income, and they took the retirement. They watched jobs go out the window. The very people who were responsible for it, of course, were stabilized because we wrote a check for $700 billion to stabilize those institutions. As we did so, and, of course, we got them back on their feet, the very leaders of these industries began to reap massive bonuses to put themselves on solid footing. So they have benefited from this financially. Yet 8½ million jobs were lost, 7 million homes ended up in foreclosure, there was a 30-percent decline in home values and a 20-percent decline in retirement of working families, all who thought they were protected. All that is gone, and somewhere between $11 trillion and $13 trillion—not “b” as in billion but a trillion dollars—in household wealth has been lost in 18 months.

If that is not wreckage of your home—your economic home—I don't know what is. Today, we are as vulnerable as we were 18 months ago. Our house is still unlocked, in a way. What happened 18 months ago could happen again. The difference this time is I don't think there is an ounce of willingness on the part of the American people to write that check again. What they are asking is for us to step up, to think carefully—as we have tried to do over the last year or so as we have gone through this process—and craft some ideas that would minimize that from happening again so there is not a huge part of our economy that is totally unregulated, as we had with real estate brokers who on their Web site had as their first rule to brokers, convince the borrower you are their financial adviser, when they were anything but their financial adviser. So they were luring people into mortgages they couldn't afford and convincing them they could pay for it, knowing full well they never ever could. Of course, the banks themselves were then bundling these mortgages, only holding them for 8 or 10 weeks and then selling them off, branding them AAA to unsuspecting investors, and that created that bubble that ultimately was the major cause of the collapse.

Today, that same problem can exist in the absence of the law we are putting before our colleagues. Maybe I should have said this at the outset, but we hardly claim perfection in what we have written here. Hardly. But we believe they are sound ideas that deal with these very issues that caused the problem in the first place, and what we need to do is to be able to debate those ideas. If my colleagues disagree, as many do—some think I have gone too far, some think I haven't gone far enough, and those are maybe two legitimate points—how are we to resolve our disagreement if we can't bring up the bill and have the debate this Chamber was designed to engage in? What is the point of having 100 seats, coming from 50 States, when a major issue affecting our country cannot even be the subject of a debate?

So I urge my colleagues—I urge them—to let us get to this debate. Let us do our best to resolve these matters as adults, as people who have strong views and feelings, many of which we agree on, by the way. I mentioned my colleague from Virginia, the Presiding Officer. I don't know how long MARK WARNER and BOB CORKER spent—hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of hours—to make sure that in this proposal never again would a financial institution in the United States of America reach such a status that it would be guaranteed implicitly that the Federal Government would bail them out when they engaged in excessive risk and put themselves in great jeopardy. Our bill does that. Without any question whatsoever, those entities, if they reach that point, will fail. They will go into bankruptcy, they will go into receivership, and management gets fired. They don't get a bonus, they get fired. Shareholders lose their resources or their investments, as well as do creditors, not to mention other problems associated with it. But the idea is, those entities go out of business, and we wind them down in a way that doesn't jeopardize other sectors of our economy.

Nothing could be more clear in our bill than that. If there was one issue I think we all agreed on, it was to make sure that didn't happen. Again, the Senators from Tennessee and Virginia, and there were others, by the way, who were engaged in that debate in writing this bill to achieve that desired result by the American people.

We also said: Look, one of the problems that happened over the years leading to this crisis is that we didn't even know what was going on out there. We heard Bob Rubin, the former Secretary of the Treasury, and we heard Alan Greenspan and others—whether you believe them—who said we didn't understand how this was happening or why it was happening or even that it was happening.

Well, that excuse ought to never occur again. So we create in our bill that early radar system—again, maybe a more graphic description of what the Systemic Risk Council does. This is made up of various Federal agencies, so that there is not just one but a multiple set of eyes with differing backgrounds and experience to deal with the economic issues of our Nation; to be constantly watching and monitoring what is occurring out there and not just in our own country, by the way, but around the world. How many of us have read headlines over the past few weeks about Greece and what problems it may pose to Europe and other parts of our global economy or what happened in the Shanghai stock market a number of years ago, where a decline in value in that exchange put the entire world in a tailspin for several days. So the notion that it is just what happens here at home on mortgages or other issues is not limited, it is also what happens around the world today that can affect us.

Anyway, this part of the bill is designed to be that early warning system—that radar system. Again, I wish to thank my colleague from Virginia and my colleague from Tennessee. One of the provisions in that early warning system is data collection on a daily basis, so we know what is happening economically literally on an hour-to-hour basis. That will be a great value as we sit there and try to make these assessments and pick up on these problems in the earliest stages before they can occur.

Consumer protection. This ought not be a radical idea—to protect consumers from any problems financially. How many of us, of course, read the tragic news over the last few weeks about an automobile manufacturer that had a defective accelerator? What was the first thing you heard? Those cars are being recalled so you would not be at risk in driving them. We hear of recalls all the time on products we buy. You buy that nice TV and it doesn't work, you can send it back, you can recall that product, and you will be protected as a consumer.

What happens when you get a financial product that doesn't work or is defective or certainly producing results that were never intended but are causing major problems? Where do you go to get a recall on a faulty mortgage or a credit card deal that is corrupt or fraudulent or deceptive or abusive? Why shouldn't we deal with financial products that can bring someone to financial ruin? We can do it with a toaster, a TV or an automobile. Well, our bill sets up a Consumer Financial Product Safety Commission or bureau or division that we have established in this bill. So consumers themselves can have someplace to go to get redress.

Rules can be written to protect them against abusive practices. I appreciate my colleague from Delaware mentioning my credit card bill, but we shouldn't have to write a bill every time there is a deceptive or fraudulent practice that does damage to consumers. Why does it take writing a bill every time there is a problem? Why not have regulations in place that would protect consumers?

Let me mention what else that does. It isn't just protecting the consumer from a faulty financial product. One of the most important elements in our economy is consumer confidence—having a sense of optimism and confidence or faith that our institutions will be there to work for them and not against them. One of the great damages to our country—and I don't know how you put a number on it. I can't cite the number on home values lost or wealth lost or mortgages or foreclosures or jobs lost. Tell me what price we put on the loss of the American public's confidence in our financial system. What is that number; that people no longer trust or have deep questions about whether they are going to be protected with their hard-earned dollar with that insurance policy or that stock they want to buy? Not that they ought to be guaranteed a return on it but that there isn't going to be some deceptive, abusive practice that will put them at risk. To me, that is about as important an issue as you can have—confidence of the American people that the architecture of our financial system is one they can have faith in, that they can have confidence in. That reputation has been damaged severely over these last number of months.

I don't claim what we have written in this area of consumer protection solves every problem. But for the first time in our Nation's history, for the very first time, we will have a consolidated consumer protection agency with the principal responsibility of watching out for the consumers of financial products. I think that is a major achievement for our bill.

Lastly, let me mention the old issue of these exotic instruments that I mentioned earlier that have complicated definitions of what they do and how they work. One of the major problems is, of course, it has been an unregulated area. It has been what they call the shadow economy. To give an idea of how the issue has exploded, in 1998, the area of derivatives generated about $91 billion in activity. That is 12 years ago. Last year—I think it was 2009 but the last year we have numbers on this, the amount of activity in this area jumped from $91 billion to almost $600 trillion—$91 billion to $600 trillion in 10 years in unregulated activities, in this shadow economy. It was those activities that also contributed so much to the economic difficulties we are going through.

The Agriculture Committee, run by my good friend from Arkansas, BLANCHE LINCOLN, and the members of her committee and our Banking Committee have worked out a sound and solid proposal on how we can protect the American consumers from these very risky instruments if they are not subjected to some basic rules of margin requirements—capital. Let the Sun shine on them in the exchanges, where people can see the value. The market can determine that. All those things are critical. Derivatives are not a bad thing. They are needed, in fact, to have economic growth and prosperity. The problem isn't using them, it is how they are used and whether they operate in the shadows or in the bright light, where everyone knows what they are and how to value them. That is in our bill as well.

There is a lot more in this legislation, and my intention was not to go through and enumerate every section of the bill—all 12 sections of the bill. My point to my colleagues is: Let us get to this debate. Let us have a chance. If you don't like what I have done on consumer protection, on derivatives, if you don't like what we have done on too big to fail, if you don't like what we have done on other provisions in the bill, then come and bring up amendments. Let's debate them and let's have that ability to at least try to shape this legislation.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon, for the very first time since the crisis hit—other than the credit card bill and a housing bill that we had come out of my Banking Committee—this is the first chance we will have in 18 months, since the worst economic crisis in 80 years—which we are still suffering from. I know the markets are doing better, I know corporations are doing better, I know the stock market is making more money, but for most of us in this Chamber, we know it hasn't quite reached down yet—the economic recovery—to average citizens who have lost their jobs, who have lost their retirement, who have lost the wealth they built up over the years. All that is gone. For a lot of them it is not going to come back. So what we need to do is step up and try to provide some answers the American public is looking for. A lot of the rage and fury and anger we are seeing around other issues happened in no small measure because of what happened to our economy and because of the failure to have regulatory procedures in place, to have cops on the beat to enforce those regulations, to be able to have the early warning system to identify problems before they spun out of control.

Our bill, we believe, steps up and addresses those issues. Again, give us the opportunity to at the very least debate them. We cannot get to the resolution of these matters if the matter is not on floor. Senator SHELBY and I have been talking. We talked over the weekend. We talked already this afternoon. We will meet again. Even if we get this done and move to the bill, we have to sit down and work out how to manage all of this, so I thank him again for his willingness to do that. I deeply believe Senator RICHARD SHELBY of Alabama wants to get to a bill, as I believe do most of my colleagues here, but we cannot ever get there if we do not have that debate.

I did not mean to speak this long but I wanted at least to let my colleagues know how important I believe this issue is. Frankly, I don't think it serves our interests well to be screaming at each other about who cares more about this issue than the other. I think it unfortunate that a number of my Republican friends who I know care about this very much would be branded that somehow they don't care about it to such an extent that they would not even let it get to a debate. They have ideas on this legislation. They want their amendments considered and they don't want to be told you cannot even do that because we do not have some large, sweeping agreement on a bill here.

Senator SHELBY and I are very close on some issues that we think we can reach an understanding. Basically we are there in a lot of these matters. I had hoped maybe we would get there before this afternoon, but there is no reason to stop all this, in my view, and not get to the adoption of the motion to proceed.

For all of those reasons, I urge my colleagues at 5 p.m. to vote to proceed to this matter and let us take the next few days to consider this legislation.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KAUFMAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to urge my colleagues to support bringing forward Chairman DODD's regulatory reform bill. The chairman has just spoken with great passion about how we got here. I want to take perhaps somewhat of a similar tack and describe, as a new Member, why I think this legislation is so terribly important.

I have had the opportunity today and on other Mondays, as is often noted, to sit in the chair and listen to my colleagues come in and talk about this issue. I heard today my colleagues talk about health care, talk about stimulus, talk about unemployment, as somehow reasons why we should not start a debate about financial regulatory reform. I am not sure I understand the connection.

Candidly, the American people could do with a little less political theater and a little more action. Regardless of what happens this afternoon at the vote at 5 o'clock, I hope—and I honestly believe most of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle hope—that we will get to that agreement in a bipartisan new set of rules of the road for the financial sector that will stand the test of time for not a year or two but for decades to come.

Before I get into a substantive discussion about how we got here and how I believe the Dodd bill takes dramatic steps forward, there is one other issue I need to address. I have sat in the chair as the Presiding Officer and have heard—and I know as Presiding Officer we have to bite our tongues sometimes—colleagues come forward and somehow portray this piece of legislation as a partisan product.

I have only been here for 15 months but in the 15 months I have had the honor of serving this body, I have not seen any piece of legislation that anywhere approaches the type of bipartisan input, discussion, and ongoing dialog that Chairman DODD's bill has. Literally, in the 15 months I have had the honor of serving on the Banking Committee, we held dozens if not hundreds of hearings on the objectives of this legislation, objectives, again, that I think colleagues on both sides of the aisle agree upon: making sure there is never again taxpayer bailouts for mistakes made by too large financial institutions, making sure we have more transparency and, as the chairman said, a return of a sense of fairness to our whole financial product system and, third, that ultimately the American people, the consumers of this Nation, will make sure there is somebody watching out for the financial products that sometimes they have been purchasing without appropriate knowledge or appropriate recourse, when these products explode in their faces.

Again, unlike the Presiding Officer who served around this body for many years, I am a new Member. But I saw where the chairman did something I thought was somewhat unusual with a major piece of legislation. Rather than saying he had all the knowledge and all the input, he actually invited in the members of the committee, junior members, senior members of both parties to set up working groups to take on some of the challenging aspects of this bill—consumer protection, systemic risk, corporate governance, the whole question of derivatives. Let me state absolutely, because I can state from the systemic risk/too big to fail portions, the products we developed that are critical parts of this legislation are bipartisan in nature, bipartisan in ideas, and find that common ground that has been so absent from so many of the previous debates we have had over the last 15 months—I think particularly about the fact of the systemic risk, too big to fail, and resolution authorities Senator CORKER and I worked on. There has been no better partner I could have had than Senator BOB CORKER, grinding through hundreds of hours, recognizing there was no Democratic or Republican response to systemic risk and too big to fail, but we had to get it right. While there may be parts of this bill that can still be tightened and need to be tweaked here and there, and the Senator and I may add a few improvements, on the overarching goal of making sure the taxpayers never again would be on the hook, I believe we have taken giant steps forward.

As you heard from the chairman already, those conversations are ongoing even today. Please, while we kind of get sometimes subject in this body to hyperbole, anyone who makes the claim that this legislation is partisan only doesn't recognize the facts or has not seen the experience of the members of the Banking Committee over the last 15 months.

Let me also acknowledge—and I recognize I have a number of things I want to say and maybe other Members want to come, but let me acknowledge something else about this discussion. Sixteen months ago, when I came to this body, I actually thought I knew something about the financial services sector. I spent 20 years prior to being Governor around financial services, taking companies public. I had some ideas about how we would sort through these issues. I have to tell you what I quickly found was that oftentimes my original idea, or oftentimes the simplistic sound bite solution that I thought might be the solution, more often than not proved not to be the case and that trying to sort our way through this labyrinth of financial rules and regulations in a way that brings appropriate regulation but maintains America's preeminent role as the capital markets' capital of the world has been challenging.

Again I thank my colleague Senator CORKER. I think we both realize there is no Democratic or Republican way to get this right but we had to get it right. Over the last year we have set up literally dozens of seminars where we invited members of the Banking Committee to come in and kind of get up to speed as well. Fifteen months later, with this legislation now before the floor, I think we have taken giant steps forward in getting it right.

I also want to revisit for a moment, before we get to the substance of the bill, how we got here. I have actually been stunned sometimes, sitting in the Presiding Officer's chair, hearing colleagues come in and try to cite as the causation of the crisis that arose in 2007 and 2008 a single legislative action back in the 1970s or a single individual's activities over the last two decades. The claims are so patently absurd, sometimes they do not even bear recognition or bear rebuttal. But it is important to take a moment to look back on the fact that none of us comes with clean hands to this process of how we got to such a mess in 2008 that we were on the verge of financial meltdown.

Think about the fact back in the early 1990s, back in 1993, Congress actually passed legislation to give the Federal Reserve the responsibility to regulate mortgages—responsibility that we have seen time and again they didn't take up the challenge to meet.

The Presiding Officer spoke very eloquently earlier this afternoon about the actions of Congress in 1999, the Gramm-Leach-Bliley bill, that basically broke down the walls between traditional depository bank and investment banking that had been set up by the Glass-Steagall Act in the early 1930s. Where the Presiding Officer and I may differ now is I am not sure we can unscramble those eggs, but clearly we needed a little more thought back in 1999, as we internationalized our financial markets and turned these large institutions into financial supermarkets, which was one of the precipitating factors in this crisis as well.

Candidly, bank regulators were not given the tools to regulate, and oftentimes regulators of both depository institutions, their bank holding companies, and their securities firms, had no collaboration or coordination.

During our hearings in the Banking Committee when we looked into one of the most egregious excesses in the last few years, the Bernie Madoff scandals, we heard regulators had started down the path to try to find out the source of some of the criminality that took place in the Madoff case, only to find because of our mismatch of regulatory structure they got to a door they couldn't open because that was the purview of another regulator.

Regulators, under our existing rules, were actually prohibited from looking at derivatives. Derivatives, as the Chairman mentioned, in the last decade have gone from what seems like a large number—$90-plus billion—to literally hundreds of trillions of dollars in value.

Responsibility continues, again, in some of our monetary policy. In the early part of the 2000s—and again, not many people sounded the alarm at that point. We overrelied on low interest rates and monetary policy to pull us out of the 2001 recession. But as we came out of that 2001 recession, we left those monetary policies in place, which led to a housing bubble for which we are still paying the price.

I know some of my colleagues on the other side said this bill does not take on the GSEs, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. And, yes, to a degree, they are right. And then, in a subsequent action, we will have to make sure we have a new model in place for these institutions. But that should not be used as an excuse to not put in place major financial regulatory reform.

Candidly, if we are going to be really truthful with each other and the American people, we have to acknowledge that everyone—not just the banks but everyone—got overleveraged. Quite honestly, we all, the American people, probably need to take a look in the mirror as well. I think, as we bought those adjustable rate mortgages; took out that second and third loan on our home; ended up getting that deal that seemed too good to be true; moved away from the conventional idea that you ought to go ahead and, before you get a mortgage, be able to put 20 percent down and be able to show you can pay it back, we all got swept up in this “who cares about tomorrow; let's just borrow for today.”

We also saw innovations, and American capitalism has worked pretty well, particularly in the last 100 years. But we particularly saw innovations in the last 5 or 6 years alone, innovations that originated on Wall Street that were supposed to be about better pricing risks: derivatives and all of their cousins, nephews, and bastard offspring. But these tools that were supposed to be a better price risk we have now found were more about fee generation for the banks that created them and, instead of lowering overall risk, created this intertangled web that, once you started to put the string on, potentially brought about the whole collapse of our markets.

Time and again, we saw, rather than transparency in the market, opaqueness and regulators who never looked beyond their silos.

I think most all of our colleagues want reform. Colleagues on both sides of the aisle want to get it right. But I believe there are two real dangers as we go down this reform path. One is to resort to sound-bite solutions that at first blush sound like an easy way to solve the problem but in actuality may not get to the solution we need.

I know we are going to have a fervent debate on this floor—and I look forward to it—about the question of whether the challenge with some of our institutions was their market cap or was it really putting pressure on the regulators to look at their level of interconnectedness and the level of risk-taking that was taking place. I look forward to that. There are valid points on both sides. When we get to that debate, I will point out the fact that in Canada, where there is actually a higher concentration of the banking industry than in the United States, because there was greater regulatory oversight and actual restrictions on leverage, those Canadian banks didn't fall prey to the same kind of excess we found here in the United States.

I know the chairman and Chairman LINCOLN are working through the question of derivatives, where they should be housed, because they do provide important tools when used properly. And there will be a spirited debate on whether we should break off derivatives functions from financial institutions. I look forward to that discussion. By simply breaking off these products into a more unregulated sector of the industry, we could, in effect, if we do not do it right, create an even greater harm down the road than we have right now.

So the first challenge is to make sure we don't fall prey to the simple solutions and recognize the complexities of these issues.

The other challenge we have to be aware of is the converse. I know the chairman has heard, I know the Presiding Officer has heard—any of us who have tried to get into this issue have had folks from the financial industry come in and talk to us about the unforeseen consequences of any of our actions. Some of those arguments are valid, but oftentimes those arguments are simply—they always start the same: We favor financial reform, but don't touch our portion of the financial sector because if you do this, the unintended consequences would be enormous.

Because the knowledge level and the complexity of these discussions are so challenging, what we also have to fight against in this body is the more easy process to default to the status quo because timidity in this case will not solve this crisis and will not provide the new 21st-century financial rules of the road we need.

We can't be afraid to shine the light on markets or, for that matter, to raise the cost of certain activities, because the unforeseen consequences of the interconnection of these activities, as we saw in 2007 and 2008, pose grave risk to our financial system—and as we have seen with the 8 million jobs lost and literally trillions of dollars of value lost from the American public.

So what does S. 3217 do to accomplish this? I spent most of my time on the two titles that Senator CORKER and I worked on and the chairman and his staff adopted and changed a bit but that still provide the framework and, I believe, the right structure.

First—the chairman has already mentioned this—we create for the first time ever an early warning system on systemic risk. If there is one thing that has become clear from all of the hearings that have been held, not just at the Banking Committee but under Senator LEVIN's Investigations Committee and Chairman LINCOLN's Agriculture Committee, it is that there was very little combination and sharing of information between the regulatory silos.

The chairman's bill creates a nine-member Financial Oversight Council chaired by the Treasury Secretary and made up of the Federal financial regulators. This group will bear the responsibility, both good and bad, if they mess up, of spotting systemic risk and putting speed bumps in place because we can never prevent another future crisis, but to do all we can to slow and minimize the chance of those crises. The most important part of this systemic risk council is it will actually share information, so no longer will we have one regulator who is looking at the holding company, another regulator looking at the depository institution, a third looking at the securities concerns and not sharing that data.

We will place increased cost on the size and complexity of firms. The largest, most interconnected firms will be required—not optional but required—to have higher capital, lower leverage, better liquidity, better risk management. Those have all been traditional tools that have already been in our regulatory system, but this systemic risk council will require those large institutions to meet all of these higher costs—in effect, their cost of being so large and interconnected.

But what we are also bringing to the table are three brandnew tools that I think, if executed and implemented correctly, will provide tremendous value in preventing that next financial crisis. Those three tools are contingent debt, our so-called funeral plans, and third, the Office of Financial Research. Since these are new tools, let me spend a moment on each.

One of the things we saw in the 2007, 2008 crisis was that as these firms got to their day of reckoning, it became virtually impossible for them to raise additional capital and shore up their equity. Once they start going down the tubes, the ability to attract new investors, particularly from a management team that sometimes doesn't recognize how far and how close they are coming to the brink, is a great challenge.

So working with folks from the Fed and experts across the country, this bill includes a whole new category within the capital structure of those large institutions: contingent debt. There will be funds within the capital structure that will convert into equity at the earliest signs of a crisis. Why is this important? This is important because if this debt converts into equity, the effect it has on the existing shareholders is it dilutes them. It takes money right out of their pockets. So existing shareholders will have a real incentive to hold management accountable, not to take undue risks, because long before bankruptcy or resolution we will be able to have this trigger in place that will convert this debt into equity, diluting existing shareholders and, candidly, diluting management as well. How effectively we use this tool has yet to be seen, but it will provide another early warning check on these large institutions.

The second new addition to the chairman's bill is basically funeral plans for these large institutions. What do I mean? I mean a management team will have to come before their regulators and explain how they can unwind themselves in an orderly way through the bankruptcy process.

We heard stories—I will not mention the institution—we heard stories in the height of the crisis in 2008 about how certain very large international institutions in effect came before the regulators and said: You have to bail us out because we cannot go through bankruptcy; it is just too hard. Never again should any institution be allowed to be in that position. And if we use this tool correctly—this is an area where I know the Presiding Officer has great interest—if the regulator does not sign off on the funeral plan for this institution, on how it can unwind itself, even with many of its international divisions, through an orderly bankruptcy process, then the regulator can, in effect, make this institution sell off or dispose of parts that can't be done through a regular order of bankruptcy. By doing this, we create the expectation in the marketplace that bankruptcy will always be the preferred option.

Never again will there be an excuse that, we are too big and too complicated to go through that orderly process. Creditors and the market will know there is a plan in place that has to have been approved by the regulator and constantly updated so we have a way out.

The third area—again, I was very pleased to hear the chairman mention this because within the press and the commentary, it has gotten no information or no focus at all—is the creation of a new Office of Financial Research within the Treasury.

One of the things we heard time and again from regulators as we kind of went back and looked at how we got in the crisis of 2007 and 2008 was that the regulators didn't realize the state of interconnectedness of some of the institutions they were supposed to be regulating. No one had a current, real-time market snapshot of all of the transactions that were taking place on a daily basis, so nobody knew what would happen if you pulled the string on AIG, even though it was their London-based office, what would happen if those contracts suddenly all became suspect.

By creating this Office of Financial Research, we will give the regulators and the systemic risk council, on a daily basis, the current state of play across all the markets of the world.

This tool, if used correctly, would be another terribly important early warning system. But as the chairman has mentioned, with all this good work, we still can't predict there will never be another financial crisis. Chances are Wall Street and others, creativity being what they are, will find some way, even with all this additional regulatory structure and oversight. We can never predict there might not be another crisis. So what do we do?

First and foremost, what this bill puts in place is a strong presumption for bankruptcy so that creditors and the market alike will know what happens if they get themselves in trouble. Particularly for these largest institutions that are systemically important, they will have to have their preapproved, in effect, bankruptcy funeral plan on the shelf so that we can pull that off in the event of a crisis and allow the institution to go through an orderly bankruptcy process. Again, bankruptcy will be the preferred option of any reasonable management team because through bankruptcy there is at least some chance they may emerge on the other side in some form or another. They may be able to keep their job, if they are part of management. Some shareholders may still have some equity remaining.

What happens if we have a firm that doesn't see the inevitable and isn't willing to move to bankruptcy? What happens if we have a circumstance where the failure of an institution could cause systemic risk and bring down the whole system?

With an appropriate check and balance—and again, I commend Senator CORKER for his additions—in effect, simultaneous action of three keys: the Treasury Secretary, the head of the Fed, the FDIC, and additional oversight—all of these actions taking place, there then is an ability to say, how do we resolve an institution, in effect put it out of business—unlike in 2008 where the government invested, in effect, in a conservatorship approach that said: We will prop you up to keep you alive because we don't know what to do with you to keep you alive because you are so large and systemically important.

We have created in this bill a resolution process that says: If you as a management team are crazy enough not to go into bankruptcy, but actually allow resolution to take place, you are going out of business. Senator CORKER said: You are toast. Your management team is toast. Your equity is toast. Your unsecured creditors are toast. You are going away.

Again, we are going to put this institution out of business in a way that does not harm the overall financial system. We have to have an orderly process.

We saw during the crisis of 2008 what happens when one of these institutions fails without any game plan. We saw the value of these institutions disappear overnight as confidence in the market, confidence within the market in the institution was lost. So working with my colleagues and experts from the FDIC and others, we said: What you have to do is, you have to have some dollars available to keep the lights on so that you can sell off the portions of the institution that are systemically important and unwind this in an orderly way that doesn't have an effect, the equivalent of a run on the bank or a run on the financial system.

Again, we have heard critiques of the approach Senator CORKER and I came up with in this resolution fund, this "how do you put yourself out of business in an orderly way" fund. We actually thought it ought to be paid for by the financial industry, with the ability then to have that fund, in effect, replenished after the crisis is over.

I saw polling today that shows the overwhelming majority of Americans actually think the financial sector ought to bear the cost of unwinding one of these large, systemically important firms. Let me say, if there are other ways to do it—as a matter of fact, some in the administration have suggested other ways—I am sure we can find common ground as long as we do have at least two principles: First and foremost, the taxpayer must be protected, and industry, not the taxpayer, has to take the financial exposure. Second, funding has to be available quickly to allow resolution to work in a way to orderly unwind the process. But it ought to be done in a way—again, this is where some of the judgment comes in—where there is not so much capital available that we create a moral hazard, but a bailout fund is created.

Personally, I believe the House legislation goes too far in creating a fund of that size. I think the chairman's mark strikes a much more appropriate balance. But if there are ways to do this that protect the taxpayer, allow speedy resolution with funds that will be available so we don't have a run on the market, a run on the institution that creates more systemic risk, as long as the industry at the end of day is going to pay for it, I am sure there are other ways and we can find that common ground.

What we did in this process of resolution is we said: Let's take what is working. Let's see what is best from the FDIC process which currently resolves banks on a regular basis. One of the things I have heard from some of my colleagues on the other side—I don't know about their community banks, but my community banks in Virginia; I would bet the community banks in Delaware and the community banks in Connecticut—we don't want to get stuck paying the bills for the large Wall Street firms that bring the system to the brink of financial catastrophe. So, again, one of the aspects of the chairman's bill is to make sure any resolution process does not burden, charge, or in any way otherwise interfere with community banks.

What we think we have struck is a process that puts costs on those institutions that make the business decision to get large and systemically important. We think we have put in place abilities for the regulators, with the funeral plans, to make sure if this interconnectedness is so large that they can't go through bankruptcy, then we can stop them from taking on these new activities. But because we can't always predict eventuality, we have then said: If you need to use a resolution process, let's make sure it is orderly, paid for by industry, and that you have stood it up in a way that no rational management team would ever expect or want to choose resolution.

I know my colleague from New Hampshire has been a great partner in this legislation and is on the Senate floor. I will end with just a couple more moments. There are other parts of this bill that have not received a lot of attention. In this bill, the chairman has included an office of national insurance.

One of the things we saw in the crisis in the fall of 2008 was that nobody knew how entangled AIG's activities were with the whole financial system. This doesn't get to the question of who should regulate insurance companies, but it does create at the Federal level at least the knowledge within the insurance sector of its interconnectedness. The chairman has mentioned that he and Chairman LINCOLN are working to grapple through one of the toughest parts of the bill—again, an area I know my colleague, Senator GREGG, has been working on: How we get it right around derivatives.

Again, there is no policy difference. Both sides agree derivatives are an important tool when used appropriately. Particularly industrial companies need to use the derivative to hedge against future risk within their business. The challenge is, how do we not draw that end user exemption so large that every institution on Wall Street suddenly transforms itself into an industrial end user. Secondly, while these contracts are unique, they have to have more light shown on them in terms of clearing and exchanges.

I know Chairman DODD and Chairman LINCOLN and Senator REID and Senator GREGG will be working through this. One suggestion I would have—because as someone who has seen Wall Street act time and again, I wish them all the luck—part of my concern is that whatever rule we come up with, there is so much financial incentive on the other side that a year or two from now, we may be back because they found a way around it that we again need to give the regulators certain trip wires. I, for one, believe we ought to take the industry at its word. The industry says end users are only going to be 10 percent of total derivative contracts. Then let's put that in as a regulatory goal. If they end up exceeding that, then we can bring draconian consequences to bear. Or if they say, yes, we can make most of these transactions and most of these contracts transparent through clearing or exchange, great; let's accept them at their word.

But if they don't get to those totals, then perhaps some of the actions that particularly Members on my side of the aisle would like to take can be put in place. But, again, folks of goodwill can find common agreement.

Finally, the area around consumer protection, where the chairman and the ranking member have worked at great length to kind of sort this through, everybody agrees on the common goal. There needs to be enhanced consumer protection, particularly for the whole nonregulated portion of the financial industry that now exceeds the regulatory half. Too often it was the community bank that was chasing the mortgage broker on some of the bad financial products because there was no regulation on the mortgage broker to start with. So, again, there will be differences, but I think the approach of the chairman, which is to keep this with the appropriate rulemaking ability but to make sure, particularly for those smaller banks, that we don't end with conflicting information of a consumer regulator showing up on Monday and a safety and soundness regulator showing up on Wednesday, to do that in a combined fashion so there is commonality of message, particularly to smaller banks, that strikes that right balance.

Again, I can only say for the banks in my State of Virginia, those smaller banks who oftentimes have said they didn't cause the crisis—and they didn't—they are the first to say: We need enhanced consumer protection to make sure that our financial products are regulated by the type of product, not by the charter of the institution that issues the product. There may be ways to improve on this section. But, again, I think Senator DODD and Senator SHELBY are working to get it right.

We have seen, as well, major action on the rating agencies, questions around underwriting. There are tremendous parts of this bill that haven't been the subject of great criticism because they are that common ground that, I think Senator SHELBY has said in earlier quotes, 80 or 90 percent of both sides agree on. Where we don't agree, we ought to debate and offer amendments.

I look forward to candidly working with a number of colleagues on the other side of the aisle on technical amendments to this bill where we think we can make it slightly better. But if we are going to get there, we have to get to the debate.

I hope we move past procedural back-and-forth that, as a new guy, I still don't fully understand. I think it is time to fully debate this bill out in the open. The chairman made mention of what has been taking place in the last few weeks in Greece. I know the Presiding Officer has helped educate me on a whole new activity that is taking place in the financial markets right now around high-speed trading and collocation that could be the forerunner of the next financial crisis.

How irresponsible would we be, 18 months after, again, the analogy of the chairman, after our house was broken into, when we haven't even put new locks on the door, if we ended up with another robbery, whether it was caused by international action or whether it was caused by high-speed trading, because we don't have new rules of the road in place?

In the 15 months I have had the honor of serving in the Senate, I can't think of a piece of legislation that better represents what is good about the Senate, folks on both sides of the aisle coming forth with their ideas, trying to fashion a good piece of legislation. I can't think of an area where there is less traditional partisan, left versus right, Democrat versus Republican divides. I can't think of an applause line better, whether I am talking to a group of liberal bloggers or folks from the tea party, than the notion that we have to end taxpayer bailouts.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, let's get through the procedural wrangling. Let's find that common ground that I think we are 90 percent of the way there. Let's pass a bill that gets 60, 70, 80 Members of the Senate and set financial rules of the road that will last not just for the next congressional session but for decades to come.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise to speak on the bill. This is such a complex piece of legislation, it is difficult to debate in a sense that is understandable because there is so much of a technical aspect to the bill.

Let's start with the purpose or what I believe the purpose should be. Our purpose should be, one, to do as much as we can to build a regulatory regime which will reduce the potential for another event, the type of which we had at the end of 2008 where we had a massive breakdown in the financial system and, as a result of huge systemic risk being built into the system, which wasn't properly regulated and certainly was not handled correctly by either the financial institutions or by the Congress—the Congress maintains a fairly significant responsibility for the meltdown that occurred at the end of 2008, for the policies that we had running up to that period in the area of housing. That should be our first goal, prospectively, trying to reduce systemic risk as much as possible in the system and putting in place policies which will accomplish that.

The second goal, however, should be that we maintain what is a unique and rare strength which America has, which is that we have the capacity as a country to create capital and credit in a very aggressive way so entrepreneurs who are willing to go out and take risks have access to capital and credit, that creates jobs, and that creates the dynamics of our economy.

We should not put in place a regulatory regime that overly reacts and, as a result, significantly dampens our capacity to have the most vibrant capital and credit markets in the world while still having safe and sound capital and credit markets.

The bill the Senator from Connecticut is bringing forward, I presume, is going to have a lot of different sections in it. I want to focus on one because it has become a point of significant contention, and that is the derivatives section. Derivatives are extraordinarily complex instruments, and there are a lot of different variations of derivatives. They are basically insurance policies on an underlying product that is occurring somewhere in the economy. Their notional value is almost staggering. There is $600 trillion of notional value out there in derivatives, which is a number that nobody can comprehend. But you can understand it is a pretty big issue.

Notional value means, of course, that if everything were to go wrong at the same time, you would have $600 trillion of insurance sitting out there that had to be paid off. That obviously is never going to happen. But the fact is, it shows the size of the market and what its implications are. There are all sorts of different elements to this market. It is not one monolithic market. It is not even a hundred, it is thousands—tens of thousands—of different and various things that are having derivatives written against them, although they divide into pretty understandable categories.

Within the bill that came out of the Agriculture Committee, there was, for lack of a better word, an antipathy expressed toward the entities which presently manage the derivatives market in this country, which are essentially the large financial houses. There was an equal antipathy expressed relative to the entities that use these derivatives, including large amounts of manufacturing companies in this country, people who are dealing with financial debt instruments in this country, people who are dealing with the housing markets in this country.

It was almost as if somebody sat back and said: We dislike these folks, and we are going to put in place a regime which will sort of gratuitously penalize them for the business they do because we do not like it. It is too big. It is too complicated. I think the people who wrote it felt it was not understandable and, therefore, they decided to put forward proposals which would fundamentally undermine the capacity to do derivatives in this country.

Is that bad? Yes, it is very bad because derivatives basically are used for the purpose of making commerce work in our Nation, of making it possible for people to borrow money in our Nation, of making it possible for companies in our Nation to sell overseas, of making it possible for people to put a product in the stream of commerce and to presume that when they enter into an agreement on that product, the price would not be affected by extraneous events, such as the fluctuation of currency costs or fluctuations in material costs. So it is critical we get the derivatives language right.

There needs to be a significant new look at the regulatory regime of derivatives. The essence of the exercise should be transparency, maintaining adequate capital for the counterparties and margins, liquidity. That should be where we focus our energy: trying to make sure the different derivatives products that are brought to the market are as transparent as possible and also have behind them the support they need in the form of collateral, capital, and margin, so if something goes wrong they will be paid off, for lack of a better word.

This proposal, as it came out of the Agriculture Committee, does not try to accomplish that. Rather, it tries to essentially eviscerate the use of derivatives as products amongst a large segment of our economy. It sets up something called section 106, where it essentially says the people who are doing derivatives today, which are, for the most part, financial markets, must spin those products off from their financial houses.

That sounds, in concept, like a reasonable idea, especially if you were in Argentina in the 1950s and working for the Peron government. But as a very practical matter, it is a concept which will do fundamental harm to the vitality of our economy. Why? Because you will not have a lot of derivative products in this country that will be able to pass the test of being spun off. You do not have to listen to me to believe this. Let me quote from a message that was sent to us by the Federal Reserve, which is a reasonably fair arbiter in this exercise. They do not have a dog in the fight other than the financial stability of our country. This is the Fed talking, not me:

Section 106 would impair financial stability and strong prudential regulation of derivatives; would have serious consequences for the competitiveness of the U.S. financial institutions; and would be highly disruptive and costly, both for banks and their customers.

That is about as accurate and succinct a statement as to what the effect of this section would be as I could have said. I did not say it. Nobody would probably believe me. The Fed said it. The fair arbiter said it.

Why did they say that? Well, it is pretty obvious if you know anything about the way these products work. But essentially, if you spin off these products, you are going to have to create entities out there to replicate the entities they were spun off of. So if a large financial institution is now doing derivatives, and you spin the derivatives desk off, the swap desk off, from that financial entity, that spun-off event is going to have to replicate the capital structure of the financial institution which was basically underpinning the derivatives desk. That capital structure is estimated to be somewhere in the vicinity of a quarter of a trillion dollars to a half a trillion dollars of capital, which will have to be created.

Well, what is the effect of that? When you start putting capital like that into the system, that capital comes from somewhere—assuming it comes at all—it comes from somewhere, and where it comes from, quite honestly, is the creditworthiness of other activity. It is not new capital. It is taking capital and recreating an event, a freestanding entity here, of which capital is not around.

It will also mean there would be a contraction—and this is an estimate not of the Fed but of the group of entities that actually do this business and, therefore, it can be called suspect, but I think it is in the ballpark, give or take a couple hundred billion dollars—it will also cause a contraction of about $700 billion of credit in this country, to say nothing of the fact that if you are looking for a derivatives contract and you cannot go to the financial houses that usually do it in the United States, and you are a commercial entity or a hedging group, you are going to go overseas and do it because they are not going to have these types of restrictions and you are going to be able to buy that contract in Singapore.

So a large amount of entities, a large amount of business, will move offshore almost immediately upon the passage of this bill, should this section be kept in it.

Is it necessary, is the question. Is it necessary to make the derivatives market work right in this country? Absolutely not. This is punitive language put in out of spite because there is a movement in this country, and in this Congress, unfortunately, which I call pandering popularism, which simply dislikes anything that has to do with Wall Street.

I am sure they did a lot of things wrong and they caused a lot of problems. But if you are going to apply the problems that occurred around here fairly, we should be looking in our own mirror, at ourselves, for some of the problems we caused to the American economy, by forcing a lot of lending in a housing market that could not sustain it. It is penal. That is the purpose of this: punitive. In the end, it is going to cut off our nose to spite our face because it will be our credit that contracts, and business can be done and could be done in a very effective way, here in the United States, overseas.

What should be done here? What should be done rather than this exercise, as the Fed has said, in causing a "highly disruptive and costly" effect on banks and their customers, and having serious consequences on the competitiveness of the United States? Remember, we are competing in the world. That may have escaped the attention of the Agriculture Committee when they wrote this language, but we are in a world competition. Derivatives are not a unique American product. They are a world product. So these are jobs that go overseas. This is credit that goes overseas. This is business that goes overseas. This is Main Street that will be affected by this language.

How should it have been done? Well, it should have been done in a rational way, not in a punitive way. We know the derivatives market was not transparent enough. We know there was not enough capital, liquidity, margin—whatever you want to call it—behind the products and the counterparties that were exchanging products in the derivatives market in the over-the-counter system. We know—because we have AIG as example No. 1—a tremendous amount of CDs, especially, were being written with nothing behind them except a name.

We can fix all that. It can be fixed in a way that almost everybody is comfortable with by, first, making sure the exempted products from going on a clearinghouse are only products which have a specific commercial use and are customized and are narrow, and that the people doing those products are not large enough in their business so there are systemic issues. Secondly, we put everybody else in a clearinghouse.

What does a clearinghouse mean? It essentially means there will be a third party insurer or holder of the basket of assets necessary to support the derivatives contracts so we are fairly confident when a trade is made in a clearinghouse, the counterparties have the liquidity in the margin behind their positions to support their trades. At the same time, the clearinghouse itself must be structured in a way that it has adequate capital.

Where is that capital going to come from? It can only come from one place. It comes from the people who trade in these instruments. They are going to have to put up the capital. The regulators—the SEC, the CFTC—will have direct access to controlling and making sure that capital is adequate in the clearinghouses and making sure the clearinghouses are adequately monitoring the contracts.

Then as the contracts become more standardized—and they can and they will; we all accept that—they move over to exchanges where they are basically traded like stock. Then you have absolute transparency, price disclosure, and you do not have the issue of the over-the-counter market that causes so much problem for us. That will happen. That will happen almost naturally, but you could have the regulators stand up and say: Well, we think this group of derivatives is standardized enough and you have to move it to an exchange. We could give that power to the regulators, and that makes sense. But it would happen naturally anyway as these clearinghouses become more effective and standardized in the products, and people become more comfortable with standardized products in these areas.

Of course, there would have to be real-time disclosure to the regulators of what the prices were, if they are OTC prices or clearinghouse prices, so they know what is going on. Then it would be up to the regulators to decide when that information should be disclosed to the markets, depending on how you make these markets. Sometimes you cannot disclose the information immediately; otherwise, you would not be able to make a market; otherwise, you would not be able to do the contracts and, therefore, you would not be able to do the business, which underlies the need for the derivative.

So all of that could be done. All of that could be done, and it does not require creating this entity or these series of entities out there which the Federal Reserve has described as impairing the "financial stability and strong prudential regulation of derivatives." In other words, what the Federal Reserve is saying is, when you go in the direction of what is being proposed from the Agriculture Committee in the area of derivatives and set up this independent swap desk, you are not making things stronger in our financial structure; you are making them weaker. You are significantly reducing the strength of the regulatory arms that guide derivatives or oversee derivatives. You are also, as I mentioned earlier, creating an almost guaranteed-to-fail situation relative to the need for capital to support these derivative transactions. It is just—it just makes no sense at all.

To begin with, derivatives are, by definition, a bank product, so the idea that they have to be spun out of banks and financial institutions is, on its face, absurd, truly absurd, and counterproductive to the whole purpose of doing derivatives, which are very important. The Congress recognizes that. In Gramm-Leach-Bliley, we called derivatives a bank product. We understood that then. We seem to have forgotten it now.

I have been trying to figure out what is behind this type of language because it is so destructive to our competitiveness as a nation. This is the type of thing, as I said earlier, we would have seen in Argentina in the 1950s, this almost virulent populist attack on entities simply because they are large and because obviously there is a populous feeling against them, which ends up, by the way, significantly impacting Main Street in a negative way. Look at Argentina. In 1945, I believe, or 1937, somewhere in that period, they were the seventh best economy in the world, the seventh most prosperous people in the world. Now they are like 54th. It is because of this populous movement which has driven basically their ability to be competitive offshore. So now we have this huge populous movement here, and I am trying to think what is behind it. What is the rationale here, other than just rampant pandering populism? A vote occurred in the Budget Committee last week, of which I happen to be ranking member, which crystallized the situation. Senator SANDERS from Vermont—whom I consider a friend and I enjoy immensely. He is a great guy. He has a great sense of humor, but we disagree on a lot of things. He runs as a Socialist. I run as a conservative. Senator SANDERS offered an amendment which said that the government—and the government, I assume, would be four or five people down at Treasury or four or five people down at—I don't know where they would be, some new offices somewhere—has the right to break up large corporations. It didn't say break up large corporations which had problems, which had overextended themselves, which everybody agrees should happen. That is what Senator WARNER was talking about. He has done extraordinary work in this area and I am supportive of his efforts on resolution authority, where if a big bank, a big financial house or a big entity gets into trouble, if they overextend themselves or they are essentially insolvent, they get broken up. There is no—the taxpayers do not come in, in any way, shape or manner and support that entity. That is what the Warner-Corker language does, and I believe the Senator from Connecticut has tried to incorporate a large amount of that. That should be our policy. But what the Sanders amendment said was anything—any financial house—could be broken up simply because it was deemed to be big, no matter how resilient or strong it is; no matter if it is a major player for our Nation in being more competitive internationally.

Remember, when an American company goes overseas, they want to use an American bank. They don't want to have to use the Credit Suisse or the Bank of Singapore. They want to use an American bank to follow them around the world, and those banks have to be pretty big to do that. Some of them are quite profitable and quite strong. Well, this language would have said no matter how strong and profitable you are and how robust you are and how much you contribute to the American economic system by giving us one level of financial services—which we need as a country, large financial institutions that can support very complex, sophisticated, international economic activity and domestic economic activity—that they would be broken up because a group of people in Washington didn't like them for social policy, social justice reasons. They didn't lend enough money to some group they wanted them to lend to or they lent too much money to some group they didn't want money lent to. For social justice reasons, we will go in and break up this company, even though it is totally solvent, strong, fiscally responsible.

That is the policy that was proposed in the Budget Committee. Ten people voted for that policy. Ten. Ten out of the twenty-two people who voted, voted for that policy. Incredible. Where does that stop? Where does that stop? Where does this section 106 stop? Do we break up Walmart because they are not union? Do we break up McDonald's because they sell food that some people think makes you too fat? Do we break up Coca-Cola because they have too much sugar in their products? Does anything that is big in this country get broken up because there is an attitude that big is bad, whether it contributes or not? Unless you happen to be big and union, in which case you get saved, of course, as the UAW was able to work out with GM and Chrysler.

That is the essence of this language. This language isn't about fixing the derivatives market at all. You can fix the derivatives market in a most comprehensive and substantive and effective way that keeps America the best place to create these types of products in the most sound and safe way. You can do that, and I have outlined pretty specifically how you would do it, without this section. I will close by reading one more time how the fair arbiter has defined it, the Federal Reserve. This is such a damaging section that it cannot be underestimated the damage to our economy were it to be approved.

Section 106 would impair financial stability and strong prudential regulations of derivatives; would have serious consequences for the competitiveness of U.S. financial institutions; and would be highly disruptive and costly, both for banks and their customers.

Remember, their customers are the people who work on Main Street for the companies that use derivatives, and almost every company in this country of any size uses a derivative to hedge their risks. Ironically, this is all done in the name of social justice because Wall Street is bad, so we are going to go out and cut off our nose to spite our face.

It is incomprehensible that a nation which has become as strong and as vibrant as we have by promoting a market economy would decide to go down this route, which is the antipathy of a market economy, but that is where we are. That is what has happened here, and that is the direction we are going. It is unnecessary, by the way, as I said earlier; unnecessary, because derivatives can be made safer and sounder by simply restructuring the transparency and the manner in which they are put on clearinghouses, limiting the amount of those that are subject to exemption, and pushing people toward exchanges, to the fullest extent possible and to the extent it will work. All that can be done without this type of language which is so destructive and, as the Fed has said, will have the exact opposite effect of what it is alleged to be doing.

Mr. President, I yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from New Hampshire. We are great friends and have worked together on a number of issues over the years together. In a matter of months, both of us will be former Members of this institution. Let me express my gratitude to him for his service over the years and his commitment to these issues.

He has focused his attention on the particular matter coming out of the Agriculture Committee, of which we are all very much aware. That proposal was supported by Democrats as well as, as my colleagues know, a Republican on the committee. As my colleague from Arkansas pointed out and as I am sure we have heard already, there was at least an appearance of bipartisanship on this bill.

The Senator from New Hampshire raises some very important issues. There are a number of our colleagues who have very strong feelings, different than those of my friend and colleague from New Hampshire, as we know; otherwise, it wouldn't have come out of the committee with the vote it did, and, therefore, the subject of a debate in this Chamber. I should, of course, begin by thanking him as a member of the Banking Committee for his participation involving our product in the Banking Committee.

The issue before us in the next few minutes is whether we can have this debate on these issues. Again, as my colleague from Alabama has pointed out on several occasions, we are 80 percent or 90 percent, whatever the number he wants to talk about, there in terms of agreeing to a major part of what our bill proposes. Obviously, we are not all there. You can't ever get "all there" in one of these debates, before you have the opportunity to do exactly that, where Members have a chance to be heard, to raise their ideas, a different point of view, and my friend from New Hampshire feels as passionately as do others about their point of view. That is the purpose of having a debate and an institution such as this for that debate to occur.

My hope would be, again, that when this motion to proceed occurs, though some may share the views of my friend from New Hampshire or some may have an alternative view, as is certainly the case in major parts of this bill as I have written it along with my committee members—that is the purpose for which this institution exists, to have that debate. No one Member, no one committee, no handful of Members should even suggest that they have the right to write the legislation without the consideration of others. So there is a difference of opinion on these matters.

I see my colleague from Vermont.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, if my friend will yield for a few minutes, I understand my friend from New Hampshire had something to say.

Mr. DODD. What time is the vote to occur?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. At 5 p.m.

Mr. DODD. The Senator from Vermont better take the next 3 minutes.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. President, I will do what I can in 3 minutes.

My good friend from New Hampshire, my colleague from across the Connecticut River, apparently does not have a problem with the fact that the largest financial institutions in this country that we bailed out because of their recklessness, greed, and illegal behavior have, since the bailout, become even larger. Three out of the four major financial institutions, all of which were bailed out, have become larger. No matter what anybody tells you, when one of these institutions is about to tip over and take a good part of the economy with them, despite the rhetoric today, people are going to be bailing them out, and they are going to lose millions of jobs if we don't.

The reality is, we have a situation now where the top six banks in this country, despite what the Senator from New Hampshire has suggested, now have total assets in excess of 63 percent of GDP. We are talking over $7 trillion. When you have six institutions with 63 percent of total assets compared to GDP, I think we have a problem, and we have a problem for two reasons. No. 1, we have a problem in terms of taxpayer liability and the fact that we will, once again, have to bail these behemoths out. Secondly, as Teddy Roosevelt told us 100-plus years ago, it is time to break up these guys because they have incredible concentration of ownership over our entire economy.

It is incomprehensible to me that the Senator from New Hampshire can be comfortable as a conservative—doesn't like big government but apparently doesn't mind huge financial institutions.

So I think that anyone who is not worried about the concentration of ownership within our financial institutions is missing an enormously important point, not just from too big to fail but economic concentration of ownership.

With that, I thank my friend from Connecticut and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to Calendar No. 349, S. 3217, the Restoring American Financial Stability Act of 2010.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call is waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the motion to proceed to S. 3217, the Restoring America's Financial Stability Act of 2010, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are mandatory under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. KYL. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Utah (Mr. BENNETT) and the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BOND).

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. SHAHEEN). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 57, nays 41, as follows:

---------	------

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 57, the nays are 41. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is not agreed to.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I enter a motion to reconsider the vote by which cloture was not invoked on the motion to proceed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is entered.

The Senator from Alaska is recognized.

Mr. BEGICH. Madam President, I was not intending to speak because I was hopeful that tonight we would have a simple vote that would move us to debate on a bill that I think people have been waiting for, for a long time, and that is getting reform to our banking institutions and financial institutions.

I will say for those who are watching and listening, I am new here. I have been here a little over a year, and I am trying to understand all of the process. But one thing I have learned is this great motion called a motion to proceed—a lot of people watch and see us vote and think, oh, the bill has gone down.

This motion was a very simple motion. It allowed us to move to the bill so we can debate. What I have heard over the last several weeks and literally the last 48 hours is the desire for people to add amendments and talk about it and do all of the things we want to do and to have full debate on the floor. But because of this simple motion that the Senate requires, which I think is kind of a foolish motion—that is my personal opinion—this motion to proceed, we are not even allowed now to debate this bill and offer amendments to this very important financial reform legislation.

So I am disappointed. I am disappointed for us as a body that we can't move forward. Second, I think my constituents in Alaska are disappointed that we don't have an opportunity to debate this issue and throw amendments on the floor to refine a good piece of legislation and move us forward to getting reform in our financial institutions, especially these megabanks.

Over the last year and a half since I have been here—almost a year and a half—all I have heard about is how bad this economy was a year or so ago and what caused it was the financial institutions just kind of crashing in because of the rules—or the lack of rules—under which they operated. The goal of the Senate is to try to create some rules, to make sure the public sees some transparency in these megabanks. Yet, for whatever reason, our friends on the other side are not willing to even move this forward.

But I also learned today, just reading some of the material we get every single minute around this place, that they have been working on a bill for months. I don't know where they have been working on this bill because I sure as heck haven't seen it. The public hasn't seen it. I do know they have been having a lot of meetings up on Wall Street, and maybe that is where they are writing the bill. But I haven't seen this bill for 2, 3, 4, 5 months, whatever the timetable they claim they have been working on some legislation. That is what I read today. But the public hasn't seen it. The American people haven't seen it. And we actually had a chance tonight to vote to allow us to see it and have a debate, and they wouldn't allow that.

So I am disappointed. I am disappointed that we don't have that opportunity. I am disappointed for the American people that we will not move forward on banking and financial reform, which is desperately needed. It is what crashed this economy, because of the lack of rules and the carelessness of so many with hard-earned dollars from working people across this country that they had put into banks and anticipated it would be put aside and protected and not put into some high-risk ventures that later on banks did and other megabanks did and caused this economy to be in the position it is in today.

In Alaska, we have some great institutions. Our credit unions and our community banks did a great job. They were not investing in risky ventures. They were not investing in risky financial instruments with hard-earned dollars people put into those banks as investors or people deposited in those banks. The credit unions and these small community banks did a great job.

This is our opportunity to not continue the status quo. It is clear to me that the other side is interested in the status quo, where billionaires became billionaires again by betting against the recovery of the economy, which is amazing, to me. They bet against the American people. They hoped they would be foreclosed on. Those are the rules the other side wants to continue. Now, maybe I am living in another world. I am betting on the American people. I am betting on Alaskans, that we want to move forward, not the status quo where this economy almost crashed and burned.

At the same time, we want to make sure that banks in the future cannot be coming to the taxpayers and asking us for a bailout because that ain't happening, at least while I am here, anymore. It is outrageous that the taxpayers got left behind in this process.

So, again, I am disappointed. It is amazing, as I said, that they are drafting some bill somewhere in some dark room somewhere. I don't know if it is in the Capitol or up on Wall Street. It is somewhat amazing to me, the people were complaining some time ago on some legislation they said we were drafting in the back room—which was not true—and now they are doing the exact same thing they complained about. The hypocrisy is unbelievable.

So I was not planning to come down here and speak. I was voting like the rest of us, thinking we were going to move forward, and here we are: No bill to offer amendments, no bill to strengthen our financial position. Same old business as usual, status quo. The rich get richer. The people who are working hard every single day suffer, lost their 401(k)s or their education retirement accounts they set aside for their kids or thought they put them in a bank that was supposed to be secure, ended up who knows where, except in a few people's pockets who were working on Wall Street.

So I am disappointed. I would hope our colleagues on the other side would allow us the opportunity to offer amendments to financial reform legislation that will, for once and for all, hold these financial institutions accountable for the actions they caused to this country that almost put us on the verge of bankruptcy.

Thank you for the opportunity to vent, I guess would be my view right now, in aggravation of what is going on. But, again, it is our job to hold these financial institutions accountable for what they did to the taxpayers of this country. I hope our colleagues on the other side will see the light of day and join us to offer a debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. BENNET. Madam President, I am pleased to be here with my colleague from Alaska. I also was not planning to come to the floor to talk about this tonight because I thought the vote was going to pass. This is called a motion to proceed, and around here, I think that is Senate-speak for a motion to not get anything done. That is what happens when we do these motions.

It is particularly aggravating because I was back in Colorado this weekend, as I am every weekend, traveling the State and had the chance to see the TV from time to time. You couldn't turn on a television station without seeing some politician from this town on TV talking about the importance of getting this work done, Democrats and Republicans, people taking the time out of their weekend to say to the American people: We are actually working hard to try to correct the problems that led us into the worst recession since the Great Depression. Then we all get back to town on Monday and we don't get anything done. We take a vote, not on the bill but a vote that would just allow us to debate the bill, to amend the bill, to get Republican amendments and Democrat amendments, to improve the legislation, and we are told we can't do that. We can have the debate on the airwaves, we can have the debate all weekend long on television in front of the American people, but when we come back here, in theory, to do the people's business, somehow we cannot debate it anymore. This is the reason so many people across the country think Washington is completely out of touch.

There are people saying: Well, the recovery started. Everything is OK again. And I am glad to see there are some signs of improvement in our economy. But for the families in Colorado, there is still a lot of struggle going on, there are still a lot of people worried about losing their houses or how to replace the houses they have lost, worried about losing their jobs or how to pay for their kids' higher education.

The last period of economic growth in our country's history before we were pitched into the worst recession since the Great Depression was the first time in this Nation's history ever, ever, that our economy grew, our gross domestic product grew, but middle-class incomes fell in the United States. In Colorado, it fell by $800, while the cost of health insurance went up by 97 percent, the cost of higher education went up by 50 percent.

Our families are recovering not just from one recession but effectively from two recessions, and you would think the least we could do would be to put some commonsense regulations in place that, had they been in place before the last crisis, we wouldn't have had the crisis to begin with.

Our last period of economic growth in this country was based on debt, too much debt at every level of the economy.

The consumers have too much debt. Washington has too much debt. Some bankholding companies in New York that historically had 12 to 14 times debt to equity decided during that period to go to 28 and 30 times. By any standard, it is an incredibly risky strategy. To make matters worse, the way they leveraged themselves up was with derivatives that no regulator was looking at, that shareholders didn't even understand, that bondholders didn't even understand. The commonsense reforms that are in place in this bill—because of the work of the Banking Committee, the work of the Agriculture Committee, both committees on which I serve—would have cured that problem.

Ultimately, what we are trying to do is put ourselves in the position of never having to say some financial institution is too big to fail or that the taxpayers have to hold a gun to their head and clean up somebody else's greedy mistake; to make sure there is transparency in the marketplace so we know what securities are being traded.

I have spent half my life in the private sector, a lot of it in the capital markets. This is not an antibusiness piece of legislation. In fact, quite the contrary. There are a lot of businesses out there that have been harmed terribly by judgments that were not made because they were prudent business decisions but to make a fast buck.

Here we are on Monday night, after a weekend of people talking on television programs, and we can't get done the American people's business. Again, this is not an up-or-down vote on the bill. This is just a vote so we can have a debate on the floor of the Senate, so we have the opportunity to amend and improve the bill. I am sure the bill is not perfect. In fact, I know it is not perfect. It has room for improvement.

I see my colleague from the Banking Committee from the Commonwealth of Virginia is here.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, let me thank my colleague from Colorado, a member of the Banking Committee, who has been part of trying to get this bill right over the last 14, 15 months. He has spent a career in the private sector, as I did. I think we both can read a balance sheet. We both understand it is the capital markets that drive the American economy. I think we both agree we want to keep America the capital of capital formation for the whole world. We don't want this to migrate to London or Shanghai or elsewhere around the world.

We also know 18 months after we came to the precipice of a financial meltdown ought to be enough time to put rules of the road into place so we can give the market what it craves most, which is predictability.

I will not go on at length. I had the opportunity earlier when the chairman was here, and I think, unfortunately, I probably spoke for about 40 minutes going through how we got to this point and all the things in this bill to put these new rules of the road in place. I will only make two or three quick points.

One, in my 15 months here, as a new guy, I have never seen a bill that has had more bipartisan input than this piece of legislation. I had a great colleague in Senator CORKER from Tennessee. We worked on the too-big-to-fail and the resolution piece. There are places that can still be improved. I would love to work with Senator CORKER on some technical amendments to make this better. But this was a bipartisan piece of legislation.

Two, I actually think there is a great deal of agreement on both sides of the aisle about our policy goals. I am not talking about the role of government or who should get covered or not covered, the way it was with health care. We all agree, no more taxpayer bailouts, more transparency, that there ought to be some sense of fairness in the financial system, and that consumers ought to know the financial products they are using and buying, or mortgages they are making have some basic underlying protections. I have yet to hear any of my colleagues on the other side disagree with those basic premises. I think we are still working toward what I hope will be, as opposed to some of the disappointments that have come out of this Chamber, something we can all be proud of and something the American people can be proud of in that we found some common ground.

I have to acknowledge, I am not a very good political prognosticator. I assumed last week there was an 80-percent chance we would get a bipartisan bill. I still believe that. I am not sure anybody who is listening tonight understands procedurally why our colleagues who share the same goals, those of us who have been working in bipartisan teams, who have amendments that will help strengthen the bill, shouldn't be spending tonight talking about those amendments, offering those amendments, offering those improvements, having those who disagree debating, when there was a bipartisan product to date and will be a bipartisan end solution, I believe. The American people demand, 18 months after the fact, that we put these new financial rules of the road in place.

Unlike many of my colleagues, I get to go home to Virginia tonight. If I run into a Virginian who wants an explanation of why we are not on the bill, I would not know what to tell them. My friend from Colorado spent the weekend crisscrossing Colorado. He is asking folks to rehire him. I share he is head scratching on why we aren't here talking about something on which there is not major policy differences. There is common agreement that we need to have reform, and a lot of the reform parts there is agreement on. Where there is not agreement, there is actually more bipartisan consensus on the form of the amendments.

I would love to hear from the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. BENNET. Madam President, I thank my colleague from Virginia. As he was talking, I was thinking about my work in the real world, as he has had that experience. If you were in a position where everybody wanted to get it done, if there was general agreement that you were 80 or 90 percent of the way there, the way to get it done was not to not continue discussion. It wasn't to say: Well, I am going to pick up and fly back to Denver or fly back to Virginia until cooler heads prevail. It was to stay in the room and get it done.

I think, particularly when this isn't about a private sector transaction, this is about the American people's business, the people who have hired everybody here to do this job, it is a shame that we should not be out here tonight in a bipartisan way figuring out how to cross the t's and dot the i's and put a framework in place that would have prevented the catastrophe our families are now continuing to live through.

Sometimes that is one of the things people forget. There are parts of the economy that have recovered faster than others. There are parts of the economy where people are getting hired or paid, other parts where people are still struggling along. The people I saw this weekend were people who were struggling along. They are not interested in engaging in class warfare, as some people say. What they are interested in is making sure we create a set of conditions where the game is not rigged and where they have some predictability in their lives as business people and as working families.

Like my colleague, I am new. Maybe we don't know exactly the way this place works. I hope somewhere in this building there are people who are coming together to figure out how we can create the conditions where we could at least get a vote to have the conversation about how to get to that last 10 percent on this bill.

Mr. WARNER. Again, one final comment. I know the Presiding Officer is a new Member as well. This is one of those moments when there has been a year and a half of bipartisan work that has gone on, when there seems to be a commonality of interest in what the goals of financial reform are. I don't know about the Presiding Officer, I don't know about my friend from Colorado, but I never got the memo that said our job wasn't actually to get stuff done. There were legitimate, major policy differences in the health care discussion. But in this discussion, there are things that need to be worked out, but the goals we have all agreed on. The bipartisan working groups have been at it for more than a year.

I implore my colleagues from the other side of the aisle, I don't know if maybe there was some procedural shenanigans, that kind of back and forth. But I hope my colleagues from the other side of the aisle—I see my colleague actually who has great expertise in the financial sector, the new Senator from North Carolina coming in—some of the newer folks, whatever the reason our colleagues on the other side didn't want to get to a real discussion of the bill, I hope they can come back later tonight, first thing tomorrow, and we can move to this bill, talk about it, put forward those amendments. I know I will have some bipartisan amendments to make the bill stronger.

I know my colleagues will. At the end of the day, let us get the people's business done. As my friend has said, the Dow may be back north of 11,000, but that doesn't mean much if you don't have a job. One of the ways we can guarantee the financial markets will continue to have the capital to make the loans, to make the investments, to create that next wave of jobs is to make sure we have in place financial rules of the road.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mrs. HAGAN. Madam President, I, too, am disappointed that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have decided against even debating Wall Street reform legislation in the Senate. It has been almost 2 years since our financial system stood on the brink of absolute catastrophe. The meltdown on Wall Street has wreaked havoc on Main Street across America. Millions of Americans lost their homes, their jobs, their retirement savings. Taxpayers were asked to fund a massive bailout of Wall Street.

Here we are, a full 2 years later, trying to debate a bill that will establish new rules of the road, create a more stable financial system, and ensure the American taxpayer will not be asked to bail out Wall Street banks again. I am sorry to say my colleagues today voted to stand up for Wall Street instead of standing up for all the people on Main Street who lost their job and their entire life savings.

They voted against the seniors who saw their 401(k)s instantly eaten away by the reckless games Wall Street was playing with their hard-earned money.

In my State, this recession, the worst since the Great Depression, has meant that currently half a million North Carolinians are out of work. In many families, both the husband and wife are out of a job. They are worried how they will put food on the table for their families.

Democrats have been working in good faith for many months on a bill to hold Wall Street accountable for gambling with the money of North Carolinians and people across the country. I know Chairman DODD has been working with Republicans on the Banking Committee for the last year and a half. The time has come to have this debate on the floor of the Senate. Wall Street reform means ending taxpayer-funded bailouts. It also means establishing new standards for the complicated financial products that contributed to this economic downturn.

The purpose of this bill is to ensure the recent financial meltdown never happens again and that we protect seniors who lost retirement savings and small business owners who got caught up in the credit freeze and the countless Americans who lost their job. It means protection for consumers from irresponsible banking practices and greater certainty for bankers. Banks need to be able to understand what the ground rules will be so they can focus on the business of banking. North Carolina is a leader in the banking industry. Both our State's banks and banking customers will benefit from responsible financial reforms.

The proposed legislation also creates an office of financial literacy that will develop initiatives intended to educate and empower consumers to make informed financial decisions. Our students today need the tools to understand financial products and how to manage debt, including mortgages, student loans, and credit cards.

I hope my colleagues will listen to the American people on this issue. It is imperative we pass commonsense Wall Street reform so American taxpayers will never again have to shoulder the cost of a financial crisis.

Madam President, I yield my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. SANDERS. Madam President, I am disappointed but not surprised that our Republican colleagues have chosen not to go forward in terms of financial reform because we should be very clear that when we do financial Wall Street reform, we are taking on not only the most powerful people in the United States of America but some of the most powerful people in the world—people of endless resources.

When Congress deregulated Wall Street, against my vote, Wall Street and their allies, over a 10-year period, spent $5 billion fighting for deregulation so they could be in a position to do anything they wanted, which was, of course, what brought us the terrible recession we are currently in. Last year alone, in 2009, the financial interests spent $300 million in lobbying, campaign contributions, in order to fight finance and Wall Street reform. So I am not surprised that at this point our Republican friends have not chosen to go forward. I hope they change their mind, and I hope they know back home the American people are profoundly disgusted at the behavior of Wall Street, and they want to make sure we never again will be placed in the position of having to bail out people who, through their greed and recklessness, have brought suffering to tens and tens of millions of Americans.

As we proceed—and I believe we will proceed—to Wall Street reform, it is also important we not just pass something for the sake of a press release but we do something substantive. There are a lot of issues out there. I know Senator DODD has brought forth a bill with 1,600 pages in it. There are dozens and dozens and dozens of important issues. I want to touch on simply three that I believe are essential if we are going to be serious—underline “serious”—about Wall Street reform.

Issue No. 1. I receive calls every week from Vermonters—and I suspect the Presiding Officer does from people in New Hampshire—who are disgusted by having to pay 25-, 30-, 35-percent interest rates on their credit cards. In my view, usury is immoral. If you look at Christianity or Judaism or Islam or any of the major religions, they make the point that charging outrageous interest rates to desperate people is immoral.

We finally have to end usury in the United States. We have to put a cap on the interest rates that financial institutions can charge when they issue credit cards. The amendment I will be bringing before the floor is similar to what has existed for several decades now for credit unions. Credit unions today are doing just fine, but they cannot charge more than 15-percent interest rates, except under exceptional circumstances. If it is good for credit unions, it is good, in my view, for Wall Street and large financial institutions.

Second of all, I think there is great skepticism about the role of the Fed and the lack of transparency that exists in the Federal Reserve. About a year ago, Chairman Bernanke came before the Budget Committee on which I serve and I asked him a pretty simple question. I said: Mr. Chairman, you have lent out trillions—underline “trillions”—of dollars in zero or near-zero interest loans to the largest financial institutions in America. Could you please tell me and the American people who received those trillions of dollars in loans?

I do not think that was a terribly unfair question to ask. Mr. Bernanke said: No, I am not going to tell you. He gave me his reasons why. I disagreed. The American people have a right to know who received those loans. The American people have a right to know whether some of those large financial institutions took those zero-percent interest loans and then went out and bought government bonds, T bonds, at 3-percent interest, which, if true—as I suspect it is—is a huge scam, a huge scam. So we need transparency in the Fed, and I am going to bring an amendment to the floor to do that.

The third point I want to make is, in, I believe, November of 2009 I introduced legislation—three pages—very simple legislation, which called for breaking up large financial institutions. As this bill proceeds, my colleagues Senator BROWN and Senator KAUFMAN are going to be offering a bill along those lines, which basically says if an institution is so large that its collapse will bring systemic damage to the entire economy, we have to start breaking up those institutions—break them up. If a financial institution is too big to fail, in my view, it is too big to exist.

The issue here is not just the liability, the potential liability for the taxpayers of this country if a large financial institution collapses and we have to bail them out, it is also an economic issue. Are we comfortable when, according to Simon Johnson, the former chief economist of the IMF, “as a result of the crisis and various government rescue efforts, the largest six banks in our economy now have total assets in excess of 63 percent of GDP. . . . This is a significant increase from even 2006. . . .”

I find it quite interesting the senior Senator from New Hampshire was on the floor a little while ago attacking me because in the Budget Committee I brought up a resolution which lost 12 to 10 to begin to break up these large financial institutions. I get a little bit tired of our conservative friends who say: Oh, the government cannot do anything. We hate big government. But apparently they do not hate large financial institutions, six of which have assets equivalent to over 60 percent of the GDP of this country.

Teddy Roosevelt, a good Republican, over 100 years ago started breaking up large financial institutions, large corporations. What we are talking about now is a handful of corporations, of financial institutions that play a very negative role in creating a stranglehold and a lack of competition in our entire economy. I intend to be strongly supporting the amendment brought forth by Senator BROWN and Senator KAUFMAN. I think it is moving exactly in the right direction.

So I am disappointed but not surprised that the Republicans have not chosen to go forward on Wall Street reform. I hope they will reconsider that. When we do go forward, I hope we listen to the American people, we take serious action, and we start the process of standing up to some of the most powerful people not only in this country but in the world.

With that, Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Madam President, I appreciate the words from the Senator from Vermont and his support of the Brown-Kaufman amendment and his work on real Wall Street reform.

Two years ago, as we know, we were on the verge of another Great Depression. Wall Street had gorged itself on greed and junk debt. Markets panicked and chaos and hardship threatened Main Street. At the request of the Bush administration, we acted swiftly, we acted bipartisanship, to pull ourselves back from the brink of economic collapse. We saved the banks temporarily, as we should have, but Wall Street recklessness, aided and abetted by lax regulation and deregulation and appointments by the Bush administration of people far too friendly to Wall Street, had done its damage. Wall Street's greed led to more than 7 million Americans losing their jobs.

Go to Mansfield or Lima or Sandusky or Cleveland or Zanesville and see the damage it did to American manufacturing. Wall Street's excess and rampant speculation caused nearly 6 million home foreclosures. Go to neighborhoods in Over-the-Rhine in Cincinnati or go to neighborhoods on the west side of Cleveland or go to neighborhoods in north Columbus and see the damage Wall Street excess and rampant speculation caused to homes and families in my State.

Here we are 2 years later and Wall Street is continuing to risk Main Street jobs, Main Street pensions, and Main Street homes on get-rich-quick schemes. Here we are 2 years later in reach of legislation designed to put an end to the recklessness, and Wall Street and Senate Republicans—and sometimes it is hard to tell the difference—are delaying and hoping to kill any such reforms. We cannot afford to let this be delayed any further. Bear Stearns collapsed 2 years ago.

Senator DODD, after careful thought, put out a working draft of legislation the following November. There was a big hue and cry over that draft—many said it was too tough on Wall Street—but Chairman DODD continued working on the draft, talking to Republicans and Democrats on the Banking Committee and throughout the Senate. He put together bipartisan working groups, including Senators CORKER and WARNER, Senators GREGG and REED, Senators DODD and SHELBY, and Senators CRAPO and SCHUMER—a Republican and a Democrat in each negotiating team.

So we have been working on this since the start of the financial crisis. It has been months since Senator DODD first put his legislation out for the public's review. But here we are tonight—requesting a simple up-or-down vote so we can start debate—and the entire Senate Republican caucus said no.

They are filibustering. They are delaying. I think they are trying to destroy this bill. All we are trying to do tonight is—not pass legislation; we know we are not ready to do that yet—all we are trying to do is move the bill forward so any Senator, whether it is a Republican colleague or a Democratic colleague, can offer an amendment. There are good amendments out there that can make a strong bill even stronger.

There is an amendment going to be offered by Senator CORKER. He and I talked about this on our Sunday morning show this week—just yesterday—an amendment on clawing back executive compensation that he has been working on that seems to make sense.

There is an amendment Senator KAUFMAN and I have been working on to put size limits on banks and end the days of banks that are too big to fail. If banks are too big to fail, those banks simply are too big.

I would add, 15 years ago, the combined assets of the six largest banks in America were 17 percent of GDP. The combined assets of the six largest banks in America today are 63 percent of GDP.

There are other amendments that can finally hold Wall Street accountable for its own mistakes offered by some Republicans and some Democrats. We just want to move forward so those amendments can be considered.

So it is unfortunate when Senate Republican leadership—and I know there are Republicans who want to work with us, but when Senate Republican leadership pulls their colleagues back from doing the right thing. We saw the same tactic with the health insurance debate—delay and delay—only to find obstruction at the end. We know if they can delay and delay, as officials in the American bank associations have said, that is the best way to kill this legislation and to get their way—if they can delay this for months and months and months. We saw those same delaying tactics with essential programs such as unemployment insurance and COBRA.

This is not a time to play games with the financial well-being of hard-working Americans, of hard-working middle-class Ohioans. I wish Republican Senators could vote to do the right thing instead of simply following the political calculus that the minority leader and the rest of the Republican leadership wants. It certainly is not the will of the American people.

Just today, a Washington Post/ABC News poll release said 65 percent of Americans favor “stricter federal regulations on the way banks and other financial institutions conduct their business.”

It certainly is not following the experiences of people in Ohio and across the country who have lost jobs and lost much of their wealth because of Wall Street greed and excess. It is not following the experiences of small business owners across the Nation.

I have talked to small business owners in Dayton and Springfield and Zanesville and Cambridge and Steubenville and Findlay who simply cannot get credit. They cannot understand, with the money Wall Street has been rewarded with, if you will—or they were bailed out with—that they still cannot get the kind of credit they need to make their businesses a success.

This legislation would make financial institutions, not American taxpayers, pay for their mistakes. We can't predict the next economic disaster, but if we protect consumers and investors, we can probably prevent it. Wall Street reform could provide the strongest consumer protections for Ohioans. No more of the tricks and the traps in the mortgage market and elsewhere that led to the near collapse of our economy.

Wall Street banks wrecked our economy, got a taxpayer-funded bailout, and are profiting again, while working Americans continue to suffer. We can't sit by any longer and continue to do nothing. We need to move now. No more meltdowns. No more bailouts. No more cutting backroom deals to prevent reform.

In order for us to get there, we need to move this bill forward. We need our Republican colleagues to say yes—not vote for the bill but just say yes to move the bill forward so we can actually have debate on the bill. We need to bring this bill out into the public light so the American people know who is fighting on their side.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll, and the following Senators entered the Chamber and answered to their names:

[Quorum No. 2 Leg.]

Brown (OH)	Kaufman	Menendez
Burr	Klobuchar	Reid
Cardin	Lincoln	Schumer
Dorgan	McCain	Shaheen
Durbin	McCaskill

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is not present.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I move to instruct the Sergeant at Arms to request the presence of absent Senators, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the motion.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. BAYH), the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. BYRD), the Senator from Delaware (Mr. CARPER), the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON), the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. KOHL), the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. LANDRIEU), the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN), the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI), the Senator from West Virginia (Mr. ROCKEFELLER), and the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WEBB), are necessarily absent.

Mr. KYL. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from Utah (Mr. BENNETT), the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BOND), the Senator from Nevada (Mr. ENSIGN), the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. JOHANN), the Senator from Arizona (Mr. KYL), the Senator from Alaska (Ms. MURKOWSKI), the Senator from Kansas (Mr. ROBERTS), the Senator from Ohio (Mr. VOINOVICH), and the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. WICKER).

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MERKLEY). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 50, nays 31, as follows:

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A quorum is present.

The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, what is the status of the business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to proceed to S. 3217.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I wish to talk about the vote we had just a few minutes ago, a vote that was a victory for Wall Street but not a victory for the American taxpayer. We hear our Republican colleagues proclaim they are for Wall Street reform, that they are on the reform bandwagon, but then they seem to pull the emergency brake. They say they are on the reform bandwagon, and yet when they have a chance to move forward and simply to debate the process, they pull the emergency brake.

The approach our colleagues on the other side of the aisle have taken on Wall Street reform symbolizes America's worst fears about how the powerful operate. They held a closed-door strategy session with Wall Street executives that, from published reports, included solicitations for their campaign committee. Then they marched into this Chamber with a script, a Wall Street playbook written by the Nation's most significant Republican political consultant. Rather than debating what was in the bill, they went to the Wall Street playbook. They waved the flag. They proclaimed their patriotic intention to protect Americans from those who took us to the brink of economic disaster. But then they played the fear card and they talked about bailouts and told Americans they would pay.

Americans realize our Wall Street reform is actually what, in essence, has to be done to end taxpayer bailouts, that opponents are just playing fast and loose with the facts to protect the big banks instead of taxpayers. Our colleagues on the other side claim to embrace Wall Street reform in front of the cameras, while behind the scene, behind closed doors they continue to strategize with Wall Street about how to kill this legislation.

I am sure families in my State and across the country who are hurting, who lost their jobs, their health care, lost their homes because of the reckless excesses of Wall Street profiteers driven by profits at any cost, the value of their property has plummeted, their 401(k)s have been decimated, their hope for a decent retirement that they had worked for is largely gone at this point, American taxpayers want accountability, not trickery. They want all of us in this Chamber to stand up for them and mean it, not stand up for Wall Street and try to find a clever way to make it look like they are for Main Street.

We need only to look at the actions of those on the other side over the past 2 weeks to see the other story. They huddle with Wall Street. They strategize about how to protect Wall Street, but they make it sound like they are protecting Main Street. It is a game of mirrors: appear to stand for reform but do Wall Street's bidding. They hired a political consultant to tell them which words to use and came up with: The American people do not like taxpayer bailouts. All you have to say about this real effort for reform is that it is a taxpayer bailout, and they will hate it.

The only problem is, the facts do not fit their rhetoric. The bill we would have gone on to debate, in fact, ends taxpayer bailouts by reining in the excesses of Wall Street, and that is exactly why Wall Street is working so hard with the other side to defeat it. They play the fear card, as they always have. Then they try to distance themselves from that consultant, but not before they march in lockstep to the microphones and tell Americans this is a bailout bill, it will cost taxpayers billions and lead to more and bigger bailouts, that it is another government intrusion into their lives.

Fear is a powerful force, and in the short term sometimes fear is far more powerful than the truth. But in the long term, it simply is not true. Maybe that is why truth has been the first casualty of every argument we have heard from the other side, whether on the Recovery Act, on putting people to work, on making health care more affordable, on extending unemployment insurance for those who are struggling, and now on reining in those who brought us to the edge of economic ruin after 8 years of lax regulatory policies that let Wall Street run wild.

Now that the fear card does not seem to be working, suddenly our friends stand in front of the microphones and claim to be in favor of reform. Yet at the end of it all they could have cast a vote to let us begin to work together on the process. But they continue to confer with Wall Street and tell their members once again, as they have on every major piece of reform legislation that has come before this Chamber, to stand in lockstep and vote no—a "no" vote against even starting the debate.

I say to my colleagues today, blindly following your consultant did not work out so well, and neither will blindly following an obstructionist strategy work out very well either. The American people have figured out the trick. You cannot talk like a gladiator and put on the show for the taxpayers and then be a mouthpiece for Wall Street.

Doing nothing and calling it leadership is not an answer. Saying no once again and keeping the status quo is not an option. Saying no to sensible Wall Street reform is a sure-fire way to wind up right back in the same mess we just got out of recently. Saying no is the surest recipe for more taxpayer bailouts.

The bottom line is, we as Democrats are here to say yes to commonsense reform so that Wall Street excesses will never take us to the brink of economic ruin again, yes to a free market. But there is a difference between a free market and a free-for-all market. What we have had is a free-for-all market.

Our Republican colleagues seem to want the free-for-all system to remain exactly as it is: same lack of rules, same lack of oversight, same megaprofits for the large Wall Street banks. I ask, at whose expense, at what cost to American families, at what risk to the very foundation of our economic system?

If our colleagues are serious about ending taxpayer bailouts, then they should favor making banks pay for their reckless behavior. Instead, they come to the floor one after another in an attempt to gut it. What they oppose, what they are once again saying no to is asking the Wall Street firms to pay to insure against their own failure.

We should also remember today, after this vote, as we look back at 8 years of an administration that nodded and winked and turned a blind eye to Wall Street's schemes, that history has a way of repeating itself. Let's not forget the reckless behavior of the big banks and other entities and lenders and Wall Street speculators that sent the economy into a near depression last year has a historic precedent, as do the muscular safeguards and regulations that we must implement this year to protect consumers so it never happens again. That precedent was the Great Depression. It came after a period of Republican Presidents—Harding, Coolidge, Hoover—who sided with free-wheeling companies to overcome commonsense regulations. We had no choice but to clean up the mess with a period of sustained, robust regulations implemented by another Democratic administration at that time.

Once again, the time has come after the economic damage has been done to put in place a series of robust reforms and safeguards so it never happens again. Once again, just as they did after the Great Depression, our Republican colleagues are saying, no, leave things as they are. There is no need for Wall Street reforms. Let the market take care of itself. They want to say no to the lessons of history. We need to say yes to commonsense reforms; yes to sensible oversight and regulations; yes to protecting the jobs, homes, and retirement savings of families who have been playing by the rules; yes to protecting them from more reckless financial gambling and creative derivative schemes; yes to guaranteeing taxpayers will never be on the hook the next time risky corporate decisions force a too-big-to-fail company into bankruptcy.

We cannot have a system where big Wall Street banks and others take huge gambles knowing they can keep the gains if they win but we as a country will pay the costs if they lose. That is playing Russian roulette with our economy. When that happens, the victims are hard-working families who did everything right. They played by the rules. Wall Street did not. And they expect us to make it right. They worked as hard as they could at every job they had and earned all their lives to buy a home and raise their families, send their kids to college, and maybe, just maybe, put something away for a decent, safe, comfortable retirement.

Now they sit at the kitchen table at night asking heartrending questions: Can we afford the mortgage this month? Can we keep our health insurance? How do we pay our credit card bills? Will we keep our jobs? Will we lose our home? Can we ever retire?

These are the families who needed a "yes" vote a little while ago. They need our protection. They did not deserve what happened to them. We have a chance to make things right so it will never happen again. The Senate needs to take up Wall Street reform.

The choice is simple: Do we stand for a banking system that is fair, transparent, and honest or do we stand for a banking system that takes advantage of consumers, one in which speculation runs wild and puts the entire economy at constant risk? Do we stand on the side of working families who played by the rules, or do we stand on the side of Wall Street and big banks? Not the community banks because they are not the ones who got us into this but those large institutions that have gotten far too comfortable writing their own rules.

In my view, the choice is clear. It is time for the Senate to step to the plate on behalf of working families. It is time for reform. It is time to end too big to fail. It is time to rein in the bulls. It is time to protect hard-working taxpayers. It is time to simply move forward and take up the debate.

I hope the majority leader will bring us to another vote so that we can, in fact, get to that moment in which we can move forward and have the debate and have the amendments and ultimately know who stands for the taxpayer and who stands for Wall Street. I hope there will be enough votes here to make sure this institution of the people, by the people, and for the people is going to put them first.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, I rise to express my disappointment that we were unable to reach an agreement today to begin debate on reforming Wall Street. As my colleague from New Jersey, Senator MENENDEZ, so eloquently put it, this is not the time to say no. This is the time to move forward and get something done.

Someone referred to the Senate the other day as dysfunction junction. It was a nice little rhyme, and I can tell you it is incidents such as the one we saw tonight, where our friends on the other side of the aisle will not even allow debate to start, that leads to that sad name. We are ready to move away from the station. There are those of us who have been out talking to our constituents, and we know the train has to leave the junction. The train has to move ahead, and we need to move ahead with this Wall Street reform.

Last week, I came to the floor with some of my colleagues to talk about another delay—a delay of nominations. These are nominees who have been voted out of committee, sometimes with unanimous support, but are now waiting months for a full vote on the Senate floor. During this same timeframe in the Bush administration, five nominees were outstanding. Yet the same time during the Obama administration over 100 nominees are outstanding. So if there is anyone who doesn't believe us about this delay and what is going on, look at those numbers and look at what is happening with this reform.

It is ironic we are talking about putting rules in place to prevent Wall Street from gaming the system, when we have plenty of Senators who are gaming the system right here. But there is a problem with that. The American people aren't a game of chance. They don't want the dice rolled over their futures. They don't want the dice rolled over their family homes. They want us to get this done.

Look at what has happened with this filibuster, again stopping us from going to debate. In the entire 19th century, including the struggle and the debate about slavery, fewer than two dozen filibusters were mounted. Between 1933 and the coming of the war, it was attempted only twice. Under Eisenhower and JFK, the pattern continued. In 8 years of the Eisenhower administration, only two filibusters were mounted. Under Kennedy, there were four. But now we see this tactic being employed over and over. This year alone, since January, we have had over 50 filibusters.

I can tell you I believe, in the end, we are going to get this done. I believe, in the end, we will have Republican votes for this bill because I know there are some colleagues on that side of the aisle who want to get this bill done and who have been working to get it done. But the reasons I heard raised today for holding up debate do not ring true.

First off, advancing the idea that this bill isn't already a bipartisan product would be a slight to all those who have worked on it. I see Senator DODD over here, who worked for months and months and months to craft a bipartisan bill. The bill we have before us is the product of countless hours of negotiation between Members on both sides of the aisle and incorporates many of the agreements that were reached.

If anyone thinks there is a more important issue to have before the Senate, that there is some reason we shouldn't be debating this, I don't think they have been talking to the people back home. The people understand that while Wall Street maybe got a cold and has bounced back and is doing well, Main Street has pneumonia. Small businesses today are still starved for credit. The small banks, which Senator MENENDEZ pointed out had nothing to do with starting this crisis, are also suffering. That is what is happening in this country today.

Nearly 3 years after our financial system began to melt down, America continues to suffer the effects of the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression. Millions of Americans have lost their jobs, homes, retirements, and savings. Although some key indicators are beginning to move in the right direction, I can tell you, having been home this last weekend, many families are still struggling, and the economic damage is slow to reverse itself on Main Street.

Meanwhile, on Wall Street, the largest firms handed out record bonuses totaling nearly $146 billion, an 18-percent increase from 2008. What do we have at home? U.S. per capita income declined 2.6 percent. Boiled down to its essentials, the financial crisis was about risk. Everyone thought they could manage but, instead, things got wildly out of control. Three years later—and I think it is hard for people to believe this—we can't seem to even get past a debate tonight about actually getting the bill on the floor. Three years later Wall Street is still operating by the same old rules. That is why it is so important we begin this debate.

There may be some of my colleagues who think all Wall Street needs is fixing a few potholes. Well, that has been tried before and it certainly didn't work. I think what we need are some stop signs at some intersections and some very good traffic cops. There is a lot more to the modern financial system, as we all learned, than meets the eye. We need transparency and accountability. That is in this bill. We need an early warning system for too big to fail. That is in the bill.

We need derivatives reform, and I am not talking about the good work businesses do to weather an economic storm when they hedge their bets within their businesses. I am talking about the wildly out-of-control, over-the-counter derivative trails when financial institutions were trading things they didn't even understand and creating the big mess we are in.

Reform legislation must include, and this legislation does include, provisions to look out for the best interests of consumers by educating them about their financial choices, ensuring that they have access to less risky products and protecting them from abusive sales practices, including from nonbank lenders. When we look back at what happened the last few years, it is like Wall Street was driving down the street in their Ferrari and the government was following behind in a Model T Ford. That has to stop.

When we look at the history of this country, when we have been confronted by major challenges, we always rose to those challenges. When Hitler was running across Europe and Pearl Harbor happened, our country didn't just say no. We rose to the challenge, and the greatest generation won that war. When the Russians were going to put a man on the Moon, we didn't just say: Oh, go ahead. We are not going to get involved.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send a cloture motion to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the Chair directs the clerk to read the motion.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to proceed to Calendar No. 349, S. 3217, the Restoring American Financial Stability Act of 2010.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I express my appreciation to the Senator from Minnesota for allowing my interruption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota retains the floor.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. As I was saying, Mr. President, this country has done well not by saying no but by saying yes and by moving ahead and getting things done. We can't let this continue. We have to put these rules in place.

Some of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle are, in good faith, negotiating; others are not. The American people will not allow this gamesmanship to continue. The game is over. Let's debate. Let's get some amendments. There are changes we can make to the bill, changes I support. But the only way we are going to get this done is by getting this bill on the floor and allowing for debate. The American people deserve nothing less.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. KAUFMAN. Mr. President, I first came to this place in 1973, working for then-Senator BIDEN, and one of the things you learn around here, after you have been here a while, is the American people don't care about procedure. That is one of those things they don't care about—procedure. It is all too complicated. I don't blame them. Half the time, I don't know what the procedure is. Procedure doesn't work.

But during those 37-some years, every once in a while something comes along where procedure matters. Our friends on the other side of the aisle have had a field day on procedure for the past 15 months I have been here, and they count on the fact that nobody in America cares about procedure. So what they have done is, time and again, they have filibustered motions to proceed. That is hard to explain to someone out in America.

What is a filibuster on a motion to proceed? That is hard to figure out. So you can get away with that. You can filibuster on a motion to proceed and then you can filibuster on the bill and then filibuster on cloture and all these words mean nothing to most Americans.

I am all for filibusters. I think it is important to maintain the rights of political minorities, and that is the way to do it. I say to my colleagues who are here and who want to change the filibuster rule, spend a year in the minority or 2 years in the minority and then come to me and tell me you want to change the filibuster rule. What people don't realize—those who want to change the filibuster rule—is that when one side or the other gets out too far, then the American people notice what goes on and they come in and they fix it.

I am convinced that is what is going to happen today. I think the American people have figured out what it is my friends on the other side are doing. They are my friends. We just have a different point of view. Everywhere I go in this country, people are concerned about what happened—everywhere. They are concerned because they have so many friends and relations who lost jobs and other friends and relations who have lost their houses and they say: What are you going to do about it? What are you in Washington going to do about it? Don't you get it? Don't you understand what is happening here? You are not going to do anything about this?

I have watched Senator DODD work for hours and days and months—and, frankly, years—to try to put together a bill so we can vote on what will be a bipartisan bill. I have been hanging out at this place or teaching about it for 37 years, and I have never seen anyone work any harder to try to get a bipartisan bill. Frankly, Mr. Chairman, I got a little frustrated because it took so long. But Chairman DODD did the right thing because I think he knew, at some point, if we didn't get agreement, we would be here and we would be faced with charges that this was a partisan bill. This is not a partisan bill.

As you know, Mr. President, you and I have differences with this bill. The Presiding Officer and Senator LEVIN have an amendment to offer, which I am a cosponsor of, to change the bill. I have an amendment with Senator SHERROD BROWN of Ohio to make some changes to the bill. Senator CANTWELL and Senator MCCAIN have an amendment that I am a cosponsor of. There are three amendments already that I am in favor of to change this bill. I have heard Chairman DODD say time and again, this is not the perfect bill. This is a bipartisan bill. We have put a lot of effort into it. But he has welcomed the opportunity for people to come forward and offer amendments.

I don't get it, how you can say you don't agree with a bill, but you will not let anything happen on it and on an issue such as this—an issue that is so important to the American people. It is so important that we get it right. It is time. Committees are great, and I support the committee system. I think they are wonderful. I think negotiations are great. I think the bipartisan negotiations that have been going on—and I know they are going on because I have seen them on the floor. I have seen there are about 10 or 12 members from the Banking Committee who are working.

Chairman DODD, in the beginning, set this up and he delegated it down so Senator WARNER and Senator CORKER were working together. He had a Republican and a Democrat working on each of these things. They are still working, as we talk now. But it is time for that to stop. It is time for us to get out in the open and be a Senate. It is time for us to debate these issues in the open. It is time for the Republican Party to decide if they want to do something about Wall Street reform. I hope they are listening. In my opinion, we should stay and discuss it until we are ready to go. We are going to disagree.

One of the big things I am in favor of is returning to Glass-Steagall. When we voted on that in 1999, Senator DORGAN voted against it and Senator SHELBY voted against it. These are not issues that are Republican or Democratic issues, in my opinion. I have talked to my colleagues on the other side about some of the amendments I am offering, and they say they are interested in them. I don't see this as being a partisan fight. I think it looks like a fight to get political advantage. I am very hesitant to bring that forward, but that is what it looks like to me. It looks like they do not want to vote, period. I know that is not true for certain Members on the other side. I know they wish to talk about these issues.

So I wish to say to the American people tonight, it is time to contact your Senator and say: Let's bring financial regulatory reform to the floor. Let's debate the issues on it. Let's get to the amendments and let's pass it so millions of Americans who have lost their jobs and their homes know we in the Senate have done everything we can to make sure this never happens again.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mrs. SHAHEEN. Mr. President, I am here tonight to join my colleagues because, like them, I am deeply disappointed that 41 Republican Senators tonight voted to stop us from even beginning to debate on legislation to rein in the reckless and risky Wall Street conduct that brought this economy to its knees. Rather than make the case out in the open on the floor of the Senate for the changes they want to the Wall Street reform bill, these 41 Senators who voted to block debate are, instead, saying they want changes worked out behind closed doors. They are actually saying they will prevent debate and hold this Wall Street reform bill hostage until they are accommodated behind closed doors.

We heard Senator KAUFMAN say there are amendments he wants to the bill. There are amendments I wish to see in the bill. For example, I think we need to strengthen the provisions in the bill to prevent financial institutions that are supposed to be helping American companies finance their growth plans—that are supposed to be helping families save for their retirement, that are supposed to be helping families save for their kids' college education—to prevent those institutions from making risky side bets for their own profit. But rather than block the Senate from taking up the Wall Street reform until I get what I want, I intend to cosponsor the amendment the Presiding Officer and Senator LEVIN are sponsoring and then debate that issue openly on the floor of the Senate.

Our amendment prohibits federally insured banks from engaging in proprietary trading and it imposes strict capital charges on large nonbank financial institutions to limit their proprietary trading.

We have all learned in recent days about the proprietary trading that Goldman Sachs was doing, betting their own money that mortgage-backed securities would fail, while getting their clients to invest in those same mortgage-backed securities. I am sure there are a lot of people who think, as I do, that a system that allows that kind of conflict does not make sense and we need to change it. So I think we need to get this bill on the floor so we can debate this issue and so many others that we need to address to change the practices on Wall Street.

We need to enact a strong Wall Street reform bill as soon as possible. While we delay, the big banks on Wall Street have returned to the same types of reckless and risky gambles that brought our economy to the brink of a complete financial meltdown. My grandmother used to say that while the cat's away, the mice will play. Today I think my grandmother would say while Wall Street reform is delayed, middle-class families are being played.

Let's be clear. A vote against opening debate on holding Wall Street accountable is a vote to protect Wall Street. We are still suffering the consequences of unregulated Wall Street greed. Millions of hard-working Americans lost their jobs through no fault of their own and they still can't find work. Too many small businesses still can't get credit. We need to do everything we can to ensure that the recent financial crisis never happens again, that taxpayers never again have to bail out Wall Street bankers for their bad bets. I hope all those Senators who tonight voted to block us from taking up Wall Street reform will reconsider that vote and that they will come to the floor of the Senate and let us do the work of the people of this country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. BURRIS. Mr. President, for years at big corporations such as Goldman

Sachs, Wall Street bankers packaged bad mortgages and sold them to investors. They knew these investment vehicles would inevitably fail so they turned around and bet against them. They bet against the American people. That is what they did when they put these packages together. They sought to make a profit off the misfortunes of their own customers.

Tonight we stand at the brink of a real debate on this topic, but our Republican colleagues will not even agree to let us move forward. We have to debate whether we are going to debate. Main Street suffered the most challenging economic situation in a generation. It has been made clear tonight who the Republicans stand with—they stand with Wall Street—because we are debating to debate.

After the breathtaking scope of the economic crisis that America is only now coming to terms with, how can we simply refuse to move forward, refuse to debate this critical legislation? We are debating to debate—unbelievable. We have to debate to debate about fair, meaningful reform while Wall Street continues to pose a systemic threat to the American financial system.

I know a little bit about the financial system. I am probably the only one here who is a banker. I spent my early years in the biggest bank of the State of Illinois, selling money for a living. I know about banking and I knew what Glass-Steagall would do at the time. It prevented us from getting into the insurance business, the investment banking business, and banks were still able to grow and to make loans to the various entities that needed the loans. That is what we were there for, to assist businesses to grow and provide capital and make sure they would be successful and repay their loans.

As a matter of fact, I financed some of the most difficult businesses in the State of Illinois. We had a government-guaranteed loan section for startup businesses. I loaned $1 million to a church-owned hospital, the first Black church-owned hospital in America. I financed that in 1969 with a $1 million loan. Guess what. The hospital paid every penny of that money back to our bank, plus we made interest on it. It wasn't a giveaway; it was not any type of charity; it was a business transaction to help the community. That is what banks ought to be doing. That is why we need to pass strong financial reform, to prevent bad behavior on Wall Street from sinking ordinary folk on Main Street. I know a little bit about Main Street because that is where I financed those businesses.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the reform legislation introduced by Senator DODD, the distinguished Senator who put his life into this business, trying to make sure we have some type of financial security for the people and not a bunch of people who are going around ripping off folk and getting rich off of the work of other people. This bill would have prevented Goldman Sachs and other companies from getting into this mess in the first place and it can help ensure that we will never end up in this position again.

I hope so, but we don't know what will come up. I heard Senator WARNER on the floor today. Senator WARNER was saying he might not know what will happen and probably won't. But I hope when we get this legislation to debate—the legislation we are debating to debate—it will never happen again. But first we need to agree to debate the bill on the floor.

I ask my colleagues on the right to simply talk and debate about the ideas on this bill. I want Glass-Steagall. I am cosponsor of the amendment for the Glass-Steagall Act to come back. This legislation will create a consumer protection bureau designed to shield ordinary Americans from unfair, deceptive, and abusive business practices. As a former attorney general, I know what it is, in so many of these financial situations, mistreating our consumers. I defended those consumers tremendously during my years as Attorney General of the State of Illinois. I want the bill to establish an oversight task force to keep an eye on emerging risks so we will not be taken by surprise again. It will end too big to fail, protect taxpayers from unnecessary risk, and eliminate the need for future bailouts.

This bill would also increase transparency and accountability for banks, hedge funds, and the derivative market. Some people don't even know what they are doing about it, so big companies such as Goldman Sachs won't be able to get away with fraud anymore. These basic reforms will establish clear rules of the road for the financial service industry so we can keep the market free and fair without risking another economic collapse.

But if we fail to take action, if we do not pass this reform legislation, if we even fail to move forward on this simple procedural motion on the debate to debate, then we will be right back where we started—no safeguards against this kind of deception and abuse in the future.

I call on my colleagues to join me in supporting moving on to Senator DODD's bill. Let's move on to it and get on with the business of debating the bill and not debating to debate. I ask my friends on both sides of the aisle to stand with me on the side of the American people. Let's move to debate this financial reform legislation without delay.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, we are now, for those who are tuning in, in a situation in which the Republicans who filibustered probably about 100 times in this session, are now filibustering not a piece of legislation, they are filibustering the ordinary procedural technical motion on the Senate floor to move to that piece of legislation. There will probably be a whole second filibuster when we actually get to the Wall Street reform bill. For now, what they are filibustering is moving to proceed under the Senate rules, to take up the bill and begin the debate.

In obstructing us from even debating the Wall Street reform bill, the Republican minority has once again shown the American people whose business it is they serve. Make no mistake about it, Wall Street bankers are chortling tonight about this, Champagne corks are flying across Wall Street, all in celebration of the Republican success in once again obstructing reform. Each day the Republicans delay us, high-powered investment banks make more money on highly leveraged gambles. Each day the Republicans delay us, mortgage brokers, unregulated by a consumer protection agency, push people into poor quality mortgages with confusing terms. Each day the Republicans delay us, CEOs continue to get rainy day bonuses, unchecked by proper corporate governance and oversight. Each day these Republicans delay us, credit card companies trick and trap American consumers with exorbitant rates and fees and no consequences. Each day the Republican minority delays us, Wall Street wins and Main Street loses.

The ties between the Republican party and Wall Street CEOs are pretty well documented. News outlets, for instance, reported earlier this month that the leaders of the Senate minority sat down with two dozen top Wall Street executives to discuss Wall Street's concerns with these proposed reforms. Nobody is talking about what was said, what deals were made, what winks and handshakes were exchanged. The meeting was behind closed doors. But the very people who brought about the housing bubble and the financial meltdown and profited handsomely through both have been strategizing with the Republicans on how to prevent us from cleaning up their industry.

They have good reason to do so. By continuing to operate too-big-to-fail firms, these executives make millions in the good times and get taxpayer bailouts in the bad times. It is win-win for Wall Street and lose-lose for the American people. The American people have about had it with that deal. They want Wall Street cleaned up.

An ABC News/Washington Post poll conducted yesterday found that an overwhelming majority, 63 percent, of Americans support "stricter Federal regulations on the way Wall Street firms conduct their business." Every one of us can vouch for that from what we are hearing from our constituents at home. The Republican minority can delay reform but they cannot defeat it. Remember Joshua; he walked around the city of Jericho blazing his horn. The first time the walls did not come down. The second time the walls did not come down. He had to go seven times around the city of Jericho before those walls came down, but the walls of obstruction of the Republican minority are going to come down on this issue because the American people will not have it any other way.

Let's look at the provisions of the bill as it passed Senator DODD's Banking Committee that they are so upset about, the bill that the Republicans are so upset about, they are obstructing us from even debating it and beginning the process of legislating.

The bill would end government bailouts by establishing an industry-financed wind-down mechanism to put banks that are failing out of their misery. That is how we would deal with future meltdowns—no more taxpayer bailouts, no more AIG.

The Republicans, amazingly, assert that this industry-financed resolution fund to put an orderly end to banks that have gotten in trouble will actually perpetuate government bailouts. That does not even make sense. So why are they saying it? Well, they are saying it because a Republican pollster named Frank Luntz determined that if you call a bill a bailout bill, the public will be alarmed and confused and upset and against it. So they are saying it because the polling shows that is what will concern Americans.

We have gotten to the point where it is no longer important in American debate for words to be true; it only matters that they have the requisite effect. Well, words that are used for their effect without regard for whether they are true have a name; it is called propaganda. Frankly, it is beneath proper debate in this forum.

The bill would also create a strong consumer products regulator to make sure Americans are never again fooled into subprime mortgages and other tricky, "gotcha" financial products with little hooks and tricks and traps in there to catch the unsuspecting consumer. We need a regulator in place who can monitor the market and act quickly when there is a consumer hazard. We need this new agency to do for credit cards and mortgages what the Consumer Product Safety Commission does for toasters and toys. A tough, independent consumer protection agency is a plain-old good idea to give consumers a fair shake.

The bill would also consolidate existing bank regulators so that banks cannot shop around for the most lenient regulator. Under the bill the Republicans won't even let us debate, regulations would be strengthened over all financial firms. No more changing your charter just to avoid the rules you don't like and picking your favorite regulator.

Again, these are commonsense protections against Wall Street trickery. But they are being blockaded.

Perhaps the provisions that have the CEOs most distressed are the ones that would crack down on runaway executive compensation. It is really remarkable that even in the worst of times,

Wall Street bankers pay themselves multimillion-dollar bonuses. There really are no lean years, it appears, on Wall Street, just good times and really, really, really good times.

The bill the Republicans will not let us debate would give shareholders a stronger say on management compensation and would ensure that the compensation committees of boards of directors, the ones who are figuring out what the CEOs should be paid, are composed of directors who are independent, who are not tied to the management: No more having your pals and golfing buddies decide how much you should be paid. It would also require companies to develop policies that would permit them to rescind compensation—to take it back—if the executive is found to have engaged in fraud.

Again, these are commonsense provisions to prevent unfairness and to give the American people a chance. Yet the Republicans will not even let us debate them.

The American people have grown sick and tired of delay and obstruction, and they want their Congress to move forward with the people's business. This is something on which we should agree. The American people also overwhelmingly favor stronger regulation over Wall Street banks. So let's get to it.

I implore my Republican colleagues to cut the delay tactics and let us debate a bill that will help prevent future financial crises. If they have a better idea and they want to offer it on the Senate floor, that is what we are here for. But let's get to the bill. Let's begin the process of serving the American people. Let's end the endless filibuster and obstruction and delay.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the critically important legislation before the Senate, the bill to reform Wall Street and end the excesses that sent our economy into a tailspin.

Having made the tough choice to fend off a collapse of our economic system, we must now look back and decide what actions are required to hold Wall Street accountable and put consumers back in control of their finances.

This Congress has taken decisive action to stem the bleeding, actions that were not always comfortable, but were necessary. And our economy is starting to heal. Yet we remain at a seminal moment in history.

One tenth of our population remains unemployed, the threat of home foreclosure haunts far too many families, and American seniors are scrambling to replenish what were once considered their retirement accounts.

The fault for this economic decline, however, does not lie at the feet of the working class nor reflect the steady strength of American ingenuity. Instead, the Wall Street bailout, and the threat of global economic depression that necessitated it, was thrust upon us by those who put short-term self-interest above the economic security of a nation.

It is an unpleasant fact to admit. But the current financial system all too often rewards greed and recklessness, fans speculative trading, and has fostered shady dealings that are so complicated that only those Wall Street firms that stand to benefit can comprehend them.

Compounding this, consumers have found themselves on the losing end of these deals. Wall Street executives have taken excessive risks, knowing a sweetheart contract, bonus or stock option will cover their losses while stockholders are left empty handed. Nearly one quarter of Americans have found themselves with home mortgages they struggle to afford, while the lender's commission has long been spent.

And, American consumers have to jump through hoop after hoop and ultimately pay to have access to their own credit score, while banks and lenders can easily obtain this information to hike their annual interest rate or monthly payment.

Don't get me wrong, I am the first to recognize that our financial sector historically has played a driving role in the growth of our economy. In many instances, Wall Street's ingenuity has spurred solid investment and helped U.S. businesses compete world-wide.

But we cannot ignore the plain fact that transparent investing and fair business dealings seem to be the exception, rather than the rule.

In one recent example, the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission alleged that Goldman Sachs realized that the only way out of bad securities was to sell them to unwitting investors.

This investigation is rapidly expanding to other financial firms and products, and is symptomatic of how out of touch Wall Street has become with the American workers who are the real engine of our economy.

As the 2008 collapse washed away nearly half of Americans' savings and investments, these same taxpayers were on the hook to finance Wall Street's rescue. I understand the anger of Coloradans and Americans all around the country, many who felt that the big banks should have been left to fail.

So our constituents have asked us: Please reform the current laws so that this does not happen again. Please hold Wall Street to the same rules that hardworking families and small businesses are held to.

But now, as the economy recovers, slowly adding jobs and allowing families to rebuild their savings and retirement portfolios, Wall Street is reporting record profits and its executives are again pocketing record bonuses.

It is time to put American consumers back in control of their financial future. We must hold Wall Street accountable and create a financial system that works for all Americans, not just rich executives.

The legislation that we are trying to bring up for debate this week does just that. With Senator DODD's leadership, the Wall Street Accountability Act will:

Safely regulate the shadow markets and the hidden side-bet financing that escaped the regulatory radar and allowed financial firms to engage in the risky and irresponsible behavior that wiped out trillions in family savings.

The bill will hold big banks and financial institutions accountable for the bad decisions they make, and make them plan ahead to deal with their losses to ensure that taxpayers are never again responsible for bailing out a financial firm that is deemed too big to fail, like AIG.

The bill will also hold Wall Street accountable by giving consumer shareholders new power to prevent excessive bonuses that reward executive failures, while average Americans are left holding the bag.

Complementing the credit card bill I introduced in the House of Representatives several years ago and legislation Congress passed last year, this bill forces big banks and credit card companies to provide clear, understandable information to consumers. This bill will also hold the nonbank lending industry to the same sort of standards as the traditional banking industry.

Finally, this bill will start to change the culture of Wall Street by instilling new transparency and accountability rules to ensure that complicated financial derivative transactions take place in an open marketplace.

This legislation provides what our friends, neighbors, and family members for years have been demanding, a system that is designed for them, rewards hard work, and is grounded in the kind of business integrity that Americans every day certify with a handshake. In short, Americans back in control of their financial well-being.

That is why, in addition to the reforms we will be discussing this week, I introduced legislation last week with bipartisan support to put everyday Americans back in charge of their finances by giving consumers free access to their credit score.

I thank Senators LUGAR, MENENDEZ, LIEBERMAN, LEVIN, HAGAN, SHAHEEN, KLOBUCHAR, TOM UDALL, and SCOTT BROWN for joining me in putting consumers first by cosponsoring this commonsense legislation, which has the support of a wide range of consumer groups.

Today, in looking back on the mistakes of the past and the imbalances that still disadvantage consumers, Americans deserve a Congress on their side.

Yet some here appear to still support a risky system where Wall Street can act with impunity and get bailed out when things go bad. They want to protect speculators at the expense of consumer protections and shield financial institutions from rules that would avert taxpayer-financed bailouts.

I am here to say that those days are over. We must hold Wall Street accountable and we cannot let the status quo persist.

A few blocks from here outside the Federal Trade Commission stands a pair of statues, each depicting a heroic figure straining to control a powerful horse. They were erected under the Roosevelt administration as an emblem to Americans from all walks of life that fair business practices would serve to further the common good of all. Well, I have news: Under our current system, the reins have been released when it comes to Wall Street. And now some 70 years later here we are, at a similar point in history. We must stand together once again as a nation committed to sound investing, transparent business dealings and an economic system that puts consumers first.

This debate is about choices, and the American people have a clear choice. There are a lot of us here who want to get to work.

But the vote we just took tonight also showed that some in this institution are willing to filibuster and delay to prevent the Senate from even debating Wall Street reforms.

It is clear to me and clear to Coloradans that a vote against even having this debate is a vote to protect Wall Street at the expense of hard-working Americans. Too much is at stake to let this delay persist.

President Roosevelt said in 1932, "Never in history have the interests of all the people been so united in a single economic problem." Once again, as we did 70 years ago let us get together put in place protections against the Wall Street excesses that threaten our economic stability.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. WHITEHOUSE). The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, tonight we had a vote in which 57 Members of this body said we should proceed to have a fully public debate and votes on issues related to Wall Street and Main Street; 57, far more than a majority, said it is time for us to come to this floor, now well more than a year after our bubbled economy burst, and wrestle with the right rules of the road and lane markers for our financial system. But, unfortunately, 57 votes are not enough. We need additional votes from our colleagues across the aisle in order to have that debate on this floor. We need additional votes from our colleagues across the aisle to consider what the lane markers should be and what the traffic signals should be in our financial regulatory system.

Tonight we did not get those votes. Instead, tonight my colleagues across the aisle said they do not want a debate in public on how to reform Wall Street. They want a conversation behind closed doors instead. Quite frankly, I don't think the American people agree with them.

There are many parts of this story, but it is a story that can be told in millions, billions, and trillions. The millions are the size of the Wall Street bonuses. A single bonus can equal what a working family can expect to earn in an entire career. Then we have the billions, the billions of dollars of quarterly profits of many Wall Street firms. Then we have the trillions. That is the trillions of dollars of damages to working families in America.

What happened when the bubble burst more than a year ago? We had a tremendous loss in the value of retirement savings. We had a tremendous loss in the family savings for children to go to college. We had an enormous drop in employment. We had a tremendous drop in families covered by health care because of the loss of employment. We had damage on every part of a family's finances, including the value of their home, so that millions of American families today owe more on their home than their home is worth.

Quite frankly, I don't believe a system of million-dollar bonuses and billion-dollar profits and trillions of dollars of damage to American working families is a system we need in America. Tonight's vote was about whether to have a public debate on the rules of the road for Wall Street, but it was also about whose side are we on. Are we on the side of some Wall Street firms which don't believe that any additional rules of the road are necessary?

They are happy with the status quo. Bonuses have rebounded on Wall Street. Profits have rebounded on Wall Street. But if you are not paying attention, let me clue you in. The American working family has not rebounded. Ten percent of American working families are unemployed. Houses are still underwater, savings still decimated.

It is very important we have this debate on the floor of the Senate, that we ask ourselves about and we adopt the right rules of the road, the right traffic signals, the right lane markers to create a solid financial foundation for our economy to thrive.

That is what happened after the Great Depression. New rules were adopted that restored the integrity of the American financial system, that restored the integrity of the stock market. Why was that important? It meant that people throughout America and around the world said: We can trust to invest in the United States because their system has integrity, it has transparency. That solid foundation has served our Nation well for decades until deregulation dismantled it, allowed wild speculation. Wild speculation and wild risk led to a spectacular collapse of the economy, and working families are still paying the price.

So what is the way to be on the side of working families? It is to say: We will adopt those rules to provide that new foundation, that new muscular set of rules that will allow Wall Street to prosper but will also set the foundation for the American economy to prosper.

How should we measure the success of that economy? This economy should not be measured by the size of the bonuses on Wall Street. The success of our economy should not be measured by the billion-dollar quarterly profits of Wall Street firms. The success of this economy needs to be measured by how well we build the financial foundations for working families throughout the Nation.

Do we create the ability to have the next generation do better than we did? Do we create living-wage jobs that enable a family to have significant opportunities for their children? Do we proceed to strengthen, as we have been working at in this Chamber, the structure of health care? Do families in America have a share in the increased productivity of our Nation which has not been the case since 1974, the year I came out of high school? Yes, our Nation had a huge surge in productivity, a huge surge in national wealth. But that has not been shared with working families. That is a diversion from what happened in the earlier era.

How do we rebuild our economy so it builds working families? That is what we are about. We can proceed to look at the pieces of this bill. Senator DODD, who is here tonight, the chair of our Banking Committee, has put so many strong steps forward on the work that came out of his committee. A lot of folks don't realize the humble family mortgage and a new product that came out in 2003 is right at the center of the fiasco in our economy.

What happened? A new mortgage called a subprime came out. It was designed differently than subprimes in the past. It was designed with a 2-year teaser rate—that is a low interest rate—then with a prepayment penalty that prevented families, once the ink had dried on the mortgage, from ever escaping that mortgage without giving many pounds of flesh, and then an exploding interest rate that soared from perhaps 4.5 percent or 5 percent to 9 percent or maybe even 11 percent, interest rates that could never be sustained.

This diabolical device was worth a lot of money on Wall Street because it was going to make a lot of money pulling those exploding interest rates out of American families. So Wall Street paid bonuses back to brokers to say to them: I am your financial adviser. I recommend this subprime loan, instead of recommending a loan that was best for the family. So a vicious circle resulted in exploding subprime mortgages.

This bill that has come out of the Banking Committee says: No longer. Prepayment penalties will not be allowed on subprime mortgages. We will break the cycle that led us into this economic fiasco, this financial fiasco.

If my colleagues across the aisle have some ways to improve on that, then let's have a public debate. Let's have that amendment on the Senate floor. If my colleagues across the aisle think they don't want to protect a fair deal for consumers and they want to continue a diabolical subprime exploding interest rate trap that has destroyed millions of families, then go ahead and propose that amendment. I doubt the majority of people will support it. I certainly will oppose it vigorously. But if my colleagues want to do that, then have the debate on the Senate floor.

This bill is designed to end the taxpayer from ever being on the hook for bailing out financial firms again. It does it by assessing financial firms for the cost of unwinding or, to put it a little bit more directly, dismantling a financial firm when it fails. To make sure the taxpayer isn't on the hook, it creates a fee on the financial industry to pay to make sure those costs are covered by the financial industry itself. This is a buffer that protects the American taxpayer.

My colleagues across the aisle have said: No, here is a fund. It looks like a bailout fund.

Quite frankly, it is amazing what we hear on this floor. Here is a fund designed to ensure that taxpayers are protected, to ensure the financial industry pays their own cost of dismantling their firms. Yet it is spun 180 degrees until north is south and south is north, trying to confuse the American public.

I don't think the American public is going to be all that confused about this. They want to see the financial industry pay for the cost of dismantling their own failures. They don't want to be on the hook again. You can try to keep pulling the wool over the eyes of the American people, but it will not work. I say to my colleagues across the aisle, if you want to pull the wool over the eyes of the American people, come here and propose that amendment that puts the taxpayers back on the hook, when we are taking them off the hook. See how it fares. Make your case, make your fair debate on this floor. But come and face and present and debate and vote so that we can proceed to put the rules of the road back in place for Wall Street.

This bill takes a huge stride forward on proprietary trading. It says we should not put fireworks in our living rooms. That is pretty straightforward. Fireworks are wonderful. I love fireworks on the Fourth of July. This bill says they should not be stored in the living room. I have an amendment that I think will further strengthen that concept.

I applaud my colleague, CARL LEVIN from Michigan, my cosponsor, who has brought forward a part of that amendment and emphasized it, saying we need to address the conflict of interest in financial firms. What is that conflict of interest? You should not be in the position of designing and selling securities, telling your customers that they are the best thing since sliced bread over here, when at the same time you are betting against those securities because you think they are going to fail.

That is a conflict of interest. It should not be allowed.

Under the Merkley-Levin amendment, we will address that as well as strengthen proprietary trading.

I am comfortable bringing that to the floor of the Senate and having that debate. It may have a majority; it may not. But that is the type of debate we need to have on this floor.

I could go on through the treatment of derivatives—and I applaud my colleague, BLANCHE LINCOLN—the discussion of a consumer financial protection agency that provides the same fairness in financial contracts that the Consumer Product Safety Commission provides on toasters, making sure that tricks and traps and scams are taken out of financial products so that a consumer can make a fair choice without being misled by something hidden in the fine print. That is the type of option citizens in this country want.

Wall Street plays a very important role in aggregating and allocating capital, but we need to make sure the rules are done such that that role is done well, that conflicts of interest are removed, that transparency is provided, that tricks and traps and scams are taken out of financial products. These are the sorts of things this bill does.

This is a bill that is all about fighting for fairness for Main Street which, in the long term, will be a very good business model for Wall Street as well.

Let's, as a Chamber, recognize our responsibility to build an economic system that strengthens the financial foundation of our families—that is what this bill is all about—and puts our country on a firm basis for decades to come. International investors will want to invest back here in America. They will trust the integrity of our system.

I encourage my colleagues to come together when we have the next cloture vote and decide it is time to fight for the people of this country and fight for the economic future of our country by proceeding to the debate on this bill and the passage of this bill and getting it to the President's desk.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. FRANKEN. Mr. President, I rise this evening to talk about how we can take a big step toward holding Wall Street accountable and stopping it from lining its own pockets at the expense of America's families.

Last month, as part of the health care reconciliation bill, the Senate also passed student loan reform that ended a longtime corporate welfare program. Our reforms halted the enormous subsidies the Federal Government paid to lenders in the student loan market, replacing it with a program called Direct Lending that slashes $61 billion—$61 billion—in cost to the taxpayers by cutting out the middleman and lending to students directly. The money saved will go toward Pell grants, helping kids from working families go to college.

Today, as we debate Wall Street reform, we continue that fight to end the stranglehold big banks have on our economy and, by extension, on the everyday life of the American people.

Over the past year and a half, we have seen, in stark reality, the devastating impact Wall Street can have on our economy when it is left to its own devices. Fueled by unbridled greed, a love of risk—well, the love of risking other people's money—and an obsession with profit at all costs, banks bought up toxic mortgages by the thousands, driving the subprime lending market in the process. Credit rating agencies, conveniently funded by the same institutions they were rating—that is a bad idea—gave the resulting securities their highest AAA rating, and the initial ingredients of the financial crisis were born. Incidentally, today Paul Krugman wrote in the New York Times that 93 percent of these AAA-rated subprime mortgage-backed securities have since been downgraded to junk status—93 percent. That is hard to do on anything.

Several bank failures and a $700 billion-plus bailout later, the American people were left paying the price. By October of 2009, unemployment had jumped to 10.1 percent and even today it remains at 9.7 percent. By contrast, just 10 years ago, in October of 2000, the unemployment rate was 3.9 percent. Americans have lost $11.7 trillion—$11.7 trillion—in personal wealth since the financial crisis, and housing values have fallen 15 percent in just the past year. We have seen our retirement accounts shrink and our plans for the future delayed, sometimes indefinitely—and all because of Wall Street's incessant need to rack up enormous profits.

Over the past few decades, Wall Street's profits have gone through the roof. In 1987, the financial industry represented only 19 percent of all domestic corporate profits. By 2009, that number was almost 32 percent. Thirty-two percent of all the Nation's corporate profits went to the financial industry.

The dramatic growth of the financial services industry would be fine if Wall Street was actually adding value—helping to invest in our economy in constructive ways and to create jobs. But, instead, they have been making bets on bets on bets on bets. It is one thing to have a commodities futures market that provides the resources for farmers to put crops in the ground, but it is another thing altogether when Wall Street is just gambling in areas where they have no real productive interest. Let's put Wall Street back to work investing in America, not gambling with its future.

The bill we are discussing tonight would ensure that Wall Street can never again bilk the American people in the same way. It would create a Consumer Financial Protection Bureau—a true cornerstone of this bill. The bureau would be an independent watchdog for consumers housed inside the Federal Reserve. The bureau would force big banks and credit card companies to offer clear terms to families on credit cards, student loans, on retirement financial products. Just as importantly, it would make sure mortgage companies cannot sell misleading loans and mortgages to consumers so we avoid the kinds of problems that led to this crisis in the first place.

For the first time, the bill would set up a council of regulators that would oversee the financial system as a whole. This council would monitor risk across the entire system and ensure that industries and companies do not fall through the cracks between regulatory agencies. This bill also includes a tough section on derivatives to ensure greater transparency and tighten their regulation.

It ends taxpayer bailouts by forcing banks to pony up $50 billion to pay for their own funeral if they fail. This is not a taxpayer-funded bailout, and let me tell you why. First, it is not a bailout. The bank would get liquidated. Secondly, it is not taxpayer funded because taxpayers do not fund it. The banks do. I do not know how to make this any clearer to my colleagues across the aisle. Yet tonight we find ourselves where we are.

Let me be clear: We cannot afford not to pass this bill. Americans are demanding we act to hold Wall Street accountable. Without further protections, it would be easy to have another crisis such as the one we have just been through. Yet tonight, despite the urgency and the importance of this bill, my colleagues across the aisle are filibustering our attempt to reform Wall Street and not just the bill itself. They have blocked us from even starting debate on the bill by filibustering the motion to proceed. They have done this despite the fact that many of them actually agree with substantial portions of the bill. They are doing this because they want to stop government from actually being able to accomplish anything.

I have said it before, and I will say it again. This is a perversion of the filibuster and a perversion of the Senate. Let's turn our attention back to legislating, which is the reason voters put us in this august body in the first place.

I urge my colleagues to support the Wall Street reform bill. We often talk on the Senate floor about wanting to make sure American families are protected. Now we have a chance to actually do something about it. America cannot afford another financial crisis. That is now in our hands in this body, and it is one of our greatest responsibilities.

I thank the Presiding Officer. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mrs. MCCASKILL. Mr. President, I have a favorite President and it is not President Obama. It is, in fact, President Harry Truman. I still cannot quite get over the fact that I am sitting at Harry Truman's desk on the Senate floor and that I hold the seat in the Senate that Harry Truman held.

Tomorrow, when I attend the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, and as we see a parade of Wall Street executives justifying their behavior, I will be asking questions at the committee that Harry Truman made famous when he took war profiteers to task many years ago.

Harry Truman said:

If you can't convince them, confuse them.

Well, I am confused. I read today that the ranking member, from the Republican Party, of the Banking Committee said the following at a meeting of community bankers. I am quoting exactly what he said:

I think we basically know what went wrong. We had a lot of hearings. We've been working on it 15, 16 months now.

That is not Chairman DODD who said: "I think we basically know what went wrong." It is not Chairman DODD saying: "We had a lot of hearings." It is not Chairman DODD saying: We've been working on it for 15 or 16 months. It is the Republican ranking member on the Banking Committee.

I am confused. Is it that they do not realize it is a huge problem?

Well, of course they realize it is a huge problem.

Is it that they are not prepared, that they do not have enough information? Well, of course not. Senator SHELBY said today: We basically know what went wrong. We have had a lot of hearings. We have been working on it for 15 or 16 months.

Senator DODD has sat here this evening as many Members of my class and the freshmen class have come to the floor to express regret and confusion about why we cannot debate this bill. It is admirable he has sat and listened to all these speeches tonight. He did not have to. He could have gone home. He is invested in this legislation for all the right reasons: Because he cares deeply about this country. He understands we have an obligation as Senators to address this problem. He sees it as his duty to see this through.

So why—why—did this happen today? Why did we not move forward to debate? It is just politics, raw, bare-knuckled politics—the kind of stuff Americans are so sick of they want to throw up. They are so sick of this game playing, they want to throw everybody out of this place. Frankly, right about now, I do not blame them. What in the Lord's Name are we doing delaying the debate on this bill?

I do believe the leader of the Republican Party thinks his success as a leader can only be defined by my party's failure. It is like it is a football game. I was confused when 41 people signed the letter saying they did not want to go forward. All 41 Republicans signed this letter.

Then I got confused because Senator MCCONNELL came to the floor and said black is white. He literally said that. He said: We cannot be for this bill because we want to stop bailouts. Well, of course this bill is about stopping bailouts. That is why we are doing the bill, to make sure we do not have any more taxpayer bailouts. He knows that. But he honestly, I don't think, believed the American people were paying close enough attention. Then we had the announcement that the SEC had come out of a coma and was going to do something about Goldman Sachs and what had happened. Then, as Senator DODD said so well on the floor the other day, it is like the rooster taking credit for the morning. They said, Well, we wrote that letter and now we are back at the negotiating table. What hogwash. What hogwash. The negotiating table has always been open. The door has always been open. Senator DODD has been out working the floor of this building and every building within a mile trying to find Republicans to sit down and negotiate and find what is the problem we need to solve to make sure we never have this kind of financial meltdown again in America.

Here is another thing that is very confusing. It is time for the markup in the Banking Committee. I believe the number is over 400 amendments were filed by the Republicans for the markup. The Friday before the markup, all of these amendments were on file. Many people worked all weekend long getting ready for the markup on Monday, for the markup of this bill. The chairman of the committee, assumed—as anybody would who has spent as many hours working in this august body as he has—that on Monday Republicans were going to offer amendments. In fact, the Democrats worked all the way through the weekend trying to figure out how many amendments filed by the Republicans they could easily accept without any debate or contention.

So what happens when the committee starts? The ranking member on the Republican side says they don't want to offer any amendments. What? Now I am really confused. They don't even want to try to change the bill in committee. They make no effort to offer any substantive changes, and then they all vote no.

If the American people don't realize that a game is being played here, they need to pause for a minute and think about that. Why on Earth would the members of the Banking Committee from the Republican Party fail to offer one amendment to this legislation, unless there was some kind of plan, political plan: Don't participate. Don't vote for it. Stop it. Obstructionism, saying the Democrats are doing something they are not trying to do: taxpayer bailout.

It would be so easy to stand here and say there are ulterior motives about helping big bankers or helping Wall Street and campaign finance issues. I don't know. I just know I am confused. I am confused as to why the Republicans would march lockstep away from the debate on an issue that is of paramount importance to this country. I am confused why the Republicans would fail to offer one amendment at the committee level. I am confused why debating this bill is a problem for them politically. I am confused.

Ronald Reagan is cited for this quote often, but it wasn't Ronald Reagan who first said it, it was Harry Truman: It is amazing what you can accomplish if you don't care who gets the credit. Man, oh, man, do some people need that advice in this body. We need to quit worrying about whether the Democrats are getting credit or the Republicans are getting credit and realize all the American people want us to do is get to work. Get this thing done. Quit fooling around with this game that is being played. Tomorrow I think the leader may have a motion to reconsider. I would implore my colleagues on the other side of the aisle: Reconsider what you are doing. Many of my colleagues are such fine, upstanding people who also care deeply about their country. They are just wrapped up. They have been convinced this is some political Tic-Tac-Toe match and if they hold on for a couple more turns they are going to be able to draw the line through the series of squares.

This is about whether we fix a serious problem. I am a big fan of how hard Senator DODD has worked. I think he is trying with every bit of intellect and passion he has to get this across the finish line, because he knows we need to do it for the American people. The games need to stop. The American people need to pay attention and realize they have a very good reason to be confused. Let's debate this bill. Let's debate it beginning tomorrow. Let's debate our differences. Let's try to amend it. Let's vote on amendments. Let's agree to disagree on some of it and decide who has the most votes to move forward a piece of legislation, the way our Founding Fathers intended. I guarantee they didn't intend this. They did not intend this, a refusal to even debate.

So let the debate begin. If the Republican Party wants to lockstep and say we don't even get to debate it, then the American people are going to have to draw their own conclusions, and I have a feeling it won't be a good one.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, let me first begin by saying if Harry Truman were here tonight, he would be very proud of his successor sitting in that chair in the back of this Chamber. I wish to thank my colleague from Missouri for her passion, her eloquence, and her common sense, something that Harry Truman was noted for. My father actually seconded the nomination of Harry Truman at the convention in Philadelphia in 1948, and I cherish the letter thanking my father for that nomination now hanging on the wall of my home—a wonderful personal letter thanking him for that seconded nomination. He didn't have many people in 1948. My father had not been elected at that time. He couldn't find elected officials to stand up for him in 1948. My father had a great relationship with President Truman and was always proud of it. He had a wonderful, direct—some would call it blunt—relationship with him. Frankly, at moments such as this, I think that is what is needed, because as the Senator from Missouri articulated, this is not a complicated moment.

Maybe there are those who don't appreciate how an institution such as this is supposed to operate. It isn't always a pretty process when we engage in debate, with 100 people in this Chamber of different political persuasions, ideologies, and interests. We try to come together as a committee system chosen years ago in order to try and be efficient about our work, so we split up into various groups to consider various matters under certain headings. We sit as Democrats and Republicans, Independents, and try and work our way through a hearing process, listening to experts, gathering informally, talking with one another, reading and educating ourselves, whether it is agriculture or defense or the environment or energy or, in this case, banking, over a period of weeks and months—particularly after a moment in time in our history that nearly brought us to the brink of financial collapse—and then through our collective judgments try and frame to the best of our ability our answers to nagging questions: Why did we get into this mess? What was missing? What did we do wrong? What can we do right? How can we make this better so we don't go through this again, so we don't strangle the system, so we won't lack the creativity and imagination that have been the hallmark of our financial sector and not lose our financial leadership in the world as a nation? How can we harmonize those rules in a global economy today so we don't end up racing to the bottom the various nations who offer the least resistance to some of the practices that brought us to the brink in our own country?

That is basically what we have engaged in for the last 38 or 39 months since I have been chairman of this committee beginning in January of 2007. We didn't agree on everything, but we tried to fashion the best we could. I introduced a proposal back in November. My colleagues said that is a good beginning, but we ought to try some different ideas, so between November and this April, I divided up the committee labors. I asked Democrats and Republicans to take on subject matters because it was a highly complex area of the law dealing with derivatives, dealing with systemic risk, dealing with corporate governance, dealing with consumer protection and other matters; thinking that if we broke it up into groups, Democrats and Republicans would become invested and knowledgeable about the subject matter so we could then frame a proposal that would enjoy the kind of bipartisan support needed to advance the cause.

Well, I wish to compliment my colleagues. Many of them worked very hard. While we didn't achieve a complete understanding in all of these matters, I think the bill reflects a lot of that labor, to such a degree that the proposal we tried to move to today is so fundamentally different than the bill I introduced in November as a result of that labor.

I thank my colleague from Missouri for identifying what occurred a few weeks ago, and that is, of course, the committee markup. Again, my colleagues on the committee made a judgment. They thought that maybe it might be better—there were an awful lot of conflicting amendments, some of which didn't make a lot of sense, quite candidly, from the other side, and I say that respectfully. It was their determination that they would decide to go further in the process without engaging in the amendment process.

So here we are. We need to get to this. I have listened very patiently this evening to some wonderful remarks. I wish to begin with MARK WARNER, who spoke earlier this afternoon on the bill and has made a remarkable contribution to this body and to the Banking Committee. He spent about 20 years in the financial services area, so he speaks from a base of knowledge and personal experience. BOB MENEZES of New Jersey as well was eloquent in his comments. Senator KLOBUCHAR, and Senator KAUFMAN, who spoke on this before; JEANNE SHAHEEN of New Hampshire as well, and Senator BURRIS of Illinois, and the Presiding Officer, SHELDON WHITEHOUSE, a good friend who has been invaluable in these debates. We worked together on the health care matter for weeks and months over the last year and, again, his thoughts and ideas on this bill as well I am thankful for; MARK UDALL of Colorado, Senator MERKLEY of Oregon, AL FRANKEN and, of course, Senator MCCASKILL, who I spoke about as well. It is quite a group here, these new Members, their first or second terms in the Senate. I hope my other colleagues and their staffs were listening this evening. It wasn't just eloquence, it was common sense. They are people who have gone home and listened to their constituents. While we all may not agree—and I can't suggest that every amendment they have talked about is one I would necessarily even be supportive of when the debate begins—I firmly believe every Senator has equal status in this Chamber. Whether you are a chairman or a new Member, you are a Senator, and you deserve the courtesies of this institution. You deserve the history of this institution. You deserve to be heard and respected for your ideas and to be given the time to present them, to debate them, and to have an up-or-down vote on your proposals.

That is how this institution is supposed to operate. I have been here for three decades, and in all of my three decades here, I have never gone through a period such as we have over the last couple of months where we can't even get to debate some of these critical matters.

I am still optimistic. I guess that explains why I have been here for 30 years. I still want to believe this is going to work, that all we have been through is not for naught. As does my colleague from Missouri, I have great respect for my colleagues in this Chamber, Democrats and Republicans, and I have over the years, even with people I have had basic and fundamental disagreements with. I am convinced the majority of us here—an overwhelming majority—want to be associated with passing legislation that we believe will make a significant difference in the economic life of our Nation by at least limiting or prohibiting the kind of activities that led us to the problems and economic difficulties we are in.

I hope in the coming days we will have a chance to move to this bill. I hope sooner rather than later. It may be a matter not well known by many, but we only have by my count about 45 or 50 legislative days left in this session. We are working about 3½ days a week. We are here for about another 14 or 15 weeks, when you exclude the August break, the break for Memorial Day, the Fourth of July and, of course, our departure sometime I presume in early October for the elections. That does not give us a lot of time. Last week we spent the entire week on five nominations that, as I recall—and I may be corrected—passed I believe overwhelmingly when the votes finally occurred. So 5 days on 5 people who were filibustered and delayed. That is all we did last week. That was it: five nominations that were ultimately agreed to—not controversial nominations, just ones where votes were designed to slow the process. I don't think the American people want us to leave our work in this Congress without having addressed this issue.

I will end on this particular note. If, for some reason, Lord forbid, a major financial institution were to begin to fail this evening, we are in no better shape than we were in the fall of 2008. There is an implicit guarantee that such an institution would receive the backing of the them and our economy. Despite what I perceive to be overwhelming objections to that kind of a bailout occurring, that is one issue on which there seems to be unanimity. Yet, if tonight a problem began to emerge, we would be in a similar situation as we were 18 months ago. I don't know of a single Member here who would want that to occur. That issue alone ought to cause every one of us to move to get to this debate. That is a principal part of this legislation. There are other features as well, but that alone ought to be motivation to begin this debate, listen to each other's thoughts and ideas, and to conclude that discussion and debate by passing this legislation—or at least an amended version of this legislation.

I thank these 12 or 13 colleagues for their patience, their eloquence, their determination, and their conviction. As I get ready to leave this Chamber in the coming months, I will leave with a high degree of confidence that this Chamber will be in good hands. After listening tonight to your words, advice, counsel, and determination, it is with a sense of optimism that we will get this bill done. I am confident of that as I stand before you this evening.

With that, I yield the floor.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF INTELLECTUAL & DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I am pleased today to join the Illinois chapter of the American Association of Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities, AAIDD, in recognizing the recipients of the Illinois Direct Support Professional Award 2010. These individuals are being honored for their outstanding efforts to enrich the lives of people with developmental disabilities in Illinois.

These recipients have displayed a strong sense of humanity and professionalism in their work with persons with disabilities. Their efforts have inspired the lives of those for whom they care, and they are an inspiration to me as well. They have set a fine example of community service for all Americans to follow.

These honorees spend more than 50 percent of their time at work in direct, personal involvement with their clients. They are not primarily managers or supervisors. They are direct service workers at the forefront of America's effort to care for people with special needs. They do their work every day with little public recognition, providing valued care and assistance that is unknown except to those with whom they work.

It is my honor and privilege to recognize the Illinois recipients of AAIDD's Illinois Direct Support Professional Award 2010: Gloria Corral, Stacy Howard, Renee Kaye, Mufutau Afolabi, Mary Halloran, Renae Donohoo, Pauline Curran, Denise Smith, Zeola Alston, and Jesse Kelinschmidt.

I know my fellow Senators will join me in congratulating the winners of the Illinois Direct Support Professional Award 2010. I applaud their dedication and thank them for their service.

TRIBUTE TO SPECIAL AGENT JAMES HAROLD SIZEMORE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise to thank Special Agent James Harold Sizemore for his many years of service to the people of Kentucky. For nearly three decades, he has worked in the dangerous field of law enforcement, risking his own well-being on behalf of his neighbors, and for that an entire State is grateful.

Harold was born and raised in Clay County, where his father was the sheriff. Harold followed in his father's footsteps and was elected sheriff of Clay County in 1982. He took a hard stand against illegal marijuana cultivation, a problem in that area, and conducted several successful eradication missions.

I first met Harold in 1989 when he was still serving as sheriff, and he described to me the devastating effect marijuana cultivation was having in Clay County. After that and right up to today I have given my full support to the Governor's Marijuana Strike Force, which coordinates local, State, and Federal law enforcement to combat the drug problem in Kentucky. This task force has been recognized by the President's Office of National Drug Control Policy for 5 consecutive years.

In 1990, Harold became a Federal law-enforcement officer with the U.S. Forest Service, a job he held for 20 years. In that capacity, he has conducted over 700 flight hours of surveillance and detection for marijuana eradication missions in Kentucky in support of State, local, and Federal task forces. His dedication and tireless efforts resulted in the eradication of over 100,000 marijuana plants, with a street value estimated at $600 million, many in small plots located in remote terrain to avoid detection.

In addition to these flight hours, Harold also participated in several missions in support of high-risk felony search and arrest warrants executed by State and Federal agencies. His professionalism and expertise, coupled with intimate knowledge of the local area, played a significant role in these missions being accomplished safely.

Harold provided key information in over 20 felony investigations, resulting in several Federal indictments and arrests. His personal knowledge of the Clay County area of the Daniel Boone National Forest played a decisive role in the identification of several suspects caught on surveillance, which was initiated as a result of Harold's aerial reconnaissance.

Throughout his career as a Federal law-enforcement officer, Harold's primary responsibility has been that of marijuana eradication officer for the Daniel Boone National Forest—and from that responsibility he has never wavered. In 2008, he was recognized by the U.S. Forest Service for a career of exceptionally meritorious service.

The U.S. Forest Service sometimes works with the Kentucky National Guard in their drug-control efforts, and Harold's dedication was clear to the soldiers he worked alongside. "Harold is one of the driving forces behind the success of the Kentucky National Guard's efforts in support of these missions," says LTC Karlas Owens.

"When observing marijuana in a helicopter, Harold possessed the patience of Job while maneuvering his ground element over difficult terrain . . . he guided officers cross-country as they walked to distant marijuana plots in the Daniel Boone National Forest and ensured they made a safe return. . . . Harold not only gives 110 percent to the [U.S.] Forest Service, but always supports the Kentucky National Guard and ensures we are successful as well."

Lieutenant Colonel Owens also has these words for Harold, after working alongside him for 20 years on these dangerous but vital missions: "For your teachings and friendship, I thank you, Sir."

A countless number of Kentuckians owe their thanks to Harold as well. Upon his retirement, I know my colleagues in the U.S. Senate join me in thanking Special Agent James Harold Sizemore for his decades of service. The work he has done for so many years has bequeathed to all of us a safer, stronger Kentucky.

ARMENIAN REMEMBRANCE DAY

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, at this time every year, we observe Armenian Remembrance Day, when we commemorate the horrific and tragic events that constitute the Armenian Genocide. We also honor those who suffered persecution and lost their lives, and recognize those who survived this dark period in human history.

On April 24, 1915, Turkish Ottoman authorities began rounding up and murdering more than 5,000 Armenians, including civic leaders, intellectuals, writers, priests, scientists, and doctors. This systematic campaign of deportation, expropriation, starvation, and other atrocities continued until 1923, resulting in the deaths of nearly 1.5 million Armenians. As U.S. Ambassador to the Ottoman Empire, Henry Morgenthau, said at the time, "When the Turkish authorities gave the orders for these deportations, they were merely giving the death warrant to a whole race; they understood this well, and, in their conversations with me, they made no particular attempt to conceal the fact. . . . I am confident that the whole history of the human race contains no such horrible episode as this."

The Armenian Day of Remembrance serves to remind us all of how important it is that we look unflinchingly at the atrocities that mankind is capable of, sustained by the ability of our human spirit to overcome such tragedy. The horrific events we remember today constituted the first genocide of the 20th century. But it was soon followed by the Holocaust, where Hitler said he could pursue it and inflict it on humanity since "Who, after all, speaks today of the annihilation of the Armenians?" Recent history in Rwanda, Congo, Darfur and elsewhere reminds us that genocides and mass atrocities remain with us to this day. And as President Obama has said, "bearing witness is not the end of our obligation—it's just the beginning." He has called for our committing ourselves "to resisting injustice and intolerance and indifference in whatever forms they may take."

Some have sought to deny that the atrocities committed against the Armenian people occurred. But as the Genocide Prevention Task Force, chaired by former Secretary of State Albright and former Secretary of Defense William Cohen, stated, it is "fundamental to address the legacy of past abuses." This is necessary, the task force emphasizes, for the sake of justice, to remove the cause of retribution, and to end the discounting of the costs of violence. Nobel Laureate Elie Wiesel has said that the denial of genocide constitutes a "double killing," for it seeks to rewrite history by absolving the perpetrators of violence while ignoring the suffering of the victims.

We need to be clear that marking this Armenian Day of Remembrance is not an indictment of the Republic of Turkey. It occurred before the Republic of Turkey came into existence. With the signing of accords last October, Turkey and Armenia have taken a major step forward in the process of normalizing relations, opening their common border which has been closed for more than a decade and a half, and removing barriers to trade. Ratification of those accords will be important for continuing this process of reconciliation and hopefully will be completed promptly. All friends of Armenia and Turkey should hope that these two nations and peoples can jointly face their shared history and move forward together as fellow members of the community of nations.

In speaking to a joint session of Congress last November, German Chancellor Angela Merkel spoke eloquently about the importance of tearing down walls, not only between neighbors but also the "wall in people's minds that make it difficult time and again to understand one another in this world of ours. This is why the ability to show tolerance is so important." She added, "Tolerance means showing respect for other people's history, traditions, religion and cultural identity."

So I say to my colleagues that one way we can honor the memory of the 1.5 million Armenian victims of the tragic events of 1915–1923 is by recognizing that we have an obligation to do all we can to stop mass atrocities from occurring, to aid the survivors of such tragedies, and to promote justice, tolerance, and understanding.

RECOGNIZING THE NATURAL RESOURCES CONSERVATION SERVICE

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise to congratulate the Natural Resources Conservation Service, NRCS, on its 75th anniversary.

Even though we are an urban nation, we are still an agricultural land. Nearly 70 percent of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, is held in private ownership by millions of individuals. Fifty percent of the United States—907 million acres—is cropland, pastureland, and rangeland owned and managed by farmers and ranchers and their families.

In the early 1900s, President Roosevelt and other conservationists like John Muir and Gifford Pinchot had the foresight to set aside America's special places as national parks and forests, seashores, and wilderness areas. America's public land became a showcase for some of the most dramatic and beautiful landscapes on the North American continent.

But others also recognized the importance of America's private land to the health of the Nation. It took the seriousness of the Dust Bowl for this message to be accepted. Rooted in our national experience with devastating soil erosion of that time, the conservation movement began with the purpose of keeping productive topsoil—and a productive agriculture—in place.

To lead conservation efforts at the Federal level, Congress created the Soil Conservation Service, SCS, within the U.S. Department of Agriculture, USDA, in 1935. SCS was renamed the Natural Resources Conservation Service, NRCS, in 1994. This was the beginning of the Nation's historic commitment to a conservation partnership with farmers and ranchers.

At the same time, the Nation also adopted a remarkable Federal, State, and local partnership for delivering conservation assistance to farmers and ranchers. The concept was that NRCS would deliver technical and financial assistance for conservation, while State governments and local conservation districts would connect with individual landowners and set local priorities.

From the beginning, this was a cooperative approach, drawing on many sources for technical knowledge, financial assistance, and broad-based educational programs for natural resources conservation and management. This partnership remains the pre-eminent model for intergovernmental cooperation today and is admired around the world.

In the 1980s, NRCS's programs began to change as Congress began to increase incentives for farmers and ranchers to practice good conservation. During the 1990s, Congress accelerated the investment in conservation by creating additional programs, such as the Environmental Quality Incentives Program, EQIP, to share the cost of enhancing natural resources on farms, ranches and private forestland.

Congress increased this investment in the 2002 and 2008 farm bills and is expected to continue to support conservation well into the future. However, there are challenges in conservation today. One challenge is how to sustain the ability of NRCS to provide technical, scientifically sound advice and assistance in a time of tight budgets and increased demands. Another challenge is how to maintain the highly successful conservation partnership that works with farmers and ranchers as individuals to address their specific conservation concerns.

W.C. Lowdermilk, the Assistant Chief of the Soil Conservation Service in the 1930s said, "In a very real sense the land does not lie; it bears a record of what men write on it. In a larger sense, a Nation writes its record on the land. This record is easy to read by those who understand the simple language of the land." Conservation leads to prosperous, healthy societies and stable, self-sufficient countries. It sustains the agricultural productivity that allows for division of labor and the growth and longevity of a society.

Careful land stewardship through terracing, crop rotation and other soil conservation measures enables societies to flourish. However, neglect of the land, manifested as soil erosion, deforestation, and overgrazing, helps to topple empires and destroy entire civilizations.

These lessons of history, including our own with the Dust Bowl of the 1930s, are ones we should not forget. America's future is tied to how we treat our land. Today, the Nation's farmers and ranchers deliver safe, reliable, high quality food, feed, and fiber to the Nation and to the world, but also much more. Through their careful stewardship, farmers, ranchers, and private forest landowners also deliver clean water, productive wildlife habitat, and healthy landscapes.

Today, we thank all who have made this happen through their service to our country as part of the NRCS. Congratulations on your 75th anniversary.

MIDDLEBURY INTERACTIVE LANGUAGES

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the New York Times article, "Middlebury to Develop Online Language Venture," be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the New York Times, Apr. 13, 2010]
MIDDLEBURY TO DEVELOP ONLINE LANGUAGE VENTURE

(By Tamar Lewin)

Middlebury College, a small Vermont college known for its rigorous foreign-language programs, is forming a venture with a commercial entity to develop online language programs for pre-college students. The college plans to invest $4 million for a 40 percent stake in what will become Middlebury Interactive Languages.

The partnership, with the technology-based education company K12 Inc., will allow Middlebury to achieve two goals, said Ronald D. Liebowitz, the president of the college: It will help more American students learn foreign languages, an area in which they lag far behind Europeans; and it will give Middlebury another source of revenue.

"We wanted to do something about the fact that not enough American students are learning other languages, and it's harder for students if they don't learn language until college," Mr. Liebowitz said. "It is also my belief, and I think our board's belief, that finding potential new sources of revenue is not a bad thing. By doing what we're doing with this venture, we hope to take some stress off our three traditional sources of revenue—fees, endowment and donations."

Middlebury, a 2,400-student liberal-arts college with an endowment of more than $800 million, has offered summer immersion language classes for almost a century, and now teaches 10 languages in those programs at its campus and, as of last year, some at Mills College in Oakland, Calif.

Partnerships between universities and commercial entities have become increasingly common in recent years, but the Middlebury venture is unusual in that it ties the college's academic reputation in foreign languages to a third-party vendor. Moving into such an uncharted area carries risks, education experts said.

"These partnerships are starting as ways for colleges, which may feel themselves cash-strapped, to make some bucks," said Philip G. Altbach, the Monan professor of higher education at Boston College. "I have problems with the whole thing, particularly for a place like Middlebury, which has a reputation as one of the best liberal-arts colleges in the country, and for doing a very good job with languages. They should protect that brand. They are not known for online programs, and to jump in to the deep end of the swimming pool, with a for-profit, is in my view dangerous."

Mr. Liebowitz said that although the move carried risks, so, too, does inaction. "The way I see it, to retain our leadership in the teaching of foreign language, we have to evolve with the times," he said. "And where things are going, in terms of access and education, is online."

In 2008, Middlebury joined with the Monterey Institute of International Studies, a California graduate school, to start the Middlebury-Monterey Language Academy, an intensive language-immersion summer program for students in grades 8 through 12. That program, which will expand to new sites in the new venture, offers four-week residential sessions at Green Mountain College in Vermont, Oberlin College in Ohio, Pomona College in California, and Bard College at Simon's Rock in Massachusetts.

Middlebury has also expanded its academic-year study-abroad sites, the C. V. Starr-Middlebury Schools Abroad, to 35 cities across 14 countries. Almost half the students at those sites now come from other colleges.

A hallmark of Middlebury's language schools has been a formal pledge to speak only the language of study during the session.

Of course, online programs cannot replicate the immersion experience.

The online expertise for the venture will come from K12, a publicly traded company based in Herndon, Va. In partnership with charter schools and school districts, K12 operates online public-school programs in 25 states and Washington. K12 also operates the K12 International Academy, an accredited, diploma-granting online private school serving students in more than 40 countries.

"We plan to make the courses available to individual kids, home-school kids, charter virtual schools, and teachers who might want them as supplements," Mr. Liebowitz said. "I think the price point will be somewhere in the vicinity of $100."

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO GEORGE DENNISON

• Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize an outstanding leader from my home State of Montana as he embarks on a new adventure in his life. Since 1990 George Dennison has served as the president of the University of Montana; he is now the longest serving president in the history of the institution. This summer on August 15, 20 years to the day after he began his duties at UM, President Dennison is retiring. I would like to speak today about some of George's achievements and all he has done to better higher education in Montana.

A historian by training, George earned a bachelor's degree with highest honors from the University of Montana in 1962, as well as his master's degree in 1963. After earning his Ph.D. in history from the University of Washington, George went on to serve as a professor and administrator for universities in Arkansas, Washington, and 18 years at Colorado State University in Fort Collins. George eventually returned to Missoula from Kalamazoo, MI, where he served as provost and vice president for academic affairs for Western Michigan University, to become president of the University of Montana in 1990.

I have enjoyed working with George during his tenure as president of the university. We share a strong desire to ensure that Montana's students have access to a high-quality, world class education that prepares them for the careers of the future and to be active members in their communities.

The University of Montana has seen tremendous growth under President Dennison's leadership. Over the past two decades, student enrollment has jumped from 10,000 to over 15,000. In the 20 years that George has served as president, more students have graduated from UM than did in the entire previous century. The number of doctorates awarded has increased from 15 to 75 annually. External research funding has expanded from $7 million in 1990 to over $170 million in 2010. The athletic programs at UM have competed well on a national level and have created a great sense of school and community spirit as the Griz have a faithful following throughout Big Sky country.

Like President Dennison, I strongly believe that an understanding of the world in which we live is essential to a well-rounded education. Under George's leadership, the university has developed strong international and exchange programs. Building on the work done by our dear friend Mike Mansfield, the former Senate majority leader and Ambassador to Japan, UM has relationships with universities across Asia. These partnerships help strengthen our educational, diplomatic, and economic ties with our friends across the Pacific and carry on the legacy and good work of Mike and Maureen Mansfield.

One initiative on which I have been particularly proud to work with President Dennison is the educational and cultural exchange program that the university recently started with Vietnam. I invited the Vietnamese Ambassador to the U.S. to visit Missoula in 2008 to meet with President Dennison about the exchange. President Dennison then traveled to Vietnam last year to meet with several universities and subsequently signed memoranda of understanding with Can Tho University and Vietnamese National University to establish student and faculty exchanges. It is important that we provide our students, the leaders of tomorrow, with the knowledge they will need to thrive in our increasingly global society—this exchange program does just that.

George has received numerous awards and recognition during his time at UM including the Governor's Humanities Award in 2009, the Montana Excellence in Leadership Award in 2007, and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education Region VIII Leadership Award in 1999. President Dennison has received honorary doctorates from universities in Kyrgyzstan and Tajikistan. During his career, George has had a number of historical works published. His 1976 book, "The Dorr War: Republicanism on Trial, 1831-1861," was runner-up in the Frederick Jackson Turner Award Competition. Upon retiring as president, George plans to spend the first years of his retirement writing a history of the University of Montana.

I would like to once again thank President Dennison for all his hard work and commend him for his leadership over the years. I wish him and Jane all the best as they start a new chapter in their life.●

TRIBUTE TO ARTHUR E. KATZ

• Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I wish to commend the life's work of a good man and a great American, Arthur E. Katz.

On Friday, April 23, Arthur was inducted into the U.S. Coast Guard Academy's Wall of Gallantry for his service to our Nation.

In 1963, Arthur graduated from the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, where soon afterward, he headed to Vietnam.

He served as commanding officer of USCGC Point Cypress from December 1965 to September 1966.

For his leadership and bravery during this tour of duty, Arthur was awarded a Bronze Star Medal for Valor.

Following his service in the Coast Guard, he went on to establish a successful business in Dunwoody, GA.

Arthur currently resides in Sandy Springs, a place he has come to love and call home. He is a devoted and loving husband of 46 years, father of three daughters and grandfather of seven.

As a well-respected member of the community, Arthur has been involved in numerous roles, such as the past president of the Temple Emanu-El synagogue in Sandy Springs and as a board member of the Marcus Jewish Community Center of Atlanta.

His commitment to community service and volunteerism has been tremendously valuable, and I am sure he has touched many lives over the years.

Arthur Katz is a true champion of patriotism and it is only fitting that he be honored and featured at the Wall of Gallantry at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy.●

RECOGNIZING PITNEY BOWES COMPANY

● Mr. DODD. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to the Pitney Bowes Company on the occasion of its 90th birthday. Headquartered in Stamford, Pitney Bowes has proven time and again that it is a true Connecticut institution, leading the way in innovation and facilitating progress in the mailing industry.

But at least as important as its financial success, is the kind of company that it is. The company is a notably progressive employer, capturing repeated honors for its commitment to diversity. It is regularly cited as among the best places to work for women, African Americans, and Hispanics. It does this because it is right but also because they know it makes smart business sense.

Pitney Bowes is also a corporate leader in health care. It is truly in the forefront of efforts to improve their employee and retiree health while at the same time reducing costs. The examples are numerous. The company learned that forcing people to make large copayments for the medications they need to manage chronic conditions often led employees to skip taking their medicine. This resulted in more trips to the doctor and hospital, higher costs, and more absenteeism. So the company reduced or eliminated employee copayments for these medications. It cost more in the short run, but a lot less in the long run, and the affected employees enjoy greater health and productivity.

The company put healthy food in its cafeterias and charges less for it. There are still lots of choices, some not so healthy, but you have to look harder for the less healthy foods, and you have to pay more. And either way, there are on-site gyms in many facilities.

The company also established on-site clinics to make it easier for employees and retirees to obtain medical care. Indeed, Pitney Bowes went so far as to arrange for specialist doctors, used by many of their employees, to hold office hours on-site. These efforts have been recognized by the Obama administration, and Murray Martin, the chairman and CEO, met with the President last year to discuss the company's programs.

Finally, the company also has a profound commitment to community service, providing funding for education and literacy organizations, and encouraging employees to volunteer their time to a wide variety of causes. This is just another way in which Pitney Bowes has benefited our State.

At a time when many American companies have failed, and others have become deeply troubled, it is with pleasure that I am able to recognize a cutting-edge company with good old fashioned values. Congratulations, Pitney Bowes, on your 90th birthday.●

● Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I wish to recognize one of my State's great companies on the occasion of its 90th birthday. On April 23, 1920, Arthur Pitney and Walter Bowes officially formed the Pitney Bowes Company with its headquarters in Stamford, CT. Today the company is still headquartered in Stamford, and employs 33,000 individuals worldwide.

In 1912, Arthur Pitney introduced the postage meter in the United States. This device, which is used to create and apply physical evidence of postage to pieces of mail, has allowed postal officials and offices throughout the United States to process mail more efficiently. In 1920, he partnered with Walter Bowes, a successful entrepreneur, to form the Pitney Bowes Postage Meter Company. In order for the postage meter to be sold in the U.S., Congress had to act to permit the meter indicia to be recognized as postage.

Since its founding, Pitney Bowes has been at the forefront of technological innovation. It has added vastly to the intellectual capital of this country and currently manages an active patent portfolio of more than 3,000 inventions. Quite simply, it is a company that has been the source of many, many good ideas. Many of its scientists are based in its R&D facility in Shelton, CT. In addition, the company actually had one of the first "e-commerce" applications, with its meters able to download postage electronically since 1979.

Pitney Bowes continues to innovate and grow. Last year its R&D investment was $182 million. It recently launched its newest mailing system. It also has become one of the world's largest software companies, helping its customers more accurately address their mail, deliver smarter marketing, provide more efficient government services, or locate their stores in the most promising location. The company also is a leader in the field of document management, helping government agencies, large companies and law firms manage their critical documents.

For more than 20 years, Pitney Bowes Financial Services International, a wholly-owned subsidiary, has been providing high-quality financial services for Pitney Bowes customers throughout the international marketplace. For example, Pitney Bowes finances the purchase of postage in its meters for over 1 million customers.

Pitney Bowes has operated globally for decades, and currently generates almost 30 percent of its revenue outside of the United States. At its manufacturing facility in Danbury, the company assembles large-scale mailing machines for export to many countries. I have had the privilege of touring the facility and have enjoyed seeing the flags of the destination countries hung over the machines they will be receiving.

Pitney Bowes has a large and diverse customer base with 2 million customers worldwide, many of which are small businesses. It has been listed on the New York Stock Exchange since 1950, has been a component of the S&P 500 Stock Index continually since 1957, and first joined the Fortune 500 in 1962.

Over the years, I know that Pitney Bowes has also been a good partner to the Postal Service and cares passionately about maintaining a mail service that not only survives but thrives. Pitney Bowes took the lead in creating the Mailing Industry CEO Council, which for the last several years has been at the forefront of educating policymakers about the mailing industry. There was a time when many of us in Congress failed to appreciate the extent of the importance and impact of the mailing industry. But thanks to their efforts, we know that it is a big trillion dollar industry employing more than 8 million workers. The company and the CEO Council played important roles in helping us enact postal reform legislation after a decade of effort. The company's chairman and CEO, Murray Martin, continues to regularly visit us in Washington to share his insights on how Congress can help the Postal Service adjust in a rapidly changing world.

On behalf of the people of Connecticut and the rest of the Nation, I would like to honor Pitney Bowes on the occasion of its 90th birthday. I am certain that the company and its employees will continue to pioneer new technologies and services that will contribute to economic growth in the U.S. and abroad.●

TRIBUTE TO JORDAN SOMER

● Mr. JOHANNIS. Mr. President, today I wish to recognize an outstanding young Nebraskan for her spirit of community service and for her dedication to making a difference in the lives of others.

Jordan Somer is currently a junior at Central High School in Omaha, NE. At Central High School, she is a member of the school's dance team and is involved in student clubs.

Jordan's vision was to create a pageant for girls and women with disabilities. In 2007, she founded the Miss Amazing Pageant. Now in its fourth year, the annual pageant encourages girls and women with disabilities to develop their public speaking skills and to build a positive self-image.

The Miss Amazing Pageant not only provides girls and women with disabilities with opportunities to shine, but also makes a clear difference in the community. Each participant in the Miss Amazing Pageant is asked to donate four cans of food. This food is then given to people in need. Jordan's pageant also gives back the money raised through ticket sales and silent auctions. Since 2007, Jordan's pageant has generously donated $15,000 to various community organizations.

I am pleased to recognize Jordan as a winner of the National Youth Service Award for Global Youth Service Day. It was a special honor for me to nominate someone so deserving of this award. Her service and leadership through the Miss Amazing Pageant has made a difference in the lives of individuals with disabilities and in Nebraska communities.

I want to express my personal congratulations to Jordan on her National Youth Service Award. I commend her for the worthy example she is setting for other young people and wish her all the best in her future endeavors. ●

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. ENZI (for himself and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 3257. A bill to authorize the Department of Labor's voluntary protection program and to expand the program to include more small businesses; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation with Senator LANDRIEU known as the Voluntary Protection Program Act. This bill will codify the Voluntary Protection Program, or VPP, expand it to include more small businesses, and incorporate recent GAO recommendations for program improvements.

No program has been more successful in creating such a culture of safety in the workplace than VPP. Since it was created in 1982, Republican and Democrat administrations alike have fostered its growth to now 2,284 worksites, a quarter of which are unionized, and it covers almost a million employees. The bipartisan support for VPP continues into this Congress. Last week, the Senate Budget Committee unanimously approved an amendment to preserve VPP budget authority and Chairman CONRAD noted that the program actually saves taxpayer dollars.

Worksites that pass the rigorous evaluation process and become VPP sites have an average Days Away Restricted or Transferred, DART, case rate of 52 percent below the average for its industry. In recent years, smaller worksites have made significant strides in VPP, increasing from 28 percent of VPP sites in 2003 to 39 percent in 2008.

The innovative program doesn't just keep employees safer; as I have noted, it also saves both the VPP companies and the taxpayers money. In 2007, Federal Agency VPP participants saved the government more than $59 million by avoiding injuries and private sector VPP participants saved more than $300 million. Additionally, when workplaces make the significant commitment to safety required by VPP, it allows OSHA to focus its resources where they are most needed. VPP Participant employers contribute a great deal to the VPP program expenditures. VPP participants have assigned approximately 1,200 of their own employees to act as OSHA Special Government Employees, SGEs, who conduct onsite evaluations for OSHA.

Despite the strong bipartisan support for VPP and its very positive results, the need for this legislation has become painfully clear. The administration's fiscal year 2011 Budget Request proposed eliminating the small amount it takes to administer VPP—$3.125 million and sought to transfer the 35 FTEs it takes to run the program to other functions. The budget proposal stated that OSHA was seeking "alternative non-federal forms of funding" and working closely with stakeholders, but, to date, no plan to secure such funding has been offered by the administration or in either the House or Senate authorizing committee. To the extent such "alternative funding" is bureaucratic code for a fee-based system such a proposal is simply not workable and completely counterproductive. Participating employers already voluntarily absorb significant costs to participate in the current program. Asking businesses—particularly small businesses, and particularly in the current economic environment—to take on more costs will only result in them dropping out of the program. Further still, a fee-based system simply destroys the credibility and integrity of VPP participation for employees.

I would like to thank Senator LANDRIEU for working with me on this important legislation.

By Mr. REED:

S. 3258. A bill to amend the securities laws to modernize and strengthen investor protection, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, the recent lawsuit by the Securities and Exchange Commission, SEC, against Goldman Sachs underscores that much still needs to be done to improve transparency and restore confidence in our financial system. Indeed, that is why we must have the debate on Wall Street reform. The nearly ½ of all U.S. households that own securities deserve a strong cop on the beat that has the tools it needs to go after swindlers and scam artists, and pursue the difficult cases arising from our increasingly complex financial markets. Our economy's success depends in no small part on restoring confidence in our capital markets and a smoothly operating capital formation process.

The bill I am introducing this afternoon, the Modernizing and Strengthening Investor Protection Act, would improve the ability of the SEC to protect investors by strengthening its ability to bring enforcement actions, addressing issues revealed by the recent Madoff fraud, and modernizing its ability to obtain critical information. In particular, it would enhance the ability of the SEC to hire market experts, strengthen oversight of fund custodians, modernize the SEC's ability to obtain information from the firms it oversees, and clarify and enhance SEC penalties and other authorities.

This legislation mirrors a bill that Representative KANJORSKI introduced and worked to include in the House version of Wall Street reform. I urge my colleagues to take a look at my legislation during the next few days, as I plan to introduce it as an amendment to the Wall Street reform bill that is about to be considered by the Senate.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3258

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Modernizing and Strengthening Investor Protection Act of 2010".

SEC. 2. STRENGTHENING ENFORCEMENT BY THE COMMISSION.

Rule 45(c)(3)(A)(ii) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a subpoena issued under the preceding sentence."

(b) AUTHORITY TO IMPOSE CIVIL PENALTIES IN CEASE AND DESIST PROCEEDINGS.—

(1) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933.—Section 8A of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 U.S.C. 77h-1) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) AUTHORITY TO IMPOSE MONEY PENALTIES.—

"(1) GROUNDS.—In any cease-and-desist proceeding under subsection (a), the Commission may impose a civil penalty on a person if the Commission finds, on the record, after notice and opportunity for hearing, that—

"(A) such person—

"(i) is violating or has violated any provision of this title, or any rule or regulation issued under this title; or

"(ii) is or was a cause of the violation of any provision of this title, or any rule or regulation thereunder; and

"(B) such penalty is in the public interest.

"(2) MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—

"(A) FIRST TIER.—The maximum amount of a penalty for each act or omission described in paragraph (1) shall be $7,500 for a natural person or $75,000 for any other person.

"(B) SECOND TIER.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the maximum amount of penalty for each such act or omission shall be $75,000 for a natural person or $375,000 for any other person, if the act or omission described in paragraph (1) involved fraud, deceit, manipulation, or deliberate or reckless disregard of a regulatory requirement.

"(C) THIRD TIER.—Notwithstanding subparagraphs (A) and (B), the maximum amount of penalty for each such act or omission shall be $150,000 for a natural person or $725,000 for any other person, if—

"(i) the act or omission described in paragraph (1) involved fraud, deceit, manipulation, or deliberate or reckless disregard of a regulatory requirement; and

"(ii) such act or omission directly or indirectly resulted in—

"(I) substantial losses or created a significant risk of substantial losses to other persons; or

"(II) substantial pecuniary gain to the person who committed the act or omission.

"(3) EVIDENCE CONCERNING ABILITY TO PAY.—In any proceeding in which the Commission may impose a penalty under this section, a respondent may present evidence of the ability of the respondent to pay such penalty. The Commission may, in its discretion, consider such evidence in determining whether such penalty is in the public interest. Such evidence may relate to the extent of the ability of the respondent to continue in business and the collectability of a penalty, taking into account any other claims of the United States or third parties upon the assets of the respondent and the amount of the assets of the respondent.”

(2) UNDER THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—Section 21B(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78u-2(a)) is amended—

“(2) TREATMENT OF INFORMATION.—For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this subsection shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section 552. Collection of information pursuant to section 17 shall be an administrative action involving an agency against specific individuals or agencies pursuant to section 3518(c)(1) of title 44, United States Code.”

(2) INVESTMENT COMPANY ACT OF 1940.—Section 31 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80a-30) is amended—

(A) by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

“(c) LIMITATIONS ON DISCLOSURE BY COMMISSION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commission shall not be compelled to disclose any records or information provided to the Commission under this section, or records or information based upon or derived from such records or information, if such records or information have been obtained by the Commission for use in furtherance of the purposes of this title, including surveillance, risk assessments, or other regulatory and oversight activities. Nothing in this subsection authorizes the Commission to withhold information from the Congress or prevent the Commission from complying with a request for information from any other Federal department or agency requesting the information for purposes within the scope of jurisdiction of that department or agency, or complying with an order of a court of the United States in an action brought by the United States or the Commission. For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this section shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section 552. Collection of information pursuant to section 31 shall be an administrative action involving an agency against specific individuals or agencies pursuant to section 3518(c)(1) of title 44, United States Code.”

(B) by striking subsection (d); and

(C) by redesignating subsections (e) and (f) as subsections (d) and (e), respectively.

(3) INVESTMENT ADVISERS ACT OF 1940.—Section 210 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (15 U.S.C. 80b-10) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(d) LIMITATIONS ON DISCLOSURE BY THE COMMISSION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commission shall not be compelled to disclose any records or information provided to the Commission under this section, or records or information based upon or derived from such records or information, if such records or information have been obtained by the Commission for use in furtherance of the purposes of this title, including surveillance, risk assessments, or other regulatory and oversight activities. Nothing in this subsection authorizes the Commission to withhold information from the Congress or prevent the Commission from complying with a request for information from any other Federal department or agency requesting the information for purposes within the scope of jurisdiction of that department or agency, or complying with an order of a court of the United States in an action brought by the United States or the Commission. For purposes of section 552 of title 5, United States Code, this section shall be considered a statute described in subsection (b)(3)(B) of such section 552. Collection of information pursuant to section 31 shall be an administrative action involving an agency against specific individuals or agencies pursuant to section 3518(c)(1) of title 44, United States Code.”

(e) EXPANSION OF AUDIT INFORMATION TO BE PRODUCED AND EXCHANGED.—Section 106 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 (15 U.S.C. 7216) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

“(b) PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS.—

“(1) PRODUCTION BY FOREIGN FIRMS.—If a foreign public accounting firm issues an audit report, performs audit work, conducts interim reviews, or performs material services upon which a registered public accounting firm relies in the conduct of an audit or interim review, the foreign public accounting firm shall—

“(A) produce its audit work papers and all other documents related to any such audit work or interim review to the Commission or the Board; and

“(B) be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of the United States for purposes of enforcement of any request for such documents.

“(2) OTHER PRODUCTION.—Any registered public accounting firm that relies, in whole or in part, on the work of a foreign public accounting firm in issuing an audit report, performing audit work, or conducting an interim review, shall—

“(A) produce the audit work papers of the foreign public accounting firm and all other documents related to any such work in response to a request for production by the Commission or the Board; and

“(B) secure the agreement of any foreign public accounting firm to such production, as a condition of the reliance by the registered public accounting firm on the work of that foreign public accounting firm.”;

(2) by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (g); and

(3) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

“(d) SERVICE OF REQUESTS OR PROCESS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Any foreign public accounting firm that performs work for a domestic registered public accounting firm shall furnish to the domestic registered public accounting firm a written irrevocable consent and power of attorney that designates the domestic registered public accounting firm as an agent upon whom may be served any process, pleadings, or other papers in any action brought to enforce this section.

“(2) SPECIFIC AUDIT WORK.—Any foreign public accounting firm that issues an audit report, performs audit work, performs interim reviews, or performs material services upon which a registered public accounting firm relies in the conduct of an audit or interim review, shall designate to the Commission or the Board an agent in the United States upon whom may be served any process, pleading, or other papers in any action brought to enforce this section or any request by the Commission or the Board under this section.

“(e) SANCTIONS.—A willful refusal to comply, in whole in or in part, with any request by the Commission or the Board under this section, shall be deemed a violation of this Act.

“(f) OTHER MEANS OF SATISFYING PRODUCTION OBLIGATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section, the staff of the Commission or the Board may allow a foreign public accounting firm that is subject to this section to meet production obligations under this section through alternate means, such as through foreign counterparts of the Commission or the Board.”

(f) SHARING PRIVILEGED INFORMATION WITH OTHER AUTHORITIES.—Section 24 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78x) is amended—

(1) in subsection (d), as amended by subsection (d)(1)(A), by striking “subsection (f)” and inserting “subsection (g)”;

(2) in subsection (e), as added by subsection (d)(1)(C), by striking “subsection (f)” and inserting “subsection (g)”;

(3) by redesignating subsection (f) as subsection (g); and

(4) by inserting after subsection (e) the following:

“(f) SHARING PRIVILEGED INFORMATION WITH OTHER AUTHORITIES.—

“(1) PRIVILEGED INFORMATION PROVIDED BY THE COMMISSION.—The Commission shall not be deemed to have waived any privilege applicable to any information by transferring that information to or permitting that information to be used by—

“(A) any agency (as defined in section 6 of title 18, United States Code);

“(B) the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board;

“(C) any self-regulatory organization;

“(D) any foreign securities authority;

“(E) any foreign law enforcement authority; or

“(F) any State securities or law enforcement authority.

“(2) NONDISCLOSURE OF PRIVILEGED INFORMATION PROVIDED TO THE COMMISSION.—The Commission shall not be compelled to disclose privileged information obtained from any foreign securities authority, or foreign law enforcement authority, if the authority has in good faith determined and represented to the Commission that the information is privileged.

“(3) NONWAIVER OF PRIVILEGED INFORMATION PROVIDED TO THE COMMISSION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Federal agencies, State securities and law enforcement authorities, self-regulatory organizations, and the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board shall not be deemed to have waived any privilege applicable to any information by transferring that information to or permitting that information to be used by the Commission.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—The provisions of subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a self-regulatory organization or the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board with respect to information used by the Commission in an action against such organization.

“(4) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) the term ‘privilege’ includes any work-product privilege, attorney-client privilege, governmental privilege, or other privilege recognized under Federal, State, or foreign law;

“(B) the term ‘foreign law enforcement authority’ means any foreign authority that is empowered under foreign law to detect, investigate or prosecute potential violations of law; and

“(C) the term ‘State securities or law enforcement authority’ means the authority of any State or territory that is empowered under State or territory law to detect, investigate, or prosecute potential violations of law.”

SEC. 5. MODERNIZATION OF INVESTOR PROTECTIONS.

(a) MUNICIPAL SECURITIES.—Section 15B of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78o-4) is amended—

(1) by striking “(b)(1) Not later” and all that follows through “succeed such initial members.” and inserting the following:

“(b) MUNICIPAL SECURITIES RULEMAKING BOARD.—

“(1) COMPOSITION OF THE MUNICIPAL SECURITIES RULEMAKING BOARD.—Not later than October 1, 2010, the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board (hereinafter in this section referred to as the ‘Board’), shall—

“(A) be composed of members who shall perform the duties set forth in this section; and

“(B) shall consist of—

“(i) a majority of independent public representatives, at least 1 of whom shall be representative of investors in municipal securities and at least 1 of whom shall be representative of issuers of municipal securities (which members are hereinafter referred to as ‘public representatives’);

“(ii) at least 1 individual who is representative of municipal securities brokers and municipal securities dealers that are not banks or subsidiaries, departments or divisions of banks (which members are hereinafter referred to as ‘broker-dealer representatives’); and

“(iii) at least 1 individual who is representative of municipal securities dealers that are banks or subsidiaries, departments or divisions of banks (which members are hereinafter referred to as ‘bank representatives’).”;

(2) in paragraph (2), by amending subparagraph (B) to read as follows:

“(B) establish fair procedures for the nomination and election of members of the Board and assure fair representation in such nominations and elections of municipal securities brokers and municipal securities dealers. Such rules—

“(i) shall establish requirements regarding the independence of public representatives;

“(ii) shall provide that the number of public representatives of the Board shall at all times exceed the total number of broker-dealer representatives and bank representatives;

“(iii) shall establish minimum knowledge, experience, and other appropriate qualifications for individuals to serve as public representatives, which may include prior work experience in the securities, municipal finance, or municipal securities industries;

“(iv) shall specify the term members shall serve; and

“(v) may increase or decrease the number of members which shall constitute the whole Board, except that in no case may the number of members of the whole Board be an even number.”

SEC. 6. COMMISSION ORGANIZATIONAL STUDY AND REFORM.

(a) STUDY REQUIRED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Securities and Exchange Commission (in this section referred to as the “Commission”) shall hire an independent consultant of high caliber who has expertise in organizational restructuring and the operations of capital markets to examine the internal operations, structure, funding, and the need for comprehensive reform of the Commission, as well as the relationship of the Commission with and the reliance by the Commission on self-regulatory organizations and other entities relevant to the regulation of securities and the protection of securities investors that are under the oversight of the Commission.

(2) SPECIFIC AREAS FOR STUDY.—The study required under paragraph (1) shall, at a minimum, include the study of—

(A) the possible elimination of unnecessary or redundant units at the Commission;

(B) improving communications between offices and divisions of the Commission;

(C) the need to put in place a clear chain-of-command structure, particularly for enforcement examinations and compliance inspections;

(D) the effect of high-frequency trading and other technological advances on the market and what the Commission requires to monitor the effect of such trading and advances on the market;

(E) the hiring authorities, workplace policies, and personal practices of the Commission, including—

(i) whether there is a need to further streamline hiring authorities for those who are not lawyers, accountants, compliance examiners, or economists;

(ii) whether there is a need for further pay reforms;

(iii) the diversity of skill sets of Commission employees and whether the present skill set diversity efficiently and effectively fosters the mission of the Commission of investor protection; and

(iv) the application of civil service laws by the Commission;

(F) whether the oversight by the Commission of, and reliance by the Commission on, self-regulatory organizations promotes efficient and effective governance for the securities markets; and

(G) whether adjusting the reliance by the Commission on self-regulatory organizations is necessary to promote more efficient and effective governance for the securities markets.

(b) CONSULTANT REPORT.—Not later than 150 days after the independent consultant is retained under subsection (a), the independent consultant shall submit a report to the Commission and to Congress containing—

(1) a detailed description of any findings and conclusions made while carrying out the study required under subsection (a)(1); and

(2) recommendations for legislative, regulatory, or administrative action that the independent consultant determines appropriate to enable the Commission and other entities on which the independent consultant reports to perform the missions of the Commission, whether mandated by statute or otherwise.

(c) COMMISSION REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after the date on which the consultant submits the report under subsection (b), and every 6 months thereafter during the 2-year period following the date on which the consultant submits the report under subsection (b), the Commission shall submit a report to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives describing the implementation by the Commission of the regulatory and administrative recommendations contained in the report of the independent consultant under subsection (b).

By Mr. KOHL (for himself, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. HATCH):

S. 3259. A bill to amend subtitle A of the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004 to make the operation of such subtitle permanent law; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004 Extension Act. This legislation makes permanent a critical component of the Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004, set to expire on June 22, which encourages participation in the Antitrust Division’s leniency program. As a result, the Justice Department will be able to continue to detect, investigate and aggressively prosecute price-fixing cartels which harm consumers.

The Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice has long considered criminal cartel enforcement a top priority, and its Corporate Leniency Policy is an important tool in that enforcement. Criminal antitrust offenses are generally conspiracies among competitors to fix prices, rig bids, or allocate markets of customers. The Leniency Policy creates incentives for corporations to report their unlawful cartel conduct to the Division, by offering the possibility of immunity from criminal charges to the first-reporting corporation, as long as there is full cooperation. For more than 15 years, this policy has allowed the Division to uncover cartels affecting billions of dollars worth of commerce here in the United States, which has led to prosecutions resulting in record fines and jail sentences.

An important part of the Division’s Leniency Policy, added by the Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004, limits the civil liability of leniency participants to the actual damages caused by that company—rather than triple the damages caused by the entire conspiracy, which is typical in civil antitrust lawsuits. This removed a significant disincentive to participation in the leniency program—the concern that, despite immunity from criminal charges, a participating corporation might still be on the hook for treble damages in any future antitrust lawsuits.

Maintaining strong incentives to make use of the Leniency Policy provides important benefits to the victims of antitrust offenses, often consumers who paid artificially high prices. It makes it more likely that criminal antitrust violations will be reported and, as a result, consumers will be able to identify and recover their losses from paying illegally inflated prices. The policy also requires participants to cooperate with plaintiffs in any follow-on civil lawsuits, which makes it more likely that the plaintiff consumers will be able to build strong cases against all members of the conspiracy.

Since the passage of ACPERA, the Antitrust Division has uncovered a number of significant cartel cases through its leniency program, including the air cargo investigation, which so far has yielded over a billion dollars in criminal fines. In that investigation, several airlines pled guilty to conspiring to fix international air cargo rates and international passenger fuel surcharges. Not only were criminal fines levied but one high-ranking executive pled guilty and agreed to serve 8 months in prison. In fiscal year 2004, before the passage of ACPERA, criminal antitrust fines totaled $350 million. Criminal antitrust fines in fiscal year 2009 surpassed $1 billion. Scott Hammond, the Deputy Assistant Attorney General for Criminal Enforcement in the Antitrust Division, has stated that the damages limitation has made its Corporate Leniency Program “even more effective” at detecting and prosecuting cartels. In fact, in the first 5 years after passage, leniency applications increased by 25 percent, and the Antitrust Division experienced “unprecedented” success in criminal enforcement.

ACPERA’s damages limitation is set to expire in June, so we must act quickly to extend it. Otherwise, the Justice Department will lose an important tool that it uses to investigate and prosecute criminal cartel activity. The strong evidence that this program works means it is time to make it permanent. Permanence will give all parties—the government, potential amnesty applicants, and potential private litigants—a clear sign that criminal cartel enforcement continues to be a top priority, and that the amnesty program is a key and continuing component of that enforcement program.

This certainty is likely to lead to increased participation in the amnesty program, the discovery of more cases, the receipt of more criminal fines, and a higher likelihood of consumers being able to recover their losses in civil litigation.

Some have raised questions about whether the leniency program could be made more effective by changing the requirements for leniency applicants to cooperate in private litigation, or by increasing the incentive for whistleblowing. Currently, there is insufficient evidence to show that changes are needed and the Department of Justice is concerned that any changes could have the unintended consequence of reducing the incentives to use the Leniency Program. Therefore, at this time we are hesitant to tinker with success. However, in response to the concerns, the Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004 Extension Act of 2010 requires a GAO study to consider the effectiveness of the incentives for leniency applicants to cooperate in private litigation, and specifically whether such cooperation is made in a timely fashion. The Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004 is meant to facilitate both government and private enforcement of the antitrust laws, and the GAO study will shed some light on whether it strikes the correct balance. When we receive the study, we will review it and act accordingly, changing the law if necessary.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3259

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004 Extension Act of 2010”.

SEC. 2. ELIMINATION OF SUNSET.

The Antitrust Criminal Penalty Enhancement and Reform Act of 2004 (15 U.S.C. 1 note) is amended by striking section 211.

SEC. 3. EFFECTIVE DATE OF AMENDMENT.

The amendment made by section 2 shall take effect immediately before June 22, 2010.

SEC. 4. GAO REPORT.

Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit a report to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate on the effectiveness of the Antitrust Criminal Penalties Enforcement and Reform Act of 2004, both in criminal investigation and enforcement by the Department of Justice and in private civil actions. Such report shall consider, inter alia, the effectiveness of incentives for cooperation, and the timeliness of that cooperation, in private civil actions.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Ms. KLOBUCHAR, and Mr. FRANKEN):

S. 3260. A bill to enhance and further research into the prevention and treatment of eating disorders, to improve access to treatment of eating disorders, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, today I am joining with Senator KLOBUCHAR and Senator FRANKEN to introduce the Federal Response to Eliminate Eating Disorders, FREED, Act. This important bill is the first comprehensive legislative effort to confront eating disorders in the U.S.

Eating disorders such as anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa are widespread, insidious, and too often fatal diseases. Today, at least 5 million Americans suffer from eating disorders. Because these diseases often go undiagnosed and uncounted, the actual number is closer to 11 million Americans. Adolescent women are by no means the only people suffering from eating disorders; these diseases don't discriminate by gender, race, income, or age.

Eating disorders are dangerous conditions, but their consequences are often underestimated. These diseases can lead to serious heart conditions, kidney failure, osteoporosis, infertility, gastrointestinal disorders, and even death. The National Institute of Mental Health estimates that one in 10 people with anorexia nervosa will die of starvation, cardiac arrest, or some other medical complication. One in 10! That is deeply disturbing, and cries out for a much more aggressive Federal response. Moreover, fatalities resulting from eating disorders are grossly underreported, because deaths are typically recorded by listing the immediate cause of death, such as cardiac arrest, rather than the underlying cause, which is the eating disorder.

But, despite their prevalence and very serious impacts on health, research funding for eating disorders has lagged behind funding for research into similar diseases. We simply don't know enough about the causes and consequences of eating disorders, or how to stop them from developing in the first place. We have research suggesting that there's a genetic component to eating disorders, but we have got to learn more so we can effectively prevent these diseases before they start.

The good news is that eating disorders are treatable. With appropriate nutritional, medical, and psychotherapeutic interventions, they can be successfully and fully cured. But right now, only one in 10 people receive treatment.

The FREED Act takes a major step forward in promoting research, screening, treatment, and the prevention of eating disorders.

First, the FREED Act expands research efforts at the National Institutes of Health to examine the causes and consequences of eating disorders. We need to understand these diseases to more effectively prevent and treat them. The FREED Act also improves surveillance and data collection systems at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention so we'll have accurate information and epidemiological data on eating disorders.

Second, the FREED Act expands access to treatment services and screening for eating disorders for Medicaid beneficiaries, and creates a patient advocacy network that will help individuals with eating disorders find treatment. Furthermore, the FREED Act improves the training and education of health care providers and educators so they know how to identify and treat individuals suffering from eating disorders.

Finally, we need to step up efforts to prevent these diseases in the first place. As I have said so many times, we don't have a genuine health care system in America, we have a sick care system. In other words, if you get sick, you get treatment. But we can spend just pennies on the dollar to prevent disease and illness in the first place by placing a much more robust emphasis on wellness, nutrition, physical activity, and public health. With this in mind, the FREED Act authorizes grants to develop and implement evidence-based prevention programs and promote healthy eating behaviors in schools, athletic programs, and other community-based programs.

Sadly, eating disorders are not rare. These diseases touch the lives of so many of our families and friends. Nearly half of all Americans personally know someone with an eating disorder. We have got to do a better job at the Federal level of investing in research, treatment, and prevention. The FREED Act builds on the investments we made in prevention, wellness, and mental health in health reform and mental health parity.

I thank Senator KLOBUCHAR and Senator FRANKEN for partnering with me on this bill, and urge our colleagues to join us in dramatically stepping up the federal response to eating disorders.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 3260

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Federal Response to Eliminate Eating Disorders Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds as follows:

(1) Estimates, based on current research, indicate that at least 5,000,000 people in the United States suffer from eating disorders including anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa, binge eating disorder, and eating disorders not otherwise specified (referred to in this Act as “EDNOS”).

(2) Anecdotal evidence suggests that as many as 11,000,000 people in the United States, including 1,000,000 males, may suffer from eating disorders.

(3) Eating disorders occur in all nations and in all populations, and among people of all ages and races and of both genders.

(4) Eating disorders are diseases with grave health consequences and high rates of mortality.

(5) Health consequences associated with eating disorders include heart failure and other serious cardiac conditions, electrolyte imbalance, kidney failure, osteoporosis, debilitating tooth decay, and gastrointestinal disorders, including esophageal inflammation and rupture, gastric rupture, peptic ulcers, and pancreatitis.

(6) Anorexia nervosa has one of the highest overall mortality rates of any mental illness. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, 1 in 10 people with anorexia nervosa will die of starvation, cardiac arrest, or another medical complication.

(7) The risk of death among adolescents with anorexia nervosa is 11 times greater than in disease-free adolescents.

(8) Anorexia nervosa has the highest suicide rate of all mental illnesses.

(9) New research suggests that bulimia nervosa has a much higher rate of mortality than is reflected in current statistics, because of the failure to identify the underlying eating disorder.

(10) Binge eating disorder is the most common eating disorder, with an estimated 3.5 percent of American women and 2 percent of American men expected to suffer from this disorder in their lifetime. Binge eating disorder is characterized by frequent episodes of uncontrolled overeating and is associated with obesity, heart disease, gall bladder disease, and diabetes.

(11) Research demonstrates that there is a significant genetic component to the development of eating disorders.

(12) Certain populations, including adolescent females and athletes of both genders, are at higher risk of developing an eating disorder.

(13) Different types of eating disorders may affect certain races and genders disproportionately.

(14) Despite the serious health consequences and the high risk of death, Federal research funding for eating disorders has lagged behind research concerning other diseases, when compared by the number of individuals affected by, and the relative health consequences of, the diseases.

(15) The ability of individuals suffering from eating disorders, particularly bulimia nervosa, binge eating disorder, and EDNOS to access appropriate treatment is unacceptably low.

(16) The development of an eating disorder is frequently preceded by unhealthy weight control behaviors commonly identified as disordered eating, including skipping meals, using diet pills, taking laxatives, self-induced vomiting, and fasting. Such disordered eating behaviors should be included in enhanced research prevention and training efforts.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to expand research into the prevention of eating disorders;

(2) to expand research on effective treatment and intervention of eating disorders and to support evidence-based programs designed to prevent eating disorders;

(3) to expand research on the causes, courses, and outcomes of eating disorders;

(4) to increase the number of people properly screened and diagnosed with an eating disorder;

(5) to improve training and education of health care and behavioral care providers and of school personnel at all levels of elementary and secondary education;

(6) to improve surveillance and data systems for tracking the prevalence, severity, and economic costs of eating disorders; and

(7) to enhance access to comprehensive treatment for eating disorders.

TITLE I—EATING DISORDER DETECTION AND RESEARCH

SEC. 101. EXPANSION AND COORDINATION OF THE ACTIVITIES OF THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF HEALTH AND THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF MENTAL HEALTH WITH RESPECT TO RESEARCH ON EATING DISORDERS.

Part B of title IV of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 284 et seq.), as amended by section 4305(b) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 409K. EXPANSION AND COORDINATION OF ACTIVITIES WITH RESPECT TO RESEARCH ON EATING DISORDERS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director of NIH, pursuant to the general authority of such director, shall expand, intensify, and coordinate the activities of the National Institutes of Health with respect to research on eating disorders.

“(b) GRANTS.—The Director of NIH may award grants to public or private entities to pay all or part of the cost of planning, establishing, improving, and providing basic operating support for such entities to establish consortia in eating disorder research and to carry out the activities described in subsection (e).

“(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, an entity shall—

“(1) be public or nonprofit private entity (including a health department of a State, a political subdivision of a State, or an institution of higher education); and

“(2) submit to the Secretary an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(d) REQUIREMENTS OF CONSORTIA.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each consortium established as described in subsection (b) may use the facilities of a single lead institution, or may be formed from several cooperating institutions, meeting such requirements as may be prescribed by the Director of NIH.

“(2) COORDINATION OF CONSORTIA.—The Director of NIH—

“(A) may, as appropriate, provide for the coordination of information among consortia established under subsection (b); and

“(B) shall ensure regular communication between members of the various consortia established using grants awarded under this section.

“(3) REPORTS.—The Director of NIH shall require each consortium to periodically prepare and submit to such director reports on the activities of such consortium.

“(e) ACTIVITIES.—Each consortium receiving a grant under subsection (b) shall conduct basic, clinical, epidemiological, population-based, or translational research regarding eating disorders, which may include research related to—

“(1) the identification and classification of eating disorders and disordered eating;

“(2) the causes, diagnosis, and early detection of eating disorders;

“(3) the treatment of eating disorders, including the development and evaluation of new treatments and best practices;

“(4) the conditions or diseases related to, or arising from, an eating disorder; and

“(5) the evaluation of existing prevention programs and the development of reliable prevention and screening programs.

“(f) COLLABORATION.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of NIH and the Director of the National Institute of Mental Health, shall identify relevant Federal agencies (including the other institutes and centers of the National Institutes of Health, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, the Health Resources and Services Administration, and the Office on Women’s Health) that shall collaborate with respect to activities conducted under subsection (d).

“(g) PUBLIC INPUT.—The Director of NIH shall provide for a mechanism—

“(1) to educate and disseminate information on the existing and planned programs and research activities of the National Institutes of Health with respect to eating disorders; and

“(2) through which the Director of NIH may receive comments from the public regarding such programs and activities.

“(h) DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.—The Director of NIH shall provide for a mechanism for making the results and information generated by the consortia publicly available, such as through the Internet.

“(i) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘eating disorder’ has the meaning given such term in section 3990O(e).

“(j) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2011 through 2015.”

SEC. 102. INTERAGENCY COORDINATING COUNCIL; SURVEILLANCE AND RESEARCH PROGRAM; STUDY ON ECONOMIC COST.

Title III of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 241 et seq.), as amended by section 4303 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“PART W—PROGRAMS RELATING TO EATING DISORDERS

“SEC. 3990O. INTERAGENCY EATING DISORDERS COORDINATING COUNCIL.

“(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department of Health and Human Services the Interagency Eating Disorders Coordinating Council (referred to in this section as the ‘Coordinating Council’).

“(b) RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Coordinating Council shall—

“(1) develop and annually update a summary of advances in eating disorder research concerning causes of, prevention of, early screening for, treatment and access to services related to, and supports for individuals affected by, eating disorders;

“(2) monitor Federal activities with respect to eating disorders;

“(3) make recommendations to the Secretary regarding any appropriate changes to such activities, and to the Director of NIH, with respect to the strategic plan developed under paragraph (4);

“(4) develop and annually update a strategic plan for the conduct of, and support for, eating disorder research, including proposed budgetary recommendations; and

“(5) submit to Congress the strategic plan developed under paragraph (4) and all updates to such plan.

“(c) MEMBERSHIP.—

“(1) CHAIRPERSON.—The Director of NIH shall serve as the chairperson of the Coordinating Council and shall be responsible for the leadership and oversight of the activities of the Coordinating Council.

“(2) MEMBERS IN GENERAL.—The Coordinating Council shall be composed of—“(A) representatives of—

“(i) the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality;

“(ii) the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration;

“(iii) the research institutes at the National Institutes of Health, as the Director of NIH determines appropriate;

“(iv) the Health Resources and Services Administration;

“(v) the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services;

“(vi) the Office of Women’s Health;

“(vii) the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and “(viii) the Department of Education; and

“(B) the additional members appointed under paragraph (3).

“(3) ADDITIONAL MEMBERS.—Not fewer than 1/5 of the total membership of the Coordinating Council shall be composed of non-Federal public members to be appointed by the Secretary, including representatives of—

“(A) academic medical centers or schools of medicine, nursing, or other health professions;

“(B) health care professionals who are actively involved in the treatment of eating disorders;

“(C) researchers with expertise in eating disorders; and “(D) at least 2 individuals with a past or present diagnosis of an eating disorder or parents of individuals with a past or present diagnosis of an eating disorder.

“(d) ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT; TERMS OF SERVICE; OTHER PROVISIONS.—

“(1) ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT.—The Coordinating Council shall receive necessary and appropriate administrative support from the Secretary.

“(2) TERMS OF SERVICE.—Members of the Coordinating Council appointed under subsection (c)(2) shall serve for a term of 4 years, and may be reappointed for one or more additional 4 year-terms. Any member appointed to fill a vacancy for an unexpired term shall be appointed for the remainder of such term. A member may serve after the expiration of the member’s term until a successor has taken office.

“(3) MEETINGS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Coordinating Council shall meet at the call of the chairperson or upon the request of the Secretary. The Coordinating Council shall meet not fewer than 2 times each year.

“(B) NOTICE.—Notice of any upcoming meeting of the Coordinating Council shall be published in the Federal Register.

“(C) PUBLIC ACCESS.—Each meeting of the Coordinating Council shall be open to the public and shall include appropriate periods of time for questions by the public.

“(4) SUBCOMMITTEES.—In carrying out its functions the Coordinating Council may establish subcommittees and convene workshops and conferences.

“(e) EATING DISORDER.—In this part, the term ‘eating disorder’ includes anorexia nervosa, bulimia nervosa, binge eating disorder, and eating disorders not otherwise specified, as defined in the fourth edition of the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders or any subsequent edition.

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2011 through 2015.

“SEC. 39900-1. EATING DISORDER SURVEILLANCE AND RESEARCH PROGRAM.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, shall award grants or cooperative agreements to eligible entities for the purpose of improving the collection, analysis and reporting of State epidemiological data on eating disorders.

“(b) ACTIVITIES.—An eligible entity shall assist with the development and coordination of eating disorder surveillance efforts within a region and may—

“(1) provide for the collection, analysis, and reporting of epidemiological data on eating disorders through the existing surveillance programs;

“(2) develop recommendations to enhance existing surveillance programs to more accurately collect epidemiological data on disordered eating and eating disorders, including the number, incidence, trends, correlates, mortality, and causes of eating disorders and the effects of eating disorders on quality of life;

“(3) develop recommendations to improve requirements for ensuring that eating disorders are accurately recorded as underlying and contributing causes of death; and

“(4) assist with the development and coordination of surveillance efforts within a region.

“(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—To be eligible to receive an award under this section, an entity shall—

“(1) be a public or nonprofit private entity (including a health department of a State, a political subdivision of a State, or an institution of higher education); and

“(2) submit to the Secretary an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(d) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—In making awards under this section, the Secretary may provide direct technical assistance in lieu of cash.

“(e) REPORTS.—Each entity awarded a grant or cooperative agreement under this section shall submit to the Secretary a report describing the activities conducted using grant funds and providing recommendations for improving the collection, analysis, and reporting of epidemiological data on eating disorders.

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2011 through 2015.

“SEC. 39900-2. STUDY REGARDING ECONOMIC COSTS OF EATING DISORDERS.

“The Secretary, acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, shall conduct a study evaluating the economic costs of eating disorders. Such study may examine years of productive life lost, missed days of work, reduced work productivity, costs of medical and mental health treatment, costs to family, and costs to society as a result of eating disorders.”

TITLE II—EATING DISORDER EDUCATION AND PREVENTION; STUDIES ON EATING DISORDERS AND BODY MASS INDEX; PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENTS

SEC. 201. GRANTS TO PREVENT EATING DISORDERS.

Title III of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 241 et seq.), as amended by section 102, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 39900-3. GRANTS TO PREVENT EATING DISORDERS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and in coordination with the Administrator of the Health Resources and Services Administration, shall award grants to eligible entities to plan, implement, and evaluate programs to prevent eating disorders and obesity and the acute and chronic medical conditions that accompany such conditions, and to promote healthy body image and appropriate nutrition-based eating behaviors.

“(b) ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, an entity shall—

“(1) be a State, local or tribal educational agency, an accredited institution of higher education, a State or local health department, or a community based organization; and

“(2) submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(c) USE OF FUNDS.—An entity receiving a grant under this section shall fund development and testing of school-, clinic-, community-, or health department-based programs designed to promote healthy eating behaviors and to prevent eating disorders including—

“(1) developing evidence-based interventions to prevent eating disorders, including educational or intervention programs regarding nutritional content, understanding and responding to hunger and satiety, positive body image development, positive self-esteem development, and life skills, that take into account cultural and developmental issues and the role of family, school, and community;

“(2) planning and implementing a healthy lifestyle curriculum or program with an emphasis on healthy eating behaviors, physical activity, and emotional wellness, the connection between emotional and physical health, and the prevention of bullying based on body size, shape, and weight;

“(3) forming partnerships with parents and caregivers to educate adults about identifying unhealthy eating behaviors and promoting healthy eating behaviors, physical activity, and emotional wellness; and

“(4) integrating eating disorder prevention and awareness in physical education, health, education, athletic training programs, and after-school recreational sports programs, to the extent possible.

“(d) REQUIREMENTS OF GRANT RECIPIENTS.—

“(1) LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—A recipient of a grant under this section shall not use more than 10 percent of the amounts received under a grant under this section for administrative expenses.

“(2) CONTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.—A recipient of a grant under this section, and any entity receiving assistance under the grant for training and education, shall contribute non-Federal funds, either directly or through in-kind contributions, to the costs of the activities to be funded under the grant in an amount that is not less than 10 percent of the total cost of such activities.

“(3) EVALUATION.—Each recipient of a grant under this section shall provide to the Secretary, in such form and manner as the Secretary shall specify, relevant data and an evaluation of the activities of the grant recipient in promoting healthy eating behaviors and preventing eating disorders. Evaluation reports shall be made publicly available, such as through the Internet.

“(e) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary may set aside an amount not to exceed 1 percent of the total amount appropriated for a fiscal year to provide grantees with technical support in the development, implementation, and evaluation of programs under this section and to disseminate information about preventing and treating eating disorders and obesity.

“SEC. 39900-4. STUDY OF EATING DISORDERS IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS, SECONDARY SCHOOLS, AND INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION.

“Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of the Federal Response to Eliminate Eating Disorders Act, the National Center for Health Statistics of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the National Center for Education Statistics of the Department of Education shall conduct a joint study, or enter into a contract to have a study conducted, on the impact eating disorders have on educational advancement and achievement. The study shall—

“(1) determine the incidence of eating disorders and disordered eating among students, and the morbidity and mortality rates associated with eating disorders;

“(2) evaluate the extent to which students with eating disorders are more likely to miss school, have delayed rates of development, or have reduced cognitive skills;

“(3) report on current State and local programs to increase awareness about the dangers of eating disorders among youth and to prevent eating disorders and the risk factors for eating disorders, and evaluate the value of such programs; and

“(4) make recommendations on measures that could be undertaken by Congress, the Department of Education, States, and local educational agencies to strengthen eating disorder prevention and awareness programs including development of best practices.

“SEC. 39900-5. STUDY OF THE SUITABILITY OF MANDATING BODY MASS INDEX REPORTING IN ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

“Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of the Federal Response to Eliminate Eating Disorders Act, the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, shall conduct a study on mandatory reporting of body mass index, including—

“(1) how many schools are currently conducting such measuring; and

“(2) the impacts on students of such measures, which may include student and parent reactions to such reports, including changes in physical activity, a focus on nutrition, a focus on body image, the use of weight control behaviors, eating disorder symptoms, and the incidence of teasing or bullying based on body size.

“SEC. 39900-6. PUBLIC SERVICE ADVERTISEMENTS.

“The Secretary, in consultation with the Director of the National Institutes of Health and the Secretary of Education, shall carry out a program to develop, distribute, and promote the broadcasting of public service announcements to improve public awareness of, and to promote the identification and prevention, of eating disorders.

“SEC. 39900-7. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

“To carry out sections 39900-3, 39900-4, 39900-5, and 39900-6, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2011 through 2015.”.

SEC. 202. SENSE OF THE SENATE.

It is the sense of the Senate that critically necessary programs to reduce obesity in children may also unintentionally increase the unhealthy weight control behaviors that can lead to development of eating disorders, and that federally funded programs to combat obesity should take this connection into consideration.

TITLE III—IMPROVING TRAINING IN HEALTH PROFESSIONS, EDUCATION, AND RELATED FIELDS

SEC. 301. GRANTS FOR HEALTH PROFESSIONALS.

Part D of title VII of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 294 et seq.), as amended by section 4305(c) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 760. GRANTS FOR HEALTH PROFESSIONALS.

“(a) GRANTS.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of the Health Resources and Services Administration, shall award grants under this section to develop interdisciplinary training and education programs that provide undergraduate, graduate, post-graduate medical, nursing (including advanced practice nursing students), dental, mental and behavioral health, pharmacy, and other health professions students or residents with an understanding of, and clinical skills pertinent to identifying and treating, eating disorders.

“(b) ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section an entity shall—

“(1) be an accredited school of allopathic or osteopathic medicine, or an accredited school of nursing, public health, social work, dentistry, behavioral and mental health, or pharmacy, or an accredited medical, dental, or nursing residency program;

“(2) prepare and submit to the Secretary an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require, including—

“(A) information to demonstrate that the applicant will employ an evidence-based approach for training health professionals on eating disorders;

“(B) strategies for the dissemination and sharing of curricula and other educational materials developed under the grant to other interested health professions schools, national resource repositories for materials on eating disorders, and health services continuing education providers;

“(C) a plan for consulting with community-based coalitions, treatment centers, or eating disorder research experts who have experience and expertise in issues related to eating disorders, for services provided under the program carried out under the grant; and

“(D) a plan for making the information and curricula publicly available to health professionals, such as through the Internet.

“(c) USE OF FUNDS.—

“(1) REQUIRED USES.—Amounts provided under a grant awarded under this section shall be used to fund interdisciplinary training and education projects that are designed to train medical, nursing, and other health professions students and residents to identify and provide appropriate health care services (including mental or behavioral health care services and referrals to appropriate community services) to individuals who have eating disorders.

“(2) PERMISSIVE USE.—Amounts provided under a grant under this section may be used to offer community-based training opportunities in rural areas for medical, nursing, and other health professions students and residents on eating disorders, which may include the use of distance learning networks and other available technologies needed to reach isolated rural areas.

“(d) REQUIREMENTS OF GRANTEEES.—

“(1) LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—A grantee shall not use more than 10 percent of the amounts received under a grant under this section for administrative expenses.

“(2) CONTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.—A grantee under this section, and any entity receiving assistance under the grant for training and education, shall contribute non-Federal funds, either directly or through in-kind contributions, to the costs of the activities to be funded under the grant in an amount that is not less than 10 percent of the total cost of such activities.

“(e) EATING DISORDER.—In this section, the term ‘eating disorder’ has the meaning given such term in section 39900(e).

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 2011 through 2015.”.

SEC. 302. TRAINING IN ELEMENTARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

Section 5131(a) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7215(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(28) Programs to improve the identification of students with eating disorders (as definied in section 39900 of the Public Health Service Act), increase awareness of such disorders among parents and students, and train educators (including teachers, school nurses, school social workers, coaches, school counselors, and administrators) on effective eating disorder prevention, screening, detection and assistance methods.”.

TITLE IV—IMPROVING AVAILABILITY AND ACCESS TO TREATMENT

SEC. 401. MEDICAID COVERAGE FOR EATING DISORDER TREATMENT SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1905 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(a)), as amended by section 2301(a)(1) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148) and section 1202(b) of the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-152), is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (28), by striking “and” at the end;

(B) by redesignating paragraph (29) as paragraph (30); and

(C) by inserting after paragraph (28) the following new paragraph:

“(29) eating disorder treatment services (as defined in subsection (ee)(1)); and”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(ee) EATING DISORDER TREATMENT SERVICES.—

“(1) DEFINITION.—The term ‘eating disorder treatment services’ means services relating to diagnosis and treatment of an eating disorder (as defined in section 39900 of the Public Health Service Act), including screening, counseling, pharmacotherapy (including coverage of drugs described in paragraph (2)), and other necessary health care services.

“(2) COVERAGE FOR PHARMACOLOGICAL TREATMENT OF EATING DISORDERS.—For purposes of paragraph (1), eating disorder treatment services shall include drugs provided as part of care in an inpatient setting, covered outpatient drugs (as defined in section 1927(k)(2)), and non-prescription drugs described in section 1927(d)(2)(A) that are prescribed, in accordance with generally accepted medical guidelines, for treatment of an eating disorder.”.

(b) INCREASED FMAP FOR EATING DISORDER TREATMENT SERVICES.—Section 1905(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(b)), as amended by section 4106(b) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” before “(5)”; and

(2) by inserting before the period at the end the following: “, and (6) the Federal medical assistance percentage shall be equal to the enhanced FMAP described in section 2105(b) with respect to medical assistance for eating disorder treatment services (as defined in subsection (ee)(1) provided to an individual who is eligible for such assistance and has an eating disorder (as defined in section 39900 of the Public Health Service Act))”.

(c) INCLUSION IN EPSDT SERVICES.—Section 1905(r)(1)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(r)(1)(B)) is amended—

(1) in clause (iv), by striking “and” at the end;

(2) in clause (v), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by inserting after clause (v) the following new clause:

“(vi) appropriate diagnostic services relating to eating disorders (as defined in section 39900 of the Public Health Service Act).”.

(d) EXCEPTION FROM OPTIONAL RESTRICTION UNDER MEDICAID DRUG COVERAGE.—Section 1927(d)(2)(A) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396r-8(d)(2)(A)) is amended by inserting before the period at the end the following: “, except for drugs that are prescribed, in accordance with generally accepted medical guidelines, for the purpose of treatment of an individual who is eligible for medical assistance under the State plan and has an eating disorder (as defined in section 3900 of the Public Health Service Act)".

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to drugs and services furnished on or after October 1, 2010. SEC. 402. GRANTS TO SUPPORT PATIENT ADVOCACY.

Subpart II of part D of title IX of the Public Health Service Act, as amended by section 6301(b) of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 938. GRANTS TO SUPPORT PATIENT ADVOCACY.

"(a) GRANTS.—The Secretary, acting through the Director, shall award grants under this section to develop and support patient advocacy work to help individuals with eating disorders obtain adequate health care services and insurance coverage.

"(b) ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, an entity shall—

"(1) be a public or nonprofit private entity (including a health department of a State or tribal agency, a community-based organization, or an institution of higher education);

"(2) prepare and submit to the Secretary an application at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require, including—

"(A) comprehensive strategies for advocating on behalf of, and working with, individuals with eating disorders or at risk for developing eating disorders;

"(B) a plan for consulting with community-based coalitions, treatment centers, or eating disorder research experts who have experience and expertise in issues related to eating disorders or patient advocacy in providing services under a grant awarded under this section; and

"(C) a plan for financial sustainability involving State, local, and private contributions.

"(c) USE OF FUNDS.—Amounts provided under a grant awarded under this section shall be used to support patient advocacy work, including—

"(1) providing education and outreach in community settings regarding eating disorders and associated health problems, especially among low-income, minority, and medically underserved populations;

"(2) facilitating access to appropriate, adequate, and timely health care for individuals with eating disorders and associated health problems;

"(3) assisting in communication and cooperation between patients and providers;

"(4) representing the interests of patients in managing health insurance claims and plans;

"(5) providing education and outreach regarding enrollment in health insurance, including enrollment in the Medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act, the Medicaid program under title XIX of such Act, and the Children's Health Insurance Program under title XXI of such Act;

"(6) identifying, referring, and enrolling underserved populations in appropriate health care agencies and community-based programs and organizations in order to increase access to high-quality health care services;

"(7) providing technical assistance, training, and organizational support for patient advocates; and

"(8) creating, operating, and participating in State or regional networks of patient advocates.

"(d) REQUIREMENTS OF GRANTEES.—

"(1) LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—A grantee shall not use more than 5 percent of the amounts received under a grant under this section for administrative expenses.

"(2) CONTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.—A grantee under this section, and any entity receiving assistance under the grant for training and education, shall contribute non-Federal funds, either directly or through in-kind contributions, to the costs of the activities to be funded under the grant in an amount that is not less than 75 percent of the total cost of such activities.

"(3) REPORTING TO SECRETARY.—A grantee under this section shall submit to the Secretary a report, at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require, including a description and evaluation of the activities described in subsection (c) carried out by such entity.

"(e) EATING DISORDER.—In this section, the term 'eating disorder' has the meaning given such term in section 3900(e).

"(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—To carry out this section, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 2011 through 2015."

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 500—EXPRESSING THE SINCERE CONDOLENCES OF THE SENATE TO THE FAMILY, LOVED ONES, UNITED STEELWORKERS, FELLOW WORKERS, AND THE ANACORTES COMMUNITY ON THE TRAGEDY AT THE TESORO REFINERY IN ANACORTES, WASHINGTON

Mrs. MURRAY (for herself and Ms. CANTWELL) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 500

Whereas the State of Washington, the Tesoro Corporation, and the United Steelworkers experienced a tragedy on April 2, 2010, when a fire occurred at the Tesoro refinery in Anacortes, Washington;

Whereas 7 workers died as a result of the tragedy: Daniel J. Aldridge, Matthew C. Bowen, Donna Van Dreumel, Matt Gumbel, Darrin J. Hoines, Lew Janz, and Kathryn Powell;

Whereas Federal and State government agencies, including the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Washington State Department of Labor and Industries, are investigating the tragedy and reviewing current safety procedures and processes to prevent future tragedies from occurring; and

Whereas, to support the victims and the families involved in the tragedy, the United Steelworkers Local 12-591 has established the Tesoro Incident Family Fund and the Tesoro Corporation and the Skagit Community Foundation have partnered to establish the Tesoro Anacortes Refinery Survivors Fund: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) expresses the sincere condolences of the Senate to the family, loved ones, United Steelworkers, fellow workers, and the Anacortes community on the tragedy at the Tesoro refinery in Anacortes, Washington; and

(2) honors Daniel J. Aldridge, Matthew C. Bowen, Donna Van Dreumel, Matt Gumbel, Darrin J. Hoines, Lew Janz, and Kathryn Powell.

TITLE II—RESERVE FUNDS

SEC. 201. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO PROMOTE EMPLOYMENT AND JOB GROWTH.

(a) EMPLOYMENT AND JOB GROWTH.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to employment and job growth, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(b) SMALL BUSINESS ASSISTANCE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that provide assistance to small businesses, including increasing the availability of credit from banks or credit unions, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(c) UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that reduce the unemployment rate or provide assistance to the unemployed, particularly in the States and localities with the highest rates of unemployment, or improve the implementation of the unemployment compensation program, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(d) TRADE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to trade, including Trade Adjustment Assistance programs, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(e) MANUFACTURING.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports, including tax legislation, that revitalize and strengthen the United States domestic manufacturing sector, by the amounts provided in that legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(f) DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR IMPROVING FOREST AND WATERSHED HEALTH AND RESILIENCY.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports providing for a robust Federal investment in programs that improve forest and watershed health and resiliency, including programs that reduce the risk of forest fires, insect or disease outbreaks, or the spread of invasive species, thereby creating natural resource related jobs, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 202. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO FURTHER STABILIZE AND IMPROVE THE REGULATION OF THE FINANCIAL AND HOUSING SECTORS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to the regulation of financial markets, firms, or products, or to otherwise stabilize or strengthen the financial and housing sectors of our economy, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 203. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR TAX RELIEF AND REFORM.

(a) TAX RELIEF.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution by the amounts provided by one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that provide tax relief, including but not limited to extensions of expiring and expired tax relief or refundable tax relief, by the amounts provided in that legislation for those purposes, provided that the provisions in such legislation other than those providing for the extension of policies defined in section 304 (c)(2), (c)(3), or (c)(4) of this concurrent resolution would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020. Revisions made pursuant to this subsection shall not include amounts associated with the extension of policies defined in section 304 (c)(2), (c)(3), or (c)(4) of this concurrent resolution.

(b) TAX REFORM.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that would reform the Internal Revenue Code to ensure a sustainable revenue base that lead to a fairer and more efficient tax system and to a more competitive business environment for United States enterprises, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 204. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO INVEST IN CLEAN ENERGY AND PRESERVE THE ENVIRONMENT.

(a) INVESTING IN CLEAN ENERGY AND PRESERVING THE ENVIRONMENT.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that—

- (1) reduce our Nation's dependence on imported energy;
- (2) promote renewable energy development or produce clean energy jobs;
- (3) accelerate the research, development, demonstration, and deployment of advanced technologies to capture and store carbon dioxide emissions from coal-fired power plants and other industrial emission sources and to use coal in an environmentally-acceptable manner;

(4) strengthen and retool manufacturing supply chains;

(5) promote clean energy financing;

(6) encourage conservation and efficiency or improve electricity transmission;

(7) make improvements to the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program;

(8) set aside additional funding from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund for Arctic oil spill research;

(9) implement water settlements;

(10) provide additional resources for wildland fire management activities; or

(11) preserve, restore, or protect the Nation's public lands, oceans, coastal areas, or aquatic ecosystems;

by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020. The legislation may include tax provisions.

(b) CLIMATE CHANGE LEGISLATION.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that would—

(1) invest in clean energy technology initiatives;

(2) decrease greenhouse gas emissions;

(3) create new jobs in a clean technology economy;

(4) strengthen the manufacturing competitiveness of the United States;

(5) diversify the domestic clean energy supply to increase the energy security of the United States;

(6) protect consumers (including policies that address regional differences);

(7) provide incentives for cost-savings achieved through energy efficiencies;

(8) provide voluntary opportunities for agriculture and forestry communities to contribute to reducing the levels of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere; or

(9) help families, workers, communities, and businesses make the transition to a clean energy economy;

by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 205. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO ASSIST WORKING FAMILIES AND CHILDREN.

(a) CHILD NUTRITION AND WIC.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that reauthorize child nutrition programs or the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (the WIC program), by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(b) INCOME SUPPORT AND CHILD CARE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to child care assistance for low-income families, the Social Services Block Grant (SSBG), the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program, child support enforcement programs, or other assistance to low-income families, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(c) HOUSING ASSISTANCE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to housing assistance, which may include low-income rental assistance, or assistance provided through the Housing Trust Fund created under section 1131 of the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(d) CHILD WELFARE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports related to child welfare programs, which may include the Federal foster care payment system, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 206. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR INVESTMENTS IN AMERICA'S INFRASTRUCTURE.

(a) INFRASTRUCTURE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that provide for Federal investment in America's infrastructure, which may include projects for public housing, energy, water, wastewater, transportation, freight and passenger rail, or financing through Build America Bonds, by the amounts provided in that legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(b) SURFACE TRANSPORTATION.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that provide new contract authority paid out of the Highway Trust Fund for surface transportation programs to the extent such new contract authority is offset by an increase in receipts to the Highway Trust Fund (excluding transfers from the general fund of the Treasury into the Highway Trust Fund not offset by a similar increase in receipts), by the amounts provided in that legislation for those purposes, provided further that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(c) MULTIMODAL TRANSPORTATION PROJECTS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that authorize multimodal transportation projects that include performance expectations, metrics, and a schedule for reports on results by the amounts provided in that legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(d) FLOOD CONTROL PROJECTS AND INSURANCE REFORM.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that provide for levee or dam modernization, maintenance, repair, and improvement, increase the resources available to prevent or mitigate flooding or the damage caused by flooding, or provide for flood insurance reform and modernization, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 207. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR AMERICA'S VETERANS, AND RETURNING AND WOUNDED SERVICEMEMBERS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that—

(1) expand the number of disabled military retirees who receive both disability compensation and retired pay (concurrent receipt);

(2) reduce or eliminate the offset between Survivor Benefit Plan annuities and Veterans' Dependency and Indemnity Compensation;

(3) enhance or maintain the affordability of health care for military personnel, military retirees, or veterans;

(4) improve disability benefits or evaluations for wounded or disabled military personnel or veterans (including measures to expedite the claims process);

(5) allow Reserve Component servicemembers to remain on active duty for a period of time after redeploying in order to ease the adjustment from combat to civilian life; or

(6) expand veterans' benefits including for veterans living in rural areas or for caregivers providing assistance to veterans;

by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 208. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR HIGHER EDUCATION.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that make higher education more accessible or affordable, which may include legislation to expand and strengthen student aid, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020. The legislation may include tax provisions.

SEC. 209. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR HEALTH CARE.

(a) PHYSICIAN REIMBURSEMENT.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that increase the reimbursement rate for physician services under section 1848 (d) and (f) of the Social Security Act or that include or expand financial incentives for physicians to improve the quality and efficiency of items and services furnished to Medicare beneficiaries through the use of consensus-based quality measures, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that the provisions in such legislation other than those providing for the extension of policies defined in section 304(c)(1) of this concurrent resolution would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020. Revisions made pursuant to this subsection shall not include amounts associated with the extension of policies defined in section 304(c)(1) of this concurrent resolution.

(b) HEALTH CARE WORKFORCE.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that include measures to address shortages of nurses, physicians, or in other health professions or to encourage physicians to train in primary care, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(c) THERAPY CAPS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that protect access to outpatient therapy services (including physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech-language pathology services) through measures such as repealing or increasing the current outpatient therapy caps, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(d) EXTENSION OF EXPIRING HEALTH CARE POLICIES.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that extend expiring Medicare, Medicaid, or other health provisions, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

(e) BENEFITS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports making changes to health or other benefits for federal workers, including postal retiree health coverage, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 210. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR INVESTMENTS IN OUR NATION'S COUNTIES AND SCHOOLS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that make changes to or provide for the reauthorization of the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self Determination Act of 2000 (Public Law 106-393) or make changes to the Payments in Lieu of Taxes Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-565), or both, by the amounts provided by that legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 211. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR THE FEDERAL JUDICIARY.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that authorize salary adjustments for justices and judges of the United States, or increase the number of Federal judgeships, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 212. DEFICIT-REDUCTION RESERVE FUND FOR RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE NATIONAL COMMISSION ON FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY AND REFORM.

Upon enactment of legislation containing recommendations in the final report of the National Commission on Fiscal Responsibility and Reform, established by Executive Order 13531 on February 18, 2010, that decreases the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020, the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may—

(1) reduce the allocations of a committee or committees;

(2) revise aggregates and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution; and

(3) make adjustments to the Senate's pay-as-you-go ledger over 6 and 11 years; to ensure that the deficit reduction achieved by that legislation is used for deficit reduction only, and is not available as an offset for subsequent legislation.

SEC. 213. DEFICIT-REDUCTION RESERVE FUND FOR IMPROPER PAYMENTS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may reduce the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that achieve savings by eliminating or reducing improper payments and use such savings to reduce the deficit. The Chairman may also make adjustments to the Senate's pay-as-you-go ledger over 6 and 11 years to ensure that the deficit reduction achieved is used for deficit reduction only. The adjustments authorized under this section shall be of the amount of deficit reduction achieved.

SEC. 214. DEFICIT-REDUCTION RESERVE FUND FOR TERMINATED PROGRAMS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate shall reduce the discretionary spending limits, budgetary aggregates, and allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, upon adoption by the Senate of an amendment to—

(1) a bill or a joint resolution reported by the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate or passed by the House of Representatives;

(2) an amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate; or

(3) an amendment between the Houses received from the House of Representatives; that achieves savings by eliminating the funding for any discretionary program, project, or account recommended for termination in the "Terminations, Reductions, and Savings" volume that accompanies the Budget of the United States Government, submitted pursuant to section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, for the budget year and prior 2 fiscal years.

SEC. 215. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR SMALL BUSINESS TAX RELIEF.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, amendments between houses, motions or conference reports that would protect business pass-through income from any increase in the statutory 33 percent and 35 percent individual income tax rates promulgated in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (Public Law 107-16) and amended in the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2003 (Public Law 108-27) by the amounts provided in such legislation for that purpose, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 216. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR GREATER ACCOUNTABILITY FOR RECOVERY ACT FUNDING.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that would both set performance measurements for Federal agencies that distribute funding provided under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 (Public Law 111-5) and toughen reporting requirements on those who receive grants and contracts under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 217. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR GREATER ACCOUNTABILITY FOR HEALTH CARE REFORM.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels and limits in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that would set performance metrics and milestones to measure changes in the level of health care coverage and in the cost and quality of health care service delivery under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148), and any amendments to that Act, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 218. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR REDUCING TAX INCREASES ON LOW- AND MIDDLE-INCOME AMERICANS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, amendments between houses, motions, or conference reports that would delay any tax increases enacted under the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-152), in combination with the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (Public Law 111-148) (the "Act"), until January 1, 2014, when the major health care reform measures included in the Act are effective, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 219. DEFICIT-REDUCTION RESERVE FUND TO PROMOTE CORPORATE TAX FAIRNESS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may reduce the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that achieve savings through tax policies that ensure that large, profitable corporations paying no Federal income taxes will pay their fair share and use such savings to reduce the deficit. The Chairman may also make adjustments to the Senate's pay-as-you-go ledger over 6 and 11 years to ensure that the deficit reduction achieved is used for deficit reduction only. The adjustments authorized under this section shall be of the amount of deficit reduction achieved.

SEC. 220. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR REDUCING TAX INCREASES ON LOW- AND MIDDLE-INCOME AMERICANS AND PROTECTING RETIREES.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, amendments between houses, motions, or conference reports that would reduce the threshold for the itemized deduction for unreimbursed medical expenses from 10 percent to 7.5 percent of adjusted gross income and to reinstate the business deduction for expenses allocable to the Medicare Part D employer subsidy, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 221. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TAX-PAYER ACCESS TO IRS APPEALS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, amendments between houses, motions, or conference reports that would redeploy existing resources of the Internal Revenue Service to provide at least one full-time Internal Revenue Service appeals officer and one full-time settlement agent in every State, by the amounts provided in such legislation for such purpose, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 222. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO MAKE IT MORE DIFFICULT FOR CORPORATIONS TO INFLUENCE ELECTIONS.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that furthers campaign finance reform, including increased oversight by Federal regulators, by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 223. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND TO REPEAL DEDUCTIONS FROM MINERAL REVENUE PAYMENTS TO STATES.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, amendments between houses, motions, or conference reports that would repeal the requirement to deduct certain amounts from onshore mineral revenues payable to States under the heading "ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS" under the heading "MINERALS MANAGEMENT SERVICE" under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR" of title I of division A under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, ENVIRONMENT, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2010" of the Interior Department and Further Continuing Appropriations, Fiscal Year 2010 (Public Law 111-88; 123 Stat. 2915), by the amounts provided in such legislation for that purpose, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

SEC. 224. DEFICIT-NEUTRAL RESERVE FUND FOR INCREASING TRANSPARENCY REGARDING FOREIGN HOLDERS OF UNITED STATES DEBT AND ASSESSING RISKS RELATED TO THE FEDERAL DEBT.

The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may revise the allocations of a committee or committees, aggregates, and other appropriate levels in this resolution for one or more bills, joint resolutions, amendments, motions, or conference reports that—

- (1) improve transparency and reporting of foreign holdings of United States debt;
- (2) require the President to provide quarterly assessments to Congress on the national security and economic risks posed by current levels of foreign holders of United States debt;
- (3) require the President to formulate and submit a plan of action to reduce the risk to the national security and economic stability of the United States; and
- (4) require the Comptroller General of the United States to provide Congress with an annual assessment of the national security and economic risks posed by the debt;

by the amounts provided in such legislation for those purposes, provided that such legislation would not increase the deficit over either the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2015 or the period of the total of fiscal years 2010 through 2020.

TITLE III—BUDGET PROCESS

Subtitle A—Budget Enforcement

SEC. 301. DISCRETIONARY SPENDING LIMITS FOR FISCAL YEARS 2010 THROUGH 2013, PROGRAM INTEGRITY INITIATIVES, AND OTHER ADJUSTMENTS.

(a) SENATE POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill or joint resolution (or amendment, motion, or conference report on that bill or joint resolution) that would cause the discretionary spending limits in this section to be exceeded.

(2) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER AND APPEALS.—

(A) WAIVER.—This subsection may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(B) APPEALS.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this subsection shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the appellant and the manager of the bill or joint resolution. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this subsection.

(b) SENATE DISCRETIONARY SPENDING LIMITS.—In the Senate and as used in this section, the term "discretionary spending limit" means—

(1) for fiscal year 2010, $1,226,211,000,000 in new budget authority and $1,366,891,000,000 in outlays;

(2) for fiscal year 2011, $1,122,003,000,000 in new budget authority and $1,313,271,000,000 in outlays;

(3) for fiscal year 2012, $1,150,570,000,000 in new budget authority and $1,250,770,000,000 in outlays; and

(4) for fiscal year 2013, $1,171,007,000,000 in new budget authority and $1,239,573,000,000 in outlays;

as adjusted in conformance with the adjustment procedures in subsection (c).

(c) ADJUSTMENTS IN THE SENATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—After the reporting of a bill or joint resolution relating to any matter described in paragraph (2), or the offering of an amendment or motion thereto or the submission of a conference report thereon—

(A) the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may adjust the discretionary spending limits, budgetary aggregates, and allocations pursuant to section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, by the amount of new budget authority in that measure for that purpose and the outlays flowing therefrom; and

(B) following any adjustment under subparagraph (A), the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate may report appropriately revised suballocations pursuant to section 302(b) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to carry out this subsection.

(2) MATTERS DESCRIBED.—Matters referred to in paragraph (1) are as follows:

(A) CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEWS AND SSI REDETERMINATIONS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—If a bill or joint resolution is reported making appropriations in a fiscal year of the amounts specified in clause (ii) for continuing disability reviews and Supplemental Security Income redeterminations for the Social Security Administration, and provides an additional appropriation of an amount further specified in clause (ii) for continuing disability reviews and Supplemental Security Income redeterminations for the Social Security Administration, then the discretionary spending limits, allocation to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and aggregates for that year may be adjusted by the amount in budget authority and outlays flowing therefrom not to exceed the additional appropriation provided in such legislation for that purpose for that fiscal year.

(i) AMOUNTS SPECIFIED.—The amounts specified are—

(I) for fiscal year 2011, an appropriation of $283,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $513,000,000;

(II) for fiscal year 2012, an appropriation of $294,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $642,000,000; and

(III) for fiscal year 2013, an appropriation of $305,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $751,000,000.

(iii) ASSET VERIFICATION IN 2011.—The additional appropriation of $513,000,000 in 2011 may also provide that a portion of that amount, not to exceed $10,000,000, may be used to complete implementation of asset verification initiatives.

(B) INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TAX ENFORCEMENT.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—If a bill or joint resolution is reported making appropriations in a fiscal year to the Internal Revenue Service of not less than the amounts specified in clause (ii) for tax enforcement to address the Federal tax gap (taxes owed but not paid), of which not less than the amount further specified in clause (ii) shall be available for additional or enhanced tax enforcement, or both, to address the Federal tax gap, then the discretionary spending limits, allocation to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and aggregates for that year may be adjusted by the amount in budget authority and outlays flowing therefrom not to exceed the amount of additional or enhanced tax enforcement provided in such legislation for that fiscal year.

(ii) AMOUNTS SPECIFIED.—The amounts specified are—

(I) for fiscal year 2011, an appropriation of $8,235,000,000, of which not less than $1,115,000,000 is available for additional or enhanced tax enforcement;

(II) for fiscal year 2012, an appropriation of $8,744,000,000, of which not less than $1,357,000,000 is available for additional or enhanced tax enforcement; and

(III) for fiscal year 2013, an appropriation of $9,259,000,000, of which not less than $1,724,000,000 is available for additional or enhanced tax enforcement.

(C) HEALTH CARE FRAUD AND ABUSE CONTROL.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—If a bill or joint resolution is reported making appropriations in a fiscal year of up to the amounts specified in clause (ii) to the Health Care Fraud and Abuse Control program at the Department of Health and Human Services, then the discretionary spending limits, allocation to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and aggregates for that year may be adjusted in an amount not to exceed the amount in budget authority and outlays flowing therefrom provided for that program for that fiscal year.

(ii) AMOUNTS SPECIFIED.—The amounts specified are—

(I) for fiscal year 2011, an appropriation of $561,000,000;

(II) for fiscal year 2012, an appropriation of $589,000,000; and

(III) for fiscal year 2013, an appropriation of $619,000,000.

(D) UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IMPROPER PAYMENT REVIEWS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—If a bill or joint resolution is reported making appropriations in a fiscal year of the amounts specified in clause (ii) for in-person reemployment and eligibility assessments and unemployment insurance improper payment reviews, and provides an additional appropriation of up to an amount further specified in clause (ii) for in-person reemployment and eligibility assessments and unemployment insurance improper payment reviews, then the discretionary spending limits, allocation to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and aggregates for that year may be adjusted by an amount in budget authority and outlays flowing therefrom not to exceed the additional appropriation provided in such legislation for that purpose for that fiscal year.

(ii) AMOUNTS SPECIFIED.—The amounts specified are—

(I) for fiscal year 2011, an appropriation of $10,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $55,000,000;

(II) for fiscal year 2012, an appropriation of $11,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $60,000,000; and

(III) for fiscal year 2013, an appropriation of $11,000,000, and an additional appropriation of $65,000,000.

(3) ADJUSTMENTS TO SUPPORT ONGOING OVERSEAS DEPLOYMENTS AND OTHER ACTIVITIES.—

(A) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may adjust the discretionary spending limits, allocations to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and aggregates for one or more—

(i) bills reported by the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate or passed by the House of Representatives;

(ii) joint resolutions or amendments reported by the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate;

(iii) amendments between the Houses received from the House of Representatives or Senate amendments offered by the authority of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate; or

(iv) conference reports; making appropriations for overseas deployments and other activities in the amounts specified in subparagraph (B), provided that the Chairman shall not make any such adjustment for a bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report that increases the on-budget deficit over the period of the budget year and the ensuing 9 fiscal years following the budget year.

(B) AMOUNTS SPECIFIED.—The amounts specified are—

(i) for fiscal year 2010, $49,953,000,000 in new budget authority and the outlays flowing therefrom;

(ii) for fiscal year 2011, $159,387,000,000 in new budget authority and the outlays flowing therefrom;

(iii) for fiscal year 2012, $50,000,000,000 in new budget authority and the outlays flowing therefrom; and

(iv) for fiscal year 2013, $50,000,000,000 in new budget authority and the outlays flowing therefrom.

SEC. 302. POINT OF ORDER AGAINST ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) POINT OF ORDER.—Except as provided in subsection (b), it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that would provide an advance appropriation.

(2) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “advance appropriation” means any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making appropriations for fiscal year 2011 that first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2011, or any new budget authority provided in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations or continuing appropriations for fiscal year 2012, that first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2012.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Advance appropriations may be provided—

(1) for fiscal years 2012 and 2013 for programs, projects, activities, or accounts identified in the joint explanatory statement of managers accompanying this resolution under the heading “Accounts Identified for Advance Appropriations” in an aggregate amount not to exceed $28,852,000,000 in new budget authority in each year;

(2) for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting; and

(3) for the Department of Veterans Affairs for the Medical Services, Medical Support and Compliance, and Medical Facilities accounts of the Veterans Health Administration.

(c) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER AND APPEAL.—

(1) WAIVER.—In the Senate, subsection (a) may be waived or suspended only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEAL.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under subsection (a).

(d) FORM OF POINT OF ORDER.—A point of order under subsection (a) may be raised by a Senator as provided in section 313(e) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(e) CONFERENCE REPORTS.—When the Senate is considering a conference report on, or an amendment between the Houses in relation to, a bill, upon a point of order being made by any Senator pursuant to this section, and such point of order being sustained, such material contained in such conference report shall be deemed stricken, and the Senate shall proceed to consider the question of whether the Senate shall recede from its amendment and concur with a further amendment, or concur in the House amendment with a further amendment, as the case may be, which further amendment shall consist of only that portion of the conference report or House amendment, as the case may be, not so stricken. Any such motion in the Senate shall be debatable. In any case in which such point of order is sustained against a conference report (or Senate amendment derived from such conference report by operation of this subsection), no further amendment shall be in order.

(f) INAPPLICABILITY.—In the Senate, section 402 of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress) shall no longer apply.

SEC. 303. STRENGTHENED EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.

(a) AUTHORITY TO DESIGNATE.—In the Senate, with respect to a provision of direct spending or receipts legislation or appropriations for discretionary accounts that Congress designates as an emergency requirement in such measure, the amounts of new budget authority, outlays, and receipts in all fiscal years resulting from that provision shall be treated as an emergency requirement for the purpose of this section subject to the provisions of subsection (c).

(b) EXEMPTION OF EMERGENCY PROVISIONS.—Any new budget authority, outlays, and receipts resulting from any provision designated as an emergency requirement, pursuant to this section, in any bill, joint resolution, amendment, or conference report shall not count for purposes of sections 302 and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, section 201 of S. Con. Res. 21 (110th Congress) (relating to pay-as-you-go), section 311 of S. Con. Res. 70 (110th Congress) (relating to long-term deficits), section 404 of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress) (relating to short-term deficits), and section 301 of this resolution (relating to discretionary spending). Designated emergency provisions shall not count for the purpose of revising allocations, aggregates, or other levels pursuant to procedures established under section 301(b)(7) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 for deficit-neutral reserve funds and revising discretionary spending limits set pursuant to section 301 of this resolution.

(c) EMERGENCY LEGISLATION DESIGNATION REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, it shall not be in order to consider any bill, joint resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that provides an emergency designation for one or more provisions, for the purpose of section 4(g) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-139) or this section of this resolution, unless each designation is accompanied by an “Affirmation of Emergency Designation” document.

(2) SIGNED AFFIRMATION.—The “Affirmation of Emergency Designation” document shall be filed with the Clerk of the Senate at the time the matter is filed with the clerk, signed by 16 Senators, affirming the emergency requirements as follows: “We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of the Emergency Legislation Designation Requirement, affirm that the matter meets the following emergency requirements:

“(1) For purposes of this section, any provision is an emergency requirement if the situation addressed by such provision is—

“(A) necessary, essential, or vital (not merely useful or beneficial);

“(B) sudden, quickly coming into being, and not building up over time;

“(C) an urgent, pressing, and compelling need requiring immediate action;

“(D) subject to subparagraph (B), unforeseen, unpredictable, and unanticipated; and “(E) not permanent, temporary in nature.

“(2) An emergency that is part of an aggregate level of anticipated emergencies, particularly when normally estimated in advance, is not unforeseen.”.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms “direct spending”, “receipts”, and “appropriations for discretionary accounts” mean any provision of a bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that affects direct spending, receipts, or appropriations as those terms have been defined and interpreted for purposes of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

(e) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—When the Senate is considering a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report, if a point of order is made by a Senator against an emergency designation in that measure, that provision making such a designation shall be stricken from the measure and may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(2) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER AND APPEALS.—

(A) WAIVER.—Paragraph (1) may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(B) APPEALS.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this subsection shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the appellant and the manager of the bill or joint resolution, as the case may be. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this subsection.

(3) DEFINITION OF AN EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—For purposes of paragraph (1), a provision shall be considered an emergency designation if it designates any item as an emergency requirement pursuant to this subsection.

(4) FORM OF THE POINT OF ORDER.—A point of order under paragraph (1) may be raised by a Senator as provided in section 313(e) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(5) CONFERENCE REPORTS.—When the Senate is considering a conference report on, or an amendment between the Houses in relation to, a bill, upon a point of order being made by any Senator pursuant to this section, and such point of order being sustained, such material contained in such conference report shall be deemed stricken, and the Senate shall proceed to consider the question of whether the Senate shall recede from its amendment and concur with a further amendment, or concur in the House amendment with a further amendment, as the case may be, which further amendment shall consist of only that portion of the conference report or House amendment, as the case may be, not so stricken. Any such motion in the Senate shall be debatable. In any case in which such point of order is sustained against a conference report (or Senate amendment derived from such conference report by operation of this subsection), no further amendment shall be in order.

(f) INAPPLICABILITY.—In the Senate, section 403 of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2010, shall no longer apply.

SEC. 304. ADJUSTMENTS FOR THE EXTENSION OF CERTAIN CURRENT POLICIES.

(a) ADJUSTMENT.—For the purposes of determining the points of order specified in subsection (b), the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may adjust the estimate of the budgetary effects of a bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that contains one or more provisions meeting the criteria of subsection (c) to exclude the amounts of qualifying budgetary effects.

(b) COVERED POINTS OF ORDER.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may make adjustments pursuant to this section for the following points of order only:

(1) Section 201 of S. Con. Res. 21 (110th Congress) (relating to pay-as-you-go).

(2) Section 311 of S. Con. Res. 70 (110th Congress) (relating to long-term deficits).

(3) Section 404 of S. Con. Res. 13 (111th Congress) (relating to short-term deficits).

(c) QUALIFYING LEGISLATION.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may make adjustments authorized under subsection (a) for legislation containing provisions that—

(1) amend or supersede the system for updating payments made under subsections 1848 (d) and (f) of the Social Security Act, consistent with section 7(c) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-139);

(2) amend the Estate and Gift Tax under subtitle B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, consistent with section 7(d) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010;

(3) extend relief from the Alternative Minimum Tax for individuals under sections 55-59 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, consistent with section 7(e) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010; or

(4) extend middle-class tax cuts made in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 (Public Law 107-16) and the Jobs and Growth Tax Relief and Reconciliation Act of 2003 (Public Law 108-27), consistent with section 7(f) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010.

(d) LIMITATION.—The Chairman shall make any adjustments pursuant to this section in a manner consistent with the limitations described in sections 4(c) and 7(h) of the Statutory Pay-As-You-Go Act of 2010 (Public Law 111-139).

(e) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of this section, the terms “budgetary effects” or “effects” mean the amount by which a provision changes direct spending or revenues relative to the baseline.

(f) SUNSET.—This section shall expire on December 31, 2011.

SEC. 305. EXTENSION OF ENFORCEMENT OF BUDGETARY POINTS OF ORDER IN THE SENATE.

(a) EXTENSION.—Notwithstanding any provision of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, subsections (c)(2) and (d)(3) of section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 shall remain in effect for purposes of Senate enforcement through September 30, 2020.

(b) REPEAL.—Section 205 of S. Con. Res. 21 (110th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2008, and section 403 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress), the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006, are repealed.

SEC. 306. POINT OF ORDER ESTABLISHING A 20 PERCENT LIMIT ON NEW DIRECT SPENDING IN RECONCILIATION LEGISLATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, it shall not be in order to consider any reconciliation bill, joint resolution, motion, amendment, or any conference report on, or an amendment between the Houses in relation to, a reconciliation bill pursuant to section 310 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, that produces an increase in outlays, if—

(1) the effect of all the provisions in the jurisdiction of any committee is to create gross new direct spending that exceeds 20 percent of the total savings instruction to the committee; or

(2) the effect of the adoption of an amendment would result in gross new direct spending that exceeds 20 percent of the total savings instruction to the committee.

(b) FORM OF POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A point of order under subsection (a) may be raised by a Senator as provided in section 313(e) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(2) WAIVER AND APPEAL.—Subsection (a) may be waived or suspended only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under subsection (a).

(3) CONFERENCE REPORT.—If a point of order is sustained under subsection (a) against a conference report in the Senate, the report shall be disposed of as provided in section 313(d) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

Subtitle B—Other Provisions

SEC. 311. OVERSIGHT OF GOVERNMENT PERFORMANCE.

In the Senate, committees are requested to review programs and tax expenditures in their jurisdiction, and provide in the views and estimates reports required under section 301(d) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 recommendations to improve governmental performance and to reduce waste, fraud, abuse, or program duplication. In their views and estimates letters, committees should address matters for congressional consideration identified in the Government Accountability Office’s High Risk list reports.

SEC. 312. BUDGETARY TREATMENT OF CERTAIN DISCRETIONARY ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.

In the Senate, notwithstanding section 302(a)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, section 13301 of the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, and section 2009a of title 39, United States Code, the joint explanatory statement accompanying the conference report on any concurrent resolution on the budget shall include in its allocations under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget

Act of 1974 to the Committees on Appropriations amounts for the discretionary administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration and of the Postal Service.

SEC. 313. APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF CHANGES IN ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.

(a) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments of allocations and aggregates made pursuant to this resolution shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

(b) EFFECT OF CHANGED ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.—Revised allocations and aggregates resulting from these adjustments shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) BUDGET COMMITTEE DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this resolution the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority, revenues, deficits, and surpluses for a fiscal year or period of fiscal years shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the Senate.

SEC. 314. ADJUSTMENTS TO REFLECT CHANGES IN CONCEPTS AND DEFINITIONS.

Upon the enactment of a bill or joint resolution providing for a change in concepts or definitions, the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may make adjustments to the levels and allocations in this resolution in accordance with section 251(b) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (as in effect prior to September 30, 2002).

SEC. 315. TRUTH IN DEBT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order to consider a budget resolution in the Senate unless it contains a “Truth in Debt Disclosure” section with all, and only, the following disclosures regarding debt for that resolution:

“SEC. ____ . TRUTH IN DEBT DISCLOSURE.

“(a) GROSS DEBT.—The levels assumed in this budget resolution allow the gross Federal debt of the Nation to rise/fall by $ ____ from the current year, fiscal year 20 ____, to the fifth year of the budget window, fiscal year 20 ____.

“(b) PER CITIZEN.—The levels assumed in this budget resolution allow the gross Federal debt of the Nation to rise/fall by $ ____ on every citizen of the United States from the current year, fiscal year 20 ____, to the fifth year of the budget window, fiscal year 20 ____.

“(c) FIVE-YEAR PERIOD.—The levels assumed in this budget resolution project that $ ____ of the Social Security surplus will be spent over the 5-year budget window, fiscal years 20 ____ through 20 ____, on things other than Social Security.”.

(b) ADDITIONAL MATTER.—If any portion of the Social Security surplus is projected to be spent in any year or the gross Federal debt in the fifth year of the budget window is greater than the gross debt projected for the current year (as described in section 101(5) of the resolution) then the report, print, or statement of managers accompanying the budget resolution shall contain a section that—

(1) details the circumstances making it in the national interest to allow gross Federal debt to increase rather than taking steps to reduce the debt; and

(2) provides a justification for allowing the surpluses in the Social Security trust fund to be spent on other functions of government even as the baby boom generation retires, program costs are projected to rise dramatically, the debt owed to Social Security is about to come due, and the trust fund is projected to go insolvent.

(c) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “gross Federal debt” means the nominal levels of (or changes in the levels of) gross Federal debt (debt subject to limit as set out in section 101(5) of the resolution) measured at the end of each fiscal year during the period of the budget, not debt as a percentage of GDP, and not levels relative to baseline projections.

(d) PREVIOUS RESOLUTIONS.—It shall not be in order to consider a budget resolution in the Senate unless it includes a table that contains, for each of the previous 12 fiscal years, the following information based on the budget resolution for each such fiscal year:

(1) The amount by which the levels assumed in the budget resolution allow the Federal debt of the Nation to rise or fall.

(2) The amount by which the levels assumed in the budget resolution allow the debt of the Federal debt of the Nation to rise or fall on a per capita basis (including only citizens of the United States).

(3) The amount of the Social Security surplus projected to be spent over 5 years by the levels in the budget resolution.

SEC. 316. TRUTH IN DEBT DISCLOSURES.

(a) GROSS DEBT.—The levels assumed in this budget resolution allow the gross Federal debt of the Nation to rise by $4,710,000,000,000 from the current year, fiscal year 2010, to the fifth year of the budget window, fiscal year 2015.

(b) PER CITIZEN.—The levels assumed in this budget resolution allow the gross Federal debt of the Nation to rise by $15,250 on every citizen of the United States from the current year, fiscal year 2010, to the fifth year of the budget window, fiscal year 2015.

SEC. 317. FURTHER DISCLOSURE OF LEVELS IN THIS RESOLUTION.

The levels assumed in this budget resolution—

(1) cut spending as a percent of GDP by 11 percent;

(2) cut the deficit as percent of GDP by 70 percent; and

(3) cut taxes by $780,000,000,000.

SEC. 318. EXERCISE OF RULEMAKING POWERS.

Congress adopts the provisions of this title—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate, and as such they shall be considered as part of the rules of the Senate and such rules shall supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules; and

(2) with full recognition of the constitutional right of the Senate to change those rules at any time, in the same manner, and to the same extent as is the case of any other rule of the Senate.

TITLE IV—RECONCILIATION

SEC. 401. RECONCILIATION IN THE SENATE.

(a) DEFICIT REDUCTION INSTRUCTION.—The Committee on Finance shall report to the Senate a reconciliation bill or resolution not later than September 23, 2010, that consists of changes in laws, bills, or resolutions within its jurisdiction to reduce the deficit by $2,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2010 through 2015.

(b) STATUTORY DEBT LIMIT INSTRUCTION.—The Committee on Finance shall report to the Senate a reconciliation bill or resolution not later than December 10, 2010, that consists of changes in laws, bills, or resolutions within its jurisdiction to increase the statutory debt limit by an amount no more than $50,000,000,000.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 3730. Mr. FEINGOLD submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 3217, to promote the financial stability of the United States by improving accountability and transparency in the financial system, to end “too big to fail”, to protect the American taxpayer by ending bailouts, to protect consumers from abusive financial services practices, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 3730. Mr. FEINGOLD submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 3217, to promote the financial stability of the United States by improving accountability and transparency in the financial system, to end “too big to fail,” to protect the American taxpayer by ending bailouts, to protect consumers from abusive financial services practices, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. ____ . ELIMINATION OF AUTOMATIC PAY ADJUSTMENTS FOR MEMBERS OF CONGRESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 601(a) of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 (2 U.S.C. 31) is repealed.

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 601(a)(1) of such Act is amended—

(1) by striking “(a)(1)” and inserting “(a)”;

(2) by redesignating subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) as paragraphs (1), (2), and (3), respectively; and

(3) by striking “as adjusted by paragraph (2) of this subsection” and inserting “adjusted as provided by law”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect on December 31, 2010.

NOTICE OF HEARING

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I would like to announce that the Committee on Indian Affairs will meet on Thursday, April 29, 2010 at 2:15 p.m. in Room 628 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building to conduct a legislative hearing on the following bills:

S. 2802, A bill to settle land claims within the Fort Hall Reservation; S. 1264, A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to assess the irrigation infrastructure of the Pine River Indian Irrigation Project in the State of Colorado and provide grants to, and enter into cooperative agreements with, the Southern Ute Indian Tribe to assess, repair, rehabilitate, or reconstruct existing infrastructure, and for other purposes; and S. 439, A bill to provide for and promote the economic development of Indian tribes by furnishing the necessary capital, financial services, and technical assistance to Indian-owned business enterprises, to stimulate the development of the private sector of Indian tribal economies, and for other purposes.

Those wishing additional information may contact the Indian Affairs Committee at 202-224-2251.

PRIVILEGES OF THE FLOOR

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the following members of my staff be granted the privilege of the floor for the duration of the consideration of S. 3217, the Restoring American Financial Stability Act of 2010: Matt Green, Mark Jickling, Deborah Katz, Minhaj Chowdhury, William Fields, and Erika Lee.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Bau Nyugen, a fellow in my office, be granted the privilege of the floor during consideration of S. 3217, the Restoring American Financial Stability Act of 2010.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCES REGARDING THE TRAGEDY IN ANACORTES, WASHINGTON

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 500, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 500) expressing the sincere condolences of the Senate to the family, loved ones, United Steelworkers, fellow workers, and the Anacortes community on the tragedy at the Tesoro Refinery in Anacortes, Washington.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate, and that any statements related to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 500) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 500

Whereas the State of Washington, the Tesoro Corporation, and the United Steelworkers experienced a tragedy on April 2, 2010, when a fire occurred at the Tesoro refinery in Anacortes, Washington;

Whereas 7 workers died as a result of the tragedy: Daniel J. Aldridge, Matthew C. Bowen, Donna Van Dreumel, Matt Gumbel, Darrin J. Hoines, Lew Janz, and Kathryn Powell;

Whereas Federal and State government agencies, including the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Washington State Department of Labor and Industries, are investigating the tragedy and reviewing current safety procedures and processes to prevent future tragedies from occurring; and

Whereas, to support the victims and the families involved in the tragedy, the United

Steelworkers Local 12-591 has established the Tesoro Incident Family Fund and the Tesoro Corporation and the Skagit Community Foundation have partnered to establish the Tesoro Anacortes Refinery Survivors Fund: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) expresses the sincere condolences of the Senate to the family, loved ones, United Steelworkers, fellow workers, and the Anacortes community on the tragedy at the Tesoro refinery in Anacortes, Washington; and

(2) honors Daniel J. Aldridge, Matthew C. Bowen, Donna Van Dreumel, Matt Gumbel, Darrin J. Hoines, Lew Janz, and Kathryn Powell.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 27, 2010

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 10 a.m., Tuesday, April 27; that following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, and the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day; that there be a period of morning business for 1 hour, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided and controlled between the two leaders or their designees, with the majority controlling the first half and the Republicans controlling the final half; that following morning business, the Senate resume consideration of the motion to proceed to S. 3217, the Wall Street reform legislation. Finally, I ask that the Senate recess from 12:30 until 2:15 p.m. to allow for the weekly caucus luncheons.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that it adjourn under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 9:04 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, April 27, 2010, at 10 a.m.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

CATARION SANCHEZ

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Catarion Sanchez who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Catarion Sanchez is a 7th grader at Drake Middle School and received this award because his determination and hard work have allowed him to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Catarion Sanchez is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential that students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Catarion Sanchez for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt he will exhibit the same dedication and character to all his future accomplishments.

HONORING ISRAELI INDEPENDENCE DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. MICHAEL E. McMAHON

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. Speaker, I would like commend Israel on her 62nd Anniversary since her founding.

Likewise, it is the 62nd Anniversary of the U.S.-Israel bond, which remains strong and indissoluble.

Israel is our fellow democracy, our tried and true ally. Supporting it is essential to the stability and future of the Middle East. In fact Israel is the only true democracy in the Middle East.

In just 62 years a people that suffered at the hands of Hitler and European anti-Semitism built a nation. From the ashes of 6,000,000 who died in the Holocaust a people a nation rose to make a desert bloom. In 62 years Israel has made tremendous strides becoming a world leader in technology, agriculture, water resource management, healthcare, pharmaceuticals and so many other areas. The first generation of Sabras from Europe quickly welcomed new immigrants who were forcibly evicted from Arab lands. Further waves of immigrants came from the breakup of the Soviet Union, from Ethiopia and most recently from France. Israel has held steadfast to the principles of its founding fathers and been a welcome source for any Jew anywhere in the world seeking refuge.

From the creation of Israel 62 years ago and its immediate recognition by the United States, the ties between our two countries continue to be strong. A democracy like ours, Israel's politics have been robust with many participants and many parties represented. Consistently throughout its history through wars and in times of relative peace, the Israeli people have made their democracy stronger and the relationship between the world's largest Jewish community and the world's largest diaspora community stronger.

And any nation or group that chooses to treat Israel as a suspect state and threatens Israel, particularly with violence, should know that its actions ultimately do damage to the shared values that all democracies espouse.

Following the failed Iranian elections in June, the Iranian regime has had its legitimacy wounded and its paranoia increased. Iran now takes a posture of increased repression at home and antagonism abroad. In that dangerous environment, Israel's leaders have every right to be concerned for their country's safety.

While hope still exists for a free Iran, Europe, Israel and the United States must undoubtedly prepare for a more dangerous Iranian regime in the near term. We must prevent Iran's increased pursuit of nuclear weapons through hard-hitting sanctions, after all, I personally look forward to celebrating many more anniversaries with Israel.

There seems to be a certain line of thinking in the international community that Iran poses no threat.

It is this very failure to prepare that puts Israel and the entire international community at risk. Now is the time to prepare.

Mr. Speaker, I urge this Congress and the United States to make the Iranian regime pay a higher cost for its nuclear weapons pursuit.

If we needed any further reminder, the protests in the streets of Tehran have made clear that words mean very little to Ayatollah Khamenei.

The threat from Iran demands an effective policy response and our Israeli friends must see clear action from their age-old ally that, we are in this together.

If the Iranian regime faced damaging economic pressure from a significant reduction in gasoline supplies, it may change course.

And an ever present threat to Israel, and to global security, may be alleviated. Nothing endangers peace more than a refusal to face facts.

Even as we set deadlines that are never met with Iran might begin, let's remember that they continue to enrich uranium and that a deadline with real consequences must be considered along with engagement—otherwise engagement will be manipulated as a mere tactic for delay.

I am glad that this House chose to face Iran today through voting to instruct conferees on the Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability and Divestment Act and support Israel, the Middle East and even the Gulf states against a growing threat in the region.

I have high hopes that the international community will do the same.

Once again, I congratulate, Prime Minister Netanyahu and the people of Israel our friend and ally on this momentous occasion.

The U.S. was there ten minutes following Israel's founding and will be with her for many, many more years to come.

SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF NATIONAL FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH, 2010

SPEECH OF

HON. JOE BACA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 20, 2010

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support House Resolution 1257, Supporting the goals and ideals of National Financial Literacy Month.

In these tough economic times, increasing financial literacy is one of the best ways we can accomplish a complete recovery and take significant steps to prevent another crisis.

Every day, many Americans struggle with their finances. These problems are especially prevalent among young adults and minorities.

In fact, the FDIC found in a recent study that approximately 60,000,000 people in the U.S. are underbanked.

These numbers are more disturbing when we look at the percentage of underbanked people among minorities: 43.3 percent of Hispanic households and close to 54 percent of Black households are either unbanked or underbanked.

We must do more to educate every American on how to safely manage their wealth and build a stable foundation for themselves and their family's future.

In the fall, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mrs. MCCARTHY, and I introduced an amendment that would create a new consumer education office within the proposed Consumer Financial Protection Agency.

This office will operate programs and develop initiatives to ensure that all financial institutions are doing their part to come up with innovative ways to increase financial literacy among their consumers.

Throughout my time in Congress I have been a consistent supporter of improving financial literacy efforts and I am committed to remaining one as long as I hold office.

I want to commend Mr. HINOJOSA on his hard work on this issue and for bringing this resolution to this floor.

I urge my colleagues to vote in support of House Resolution 1257, Supporting the goals and ideals of National Financial Literacy Month, and I yield back the balance of my time.

SUPPORTING THE MISSION AND GOALS OF 2010 NATIONAL CRIME VICTIMS' RIGHTS WEEK

SPEECH OF

HON. LAURA RICHARDSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 20, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1104, which supports the mission and goals of 2010 National Crime Victims' Rights Week and promotes public awareness of the rights, needs, and concerns of victims and survivors of crime. This is an important measure that helps to ensure that all victims are treated with dignity, fairness, and respect, and that victims have access to the support and treatment that they need and deserve.

I thank Chairman CONYERS for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I also thank the sponsor of this legislation, Congressman JIM COSTA, for his dedication to ensuring that our society is committed to the rights and compassionate treatment of crime victims.

Mr. Speaker, over 25,000,000 individuals are victims of crime every year; more than 6,000,000 of them are victims of violent crimes. In my district, nearly 7 out of every 1,000 residents of Long Beach, California suffered a violent crime in 2008. Over the past 40 years, the United States has made significant progress in expanding rights, services, and support for crime victims. However, as this resolution appropriately acknowledges, there is still work to be done.

Crime victims in underserved and low-income communities often do not have access to the support and services needed to help them move past their traumatic event and achieve normalcy in their lives. Access to services for crime victims should be available in every community across the country. Observing the rights of all victims is not only a fundamental requirement of a just society, but also serves the public interest by engaging victims in the justice system, inspiring respect for public authorities, and promoting confidence in public safety.

Additionally, every year, thousands of crimes go unreported to law enforcement. However, the victims of an unreported crime are no less deserving or in need of professional support than those of reported crimes. We must ensure that victims of all crimes—reported or unreported—have equal access to services. Our communities, neighborhoods, and homes are made stronger, safer, and healthier by guaranteeing that all crime victims are treated with dignity, respect, and fairness.

Mr. Speaker, victims of crime suffer traumatic experiences that alter their lives and those of their family members. A just society acknowledges that crime victims have unique needs and provides the proper support services. National Crime Victims' Rights Week reminds us of this important obligation.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 1104.

CHARLES COLLINS

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Charles Collins who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Charles Collins is a 12th grader at Standley Lake High School and received this award because his determination and hard work have allowed him to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Charles Collins is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential that students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Charles Collins for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt he will exhibit the same dedication and character to all his future accomplishments.

IN HONOR OF CONGRESSMAN BOB
FRANKS

SPEECH OF

HON. SCOTT GARRETT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. GARRETT of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and service of former Congressman Bob Franks. Bob heard the call to serve the State he loved, and did so faithfully, throughout his illustrious career. Congressman Robert Douglas Franks was born on September 21, 1951. It is true that until Bob was taken away from us, following a hard-fought battle with cancer, he still served the people of New Jersey as the President of the Health Care Institute of New Jersey . . . a position he loved as much for the work he was doing, as for the time he could spend with his close-knit family.

Bob's stellar career as a New Jersey Republican began very early on when he organized political movements such as the New Jersey Teenage Republicans. Bob was as principled as he was outspoken and he soon became a force to be reckoned with in New Jersey politics.

Bob is widely considered to be the primary catalyst behind the New Jersey Republican resurgence in the 1990s. However, he is equally as well-known for his willingness to be bipartisan—especially in working with former political rivals. Bob's wisdom and grace far outpaced his age and it could not be more true that this loss is felt deeply across party lines.

His influence in New Jersey is well-known and stands as a testament to the best aspects of elected office. An ardent supporter of voluntary term-limits, Bob practiced what he preached and left Congress after 4 dedicated terms. His desire to serve our State was unflinching.

Bob is not only survived by his adoring family, but by a State that remains thankful for his years of devoted service as well as a Congress of peers who will remember him as a man of conviction and principle.

HONORING FLORENCE AND HAROLD PAYNE

HON. ELIOT L. ENGEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ENGEL. Madam Speaker, Harold and Florence were both born in Charleston, South Carolina where Florence attended the prestigious Avery Institute and graduated from Burke High School in that city. Florence moved to New York City where she attended Washington Business Institute. During his high school years at Burke High School in Charleston, Harold Payne excelled in athletics, in particular baseball and basketball. He was a star member of the Burke High School Senior Basketball team which won the South Carolina State Championship in 1949. Harold obtained a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1953. Harold later attended Bronx Community College.

Mrs. Payne's professional pursuits took her to various organizations including the New York Telephone Company, Jujamcyn Theatres, Fine Arts Pillows Inc. as well as a private attorney, Donnarée Banton, Esq. In 1997, I asked Florence to work for me. She fulfilled her dream of helping other on a daily basis.

Harold served in the Army during the Korean conflict in the 8th Army Honor Guard. He was honorably discharged with the rank of Staff Sergeant and in 1956 began a career with the United States Postal Service while simultaneously working as a paraprofessional for 17 years with the NYC Board of Education. After 34 years with the Postal Service, Harold retired and became Director of the Tilden Towers Senior Citizens Center. It is there that he fulfilled his dream of serving his community. He retired from Tilden Towers Senior Center in January of this year.

Both Harold and Florence donate time to charitable and civic organizations, it being their belief that one must give back to the community in a meaningful way. This they did by actively participating in many endeavors including: the Office of Black Ministry for the Catholic Archdiocese of New York, the Parent Teacher Association of Public School 16, NIA: A Minority Women's Professional Network, The Incarcerated Mothers Program, the Food Pantry at the Edenwald-Gun Hill Neighborhood Center and other worthwhile endeavors.

They are most proud of their 50 year commitment to one another in addition to their role as parents and grandparents. The Paynes met each other through Florence's late sister Anna and her husband, Henry. On April 23, 1960, the Paynes were married in St. Aloysius Church in Harlem. They set up residence in the Bronx and have lived there for their entire married life. They are the loving parents of Lisa and Harold Jr. with a son-in-law, Terrance. They are also the proud grandparents of granddaughter Yiesha Danielle and grandson Malcolm.

I ask everyone who believes in love to join me in celebrating Harold and Florence's Golden Wedding anniversary and in wishing them every happiness.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. This year 45 students from public, private, and home schools in grades 9 through 12 made their voices heard and made a difference in their communities, their country and their Congress. These students volunteered their time, effort, and talent to inform me about the important issues facing their generation. As young leaders within their communities and their schools, these students boldly represent the promise and the hope we all have for their very bright future.

President Ronald Reagan said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what it was once like in the United States where men were free.

To ensure that the blessing of freedom is passed from one generation to the next, the members of the CYAC spent time interviewing a veteran and documenting the experience for the "Preserving History Project." Today I'm proud to submit the brief summaries provided so the patriotic service of our dedicated veterans and the thoughtful work of the CYAC may be preserved for antiquity in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. A copy of each submitted student summary follows.

To each member of the Congressional Youth Advisory Council, thank you for making this year and this group a success. It is not a coincidence that this congressional tribute celebrates two generations of service. Each of you is trusted with the precious gift of freedom.

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

The interview I have had with Tony Cashiola was extremely beneficial for me. I am certain that I will pursue a military career, and listening to Tony speak about his experience in the Army has given me much insight on the military from a different perspective. He helped provide me with a path on which I could approach the military in a way I had yet to think of. So, all-in-all, this interview was amazing. I got to know one of our country's heroes, tell his story, and receive valuable insight. I wish Tony the best; he is a very honorable man.—Michael Roberto

CHELSEA ABBOT

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Chelsea

Abbot who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Chelsea Abbot is a student at Wayne Carle Middle School and received this award because her determination and hard work have allowed her to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Chelsea Abbot is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential that students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Chelsea Abbot for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt she will exhibit the same dedication and character to all her future accomplishments.

TRIBUTE TO ART ISGAR

HON. JOHN T. SALAZAR

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SALAZAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Art Isgar, a respected leader in his community of southwest Colorado. Arthur Richard Isgar died in Durango on March 17th, 2010. It was a privilege to know Art Isgar and his wonderful family and I offer my condolences to them at this time of loss.

Art Isgar was born in Oxford, Colorado, on October 6th, 1915. One of seven boys, he spent his childhood in rural La Plata County. At times, he lived with members of the Southern Ute Tribe which was an experience that left him with a deep appreciation of other cultures. As a child he also spent time in the mining camps of the San Juan Mountains near Silverton and Telluride. Supporting himself from the age of 13, Art Isgar learned to make his way in the world by working on farms and delivering mail on horseback.

In 1946 he got married to Ann Wise. They took the train from Durango to Silverton and returned home in time to milk the cows. Art went on to become a defender of the Durango and Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad in its time of need.

With their hard work, the Isgars' ranch grew into one of the largest in La Plata County. Art was president of the La Plata County Cattleman's Association and helped lead the fight to create the Animas-La Plata Project. He was also instrumental in the effort to bring Fort Lewis College to its current site in Durango. Art Isgar was also deeply involved in politics working with the Democratic Party to bring the State convention to Durango in 1960, a convention that presidential hopeful John F. Kennedy attended. Art's life was a life of service to his family and his community.

The legacy of Art Isgar continues in his amazing family. Art Isgar's son, Jim Isgar, continues the proud tradition of public service established by his father, serving as a State Senator and now as the State Director for the United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development.

At the end of the day, after all of his community service, Art Isgar still had his feet on the ground. He was always a farmer who found his greatest joy out irrigating his fields. Even at the age of 93 that is where he could be found.

Madam Speaker southwest Colorado has lost a great leader. I wish his family well in this time of loss. Art Isgar will be missed but his legacy will live on through his amazing family and all the lives that he touched in his time in southwest Colorado.

IN HONOR OF THOMAS J. VANCE, SR.

HON. JOHN H. ADLER

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ADLER of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I rise today to take a moment to remember the legacy of TSgt Thomas J. Vance, Sr., who passed away last year following a courageous battle with cancer. Sergeant Vance honorably served the people of our Nation and my home State of New Jersey in the United States for a combined 51 years of service with the Air Force.

Born in Philadelphia, PA, Technical Sergeant Vance attended Bartram High School. After he graduated he enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1947. Sergeant Vance fought both in the Korea and Vietnam Wars, and served at nine different bases including McGuire Air Force Base, which is located in New Jersey's Third Congressional District. During his 20 years of active duty in the service, he was awarded the Air Force Longevity Service Award, National Defense Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal, Outstanding Unit Award, Korean Service Medal and the U.N. Service Medal.

In 1978, Technical Sergeant Vance became an original member of the Retiree Affairs Office at McGuire Air Force Base, where he became an expert on an array of military family issues. During his 31 years of service in this role, he served countless hours assisting our military families.

Technical Sergeant Vance is survived by his beloved wife of 57 years, Elsie, whom he met while serving at Langley Air Base and his three children, Thomas Jr., Sandra, and Richard.

In recognition of his life and service to our Nation, I ask that the House of Representatives and all Americans join me to honor the legacy of TSgt Thomas J. Vance, Sr.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF DR.
DOROTHY IRENE HEIGHT

SPEECH OF

HON. RUSH D. HOLT

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. HOLT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to support the resolution commemorating and celebrating the life of Dorothy Height, a woman of petite stature but enormous presence, and the only woman included among the "Big Six" most renowned civil rights leaders: the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., James Farmer, our own esteemed colleague JOHN LEWIS, A. Philip Randolph, Roy Wilkins, Whitney Young, and Dorothy Height.

Dorothy Height exemplified the spirit of democracy like perhaps no one else. The daughter of a building contractor, James Edward Height, and a nurse, Fannie Burroughs Height, she rose to national prominence and leadership from humble beginnings. She was prepared to lead the charge, even when it meant being a lone figure; she was the only woman on the speaker's platform when Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. gave his "I Have A Dream" speech. She combated the challenges facing African Americans from every angle; in 1936 in New York, she participated in a protest against lynchings. She advocated an end to segregation in the military, fought for a fairer legal system, and worked to end racial restrictions on access to public transportation. During the 1950s, she worked on voter registration drives in the South.

But she also understood the economic underpinnings of the same challenges. Following her work to achieve major civil rights victories in the 1960s, Height shifted her focus to supporting initiatives aimed at eliminating poverty among southern blacks, such as home ownership programs and child care centers. Among her more creative efforts, Ms. Height instituted a so-called pig bank, through which poor black families were provided with a pig of their own, a prize commodity in the early 1960s. Despite the violence and dangers of the time, during Height's years as a civil rights activist, she never acquired a reputation as a radical or militant. She simply steadfastly moved forward, seamlessly removing barriers for all who followed.

In a 2001 interview, Height expressed bitter-sweet feelings for the earlier years of her work, noting that sit-ins and protest marches had been replaced by lobbying for legislation. The power and momentum behind the struggle for desegregation and voting rights had been replaced by the comparative quietude of pursuits for economic opportunity, educational equality, and an end to racial profiling. She asked where the country would be if the "vigor placed in fighting slavery and in the women's movement had kept pace."

Even without that, her accomplishments and awards fill pages. Height is perhaps best known for her four decades of work with the National Council of Negro Women, the Washington, DC, headquarters of which stands just steps from where slaves were once traded in the shadow of the U.S. Capitol. She has served as advisor on civil rights matters to U.S. Presidents going back to Eisenhower, as well as advising and traveling with programs sponsored by the Council to the White House Conference, UNESCO, the Institute on Human Relations of the American Jewish Committee, USAID, and the United States Information Agency, among other organizations. Her unparalleled contributions to the advancement of women's rights, civil rights, and human rights have earned her dozens of awards including the 1993 NAACP Springarn Medal, a Presidential Medal of Freedom Award, presented by Bill Clinton in 1994, and a Congressional Gold Medal by President George W. Bush in 2004.

In addition, during her lifetime of service, Dr. Height has been presented with more than three dozen honorary degrees, including doctorates from institutions including Tuskegee, Harvard and Princeton Universities. But the one that undoubtedly mattered the most was her receipt of the equivalent of a bachelor's degree in 2004 from Barnard College, 75 years after the College had turned her away because it had already enrolled its quota of two African American females that year.

Dorothy Height was a pillar of the civil rights movement, and will be dearly missed by us all. I am deeply saddened at her passing but everlastingly uplifted by her life's work.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LIFE OF ROBERT WESTON FOLLETT

HON. JIM COSTA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. COSTA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life of Robert "Bob" Weston Follett. On March 31, 2010, Robert Weston Follett, an accomplished pilot and active leader in the San Joaquin Valley community, passed away suddenly at the young age of 57. He leaves behind the loves of his life, is wife Naomi, daughter Lindsay and son Zack.

Bob Follett was a proud native of Lemoore, California. He was a 1970 graduate of Lemoore High School where he was twice elected class president and played football for the Lemoore Tigers. As fullback on the freshman team, he had the distinction of scoring the first touchdown in Tiger Stadium when it opened. Mr. Follett went on to receive his Bachelor's Degree from California State University, Fresno and soon thereafter began his aviation career with Wofford Aviation in Fresno by fueling aircraft, becoming a charter pilot, managing the company and later proudly becoming the owner of Wofford Aviation.

As a charter pilot Bob had the privilege of flying former President Ronald Reagan, U.S. Senator John McCain, and many other elected officials and celebrities. Furthermore, he was renowned as an expert pilot with 37 years experience, who helped explain how air tragedies occurred. Recently, Bob commented for the national news about the potential dangers of flying in California's Sierra Nevada Mountain Range.

Throughout the community, Bob was well-known as "Mr. Fixit" as a result of his keen ability to build anything with his own two hands. Larger than life, he was a take-charge guy who loved to organize events. He could be found planting a community garden, at a Cal Tailgate party, a Rotary lobster feed or with the Clovis High football team at their team dinners. Bob Follett and his family were loyal members of the Cal football family during the time his son Zack played for the Cal Bears.

As a loving father and supportive husband, Bob and his cherished wife Naomi were always seen at sporting events supporting and cheering on their children Lindsay and Zack. He was a true pillar of support for their children and a faithful mentor to their friends as well.

Bob's loss leaves a void which can never be filled. Bob Follett will forever be remembered for his generosity and gregarious spirit that impacted the lives of all those whom he met. His enormous heart and lifelong commitment to his family and friends will forever be his legacy. I count myself fortunate to be one of Bob's many friends.

CHELSEY JANTZ

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Chelsey Jantz who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Chelsey Jantz is a 12th grader at Arvada High School and received this award because her determination and hard work have allowed her to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Chelsey Jantz is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Chelsey Jantz for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt she will exhibit the same dedication and character to all her future accomplishments.

HONORING ISRAELI
INDEPENDENCE DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, for all but 11 minutes of the State of Israel's existence, it has found its foremost advocate and ally here: the United States of America. And what were those 11 minutes? That was the time it took the news of Israel's independence to travel around the world and reach the desk of President Truman, the first to recognize a new member of the world community and a new friend.

Israel, President Truman said, "has a glorious future before it—not just another sovereign nation, but as an embodiment of the great ideals of our civilization." Sixty two years later, as Israel marks its independence, those words have been confirmed time and again. Our alliance with Israel, and the common interests we share, run deep. But even if those common interests amounted to nothing, we would still see in Israel a reflection of deepest values and great ideals.

Sixty two years ago, Israel's founders set their names to a declaration that embodied those ideals—the declaration that ended two millennia of exile for the Jewish people. It read, in part: "THE STATE OF ISRAEL . . . will be based on freedom, justice and peace as envisaged by the prophets of Israel; it will ensure complete equality of social and political rights to all its inhabitants irrespective of religion, race or sex; it will guarantee freedom of religion, conscience, language, education and culture; it will safeguard the Holy Places of all religions."

In those words, in the spirit that animates them, and in the political life that strives each day to live by them, we see our own spirit, our own struggle, our own founding promise.

And those common values are at the heart of Congress's unshakeable, bipartisan unity on Israel and its security. I speak for all of my colleagues, Republicans and Democrats, when I say: the bond between our nations was powerful long before we set foot in this chamber, and it will outlast all of us. In that spirit, Congress must continue to support strong foreign aid for our ally. And we must continue to insist that regimes that threaten Israel's safety, and the world's, recognize Israel's right to exist—and act accordingly.

Few ideas in history have been more daring than the idea that the Jewish people could end generations of exile and build a thriving state, called to the highest principles of justice. Few ideas have been more hopeful, or more demanding. And few are more deserving of the world's sustaining effort.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

In the Veteran's Interview Project, I have gained insight and knowledge on the topic of America's veterans. My uncle, George Vacek, was drafted into the service and joined the Marine Corps. He was assigned to the artillery unit as a radio operator. He entered the service as a private and completed his tour of duty as a corporal. He fought the campaign in Vietnam and then was transferred to Cuba. I discovered through my interview with him, the trials and rewards of military service. While in the service, he endured hardships, witnessed the evils of war, overcame obstacles, developed discipline, and yet he came away with the fulfillment that he gained a greater respect for himself and his country.

This project was beneficial to me in that I realized what it would be like to walk in a soldier's shoes. Americans support our servicemen, both here and abroad, but yet have absolutely no clue of what it's really like to be there. My in-depth conversation with my Uncle enlightened me on his journey. In concluding this interview, I realized that our soldiers are true patriots who are sacrificially putting themselves in harm's way to forever protect our freedoms.—J'Lynn Vacek.

HONORING THE 49TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE PEACE CORPS AND PEACE CORPS VOLUNTEERS

HON. GERALD E. CONNOLLY

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the efforts of our nation's Peace Corps volunteers in honor of the 49th Anniversary of the Peace Corps. Since the establishment of the Peace Corps by President Kennedy in 1961, nearly 200,000 Americans have served in 139 countries. For the past 49 years, Peace Corps volunteers have demonstrated the nation's commitment to encourage and expand development at the grass roots level.

Currently, 7,671 volunteers are providing expertise and development assistance to 76 countries. Peace Corps volunteers have made significant contributions in agriculture, business development, information to technology, education, health, youth, and the environment. In these various sectors and communities, volunteers have been able to adapt and respond to new challenges through their innovation, creativity, and compassion.

For example, Peace Corps volunteers have provided hope and assistance to people affected by HIV/AIDS. Volunteers have led the way in making the Peace Corps at the forefront of responding to the HIV/AIDS epidemic. Through living in the community and learning the local language, they are able to share information relating to HIV/AIDS in a culturally appropriate way.

Once Peace Corps volunteers return from abroad, they have become leaders in all sectors of society. Through their training and experience abroad, volunteers are able to adapt to different cultural settings at the professional level. I would like to commend our proud nation's Peace Corps volunteers for their service, particularly those men and women of the Eleventh Congressional District of Virginia. I consider it a great honor to represent these noble men and women, who travel great distances and make great sacrifices to help reaffirm our country's commitment to helping people help themselves throughout the world.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues and their staff to join me in recognizing the achievement of and the Peace Corps volunteers. They are a great credit to our country, and we should applaud them.

HONORING PETER HUTCHISON UPON BEING NAMED THE 2010 NEW YORK STATE ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL OF THE YEAR

HON. STEVE ISRAEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ISRAEL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge a gentleman in my district, Peter Hutchison.

Mr. Hutchison has been recognized as the 2010 New York State Assistant Principal of the Year by the School Administrators Association of New York State. He was recognized for his outstanding work at Amityville Memorial High School. He has served as an educator for over 31 years, including six as assistant principal at Amityville Memorial High School.

I congratulate him on this accomplishment and applaud his contribution to high school education on Long Island.

CHRISTOPHER BREWER

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Christopher Brewer who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Christopher Brewer is a 10th grader at Ralston Valley High School and received this award because his determination and hard work have allowed him to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Christopher Brewer is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Christopher Brewer for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt he will exhibit the same dedication and character to all his future accomplishments.

HONORING CHIEF PAUL PRICE OF CAMDEN FIRE DEPARTMENT UPON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ANDREWS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Chief Paul Price upon his retirement and to recognize his outstanding contributions to Camden County and the state of New Jersey.

Chief Price is known for his integrity and selfless nature. He has worked diligently to gain five million dollars in grant money for fire fighters in Camden for safety and preparedness. Chief Price goes significantly above and beyond the call of duty to give resources to those in need, working long nights and weekends so that the fire department has everything it needs. Chief Price's commitment to Camden County is also evidenced through his civic service affiliations. He has been active in the Camden County Fireman's Association, New Jersey Deputy Chief Association, Port Security Committee, Camden Cooperate Watch, and he was Emergency manager for the City of Camden. Despite all his work, his peers point out that he has never sought the spotlight and that he has always kept the best interests of the Camden Fire Department and its firefighters in mind.

Beyond his civic duties, Chief Price has been recognized by the Camden community as always being ready to offer a helping hand in times of need. He is the driving force and backbone of the Camden Angels Program, working tirelessly every Christmas to ensure 3,500 children receive Christmas presents. Chief Price also donates his time to spring festivals, special needs carnivals and activities, and through outreach to the hungry and homeless. He also has given endless support to the Fugitive Safe Surrender Program in Camden City.

Madam Speaker, Chief Paul Price's work and dedication are truly praiseworthy. I wish Chief Price the best of luck upon retirement and I thank him for his commitment to his community.

IN HONOR OF THE BEACHWOOD
BOY SCOUTS, GIRL SCOUTS, LEADERS AND PARENTS

HON. JOHN H. ADLER

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ADLER of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, I would like to congratulate the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Leaders and Parents of Beachwood for receiving the 2010 Beachwood Citizen of the Year Award.

Through their excellence in giving back to the Beachwood community and committing to their personal development and aspirations, the Beachwood Girl and Boy Scouts have displayed dedication to the highest standards and best traditions of American citizenship. I am confident that they will continue to accomplish great things in the future and prove to be successful and productive members of society.

I am proud to have such hardworking constituents and I thank them for their dedication and tremendous service throughout the years. Madam Speaker, I hope you will join me in congratulating these exceptional Scouts, their leaders, and their parents for all the contributions as they are honored as "Citizens of the Year."

WHO SPEAKS FOR THE COPTIC CHRISTIANS?

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I submit for the RECORD a bipartisan letter which was sent to the State Department's Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons, TIP, expressing "concern over continuing reports of abductions, forced marriages, and exploitation of Coptic women and girls in Egypt." We urged the TIP Office to investigate whether these cases should be included in the upcoming Trafficking in Persons Report.

The U.S. has given Egypt billions of dollars in foreign aid since the Camp David Accords, and yet they persist in trampling the rights of minorities and brutally suppressing political and human rights. In fact, by most accounts there has been backsliding in all of these areas.

With still no Ambassador for International Religious Freedom, when was the last time that this administration advocated for the Coptic Christians?

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, DC, April 16, 2010.

Hon. LUIS CDEBACA,
*Ambassador-at-Large, U.S. Department of State,
Washington, DC.*

DEAR AMBASSADOR CDEBACA: We write today to express our concern over continuing reports of abductions, forced marriages, and exploitation of Coptic women and girls in Egypt. Some of these reports document a criminal phenomenon that includes fraud, physical and sexual violence, captivity, forced marriage, and exploitation in forced domestic servitude or commercial sexual exploitation, and financial benefit to the individuals who secure the forced conversion of the victim. As you know, these are some of the hallmarks of human trafficking.

Numerous reports, including in Egypt's Al-Ahram Weekly and a November 2009 report issued by the Coptic Foundation for Human Rights and Christian Solidarity International (CSI), point to the grim reality of forced marriage faced by vulnerable Coptic women and girls in Egypt. In the 25 cases documented by the Coptic Foundation for Human Rights and CSI, it is clear that violence, fraud, and/or coercion are used to force vulnerable Egyptian women and girls into marriages for the purpose of forced conversion, and these forced marriages are sometimes accompanied by sexual exploitation or domestic servitude. In some cases the families involved in the abductions and forced conversions receive mysterious financial benefits. Further, it appears, according to their lawyers, that the situations facing the women highlighted in the report are not isolated cases.

In the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act (2008), Congress tasked the Trafficking in Persons (TIP) office with reporting on "emerging [and] shifting global patterns in human trafficking." We respectfully request that the office follow up on the reports coming out of Egypt, investigate whether the cases of abduction, forced marriage, exploitation and other financial benefit to the individuals who secure a forced conversion should be included in the forthcoming 2010 TIP Annual Report, and inform us about your determination on the matter.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Frank Wolf, Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, Chris Smith, Carolyn Maloney, Michele Bachmann, Bob Inglis, Aaron Schock, Eleanor Holmes Norton, Doug Lamborn, Marsha Blackburn, Anna Eshoo, Dan Burton, Donald Payne, Albio Sires, Joe Wilson, Ted Poe, Trent Franks, Anh "Joseph" Cao, Members of Congress.

CODY HORNSBY-KLINGE

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Cody Hornsby-Klinge who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Cody Hornsby-Klinge is a 12th grader at Ralston Valley High School and received this award because his determination and hard work have allowed him to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Cody Hornsby-Klinge is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Cody Hornsby-Klinge for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt he will exhibit the same dedication and character to all his future accomplishments.

COMMENDING UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT HUSKIES ON WOMEN'S NCAA BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

SPEECH OF

HON. LAURA RICHARDSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1239, which recognizes the tremendous accomplishments of the University of Connecticut women's basketball team. The University of Connecticut Huskies women's basketball team has emerged as one of the most outstanding teams in the history of college sports. On April 6, 2010, the Huskies defeated the Stanford Cardinal in the National Collegiate Athletic Association, NCAA, Division I women's basketball national championship in San Antonio, Texas.

This victory gave the Huskies their seventh national championship, second only to the University of Tennessee Lady Volunteers' eight championships. This season the Huskies went undefeated, ending the season on a record 78 game winning streak, a streak that has lasted since the beginning of the 2008–2009 season. As a former college basketball player, I understand the hard work, intense focus, and tireless dedication required to achieve a single season as successful as the Huskies' was this year. So, the kind of repeated success that the University of Connecticut women have seen over the years is truly impressive.

The Huskies' coach, Geno Auriemma, is the president of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association and holds the highest winning percentage among active coaches. Coach Auriemma is also a coach of the 2012 United States Olympic Team. In addition to these successes, Coach Auriemma should be most appreciated for the role model that he is to his players and the positive impact he has on their lives.

The Huskies basketball team is comprised of some of the most talented athletes in the Nation. Junior forward Maya Moore and senior center Tina Charles were both selected as first team All-Americans and as members of the Final Four All-Tournament Team. Maya Moore was also chosen as the State Farm Wade Trophy Player of the Year and the Women's Final Four Most Valuable Player. Tina Charles was selected as the winner of the Naismith Award, the Wooden Award, the United States Basketball Writers Association Player of the Year Award, and the Associated Press Player of the Year Award.

I salute the hard work and dedication of the University of Connecticut Huskies players and coaches. I commend their exceptional record, athleticism, and consistent display of sportsmanship.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 1239.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. This year 45 students from public, private, and home schools in grades 9 through 12 made their voices heard and made a difference in their communities, their country and their Congress. These students volunteered their time, effort, and talent to inform me about the important issues facing their generation. As young leaders within their communities and their schools, these students boldly represent the promise and the hope we all have for their very bright future.

President Ronald Reagan said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what it was once like in the United States where men were free."

To ensure that the blessing of freedom is passed from one generation to the next, the members of the CYAC spent time interviewing a veteran and documenting the experience for the "Preserving History Project." Today I'm proud to submit the brief summaries provided so the patriotic service of our dedicated veterans and the thoughtful work of the CYAC may be preserved for antiquity in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. A copy of each submitted student summary follows.

To each member of the Congressional Youth Advisory Council, thank you for making this year and this group a success. It is not a coincidence that this congressional tribute celebrates two generations of service. Each of you is trusted with the precious gift of freedom.

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

I interviewed Mr. Kurt DeKuehn, Petty Officer 1st Class, Musician, USN Ret. Mr.

DeKuehn enlisted in the Navy at the end of World War II through his entrance into the United States Naval Academy School of Music. He was barely 17 when his parents signed the enlistment papers and he auditioned four separate times on sax for entrance into the school. He gained admittance to the school, and as the war was in full swing, he was immediately put through basic training in preparation for deployment. He was eventually deployed to the battleship Arkansas BB-33 in January 1945 and remained with the ship until its decommissioning a year later. Mr. DeKuehn was later asked back to service as a bandleader for the Admiral Galley Goodwill Tour of Europe. As bandleader, he had the privilege of handpicking his players and auditioning them. The band performed in 27 countries in an 8 piece combo. Mr. DeKuehn thoroughly enjoyed his Navy experience due to his Officer status and the nature of his employment: he was paid to play his instrument (something he has done since he was four years of age), and minimally operate a machine gun on the stern of his ship. The terms of his employment don't sound half bad. He even says that he has nothing against the Navy and had fun in both of his tours of duty.—Jonathan Unger.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, I was absent from the House floor during rollcall votes 206–211. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea" on rollcall Nos. 206, 208, and 210; I would have voted "nay" on rollcall Nos. 207, 209, and 211.

COLLEEN BOYD

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Colleen Boyd who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Colleen Boyd is an 8th grader at Drake Middle School and received this award because her determination and hard work have allowed her to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Colleen Boyd is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Colleen Boyd for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt she will exhibit the same dedication and character to all her future accomplishments.

HONORING DOLORES BROOKS ON HER RETIREMENT AS CHARTER MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE OZARKS TECHNICAL COMMUNITY COLLEGE

HON. ROY BLUNT

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. BLUNT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Dolores Brooks, who is retiring after twenty years of service to her community in Springfield, Missouri as a charter member of the Board of Trustees of the Ozarks Technical Community College.

First elected in April 1990, Brooks helped shape the growth and direction of Ozarks Technical Community College, a school that serves students from 13 public school districts in Southwest Missouri and beyond. The growth of the school has been extraordinary, with this year's enrollment topping more than 12,000 students. OTC, as it is known to students and local residents, has expanded its operation to a second campus in Ozark, Missouri, with an eye to increasing accessibility to its growing student body.

Mrs. Brooks holds degrees from Purdue University, University of Missouri, and Southwest Missouri State University, and has served as a public school teacher, counselor, principal, and adjunct university faculty member. She has also served on numerous professional and civic organizations in leadership capacities, including the Missouri Guidance Association, Southwest Missouri Association of Secondary School Principals, Springfield Education Association, Missouri State Teachers Association, and the Dogwood Trails Girl Scouts Council. Prior to her selection to the OTC Board of Trustees, she was a member of the OTC Steering Committee. She led OTC as its Trustee President 1990–1992 and 2002–2003.

From its modest beginnings in central Springfield at the old vocational-technical school, OTC has blossomed into a modern campus offering students state-of-the-art classes with opportunities for advancement in a wide range of vocations, professions, and subject matter. I am proud of the hard work Mrs. Brooks and the College have done to provide quality education for students in Missouri.

To Mrs. Brooks, I wish to extend a heartfelt "thank you and well done" for her tireless work over the last two decades. Her efforts have made the Springfield area a better place to live. The Ozarks Technical Community College is a beacon of educational excellence for the entire region.

The summary follows:

My grandfather, Colonel Lee Powell, served in the Air Force for a total of thirty years, garnering experience at many different bases throughout the United States and abroad, including England and Vietnam. His main area of interest and expertise in the Air Force was contract administration, although he completed other assignments as well, such as Armed Forces Courier Officer and Missile Launch Officer. His engineering background assisted him throughout his career. He also enjoyed traveling, an interest that the Air Force helped facilitate, as he traveled extensively throughout Europe and Africa, and also visited other places such as Australia and Thailand. He worked his way up through the ranks, starting through the ROTC program at his university, and then finally achieving the rank of Colonel. When asked what impact his military service had on his views of war and conflict, Colonel Powell responded that his Vietnam and other experiences have led him to believe that the United States should not again involve itself in the civil wars of other countries.—Mitchell Powell

HONORING THE WESTFIELD, NJ
AREA YMCA BLACK ACHIEVERS' PROGRAM

HON. ROBERT E. ANDREWS

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ANDREWS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend the Westfield, NJ Area YMCA Black Achievers Program. I applaud the participants for their achievements and the staff, mentors, and Westfield, NJ Area YMCA Black Achievers Committee for their continuing commitment as role models in our community.

The Black Achievers Program began in the 1960s at the Harlem YMCA with the mission of helping youth set and achieve educational and life-long goals. The program expanded nationally, and in 1998, the Westfield, NJ Area YMCA adopted it. The Program's goal is to prepare youth participants in grades five through twelve to become Black Achievers in their future careers by building their character and skills, while providing positive mentoring relationships with caring Adult Achievers.

The thirty-seven students who are participants in the 2009–2010 school year are: Zayna Allen, Jamirah Barden, Steven Barden, Bria Barnes, Victoria Carden, Imani Coston, Ashley Edwards, Phylicia Flagg, Joshua Forehand, Alexis Givens, Adam Harley, Aneyjah Harris, Jon'ae Jackson, Todd Jamison, Jr., Cesar Lopez, Jazmine Mayer, Jonathan Mayer, Maya McLeod, Cameron Mitchell, Chelci Mitchell, Aunye McCummings, Kevin Monroe, Jr., Imani Mutyanda, Munashee Mutyanda, Jason Nutt, Fredrick A. Parsons, Jameka Parsons, Ne'andrea Paulevra, Sean Paulevra, Tamar Richardson, Dwayne Scott, Jr., Jeffery Scott, Ashley Simmons, Isaiah Smith, Kwame Thompson Haynes, Diana Williams and Brianna Whitehead.

These thirty-seven individuals embody the program's core values. They have acquired the leadership skills and self-awareness needed to attain success in any endeavor they choose to pursue.

Every year, the Connell Company, based in Berkeley Heights, NJ, generously sponsors the scholarship program and provides other vital support to the Program. Their generosity has supported the Program since its inception in 1998.

The staff members dedicated to the program and its students are: Senior Director of Childcare, Camp and Teen Services Susan Morton, Coordinator Tarajee W. Russell, Assistant Coordinator Tania Mayer, Tutor Romina Cahiwat, and Alumni Volunteer Jasmine C. Farmer. These individuals, as well as the volunteers on the Black Achievers Committee of the Westfield, NJ Area YMCA Board have worked tirelessly to ensure the success of the program. The Westfield YMCA's Chief Executive Officer Mark Elsassser, Chief Operating Officer Paula Ehoff, Communications/Development Director Bonnie Cohen, YMCA Board chairman Stephen Murphy and the rest of the staff are deeply committed to the success of the Program. Lastly, the Black Achievers Committee Chairman Carlton Blake and the entire Black Achievers Committee should be acknowledged for the tremendous effort and dedication they put forth to keep the Black Achievers Program running.

Madam Speaker, please join me in honoring the Westfield, NJ Area YMCA Black Achievers Program for encouraging students to develop their fullest potential in spirit, mind, and body. I urge them to continue to raise the academic standards of our young people and inspire them to reach all of their goals. I congratulate the Westfield, NJ Area YMCA, the Black Achievers' Program Committee, the Program and its staff and participants on their accomplishments and I thank them for their commitment to their community and I thank them for their commitment to their community.

HONORING WATKINS COLLEGE OF ART DESIGN AND FILM ON 125TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. MARSHA BLACKBURN

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Watkins College of Art, Design and Film as they celebrate their 125th anniversary.

What began as a vision to offer art education to the Mid-South community, came into being 125 years ago, emerging today as Watkins College of Art, Design and Film. Name-sake of entrepreneur and philanthropist Samuel Watkins, Watkins College opened its doors in 1885 as Nashville Art Association and began to offer instruction in visual arts. Always one step ahead of the cultural needs of the 20th century, the school assisted immigrants in becoming active members of society, gave women opportunities to enter the workplace with confidence and skill, and offered returning servicemen completion of their high school degrees.

With approval from the Tennessee Higher Education Commission in 1977, Watkins became a full college offering associate degrees in fine art and interior design. Adding the Watkins Film School in 1997, and Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees in photography, graphic design and fine art in 2007, Watkins College of Art, Design and Film continues to lead the way in artistic movements and education.

Watkins College offers hands-on curriculum, academic roots, and award-winning faculty. Alumni of Watkins College of Art, Design and Film go onto successful careers in their fields. Alumni hold LEED certifications, are small business owners, designers of sacred spaces, makers of film, leaders in their communities, and protectors of art. I am proud of my association with Watkins College and look forward to the many successes of the next 125 years.

I congratulate Watkins College on their rich and impactful history and ask my colleges to join me in honoring Watkins College of Art, Design and Film on their 125th anniversary.

HONORING ALEX HORNADAY, PARTICIPANT IN THE 2010 PEOPLE TO PEOPLE LEADERSHIP FORUM

HON. GERALD E. CONNOLLY

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. CONNELLY of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize Alex Hornaday, a participant in the 2010 People to People Leadership Forum in Washington, DC. A select group of students were chosen to attend the forum based on their academic excellence, community involvement and leadership potential.

People to People International was founded by President Eisenhower in 1956. Today, it is a leader in educational travel programs, including the World Leadership Forum. Students will participate in daily educational activities around Washington, DC., which all will focus on leadership. After successful participation in the program, students will earn a Certificate of Completion.

Alex Hornaday, of Springfield, Va., exemplifies the People to People's commitment to academic excellence, community involvement, and leadership potential.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in honoring Alex Hornaday. Alex is truly an outstanding student who demonstrates the leadership potential of our future.

The summary follows:

I interviewed Robert Nelson McClelland, M.D. a veteran of the United States Air Force. He entered the armed forces as a First Lieutenant and was discharged with honor as a Captain. Dr. McClelland not only served as a physician in the United States Air Force, stationed in Germany for two years, but he also contributed a tremendous amount of time and effort into career as a doctor at Parkland Memorial Hospital. In fact, he was on a team of doctors who operated on President John F. Kennedy when he was assassinated at Dealy Plaza in Dallas, Texas and was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital immediately. Dr. McClelland was, at the time, showing a group of students and residents a film on surgery techniques when he accompanied Dr. Crenshaw to Trauma Room One, where President Kennedy lay unconscious, hooked to a respiratory machine. Through this experience, I learned that I take for granted the freedoms that I have today that were given to me. These same freedoms that I worked nothing for are and were the same freedoms countless soldiers from the United States armed forces selflessly fought for. Furthermore, I have gained a novel respect for physicians, such as Dr. McClelland himself who make it their job to save lives.—Eann Tuan

OBAMA BACKS DOWN ON SUDAN

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I submit for the RECORD an op-ed today by respected New York Times columnist Nicholas Kristof regarding the Obama administration's abysmal record on Sudan. He paints a bleak picture about the potentially dire implications of the administration's failure to confront Khartoum. I echo Kristof's warning that "if President Obama is ever going to find his voice on Sudan, it had better be soon."

[From the New York Times, April 22, 2010]

OBAMA BACKS DOWN ON SUDAN

(By Nicholas D. Kristof)

JUBA, SUDAN.—Until he reached the White House, Barack Obama repeatedly insisted that the United States apply more pressure on Sudan so as to avoid a humanitarian catastrophe in Darfur and elsewhere. Yet, as president, Mr. Obama and his aides have caved, leaving Sudan gloating at American weakness. Western monitors, Sudanese journalists and local civil society groups have all found this month's Sudanese elections to be deeply flawed—yet Mr. Obama's special envoy for Sudan, Maj. Gen. Scott Gration, pre-emptively defended the elections, saying they would be "as free and as fair as possible." The White House showed only a hint more backbone with a hurried reference this week to "an essential step" with "serious irregularities."

President Omar Hassan al-Bashir of Sudan—the man wanted by the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity in Darfur—has been celebrating. His regime calls itself the National Congress Party, or N.C.P., and he was quoted in Sudan as telling a rally in the Blue Nile region: "Even America is becoming an N.C.P. member. No one is against our will." Memo to Mr. Obama: When a man who has been charged with crimes against humanity tells the world that America is in his pocket, it's time to review your policy.

Perhaps the Obama administration caved because it considers a flawed election better than no election. That's a reasonable view, one I share. It's conceivable that Mr. Bashir could have won a quasi-fair election—oil revenues have manifestly raised the standard of living in parts of Sudan—and the campaigning did create space for sharp criticism of the government.

It's also true that Sudan has been behaving better in some respects. The death toll in Darfur is hugely reduced, and the government is negotiating with rebel groups there. The Sudanese government gave me a visa and travel permits to Darfur, allowing me to travel legally and freely. The real game isn't, in fact, Darfur or the elections but the maneuvering for a possible new civil war. The last north-south civil war in Sudan ended with a fragile peace in 2005, after some two million deaths. The peace agreement provided for a referendum, scheduled to take place in January, in which southern Sudanese will decide whether to secede. They are expected to vote overwhelmingly to form a separate country.

Then the question becomes: will the north allow South Sudan to separate? The south holds the great majority of the country's oil, and it's difficult to see President Bashir allowing oil fields to walk away.

"If the result of the referendum is independence, there is going to be war—complete war," predicts Mudawi Ibrahim Adam, one of Sudan's most outspoken human rights advocates. He cautions that America's willingness to turn a blind eye to election-rigging here increases the risk that Mr. Bashir will feel that he can get away with war.

"They're very naïve in Washington," Mr. Mudawi said. "They don't understand what is going on."

On the other hand, a senior Sudanese government official, Ghazi Salahuddin, told me unequivocally in Khartoum, the nation's capital, that Sudan will honor the referendum results. And it's certainly plausible that north and south will muddle through and avoid war, for both sides are exhausted by years of fighting.

Here in Juba, the South Sudan capital, I met Winnie Wol, 26, who fled the civil war in 1994 after a militia from the north attacked her village to kill, loot, rape and burn. Her father and many relatives were killed, but she escaped and made her way to Kenya—and eventually resettled as a refugee in California. She now lives in Olathe, Kan., and she had returned for the first time to Sudan to visit a mother and sisters she had last seen when she was a little girl.

Ms. Wol, every bit the well-dressed American, let me tag along for her journey back to her village of Nyamlell, 400 miles northwest of Juba. The trip ended by a thatch-roof hut that belonged to her mother, who didn't know she was coming—so no one was home. Ms. Wol was crushed.

Then there was a scream and a woman came running. It was Ms. Wol's mother, somehow recognizing her, and they flew into each other's arms. To me, it felt like a peace dividend.

Yet that peace is fragile, and Ms. Wol knows that the northern forces may come back to pillage again. "I don't want war," she said, "but I don't think they will allow us to separate."

My own hunch is that the north hasn't entirely decided what to do, and that strong international pressure can reduce the risk of another savage war. If President Obama is ever going to find his voice on Sudan, it had better be soon.

HONORING NISEI VETERANS

HON. MIKE QUIGLEY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. QUIGLEY. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the distinct patriotic and heroic service of several Chicago Japanese American Veterans who served as linguists for the Military Intelligence Service ("MIS") of the United States Army. These Japanese American ("Nisei") veterans dedicated their lives in providing invaluable intelligence support during World War II and during the Occupation of Japan from 1945–1952.

The service of these Nisei veterans was critical to our Nation's victory during World War II. They translated captured documents, interrogated prisoners of war, and intercepted radio messages. After the war they continued to serve the United States as cultural and linguistic ambassadors during the occupation of Japan. The MIS soldiers were vital in maintaining the peace by acting as a bridge between the American forces and the Japanese people.

The patriotism and heroism of the Japanese American MIS soldiers was profound and immeasurable. They served this country while their families and friends were placed in internment camps surrounded by barbed wire and armed guards. Always soldiers first, some found themselves on the battleground alongside armed forces, where they faced extraordinary circumstances and physical hardships.

For decades after such a heroic sacrifice, due to military confidentiality agreements, their stories have gone untold. Many of the Nisei Veterans, some of whom have now passed, settled in Chicago after World War II.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the Nisei Veterans for their extraordinary and invaluable service to our Nation in a time of war. They exemplify the values of dedication and service, and I thank them for their many sacrifices, years of tireless loyalty and countless contributions to this Nation. These are unsung heroes in our midst, and I welcome this opportunity to recognize their tremendous sacrifice on behalf of the people of the United States of America.

HONORING COMMISSIONER ROY GOLD

HON. THEODORE E. DEUTCH

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. DEUTCH. Madame Speaker, I am both honored and privileged to congratulate Commissioner Roy Gold as he begins his tenure as the 53rd President of the Broward League of Cities.

This most recent achievement is one of many honors during Commissioner Gold's distinguished career in public service. The Commissioner has long been a leader in the Broward community, serving as a member of the Coral Springs City Commission since 2004, and Vice Mayor from March 2006 through November 2007. Commissioner Gold also serves as the Chair of the Florida Intergovernmental Financial Commission and as a member of both the Broward County Resource Recovery Board and the Broward County Oversight Committee.

Beyond the City Commission, Commissioner Gold has dedicated his life to his family, a successful business career, and community and environmental activism. While serving as co-president and CEO of Cambridge Diagnostic Products, Inc., the commissioner has tirelessly worked to improve the community of Coral Springs. He is a founding member of the Coral Springs Neighborhood and Environmental Committee, a founding site leader for the Broward Waterway Cleanup, a founder of the Broward Adopt-a-Mile program, and a site leader for Broward County Adopt-a-Street. In addition to Commissioner Gold's environmental activism, he is currently a board member of the Coral Springs Charter School and the Coral Springs Museum of Art.

Commissioner Gold's dedication to community activism in Coral Springs is a testament to his dedication to greater Broward County, and the Broward League of Cities will be well served to have him as their new President.

I wish Commissioner Gold, his wife Janet, and his children Michael and Lauren congratulations and continued success.

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. This year 45 students from public, private, and home schools in grades 9 through 12 made their voices heard and made a difference in their communities, their country and their Congress. These students volunteered their time, effort, and talent to inform me about the important issues facing their generation. As young leaders within their communities and their schools, these students boldly represent the promise and the hope we all have for their very bright future.

President Ronald Reagan said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what it was once like in the United States where men were free."

To ensure that the blessing of freedom is passed from one generation to the next, the members of the CYAC spent time interviewing a veteran and documenting the experience for the "Preserving History Project." Today I'm proud to submit the brief summaries provided so the patriotic service of our dedicated veterans and the thoughtful work of the CYAC may be preserved for antiquity in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. A copy of each submitted student summary follows.

To each member of the Congressional Youth Advisory Council, thank you for making this year and this group a success. It is not a coincidence that this congressional tribute celebrates two generations of service. Each of you is trusted with the precious gift of freedom.

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

Michael Lee Todd has been stationed all across the U.S. and the world. During his time in the service he was a Naval Aviator for seven years and then a public affairs officer, or PAO for 17 years. While assigned to the USS Coral Sea (CV-43) he was part of the mission to rescue the American hostages being held by Muslim extremists in Tehran, Iran. Later in his career he was the lead public service affairs officer for many high profile cases during Navy history. One of these was a terrible incident where a sailor killed another in cold blood while in Japan for being homosexual. He was also in charge of all public affairs during a terrible accident onboard the battleship USS Iowa, where one of its four 18-inch gun turrets blew up killing dozens of sailors. Later in his career he was with General Anthony Zinni at U.S. Central Command during the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Somalia. Mike retired from the Navy in 2000. From this experience I gained a completely new insight into the life of my Uncle Mike. I never really new all the things he did, viewed him as "Captain Todd" or how important his service was to the country. It amazes me that he had such an impact on thoughts about the Navy by the American public. It makes me proud and gives me dreams of one day being like him, to serve my country in the tradition of my family and make a difference to the liberty and freedom of America.—Samantha Todd.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES
ON H.R. 2194, IRAN REFINED PETROLEUM SANCTIONS ACT OF 2009

SPEECH OF

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 22, 2010

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I missed roll-call vote 219, on the Motion to Instruct Conferees on Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability, and Divestment Act—Had I been present, I would have voted “aye.”

Reports are clear that Iran is speeding forward toward developing the capability to manufacture and launch a nuclear weapon. A nuclear Iran will put the world's most deadly weapon into the hands of a nation that is actively supporting terrorism and is actively engaged in providing weapons and other support to terrorist organizations. Iran's leader, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, has made no secret of his desire to destroy our ally Israel—he has promised to wipe Israel from the face of the earth. If Iran develops a nuclear bomb, it will have the ability to do in a matter of minutes what it took the Nazis six years to do.

A nuclear Iran will destabilize the entire Middle East. If Iran has nuclear capability, every nation in the Middle East will rush to acquire the same capability. Although Israel has much to fear from Iran, there are many other countries in the region that have a long history of bad relations with Iran. And there is no love lost between Shi'ite Iran and its Sunni neighbors.

I salute the young people who have risked their lives in Iran in the hopes of removing this madman from power. Their courage deserves our praise and our support. But a nuclear Iran will be a threat to every nation in the Middle East, regardless of who is in power; and there is no sign that a different Iranian leader would dismantle the nuclear program. Sanctions are our best hope to pressure Iran to relinquish its nuclear program.

Tough sanctions have an impact. They have already discouraged companies from doing business in Iran, thereby reducing Iran's access to the goods it wants. Time Magazine reported that two of the world's largest insurance companies, Lloyd's and Munich Re, will no longer insure cargo going into or out of Iran. Major oil brokers are no longer willing to sell refined petroleum to Iran, a blow to a country that must import much of its oil. LUKOIL, Royal Dutch Shell, Total, BP and Malaysia's Petronas and other companies will no longer sell gasoline to Iran. Sanctions change corporate behavior—and if the corporations that do business in Iran are no longer willing to trade, it will have an immediate and direct effect on the quality of life in Iran.

The Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability, and Divestment Act of 2009 is a good bill—a strong bill. It's time to go to conference and move forward with implementing strong sanctions that can make a difference. The only nation that benefits from delay is Iran. Time is on its side—with more time, it can realize its nuclear ambitions. We can change the equation by moving this bill forward now. Accordingly, I strongly encourage my colleagues to support this motion.

DEREK RIEMER

HON. ED PERLMUTTER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. PERLMUTTER. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and applaud Derek Riemer who has received the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. Derek Riemer is a 9th grader at Ralston Valley High School and received this award because his determination and hard work have allowed him to overcome adversities.

The dedication demonstrated by Derek Riemer is exemplary of the type of achievement that can be attained with hard work and perseverance. It is essential students at all levels strive to make the most of their education and develop a work ethic which will guide them for the rest of their lives.

I extend my deepest congratulations once again to Derek Riemer for winning the Arvada Wheat Ridge Service Ambassadors for Youth award. I have no doubt he will exhibit the same dedication and character to all his future accomplishments.

RECOGNIZING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF OUR MILITARY KIDS ORGANIZATION AND THE 2010 STAR POWER AWARD WINNERS

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and celebrate April as the National Month of the Military Child. I also ask that my colleagues join me in recognizing the outstanding work of the Our Military Kids organization as well as its 2010 award winners. I am honored that this program, founded in McLean, Virginia, is located in the 10th District of Virginia.

Our Military Kids is an organization that offers support to children of deployed National Guard and Reserve personnel in addition to children of severely injured servicemembers, through grants for extracurricular activities. In honor of the sacrifices military parents make, Our Military Kids helps to ensure that children of military families have the chance to have access to enrichment activities such as fine arts, sports, or academic programs.

I particularly wish to recognize the dedicated staff of Our Military Kids. They are joined by a Board of Directors, as well as an Advisory Board, who help make important decisions on behalf of the organization. The organization launched its original program in Winchester, Virginia, in connection with the Virginia National Guard in 2005. Today the success of Our Military Kids has gained national recognition and now reaches 14,633 children in all 50 states.

Each year Our Military Kids recognizes outstanding military children and families for their service to and sacrifice for our country. This year's award ceremony was held on April 13 in the Cannon Caucus Room here on Capitol Hill and I was honored to attend the “Celebration of Our Military Kids' Star Power” event at which four military children and one military family were saluted. The 2010 award winners are: Valerie Gonzalez of Alhambra, CA, in the 7–10-year-old age category; Jasmine Warren of Douglasville, GA, 11–14-year-old category; Taylor Ulmen of Madelia, MN, 15–18-year-old category; John Stefan Jenkins, Jr. of Jamaica, NY, 15–18-year old category, and four children from the Sonnen Family of Annandale, VA, whose father Tom was deployed to Iraq.

Through many generous partnerships with individuals, foundations, and corporations Our Military Kids is able to award grants to children each year. The Star Supporters of 2009–2010 include: General Dynamics; Target; Bob Woodruff Foundation; Leonsis Foundation; Lockheed Martin; American Legion Child Welfare Foundation; Emerson Charitable Trust; USAA; AUSA; General Dynamics-AIS; Jeong H. Kim Foundation; Oshkosh Defense; Mr. & Mrs. Michael Ansari; ASBMA Star Foundation; Association of Military Banks of America; Avion Manufacturing; Binder Foundation; Careerbuilder.com; EADS North America; Janning Family Foundation; PGA Tour Wives Association; Mr. & Mrs. Roger C. Schultz; Silicon Valley Community Foundation; Tiger Woods Foundation; Aspen Capital, LLC; Mr. & Mrs. Peter J. Barris; Bechtel; Binder Foundation; Booz Allen Hamilton; Congressional Country Club; Dorothy G. Bender Foundation; Mr. & Mrs. Shawn Hendon, Mr. & Mrs. John H. Hiser, Kippis DeSanto; Mr. & Mrs. Gerard R. Lear; Lillian Adams Charitable Trust; Mr. & Mrs. Philip Odeen; Gen. & Mrs. Peter Pace; Triple Canopy; Walter B. Slocombe; Mr. & Mrs. Paul A. Weaver, Jr.; Mr. & Mrs. William Wolpert.

In closing, I would like to particularly thank Linda Davidson, Our Military Kids' executive director, for dedication and tireless efforts to support our Nation's military families.

CELEBRATING THE LIFE OF DR.
DOROTHY IRENE HEIGHT

SPEECH OF

HON. ELIJAH E. CUMMINGS

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1281 and to mourn the loss of a strong voice for greater justice and equality in our Nation, Ms. Dorothy Height.

In the 1950s and 60s, women were expected to stay at home, and stay out of the spotlight. Dorothy Height broke through those boundaries and became a role model for women, engraving her message of universal human dignity into the mantle of our society. In fact, she exploded past her boundaries, to not only make her voice heard, but make it relevant.

The glass ceiling faced by women would hardly be the only barrier that Ms. Height would demolish. At a time when she showed great courage with every word she spoke as a powerful woman, that bravery was magnified by her voice being heard as a proud Black woman. She stood—like a prophetess of old—in defense of the principle that all men and all women are created equal, and are deserving of equal rights.

Dorothy Height was a woman of stunning dedication, discipline and vision. Although, at times, she may have been overshadowed in the press and the history books by the men of the Civil Rights movement, she will never be forgotten in the hearts and minds of the millions whom she touched.

When Dorothy Height stood with Martin Luther King, Jr., on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial as he delivered his famous “I have a dream” speech, she stood tall in her own right as both a woman, and as a leader.

During the continuing civil rights struggles of the 1960s, Dorothy Height worked tirelessly to advance our cause. The Movement’s success owes as much to her determination as it does to the more well-known legacies of Dr. King, Roy Wilkins, A. Philip Randolph, Whitney Young, James Farmer, and Bayard Rustin.

Ms. Height left no avenue untraveled in her march toward Dr. King’s “beloved society.” She brought together Black and white women to initiate a dialogue of understanding; wrote weekly columns in the New York Amsterdam News, a weekly African American newspaper; promoted community development programs in Africa; and served on numerous committees to this end.

In particular, Dorothy Height’s work within the National Council of Negro Women encouraged positive and lasting change in our Nation. She served as the President of the Council for 40 years, retiring in 1997. From her bully pulpit as President, Dorothy Height advocated for equality for both African Americans and women. She emphasized self-help and reliance, even as she encouraged practical programs in nutrition, child care, housing and career counseling.

Madam Speaker, I was deeply gratified when Dorothy Height was awarded the Congressional Gold Medal in 2004, one of the most deserved awards that we have ever bestowed. With her passing, millions of women—and men—have lost a role model, and America has lost one of our true treasures.

My prayers are with Ms. Height’s family and friends during their time of loss.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

Retired Air Force Major Mark Smith enlisted in the United States Air Force in 1969, at age 19. He spent six years serving as an enlisted serviceman, was honorably discharged, and pursued his education using the GI Bill while working. After completing his Masters Degree in Computer Information Systems, he applied to Officers’ Training School (OTS) and reenlisted in the Air Force. Major Smith spent the remainder of his time as an officer working in Tactical Communications Systems and Information Systems Management. Smith’s one overseas duty station was as an enlisted airman; he was stationed with the RAF station at Chicksands in England. Later in his career as an officer, he had some temporary duty assignments in Saudi Arabia, Haiti and Panama.

This interview was the first time I have questioned a veteran about their experiences, and it was fascinating. The Smiths expressed such a high level of enthusiasm and pride about their lives in the United States Air Force that it would have been difficult to come away from the interview with anything but a positive outlook towards a military career.—Katya Sousa

CONGRATULATING HALF HOLLOW HILLS EAST HIGH SCHOOL ON WINNING THE WE THE PEOPLE NEW YORK STATE FINALS

HON. STEVE ISRAEL

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. ISRAEL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge Half Hollow Hills East High School, which was named the New York State champion of the We the People: The Citizens and the Constitution competition.

The We the People competition is an extremely prestigious national academic contest that promotes the study of the United States Constitution. The students from Half Hollow Hills East who participated in the simulated congressional hearings were judged on their knowledge of and ability to apply the Constitution to current events. The students earned the best scores of the nine high schools that competed in the New York State Final Hearings in March and as a result, will represent New York State in the national finals.

I am proud to recognize Half Hollow Hills East High School for this outstanding academic achievement.

HONORING MR. JAMES MUSCATO

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. HIGGINS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the years of service given to the people of Chautauqua County by Mr. James Muscato. Mr. Muscato served his constituency faithfully and justly during his tenure as a member of the Dunkirk City Council.

Public service is a difficult and fulfilling career. Any person with a dream may enter but only a few are able to reach the end. Mr. Muscato served his term with his head held high and a smile on his face the entire way. I have no doubt that his kind demeanor left a lasting impression on the people of Chautauqua County.

We are truly blessed to have such strong individuals with a desire to make this county the wonderful place that we all know it can be. Mr. Muscato is one of those people, and that is why, Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to him today.

COMMENDING UNIVERSITY OF CONNECTICUT HUSKIES ON WOMEN’S NCAA BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

SPEECH OF

HON. JOHN B. LARSON

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 1239, Commending the University of Connecticut Huskies for their historic win in the 2010 NCAA Division I Women’s Basketball Tournament. On March 6, 2010, the Huskies capped an undefeated season by beating the University of Stanford Cardinal 53–47 in the NCAA Championship game. There are many things that make this team impressive, but to show just how dominant they were, this was their only victory all season where they defeated an opponent by less than 10 points. With 78 straight wins, they broke their own record for all-time consecutive victories.

Throughout their unbelievable run, the UConn women’s basketball team has captivated the state of Connecticut with their awe-inspiring talent. Tina Charles’ tremendous play at center earned her recognition as both the United States Basketball Writers Association and the Associated Press Player of the Year. Additionally, she was named the Naismith Award winner and the Wooden Award winner. Although she will graduate this year, she will undoubtedly be remembered as one of the all-time greats to play for the Huskies. Junior Maya Moore received outstanding honors by being named the State Farm Wade Trophy Player of the Year and being named the Most Valuable Player in the Final Four. Both Moore and Tina Charles were chosen as First-Team All-Americans.

Connecticut is home to one of the most accomplished and successful teams in the history of collegiate athletics. Under Head Coach Geno Auriemma, we in Connecticut have become accustomed to excellence year in and year out. He has led the Huskies to seven championships, including four undefeated seasons. He also holds the highest winning percentage of any active coach in women's collegiate basketball.

The Women Huskies have captured the hearts of fans all across the nation with their exemplary work on and off the court. In every game, the team played with a passion and desire only displayed by champions. This entire team of remarkable women: Heather Buck, Tina Charles, Lorin Dixon, Caroline Doty, Kelly Faris, Jacquie Fernandes, Meghan Gardler, Kalana Greene, Tiffany Hayes, Kaili McLaren, and Maya Moore exemplify what a student-athlete is supposed to be. As they carry their winning streak into next season, I know they will continue to make us proud.

I am proud to join Connecticut's Congressional Delegation, my colleagues in the House of Representatives, and Husky Nation in celebrating the UConn Women Basketball team's seventh NCAA Women's National Basketball Championship, second perfect season in a row and record 78-game winning streak.

OUR UNCONSCIONABLE NATIONAL DEBT

HON. MIKE COFFMAN

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. COFFMAN of Colorado. Madam Speaker, today our national debt is $12,877,195,922,374.91.

On January 6th, 2009, the start of the 111th Congress, the national debt was $10,638,425,746,293.80.

This means the national debt has increased by $2,238,770,176,081.11 so far this Congress.

This debt and its interest payments we are passing to our children and all future Americans.

CONGRATULATING GRACE WANG, RECIPIENT OF A SIEMENS FOUNDATION AWARD

HON. GERALD E. CONNOLLY

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I rise to recognize Grace Wang, recipient of a Siemens Foundation award for her excellence in the College Board's Advanced Placement program courses and exams in the area of science and mathematics.

The Siemens Foundation has actively supported science, technology, engineering and mathematics education. Each year, the Foundation provides more than $7 million in support of education initiatives. The Foundation supports programs from grade school through graduate school to encourage students to achieve their potential. The Siemens Awards for Advanced Placement provides $2,000 college scholarships for two students in each state based on grades and scores in AP science and math classes.

Grace Wang, a student at Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology, has excelled in her AP science and math classes. Through her hard work, she has proven that she is one of the best and brightest in the nation. She is a shining example of the achievements of students in the area of math and science.

Madam Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in congratulating Grace Wang for this honor. She truly is an example of our nation's promising future in the science and technology fields.

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

I interviewed Alan Smith, a World War II veteran, and I learned a lot about his life and his experiences during the war as well as the years after. Mr. Smith entered the military as a private and came out as a corporal after approximately 22 months of service. His highlight combat mission was the invasion of Bastogne. After his service, Mr. Smith went to school on the GI Bill and became a Bible major. Following college, Mr. Smith began to work for Beach Aircraft Company which produced tools of various sorts.

After interviewing Mr. Smith, I have learned several things about World War II from a first-hand account. I also learned the challenges faced by troops while deployed overseas and the mental toll it places on a soldier's mind. And at the end of the interview, Mr. Smith stressed this scripture from the Bible to me: "And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation." He lives by this verse and said it could be applicable to many present day situations.—Drew Sneed.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. HIGGINS. Madam Speaker, regrettably, during a series of votes last Thursday I missed rollcall vote 219. I would have voted "yea."

I am a cosponsor of H.R. 2194, the Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability, and Divestment Act, and would have joined my colleagues in instructing conferees to insist on the strong provisions in the House-passed bill.

HONORING ARMY SPECIALIST RANDALL RAY CHARLES LANDSTEDT

HON. TOM McCLINTOCK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. McCLINTOCK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Army SPC Randall Ray Charles Landstedt from Pollock Pines, California, who was killed April 6, 2010 while on leave in Crestview, Florida. Specialist Landstedt grew up in El Dorado County, attending local schools, including Pinewood, Sierra Ridge, El Dorado High, and Independence High. From an early age, Specialist Landstedt was determined to serve his country and after graduation enlisted in the U.S. Army. He was known by his friends and family as kind, generous, considerate and loyal. He is survived by his parents, Joanne and Daniel Landstedt; brother, James Copeland of Pollock Pines; and sister, Rickie Bronstein of San Diego.

I cannot begin to comprehend the pain of losing such a kind and courageous young man and I cannot ease that pain with my words. All I can do is say thank you for Randall's service. He exemplified the highest values of our country, embodying courage, valor and dedication in his service with the Army's 1st Battalion, 32nd Infantry Regiment, 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 10th Mountain Division. Specialist Landstedt was twice awarded the Army Commendation Medal and also received the Afghanistan Campaign Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Global War on Terrorism Medal, an Army Service Ribbon, an Overseas Service Ribbon, and the NATO Medal with an International Security Assistance Force bar. We will remember SPC Randall Landstedt for his honor and dedication, and we must never forget the service and sacrifices of the sons and daughters of our great country.

HONORING ISRAELI INDEPENDENCE DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. JOE BACA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the 62nd anniversary of the establishment of the modern State of Israel.

After the horrible actions of the Holocaust, Israel was established as an independent nation. She has since advanced into a successful, democratic, and thriving nation.

Since her inception 62 years ago, Israel continues to be a friend and a strong ally to the United States. I stand here with my colleagues and reaffirm this bond of solidarity and cooperation between the United States and Israel.

As Iran gets closer to nuclear capability, threatening our collective security, we must stand together in accord, now more than ever.

We support Israel and commend the progress made as she continues to work towards peace with her Arab neighbors.

I also commend all our Jewish friends in the United States whose tireless efforts contribute to American and Israeli achievement.

I urge my colleagues to support and reaffirm our unwavering friendship with the Israeli people, and congratulate Israel on this memorable occasion.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH AD-VISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. tested, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what it was once like in the United States where men were free."

To ensure that the blessing of freedom is passed from one generation to the next, the members of the CYAC spent time interviewing a veteran and documenting the experience for the "Preserving History Project." Today I'm proud to submit the brief summaries provided so the patriotic service of our dedicated veterans and the thoughtful work of the CYAC may be preserved for antiquity in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

The summary follows:

I had the honor to sit down with Sergeant Goins, a member of the United States Army, in his Plano West classroom to learn about his intriguing assignments overseas. Chad Goins is currently a teacher at Plano West Senior High School where he instructs students in Introduction to Criminal Justice and Criminal Investigation classes. Just under two years ago, in June 2008, Sgt. Goins left to endure an eight month training followed by ten months at Bagram Airfield in Afghanistan. His many awards and achievements clearly demonstrate the integrity and valor with which he has served his country, such as the Afghanistan Campaign Medal, and the Combat Action Badge. Due to the nature of Sgt. Goins' duties of Military Intelligence, he was unable to discuss many of the specifics. However, because he saw a lot of the local population, he discussed with me just why the war in Afghanistan is so difficult to fight. From this experience, I am now better able to understand the war in Afghanistan and the reason to why it is such a non-traditional war. The religious and cultural differences and the thousands of familial tribes in Afghanistan make continuity nearly impossible with Americans to Afghans, and even Afghans to Afghans. Thank you, Sergeant Goins and all other members of the U.S. Military for everything you do to protect our country. For it is because of you that we can live the life we do. I am thankful to add, Sergeant Goins' duty ended on Thanksgiving Day of 2009, and he returned home shortly after, injury free.—Laura Schuller.

RICHARD C. SCHAEFFER, JR.

HON. C.A. DUTCH RUPPERSBERGER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. Madam Speaker, I rise before you today to honor Mr. Richard Schaeffer, Jr., for a distinguished 40-year career with the Federal Government.

A graduate from Catholic University of America, Schaeffer holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering. His participation in the Intelligence Fellows Program, National Senior Cryptologic Course, and Executive Development Seminar provided a sound base for his future achievements.

As one of the National Security Agency's (NSA) highest ranking senior leaders, the Information Assurance Director, Schaeffer is responsible for the availability of products, services, technology and standards for protecting our nation's critical information systems from adversaries in cyberspace. Prior to holding the position of one of the nation's leading defenders against cyber attacks, Schaeffer was Chief of the National Security Operations Center, which manages the U.S. Cryptological System, serving as the command-and-control center for crisis response. His other major assignments have included Information Assurance Deputy Director, NSA Deputy Chief of Staff, and Director, Infrastructure and Information Assurance. Prior to his work with NSA, Schaeffer served in the United States Marine Corps, including two tours in Vietnam.

For his renowned work with the Federal Government, Schaeffer earned numerous awards including Armed Forces Communications and Electronic Association Meritorious Service Award; the Presidential Rank Award; Secretary of Defense Medal for Meritorious Civilian Service; and Secretary of Defense Productivity Excellence Award, among many others.

Madam Speaker, I ask that you join with me today to honor Mr. Richard Schaeffer, Jr., and his illustrious career with the Federal Government. His leadership and loyalty has protected this nation for over 40 years. His dedication to the United States is highly commendable.

RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANCE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today as a cosponsor of H. Res. 1276, which commemorates the first anniversary of the Serve America Act. For the last year, the Serve America Act has been promoting service to help meet national challenges, expand opportunities to serve, and support social innovation. The Serve America Act is a historic milestone for national service, but signing the bill is just the beginning—we need every American to rise to this national call to service.

I thank Chairman MILLER for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I also thank him for sponsoring this legislation and taking the time to chronicle the crucial achievements of the Serve America Act.

Mr. Speaker, last year President Obama signed into law the Edward M. Kennedy Serve America Act, the most sweeping expansion and strengthening of national service in a generation. The strong bipartisan support for this legislation was a testament to the proven impact of national service and the widespread recognition that service is a solution to tough challenges. There is strong momentum for citizen service—volunteering increased last year to the highest level since 2003, AmeriCorps applications continue to increase on a yearly basis, and the service field is experiencing a wave of new innovation and collaboration. In California, last year 230,000 individuals of all ages and backgrounds helped meet local needs, strengthen communities, and increase civic engagement through 366 projects statewide. This year, the Corporation for National and Community Service, the organization implementing the Serve America Act, will commit over $75 million to support California communities through national service initiatives.

The Serve America Act has empowered individuals, nonprofits, state governments, and local communities to address our nation's most pressing challenges through service. The significant progress already made since the passing of this legislation, and the attitude of selflessness that it has promoted make it entirely fitting that we take this time to honor and commemorate the first anniversary of the Serve America Act. Thanks to the leadership of the President, the bipartisan support of Congress, new authorities under the Serve America Act, historic funding for programs, and a growing consensus that service is a solution, we stand at the dawn of a new era of service in America.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 1276.

RECOGNIZING THE SERVICE OF THE 100TH BATTALION, 442ND REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAM AND THE MILITARY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

HON. TOM McCLINTOCK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. McCLINTOCK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the brave individuals who served in the Military Intelligence Service and the Army's 100th Battalion, 442nd Regimental Combat Team (RCT)—the most decorated unit for its size and length of service in the history of the U.S. military. These patriotic Americans, many of whom came from Placer County, California, served at a time when many of their families were interned in camps far from their homes.

I am proud that the people of Placer County have partnered with the Japanese American Citizens League to create a permanent memorial commemorating the Americans of Japanese ancestry who served in the U.S. military during World War II. The memorial includes a 36-foot compass laid in concrete to symbolize the journey of the 442nd RCT located on Go For Broke Road, which is named in honor of the unit's motto.

As our community moves into the second phase of this project, I congratulate everyone involved and thank them for their ongoing efforts to honor those individuals who risked and sacrificed so much in defense of our great Nation and the ideals for which we stand.

HONORING MR. PURVIS YOUNG

HON. KENDRICK B. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the late Mr. Purvis Young, one of South Florida's most storied artists. He transformed a troubled life with brush strokes, painting the joys and sorrows of his people on objects discarded in his Overtown neighborhood. Because of his great talent, he received international recognition.

Born February 2, 1943 in Miami's Liberty City to Vera Mae Wright, Mr. Young learned the art of drawing as a young boy watching his maternal Uncle Irving who was a figurative artist. He picked up his first paintbrush at the age of 20. Mr. Young attended school up to the 8th grade during which time he swam at Dixie Park (now called Gibson Park) and he was invited to paint a mural on the Overtown Library, adjacent to the pool. With the guidance of two of Miami-Dade Public Library System's finest, Barbara Young (Librarian Curator of the Permanent Collection, Art Services and Exhibitions Programs) and Margarita Cano (Administrator of Community Relations), Mr. Young buried himself amongst the books, hungry for knowledge that could explain the world to him.

For the first 50 years of his life, Mr. Young remained within the county lines of Miami. It was not until his 6th decade that he traveled to other states and cities and learned that he was famous, a fact he missed while art dealers encouraged him to seclude himself in his studio. A self-taught artist, Mr. Young enjoyed telling the story of how he turned his life around in the mid-1960s by painting vibrant murals and conceptualizing mixed-media expressionist works. He said he found his calling after serving a prison term for breaking and entering when an angel told him, "This is not your life."

Mr. Young completed most of his work at night and created exquisite, thoughtful art from garbage he plucked off the streets of Overtown. Environmentally conscious and unwilling to contribute to further deforestation, Mr. Young's "canvases" were made of recycled products including found wood, discarded library books, old political posters, used furniture and various surplus items from construction sites. He painted with latex, acrylic, enamel, and combinations of new paint blended with old paint that he had for 25 years or more. His work was famous for intensely colored urban landscapes, drawings and mixed-media constructions.

Today, Mr. Young's work is in more than 60 public collections and numerous private ones—in 2006 alone he had six exhibitions. His work hangs in The Bass Museum of Art (Miami); American Folk Art Museum (New York); The Corcoran Gallery of Art (Washington, D.C.); High Museum of Art (Atlanta); Lowe Art Museum (University of Miami); Museum of Fine Arts (Houston); New Orleans Museum of Art; Philadelphia Museum of Art; the Smithsonian American Art Museum among many. On December 24, 2006, the Sun-Sentinel's Emma Trelles named the Boca Raton Museum of Art's Purvis Young exhibition #1 in the art category for the year in South Florida. Several of his works are part of the permanent collection of the Smithsonian American Art Museum.

"Purvis was one of the great geniuses of American art, a remarkable figure," said Jacquelyn Serwer, chief curator of the Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture, which breaks ground in 2012. "He wasn't particularly nurtured, yet was driven to do this work. He was just one of those people who was born with this extraordinary vision and stayed true to it, producing work that had a kind of mythical quality to it."

Mr. Young is survived by his long-time companion, Eddie Mae Lovest, four daughters, Kenyatta, Kentranice, Taketha and Elisha, and 13 grandchildren. In addition, he is survived by two sisters, Betty Rodriguez and Shirley Byrd, and a brother, Irvin Byrd.

Madam Speaker, I ask you and all the members of this esteemed legislative body to join me in recognizing the extraordinary life and accomplishments of Dr. Purvis Young. I am honored to pay tribute to Mr. Young for his invaluable services and tireless dedication to the South Florida arts community. Mr. Young's life was a triumph and he will be missed by all who knew him. I appreciate this opportunity to pay tribute to him before the United States House of Representatives.

CAREGIVERS AND VETERANS OMNIBUS HEALTH SERVICES ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. LAURA RICHARDSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Ms. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of S. 1963, the "Caregivers and Veterans Omnibus Health Services Act of 2009," which will finally give our brave men and women in uniform the benefits they deserve and provide their families and caregivers with the support that they need. Too many of our veterans return home—many of them wounded or disabled—after risking their lives on our behalf and do not receive adequate health care or benefits. Too many families fall into debt as they assume the responsibility of caring for a loved one who has returned from Iraq or Afghanistan. This bill will right these injustices.

I thank Chairman FILNER for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor. I also thank the sponsor of this legislation, Senator AKAKA, for working hard to ensure that our Nation's dedication to its veterans matches their selfless devotion to this country.

Mr. Speaker, representing a district that is home to over 24,000 veterans and the VA Medical Center of Long Beach, I understand the work that must be done to uphold our Nation's obligation to its veterans. Unfortunately, for years the health care services provided for our Nation's veterans have been inadequate. Veterans' families have been especially overburdened by this failure. When wounded or disabled veterans return home from overseas, family members often become their primary caregivers. However willing these individuals may be to care for their loved one, the truth is that family members often lack the resources or skills needed to provide the care that our veterans deserve. S. 1963 will provide training and financial assistance to family caregivers, so that veterans' families can afford to provide them with quality care.

In addition, S. 1963 will improve health care for female veterans. For too long, female veterans have lacked access to comprehensive health care. We cannot stand for this kind of discrimination. S. 1963 will break down this barrier and give female veterans access to health professionals specializing in the specific health care needs of women. Among many other things, the bill will provide counseling and care to female veterans suffering from sexual trauma.

This bill will also provide an array of new health services for veterans, ensuring that every veteran has access to the care that he or she deserves. The bill will expand care for veterans in rural areas, because where veterans live should never determine the quality of care that they receive. It will improve mental health support for veterans, because we must respond to traumatic experiences that our men and women in uniform are braving in Iraq and Afghanistan. Finally, this legislation will help homeless veterans find housing, because it is simply unacceptable for our veterans to risk their lives for our country and return home to live on the streets.

Mr. Speaker, our men and women in uniform have assumed the responsibility of protecting us and the values that we cherish as American citizens; we, then, have a responsibility to them. We must provide them with support they need to live healthy and financially stable lives upon returning home. This bill will do just that. I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in supporting S. 1963.

HONORING THE STATE CHAMPION
BOLIVAR CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL
BOYS BASKETBALL TEAM

HON. MARSHA BLACKBURN

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in congratulating the Bolivar Central High School boy's basketball team for winning the 2010 Class AA State Championship.

Less than a year removed from the state semifinals, Bolivar Central High School faced off against their league rivals at Middle Tennessee State University on March 20, 2010 for the State championship. After hundreds of hours of practice and hard work the Tigers were rewarded as they secured the school's third Class AA state championship in a 72-62 win over Liberty.

This recognition reflects a dedication to practice, their teammates and their unrelenting commitment to excellence. The team building skills acquired by working together through the highs and lows of the season will benefit these young men for a lifetime of success.

Madam Speaker, please join me in thanking the parents, Coach Rick Rudesill, faculty of Bolivar Central High School and again congratulating the members of the 2010 State Championship team. I am sure this is not the last we will hear from this talented group of young men.

RECOGNIZING THE 150TH ANNIVERSARY OF ST. MARY'S ACADEMY

HON. TOM MCCLINTOCK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. MCCLINTOCK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 150th anniversary of St. Mary's Academy in Grass Valley, California. Since its first day, St. Mary's has provided outstanding educational opportunities to the children of Nevada County.

The Academy was founded in 1859 by Father Thomas J. Dalton, Pastor of St. Patrick Parish in Grass Valley as a school for the growing Nevada County area. The Academy has served as an orphanage, a finishing school for girls, a high school, and a grade school. Today the school offers kindergarten through eighth grade education.

As our community gathers to celebrate this auspicious occasion, I am proud to recognize 150 years of service and excellence and thank those who have worked to keep the Academy open and thriving.

COMMEMORATING 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF EARTH DAY

SPEECH OF

HON. BEN RAY LUJÁN

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 21, 2010

Mr. LUJÁN. Madam Speaker, it would be easy to get depressed on Earth Day, when the challenges to saving the world just seem to keep growing.

Still, right in Santa Fe's backyard, people are making strides simple and ambitious to live lighter on the Earth.

That is what the Santa Fe New Mexican said today on Earth Day.

And that is where we are making a difference—with efforts large and small.

We have groups like Santa Fe Youthworks—building homes that use less energy and empowering at risk students.

Families are caulking their home and using more energy efficient light bulbs.

Too often we miss signs of progress amidst the great work that remains to be done like taking on climate change, diminishing energy resources, and polluted lands and water. But every day each of us can, and must, make a difference toward a cleaner world.

HONORING THE LIFE AND
ACHIEVEMENTS OF REV. BEN-JAMIN LAWSON HOOKS

SPEECH OF

HON. ELIJAH E. CUMMINGS

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 20, 2010

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. 1271 and to mourn the loss of the former president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), Mr. Benjamin L. Hooks.

Mr. Hooks led the NAACP at a time when civil rights legislation began to have its greatest impact. The vote had been secured, equal facilities were legally required and the right to an equal education had finally been confirmed through court action.

Benjamin Hooks had already seen the benefits of the fight for civil rights that he helped lead. Before taking over the NAACP, Hooks was President Nixon's choice to head the Federal Communication Commission as that body's first Black commissioner.

So, when he took over at the NAACP, many believed the fight was over and the impact of the NAACP had declined.

Benjamin Hooks knew that the fight would never end, as long as injustice remained in this world. When he left the NAACP in 1992, the membership who believed along with him, fought along with him, and who join me in mourning his loss, had grown by hundreds of thousands of Americans.

His service to his country and to the NAACP was not the birth of his activism. Even as a young man, Benjamin Hooks fought for equality.

Hooks served in the Army during World War II, guarding prisoners of war. In his hometown of Memphis, these prisoners would have more rights than he did. So Hooks began fighting for those whose rights had been left behind.

For 16 years, he practiced law in Memphis, became a minister and served as the first African American criminal court judge in the state of Tennessee.

During his tenure at the FCC, Hooks pushed for more minority leadership of media outlets. Minority employment in broadcasting grew from 3 percent to 15 percent during his tenure, according to the Associated Press.

After retiring from the NAACP, Hooks stressed that wealthy and middle-class African Americans should give time and resources to those who are less fortunate. He served as pastor of Middle Baptist Church and president of the National Civil Rights Museum, both in Memphis. He also taught at the University of Memphis.

His lifetime work was so critical to the Civil Rights movement that in 2007, Hooks received the nation's highest honor, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, from President George W. Bush.

So today, it is with a heavy heart that I mourn the loss of an American leader and legend, Mr. Benjamin Hooks.

COMPREHENSIVE IRAN SANCTIONS, ACCOUNTABILITY, AND DIVESTMENT ACT OF 2009

HON. JOE BACA

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. BACA. Madam Speaker, I rise to support the passage of the Comprehensive Iran Sanctions, Accountability and Divestment Act.

The Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran, if allowed on its present course, is well on its way to obtaining nuclear capability. Experts say it could be in the possession of a nuclear weapon in less than a year.

Since 1995, several U.S. regulations have been enacted to pressure Iran's economy, curtail its nuclear advancement and curb the government's support for jihadist militant groups. They have not been adhered to; no firms have yet been sanctioned.

This legislation will pressure persons violating Iran Sanction acts and other accomplices of the National Guard in pursuing uranium enrichment and oppressing religious and human rights.

Nuclear terrorism is one of the greatest threats to American security. Safeguarding nuclear materials from terrorists is absolutely critical to international peace and stability.

This legislation provides the much needed teeth and Presidential authority necessary to deter this regime's nuclear intentions. Timing is crucial, for this reason it must be passed today.

THE FUTURE OF TAIWAN

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Madam Speaker, I rise today to share with my colleagues a recent speech by the President of the Republic of China, ROC, Taiwan, discussing his country's future. I have been a longtime supporter of Taiwan and hope that my colleagues and I will continue to improve relations not only between the United States and Taiwan but between Taiwan and the international community. All Americans should be proud that Taiwan and the United States have enjoyed a strong and durable relationship. Taiwan is one of our largest trading partners and the cultural exchanges between our two peoples are as vibrant as they have ever been. Taiwan has stood shoulder to shoulder with the United States to combat the scourge of global terrorism; and the people of Taiwan have always given generously in our greatest times of need with monetary contributions to the Twin Towers Fund, Pentagon Memorial Fund and through the offer of humanitarian assistance to victims of Hurricane Katrina. Taiwan and the United States are not merely allies; we are friends and partners in the truest sense of the words.

Recently, President Ma Ying-jeou of the ROC, Taiwan, took part in a video conference with the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies at Harvard University to discuss Taiwan's vision for the future. I ask unanimous consent to include a copy of President Ma Ying-jeou's speech into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. And I urge my colleagues to read the remarks because whatever the future holds of Taiwan, I believe that the people of Taiwan deserve to have a voice in shaping that future.

THE QUEST FOR MODERNITY—SPEECH BY MA YING-JEOU, PRESIDENT, REPUBLIC OF CHINA AT FAIRBANK CENTER, HARVARD UNIVERSITY—APRIL 6, 2010

President Ma Ying-jeou took part this morning in a video conference with the Fairbank Center for Chinese Studies at Harvard University. The conference was moderated by Dr. William Kirby, Director of the Fairbank Center. Harvard University president Drew G. Faust opened the conference with a videotaped talk in which she welcomed President Ma to the video conference. After the moderator's opening remarks, President Ma followed with a speech entitled "The Quest for Modernity." Thereafter, professors Steven M. Goldstein, David Der-Wei Wang, William P. Alford each posed a few questions to the president. This was followed by a Q&A session in which the president fielded questions from members of the audience. As the conference was drawing to a close, President Ma gave a short closing statement.

Prof. Kirby, Prof. Goldstein, Prof. Alford, Prof. Wang, Prof. Su Chi, Ambassador Yuan, Director General Hung, Dear faculty members, students, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen: Good Evening!

I. NOSTALGIA ABOUT HARVARD

It heartens me to be once again addressing the excellent faculty and student body of Harvard University. This moment brings back a rush of nostalgia because it was here I became a proud father for the first time before I even got my doctoral degree. It was also at Harvard when I was cloistered for long hours in the Law School Library, or debating with fellow classmates and professors, that I was able to broaden my understanding of the world, and hone my skills as a scholar, intellectual and eventually a leader. I also feel nostalgic on a deeper level. When I think of a long litany of historic events, figures, and institutions: John Hay's Open-Door Policy, Boxer Rebellion, American Indemnity Scholarships for China, with all its recipients, like Hu Shih and Chien Shih-Liang, Tsinghua University, Yenching University, May Fourth Movement, Flying Tigers, Pearl Harbor, John Leighton Stuart, 1949, Korean War, United States-Republic of China Mutual Defense Treaty, Fairbank Center, the Quemoy and Matsu Crisis, Cultural Revolution, Shanghai Communiqué, Taiwan Relations Act, mainland China's Reform and Open Policy, U.S. arms sales to Taiwan and so on, I cannot help but think of the far-reaching impact that America has had on China's, and later on Taiwan's, convoluted path to modernization. I cannot help but think my time at Harvard was not only a personal academic journey, but also a microcosm reflecting a people's long search for a modern nation.

II. WEALTH, POWER AND DEMOCRACY

The late venerable Benjamin Schwartz, who as you know had been a prominent member of the Fairbank Center, described in the life of Yen Fu that the evolution of modern China has been a journey in search of wealth and power. Given the rise of mainland China's economic power and military strength over the last thirty years, it seems that it has achieved those goals to a considerable degree. However, I believe a society that is truly modernizing should not be limited to wealth and power but must also include the foundations for freedom and democracy.

For it is only through the active participation and free choice of one's citizens that government truly serves the welfare of the people; only then can a government sustain, and a nation thrive. So I am proud to say that the Republic of China on Taiwan has in fact achieved all these three pillars. The ROC has since become a thriving nation with a robust economy, viable military and a truly open and vibrant democracy. With so much already achieved the roadmap of my administration is quite straightforward: namely to strengthen the foundation of these three pillars so as to safeguard the future of Taiwan's posterity, and to share with mainland China our values and way of life.

III. COMING OUT OF RECESSION

My administration came into office two years ago in the midst of a global economic crisis, so it's not an exaggeration that we definitely "hit the ground running." Since then we have worked relentlessly to revitalize Taiwan's economy. By taking measures such as guaranteeing 100% bank deposits, substantially lowering interest rate in seven instances, investing 16 billion US dollars in domestic infrastructure in 5 years, distributing 2.7 billion U.S. dollars worth of shopping vouchers, and providing emergency assistance for the underprivileged, my administration has successfully brought the economy out of the downturn after a year and a half. Now we expect to create about a quarter of a million jobs to bring the unemployment rate below 5% and GDP growth up to 4.72% this year. Job creation will remain our top priority, especially those in the green energy sector. With carbon reduction in mind, we are now ambitiously promoting innovation across all of Taiwan's most competitive sectors. These include the country's traditional strongholds such as IT, agriculture, and healthcare as well as other emerging industries like green energy, biotech, tourism and the cultural creative industries. However, the growing trend towards regional integration among economic powerhouses in East Asia, like Japan, mainland China, South Korea and the ASEAN countries, is threatening to marginalize Taiwan's heavily export-driven economy. As such, my administration has been seeking to institutionalize economic relations with mainland China and diversify our export markets and products so that Taiwan will not only avoid being cut off from the global economy but also enhance its international competitiveness. Therefore, we have been pushing hard for an Economic Cooperation Framework Agreement (ECFA) with the mainland that will serve as a critical structural platform for economic interaction between the two sides. On top of intellectual property rights protection and investment guarantee, the framework will include an early harvest package of goods and services to enjoy zero custom tariffs. The negotiations are already underway and expect to conclude in the next few months. We have also established government programs that will cushion potential shocks to industries and workers, especially small- and medium-sized enterprises. Although some assert that signing the ECFA with mainland China will compromise our sovereignty, this is definitely not the case. The top priority of my administration has always been the principle of "putting Taiwan first for the benefit of the people." The truth of the matter, ECFA will spearhead Taiwan's return to the accelerated track for economic integration in Asia-Pacific and beyond. This without a doubt will strengthen Taiwan's capabilities to enhance its competitive edge in the global market and brighten its outlook for negotiating similar arrangements with other countries.

IV. CROSS-STRAIT RAPPROCHEMENT AND FLEXIBLE DIPLOMACY

In the pursuit of power my administration is not merely seeking military strength but more importantly to build up our soft power. In fact, the heart of my foreign policy is to reestablish mutual trust with all our major international partners, especially the United States. In achieving this goal, my administration has worked incessantly to transform the Taiwan Straits from a major flashpoint into a conduit for regional peace and prosperity. Therefore, in order to resume constructive dialogue with the mainland after a hiatus of over a decade, we first announced in 2008 the policy of "No Unification, No Independence, No Use of Force" so as to maintain the status quo across the Taiwan Strait under the framework of the Republic of China's 1946 Constitution. This breakthrough was further advanced under the framework of the 92 Consensus of "one China, respective interpretations" that was reached by the two sides in November 1992. That is now deemed a feasible formula by government leaders across the Taiwan Strait as well as many in the wider world community. We have also adopted a policy of Flexible Diplomacy and pursued a diplomatic truce with the mainland, which has by and large ended the vicious cycle of diplomatic warfare between the two sides. This will assuredly foster responsible stakeholdership in both Taiwan as well as the mainland. At the same time, we are working equally hard to enhance Taiwan's meaningful participation in and contribution to the international community. This will be achieved through our strong initiative to develop Taiwan's green technology and healthcare industries in conjunction with our foreign aid policies. For example, under the Flagship Program for Green Energy Industry, we will be building up Taiwan's industrial base in green technology especially in Photo voltaic solar cells and LED. This will not only benefit our people and economy, but more importantly, Taiwan will be able to share its resources and expertise with our allies and friends. On my visit to our Pacific island allies last month, I was proud to survey firsthand the work that Taiwan has done for some of the countries in the area. For example, Taiwan has installed and provided solar energy technology to the Solomon Islands in hopes of improving the environment and livelihoods of their people. Taiwan has also set up an impressive medical mission in the Marshall Islands to treat the high prevalence of cataracts sufferers. In fact, our government will boost the overall effectiveness of our medical aid by initiating many more medical and public health missions that will target specific conditions and diseases common among the people of the Pacific island allies and friends. At the same time, after Taiwan effectively controlled the spread of the H1N1 Flu within our own borders, with a mortality rate of 2 deaths per million, which is only 1/3 of the average for OECD countries, I am proud to report that Taiwan will also be giving away locally manufactured vaccines worth 5 million US dollars to other countries in need. Taiwan's search and rescue teams were also one of the first on the scenes when Haiti was hit by a devastating earthquake earlier this year. In addition to donating $16 million worth in aid and funds, our government is also planning to set up medical and vocational training centers to train for hundreds of medical and skilled workers, and build 1,200 housing units. Also, as a sign of Taiwan's flourishing civil society, World Vision Taiwan has collected countless small donations from our people that will be sufficient to feed and save more than 8,000 homeless Haitian children and orphans. However, my administration realizes humanitarian relief is only a small part of the long and challenging road to full recovery. This is why we hope to continue the work we have started in integrating the advances we make in healthcare and green technology into our foreign aid framework, so that Taiwan can truly make a meaningful difference in the countries we help.

V. THE UNIVERSAL VALUE OF FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY

However, coming back full circle, the search for a modern nation cannot merely lie upon the pillars of wealth and power. It is only under a true democracy that one's citizens can live without fear according to the law, and share in the burdens as well as benefits of good governance. Although Taiwan has made impressive sociopolitical progress over the last decades, it is still a young democracy. So, as firm champions for democracy, my administration will work to strengthen the democratic infrastructure of my country. Already we are taking tangible steps to enhance Taiwan's rule of law and protection of human rights in conformity with international standards. In the past year, we have ratified the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR), both administered by the United Nations. In converting these covenants into domestic law, they will certainly strengthen the human rights of our citizenry and further consolidate our rule of law. Furthermore, I came to power on the promise of combating corruption in elections and government, whereby we have already made meaningful progress. Without a doubt this goal will continue to be a cornerstone of my presidency, which I am determined to carry through in my capacity as the President of the country. I will assuredly not waver from the path in laying the foundations of a true democracy. In fact, next year in 2011 will be the Centennial Anniversary of the Republic of China. Against the background of thousands of years of Chinese history, the last century was in some ways merely a comma. But from a larger perspective, it was nothing short of an exclamation mark, as it has been 100 years of struggle; 100 years of experimentation and 100 years of education before a people learned that they too have the unequivocal rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This nation-building process undoubtedly was achieved through the collective efforts of countless dedicated individuals who traversed between tradition and modernity that helped bridge the East to the West so many years ago. Inevitably, this made it possible for a people to aspire to the same democratic values as you cherish. From the chaos arising out of the turn of the 20th century, to the founding of the first republic in Asia in 1912 and its evolution forward in 1949 when the Republic of China Government moved to Taiwan, in 1987 when Taiwan lifted martial law, launched its democratic transformation, and subsequently allowed Taiwan residents to visit their relatives on the mainland, in 1996 when people on Taiwan directly elected its president for the first time, and in 2000 and 2008 when the presidential elections further consolidated Taiwan's democracy through two rotations of power between political parties, the passage of these 100 years has irrevocably transformed the foundations of a political culture. Distinguished faculty members and students, ladies and gentlemen, as the elected president of the Republic of China, I will continue to strive toward forging Taiwan into an exemplary democracy; one that will be a source of inspiration and emulation for generations to come.

Thank you.

Dear distinguished faculty, students and friends; it is my great pleasure to hold this teleconference with you. Your questions and comments are very good, and some are very tough to answer, but in thinking and answering these questions you force me to think deeper and strive harder on the challenges that confront the road ahead.

Although today's conference is near an end, I am heartened by the thought that our friendship will continue to grow as there is still so much we need to do, together. The international system that the US forged out of the devastation of World War II 65 years ago has today become the enduring foundation of our global village. Being rule-based and sufficiently flexible, this system encourages positive-sum international cooperation rather than zero-sum inter-state conflict. Hence, it changed the underlying dynamics of the world order that made it possible for countries, big or small, to prosper together. As a matter of fact, my idea to seek rapprochement with the mainland find some similarities with the ideas espoused by the American leaders in having soft talks with the Soviet Union and to have détente. In other words, to replace confrontation with negotiations; to solve international disputes through peaceful means. It is this very system that has interlocked the world into a community of thriving interdependence, giving rise to the possibility where foes can turn into friends, where every country can be a winner and every contribution become part of a greater picture.

This is also the system from which I draw my inspiration to lead my country, particularly in dealing with the mainland. In taking a responsible stake in the world, and in seeking rapprochement with the Chinese mainland, my administration has committed the Republic of China on Taiwan to becoming a dependable and valuable contributor to this international system. In my visit abroad last month, I kept saying to our friends or to the overseas Taiwanese and to members of my delegations, that what I tried to do as far as my country's foreign relations is concerned is to make Taiwan a respectable member of the international community. I want every Taiwanese when they walk in the streets of New York, of Paris, of Sydney, of Beijing that they are respected. People will say they are from Taiwan, and that Taiwan is a respectful country in the world. Some in my domestic audience may disagree with me, but I firmly believe that this is the right path for Taiwan to avoid being marginalized from the forward march of the rest of the world. However, we will not merely concentrate on our own interests but equally apply our resources in hopes of having a positive impact on the world community. In fact, under this system that the United States started over half a century ago, we, as a whole, ought to be able to right what has gone wrong; to unite as one humanity against the global crises that threatens all that we hold dear, whether climate change, the global economic downturn, the risk of pandemics, or the wars that endanger the peace of our world. In the end, we are the only ones that can overcome the challenges we face. And in such an important partnership, I am confident Taiwan will be there to live up to its responsibilities.

THE CONGRESSIONAL YOUTH ADVISORY COUNCIL: A LEGACY OF SERVICE

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Madam Speaker, I ask my fellow colleagues to join me in congratulating the 2009–2010 Congressional Youth Advisory Council. This year 45 students from public, private, and home schools in grades 9 through 12 made their voices heard and made a difference in their communities, their country and their Congress. These students volunteered their time, effort, and talent to inform me about the important issues facing their generation. As young leaders within their communities and their schools, these students boldly represent the promise and the hope we all have for their very bright future.

President Ronald Reagan said, "Freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction. We didn't pass it to our children in the bloodstream. It must be fought for, protected, and handed on for them to do the same, or one day we will spend our sunset years telling our children and our children's children what it was once like in the United States where men were free."

To ensure that the blessing of freedom is passed from one generation to the next, the members of the CYAC spent time interviewing a veteran and documenting the experience for the "Preserving History Project." Today I'm proud to submit the brief summaries provided so the patriotic service of our dedicated veterans and the thoughtful work of the CYAC may be preserved for antiquity in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. A copy of each submitted student summary follows.

To each member of the Congressional Youth Advisory Council, thank you for making this year and this group a success. It is not a coincidence that this congressional tribute celebrates two generations of service. Each of you is trusted with the precious gift of freedom.

You are the voices of the future and I salute you. God bless you and God bless America.

For the Preserving History project, I interviewed my World Geography teacher, Coach Baley. Ryan Patrick Baley served in the U.S. Army as an E4 Specialist in the Infantry. He was gunner for a Bradley crew and also a driver for a first Sergeant. Baley also guarded the DM2 in South Korea. He accomplished his patriotic duty for our country. From this interview, I gained more of an appreciation towards those who serve and risk their lives for our country. This experience allowed me to realize that the soldiers that perform their duty have dedicated so much, so that our nation is ensured protection as well as having the principles we as citizens believe in set forward and fought for. Baley believes that, "the U.S. military organization is the greatest organization and only two have died for others: Jesus and the soldiers of the U.S.A." Hence, there is no other army in the world that resembles the U.S. Army; everyone who serves this patriotic duty deserves a great amount of appreciation from every United States citizen for each individual strength put forward for our country, the United States of America.—Ginu Scaria.

INTRODUCTION OF THE RADIATION EXPOSURE COMPENSATION ACT AMENDMENT OF 2010

HON. BEN RAY LUJÁN

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. LUJÁN. Madam Speaker, I am proud to introduce the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act Amendment of 2010. More than 50 years ago, Americans throughout the Southwest took jobs mining and refining raw uranium. These individuals, looking to provide for their families and creating a stable future for their children, are an important part of the history of the 20th Century and the Cold War. Unfortunately, they were unknowingly endangering their own lives by working in poorly ventilated mine shafts with little to no protective equipment. After they left work, they returned home to their families where their clothes, covered in yellow cake uranium, were washed along with that of their loved ones.

Sadly, the pursuit of the American Dream ended with tragedy for many of the miners exposed to uranium. Many of them fell ill from the radiation they were exposed to at work in the mines. Some people who had never stepped foot in a mine fell victim to the same illnesses due to wind patterns that carried this dangerous source of energy. As these Americans mined for a resource vital to the Nation's security, too many of them made the ultimate sacrifice.

This Congress now has the opportunity to right this wrong. By extending the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act to Americans exposed to radioactive uranium by wind patterns or after the current cutoff in 1971 or those with newly recognized conditions, we can finally come to terms with the dark legacy of America's nuclear policy. Too many RECA claims by my constituents in New Mexico as well as by those throughout the Southwest and in Guam are denied by the government because they lacked documentation from decades before. This legislation makes it easier for people to access the compensation they deserve.

The Americans who worked in uranium mines were serving our Nation every day, but were unaware of the extreme danger they were in. It is time to recognize these heroes of the Cold War and provide them with fair and equitable compensation for their suffering. We can never fully compensate these Americans for what they have lost—there is no compensation for the loss of a loved one. More than 50 years later, too many of these Americans are no longer with us. We have ignored their plight for too long. It is time to correct this long overdue wrong for those still with us.

I encourage my colleagues to consider and support this legislation.

DR. HAROLD A. CARTER, SR.: A LEGACY OF PRINCIPLE AND FAITH

HON. ELLJAH E. CUMMINGS

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. CUMMINGS. Madam Speaker, I rise to honor a great American and true leader—Dr. Harold A. Carter, Sr.

His is a vision and a mission—grounded in the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s—that has compelling importance for our Nation today.

More than a half-century ago, when Dr. Carter was still a young man in Selma, Alabama, Dr. Ralph Abernathy and, then, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., both offered Harold Carter his first opportunities to speak to their congregations as a newly ordained minister.

"I was a young college student and they wanted to give me a boost from the beginning," Dr. Carter observed in a 2005 article written by Mr. Sean Yoes of the Baltimore AFRO American.

Madam Speaker, it was a strong, inspiring and enduring "boost," indeed. This same visionary foundation has inspired Dr. Carter throughout his ministry—both in the mission to proclaim the Gospel to which he had been called and in the "Social Gospel" work of his faith.

This year, Dr. Carter celebrates 45 years as the principal shepherd of Baltimore's New Shiloh Baptist Church.

In his own words, he is above all "a God man," the primary trustee of his congregation's spiritual life.

Yet, at a time when our urban areas are in danger of crumbling under the stress of decades of disinvestment, Dr. Carter and his New Shiloh Congregation also offer the people of Baltimore both hope and a concrete plan for social and economic renewal.

A past leader of Baltimore's chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the local chapter of the Poor People's Campaign, Dr. Carter has readily acknowledged Dr. King's influence upon his vision for community renewal as an integral element of his New Shiloh ministry.

"I learned from him that we have to take responsibility for our condition, whatever that might be," Dr. Carter once observed. "People in power do not concede anything to others freely, so we have to equip ourselves and do for ourselves based on the principles of unconditional love."

Aided by the strength and talents of his wonderful wife, the late Dr. Weptanomah Carter, his son and co-Pastor, Dr. Harold A. Carter, Jr., and a dedicated congregation that has grown to number in the thousands, New Shiloh is, indeed, equipping its community to move forward on empowering principles.

Every day, people from the neighborhood can find inspiration and opportunity in its beautiful church and Family Life Center, its School of Music, Theological Center, Child Development Center and other facilities.

These accomplishments of the congregation's "Social Gospel" mission are important aspects of Dr. Carter's vision—but they are far from the end. Already underway are plans for technical training for the community, a Computer Center, a Senior Center and Senior Housing.

Madam Speaker, it is more appropriate, under our constitutional system, for me to leave it to others to commend Dr. Carter for the other wonderful ministers whom he has trained—including my own minister, Bishop Walter S. Thomas, Sr.

Others are better qualified than I to attest to the lasting importance of Dr. Carter's spiritual writings.

However, I have been honored to serve as a spokesman for the Congressional Black Caucus to our nation's faith communities—and, in that duty, I have gained a thorough understanding of "faith-based initiatives" that are working.

A part of what my teacher and friend, Dr. Harold A. Carter, Sr., has taught me is that the inspiration for "faith-based" programs that work cannot be found in a strategy to transfer public responsibility for greater social equity to the faith centers of our country.

Rather, that motivating force must first arise from the hearts and minds of people of faith themselves.

This, I submit, is why Dr. Harold A. Carter, Sr., should stand as an example for all of our citizenry—whatever our respective faith traditions may be.

This, I believe, is what Dr. Carter means when he speaks of how our local communities must undertake greater responsibility for themselves and their neighbors—and how they must equip themselves for opportunity.

Unlike other "mega-churches" that have left the inner cities of our Nation, New Shiloh Baptist Church has followed Dr. Carter's vision for his congregation.

It has constructed its foundation on an unwavering commitment to the people of our urban community.

As we in government seek to construct a new and more comprehensive "national urban policy," we would do well to take note.

Dr. Carter and his congregation have invested millions of dollars in the New Shiloh Village and surrounding community.

"This is where the people are, and this is where the need is," he has observed. "The wave of Maryland's future development—and the nation's—lies in the [inner] cities."

Madam Speaker, for all of these reasons, I have come before you and this House today to commend to our Nation's attention the vision, wisdom and mission of an inspired man.

During his decades of service, Dr. Harold A. Carter, Sr., has earned our Nation's praise for a lasting legacy of principle and faith.

His is a vision that all Americans would do well to pay heed.

ZANE ERIC CLARK

HON. SAM GRAVES

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. GRAVES. Madam Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Zane Eric Clark. Zane is a very special young man who has exemplified the finest qualities of citizenship and leadership by taking an active part in the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 87, and earning the most prestigious award of Eagle Scout.

Zane has been very active with his troop, participating in many scout activities. Over the decade that Zane has been involved with scouting, he has not only earned numerous merit badges, but also the respect of his family, peers, and community. Most notably, Zane has contributed to his community through his Eagle Scout project. Zane organized and constructed picnic tables and laid down landscaping tiles for the playground area of First Baptist Church of Cameron, Missouri.

Madam Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Zane Eric Clark for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout.

CONGRATULATING CORONA DEL SOL'S 2010 WE THE PEOPLE TEAM

HON. HARRY E. MITCHELL

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. MITCHELL. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize the inspiring performance of Corona del Sol High School in this year's national "We the People" competition. I share the pride from around our Congressional District and the state of Arizona that this impressive and hard-working team hails from our community.

After winning the Arizona state title for the second year in a row, Corona del Sol's "We the People" team advanced to compete for the national title in Washington, D.C. In preparation for the national event, the Corona team spent months diligently learning about American political institutions, democracy and examining the contemporary relevance of the Constitution and Bill of Rights. As a high school government teacher for 28 years, I am gratified to see students delve deeper and become passionate about government, citizenship and public service.

Their poise and eloquence in answering the complex questions asked during the national and state competitions demonstrated the team's vast knowledge of constitutional principles and patience.

I am truly privileged to share in the celebration of such an excellent and driven team. Their commitment and perseverance has paid off and should serve as an inspiration for all. I have no doubt that all members of the team will continue to make Arizona proud in their future endeavors.

Madam Speaker, I am honored to congratulate Corona del Sol's "We the People" team:

Achyut Patil, Ajay Raikhelkar, Alex Austin, Brittany Duong, Cecilia Yocham, Connor Rawls, David Choi, Jentry Lanza, Jessica Lin, Joanna Fritsche, Juliana Park, Kevin Thomas, Kibaek Ryu, Louis Spanias, Marlene Garcia-Neuer, Richa Date, Michael Okada, Nafisah Ahmad, Nikhita Pakki, Rizwan Ahmad, Robert Wiley, Roopa Krishnaswamy, Sagar Patwardhan, Samantha Pfothenauer, Sean Magruder, Selena Kuo, Sherry Zhao, Tiffany Dayton, Tina Cai and Xandy Peterson.

TRIBUTE TO MR. ROLAND KELL ON THE OCCASION OF HIS RETIREMENT AS GENERAL MANAGER OF CHEVRON'S PASCAGOULA REFINERY

HON. GENE TAYLOR

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. TAYLOR. Madam Speaker, today I would like to pay tribute to Mr. Roland Kell on his retirement with thirty-eight years of service within the oil industry and to his ongoing support of the State of Mississippi.

He began his career at Gulf Oil's Milford Haven Refinery in 1972 filling various roles including technical services, planning and economics and operations supervision, transferring in the late 1970s to Gulf Oil's U.S. operation.

Roland was then assigned to Pembroke Cracking Company, a partnership between Texaco Limited and Gulf Oil (Great Britain) Limited, where he supervised various commissioning activities. This assignment was followed by an appointment as Manager, Operations, Pembroke Cracking Company, prior to joining Texaco as General Manager, Pembroke Cracking Company.

Roland Kell was appointed to his current position, General Manager, Chevron's Pascagoula Refinery, in July 2002. Before coming to Pascagoula, Roland served as the Vice-President of ChevronTexaco's Europe and West Africa manufacturing, supply and trading business. From 1997–2001 he was General Manager of ChevronTexaco's Pembroke Refinery in Wales.

Following the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina in 2005, Chevron under Roland's leadership was recognized as one of the driving forces that formed partnerships with the local communities and State to help ensure successful recovery paths. While under his direction, Chevron's Pascagoula Refinery has secured approval and commenced construction of various major expansions that have employed thousands from across the States of Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana.

In Jackson County, Roland serves on the board of directors of the Jackson County Economic Development Foundation. He is a member of the Gulf Coast Business Council and the Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College District Workforce Council. On the State level, he serves on the State Workforce Investment Board. He also serves on the Industrial Advisory Board for the University of South Alabama College of Engineering.

Roland graduated from Leeds University, UK, in 1972 with an Honours Degree in Chemical Engineering and is a Chartered Engineer and a Member of the Institute of Chemical Engineers.

A native of Great Britain, Roland currently resides in Pascagoula. He has two grown children and enjoys travelling and meeting people of different cultures.

I congratulate Roland on his retirement and thank him for his diligent service to the energy industry, particularly in the great State of Mississippi. May he have many joyous days to pursue his personal hobbies and interests!

COMMEMORATING THE 95TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. COSTELLO. Madam Speaker, yesterday I had the distinct pleasure of attending a memorial service at St. Gregory the Illuminator Church in Granite City, Illinois, to commemorate the 95th Anniversary of the Armenian Genocide. It was a very moving event and I want to thank the parishioners at St. Gregory's for their hospitality, friendship and tremendous contributions to our region. I stand with them in affirming that the Armenian Genocide was genocide, and I continue to support this formal recognition by the United States. I have again cosponsored legislation, H. Res. 252, that would take this step and I urge House leadership to bring it up for consideration this year.

I fully understand the concern that this action brings with it. Despite the clear historical record, the general agreement among genocide scholars and the recognition of this event as genocide by 20 other countries, we continue to be told that our relationship with Turkey will be irrevocably harmed by endorsing this position. I support and appreciate our relationship with Turkey, and am certain it will continue to prosper in the future. Moreover, I believe recognizing the Armenian Genocide will allow the delicate relationship between Armenia and Turkey to grow ultimately stronger. I do not advocate taking this action as a means of discrediting the Turkish people. It is simply recognition that this tragic event occurred, and it honors the fate of the 1.5 million Armenians who died as well as the great resiliency of the Armenian people. Our inaction on this matter lets no one move forward, and sends the message that we will ignore accepted truths for political purposes.

Madam Speaker, there will never be a convenient time to officially recognize the Armenian Genocide. But there is never a wrong time to do the right thing. In this case, the truth will indeed set us free and allow us to grow deeper bonds with Turkey and Armenia, together, in the decades ahead. Let us not wait any longer.

REGARDING H. RES. 1193, H. RES. 1220, H. RES. 1255, AND H. RES. 1287

HON. ZOE LOFGREN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Ms. ZOE LOFGREN of California. Madam Speaker, I rise along with my colleague Congressman BONNER to provide, pursuant to Rule 7(g) of the Rules of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, a statement of the Chair and Ranking Republican Member regarding H. Res. 1193, H. Res. 1220, H. Res. 1255, and H. Res. 1287.

The House has referred H. Res. 1193, H. Res. 1220, H. Res. 1255, and H. Res. 1287 to the Committee for its consideration. We acknowledge the referral of those resolutions. If adopted, the resolutions would have required the Committee to report to the House regarding aspects of its investigation "In the Matter of Allegations Relating to the Lobbying Activities of Paul Magliocchetti and Associates Group, Inc. (PMA)." Although the resolutions were not adopted, we are responding to expand further upon the Committee's previous public statements regarding its investigation in this matter.

The outside Office of Congressional Ethics, OCE, after investigation, concluded that matters for five Members regarding the PMA matter should be dismissed. After review, the Committee concurred with the outside ethics office. The Committee concluded that the matters of two other Members should also be dismissed because the facts regarding those Members' actions were not different from those of the five Members for whom both the Committee and OCE concluded dismissal was appropriate. The Committee's action to date does not preclude future Committee action related to these matters should new information warranting action become available.

The Committee publicly released a 305-page report that discusses the scope of the Committee's work in the PMA matter, as well as the basis for the Committee's bipartisan and unanimous conclusions. This report is available to the House and the public on the Committee's Web site, at <http://ethics.house.gov/>. As noted in that report, the Committee's investigation during a nine-month period included extensive document reviews and interviews with numerous witnesses. As a result of its own investigation and OCE's seven separate reports and findings, the Committee—whose Members include equal numbers of Democrats and Republicans—unanimously determined that the evidence presently before the Committee merited dismissal of all seven matters.

The information reviewed by the Committee included statements from all seven Members. Summaries of interviews with five Members were included in OCE's findings, which the Committee chose to publish. Since the Committee agreed with OCE's recommendation that those five matters should be dismissed, the Committee was not required to publish any statement or OCE's reports and findings in those matters, but did so because of the unique circumstances of this matter and in the interests of public disclosure and transparency.

In addition, the Committee sought statements from Representatives TIAHRT and VIS-CLOSKY to respond specifically to allegations about their conduct. Both Members provided the Committee with statements through counsel, and the Members certified under penalty of perjury to the truth of those statements. Both statements are available, in their entirety, in the Committee's public report. Based in part on those statements, the Committee found no evidence to conclude that the facts regarding Representatives TIAHRT and VIS-CLOSKY differed substantially from the facts regarding the other five Members—for whom both the Committee and OCE recommended dismissal. Accordingly, the Committee concluded that the matters of the two other Members should also be dismissed.

In reaching its unanimous conclusion, the Committee relied not only on the findings provided by OCE, but its own investigation. During the course of its investigation in this matter, the Committee's staff reviewed close to one-quarter of a million pages of documents. The Committee investigation covered more than 40 companies with ties to PMA. OCE's findings included summaries of interviews with five Members' offices. The Committee investigation included interviews with 33 Members' offices. The Committee investigation involved interviews with chiefs of staff, military legislative aides, other Members' staff, and Appropriations Committee staff. In reaching its conclusions, the Committee relied on the totality of this large magnitude of information.

As in other investigations, although the Committee has discussed in general terms the scope of its investigation, it did not address more specific details of various investigative steps taken by the Committee. To do so would compromise the investigative capabilities of the Committee in this and future matters by chilling voluntary cooperation. Requiring the disclosure of the details of any investigative body's activities would damage its ability to conduct its activities. Ethics investigations, in particular, rely not only upon subpoenas, but upon voluntary cooperation. Success in such an investigation usually comes because people connected to the matter choose to cooperate with the investigators and volunteer information. In many cases, their decision to cooperate is based, in part, on their belief that their identity or the details of their cooperation will not be publicly disclosed.

Moreover, disclosing specific investigative steps taken in the PMA matter could compromise any ongoing criminal investigations; harm the ability of the Committee to investigate any additional allegations of wrongdoing in this or related matters; discourage those who might bring credible allegations to the Committee in the future from doing so; and chill the voluntary cooperation of those called before the Committee in various investigations.

Prior to the House referral of the resolutions to the Committee, on February 26, 2010, the Committee unanimously voted to release a public report in the PMA matter. By a unanimous and bipartisan vote, the Committee concluded that, based upon the totality of current information gathered during a nine-month investigation, no House Member or employee violated provisions of the Code of Official Conduct or laws, rules, regulations, or other standards of conduct applicable to his or her conduct in the performance of his or her duties or the discharge of his or her responsibilities relating to proposed appropriations requests and activities of PMA.

In addition, we note that policy decisions—whether about the current appropriations process, including earmarks, or about the campaign finance system—are not within the jurisdiction of the Committee. Whether these policies should be changed is a subject that should be taken up in the appropriate venue.

The task before the Committee in the PMA matter was to determine whether House Members and staff complied with the current law and House rules. In a unanimous and bipartisan manner, the Committee concluded the evidence presently before the Committee merited dismissal of all seven matters. The Committee's action to date does not preclude future Committee action related to these matters should new information warranting action become available.

HONORING JAMES E. LYNCH AND CARLION J. ELDRIDGE

HON. DALE E. KILDEE

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. KILDEE. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Illustrious Potentate Noble James E. Lynch and Illustrious Commandress Daughter Carlion J. Eldridge as they are honored at the 2nd Annual Oman Temple/Oman Court Unity Ball on Saturday, May 1st in Saginaw Michigan.

James E. Lynch Graduated from Sophia High School in Sophia, West Virginia in 1966. He worked for General Motors Buick Motor Division for 39 years as a production worker. Married to the late Crystal Mae Johnson for 34 years, they had four children: Dawn, Felicia, Cassandra and James; and seven grandchildren. James has served as Junior Warden of the John W. Stevenson Lodge Number 56, as a member of the Saginaw Valley Consistory Number 71, and Illustrious Potentate of Oman Temple Number 72 for the year 2010.

Carlion J. Eldridge completed Charles Stewart Mott College Nursing Program and currently works at Maplewood Manor in Clio, Michigan serving the elderly. She is married to James F. Eldridge and their children are: Portia, David, Jamille, Isaac, Laetrlie, Lakshea, Lovell, and Victor. The Oman Temple Number 72 has bestowed the title of Illustrious Commandress Daughter on her for this year.

Madam Speaker, I ask the House of Representatives to rise with me and applaud the charity, enthusiasm and dedication of these two individuals. I pray their year of service to Oman Temple is a tremendous success.

IN RECOGNITION OF CAPTAIN ROBERT R. O'BRIEN JR., COMMANDER OF THE UNITED STATES COAST GUARD SECTOR NEW YORK

HON. JERROLD NADLER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. NADLER of New York. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize and commend Captain Robert R. O'Brien Jr., Commander of the United States Coast Guard Sector New York, on his 40 years of distinguished service.

After leaving a Roman Catholic seminary in 1970, Captain O'Brien chose to enlist in the United States Coast Guard. While enlisted, he served on the USCGC Laurel before joining Group Fort Macon as a small boat coxswain. In 1976, he was assigned as Officer-in-Charge of the USCGC Blackberry at Oak Island, North Carolina. Upon his promotion to Chief Boatswain's Mate in 1979, he was transferred to the largest Aid-to-Navigation Team in the Atlantic Area as the Officer-in-Charge. In 1980, he was again promoted to Chief Warrant Officer as the Commanding Officer of the Aid-to-Navigation Team for the Long Island Sound where he worked to ensure the safety of all nautical vessels by maintaining the integrity of the Long Island Sound's navigation systems.

Captain O'Brien received his commission as Lieutenant in 1983. In 1999, he was assigned to the Marine Safety Office in Memphis, Tennessee as the Commanding Officer. He left for Washington, DC in 2002 to serve as the Coast Guard Liaison to the Navy's Military Sealift Command where he performed a dual role as direct representative of the NMSC and staff member of G-MOC. In 2003, he was promoted to Captain and assumed command of the Marine Safety Office in Hampton Roads before becoming commander of the Sector Hampton Roads in 2005. On June 15, 2006, Captain O'Brien became Commander of Sector New York making him responsible for missions such as search and rescue, law enforcement, maintenance of Aids-to-Navigation, and ship inspections. Most importantly, he worked each and every day to ensure the safety and security of the port and citizens of New York.

Throughout his career, Captain O'Brien has diligently upheld his commitment to the Coast Guardsman's Creed. He is the recipient of multiple Meritorious Service Medals, Coast Guard Commendation Medals, and Coast Guard Commandant's Letter of Commendation Ribbons. He also holds the Coast Guard Cutterman, Surfman, and Coxswain pins as well as the Officer-in-Charge Afloat, Officer-in-Charge Ashore, and Command Ashore insignias.

For 40 years, his leadership and commitment to the Coast Guard have helped to preserve the safety of our Nation's shores.

Madam Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in thanking and congratulating Captain O'Brien on his long and venerable service in the United States Coast Guard.

ON THE OCCASION OF SERGEANT
JENNIFER EVITTS' TRANSFER FROM THE UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS LIAISON OFFICE

HON. GENE TAYLOR

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 26, 2010

Mr. TAYLOR. Madam Speaker, today I recognize and pay tribute to Sergeant Jennifer Evitts, United States Marine Corps, on the occasion of her transfer from the liaison office. I, and many other members of this chamber, have had the pleasure of working with her over the past three years that she has served as part of Headquarters U.S. Marine Corps Office of Legislative Affairs and as the Congressional Liaison Non-Commissioned Officer of the U.S.M.C. Liaison Office in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Sergeant Evitts distinguished herself through exceptional meritorious service while serving as the Non-Commissioned Officer of Legislative Affairs. Every day she served in direct support of not only the Marine Corps Office of Legislative Affairs but in direct support of every member of Congress, every Marine and every American. Her keen abilities in organization, interpersonal relationships, and communication were extremely critical to the successful accomplishment of the Marine Corps Office of Legislative Affairs' mission. Her achievements and ability to get the job done have been understated but always effective and noteworthy. While serving in the Liaison office, Sergeant Evitts was able to develop and execute legislative strategy for the United States Marine Corps that was instrumental in creating a fiscal and policy landscape conducive to training and equipping the Nation's most elite fighting force, ensuring their success on the battlefield. She routinely turned broad guidance into action which energized the Office of Legislative Affairs and members of Congress alike. Her actions allowed the Marine Corps to engage members of Congress and their staffs, directly facilitating the increased emphasis on improving Congressional relationships—a cornerstone of CMC's strategic vision.

The Marine Corps House of Representatives Liaison Office that Sergeant Evitts leaves behind is functional and responsive, highly integrated, and favors a proactive legislative strategy. While leading the House Liaison Office through the extraordinary challenges associated with Operation Enduring Freedom, Operation Iraqi Freedom and the ongoing Global War on Terror, she concurrently ensured that a myriad of daily Congressional communications, taskings and events were executed flawlessly. During Sgt. Evitts' four years as the Non-Commissioned Officer, she accomplished the full spectrum of the Marine Corps' legislative mission. She exemplified the candor and knowledge that we have come to expect from the Marine Corps and she played a key role in maintaining superb relationships between the Marine Corps and the House of Representatives.

Throughout her tour, Sgt. Evitts effectively responded to several thousand congressional inquiries, many of which gained national level attention. During her time on Capitol Hill, Sgt. Evitts successfully planned, coordinated and escorted over 50 international and domestic Congressional and Staff Delegations. Her detailed coordination with foreign government officials, U.S. State Department, and senior military officials ensured that each delegation was conducted professionally. Her attention to detail and anticipation of requirements allowed Representatives to focus on fact-finding and glean new insights that informed critical decisions to support the people of the United States. Due to her professionalism, dedication and keen knowledge, Sgt. Evitts became the most sought after military escort for delegations conducting Congressional travel. The time she has spent supporting Members of the House has been truly noteworthy. She has made lasting contributions to the House of Representatives.

HONORING THE LIFE AND
ACHIEVEMENTS OF REV. BEN-JAMIN LAWSON HOOKS

SPEECH OF

HON. SHEILA JACKSON LEE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, April 20, 2010

Ms. JACKSON LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support H. Res. 1271 "Honoring the life and achievements of Dr. Benjamin Lawson Hooks" introduced by my distinguished colleague from Michigan, Representative CONYERS.

Dr. Benjamin Lawson Hooks was a civil rights leader and served as the Executive Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) from 1977 to 1992. Dr. Hooks graduated with a bachelor's degree from Howard University, a juris doctor degree from DePaul University College of Law, and received an honorary doctorate from Central Connecticut State University. He held professional memberships with the American Bar Association, National Bar Association, Tennessee Bar Association, Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Tennessee Council on Human Relations, and Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc. After passing the Tennessee Bar, he established his own law practice.

Dr. Hooks served as a distinguished adjunct professor for the Political Science Department at the University of Memphis. In 1996, the Benjamin L. Hooks Institute for Social Change was established at the University of Memphis. The Benjamin L. Hooks Institute is a public policy research center supporting the urban research mission, and honoring Hooks' many years of leadership in the American Civil Rights Movement. The Hooks Institute also emphasizes social movements, race relations, strong communities, public education, effective public participation, and social and economic justice.

Dr. Hooks was ordained as a Baptist minister in 1956, and he preached regularly at the Greater Middle Baptist Church in Memphis. He joined the Southern Christian Leadership Conference along with Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Dr. Hooks became a pioneer of NAACP-sponsored restaurant sit-ins and other boycotts of consumer items and services.

In 1965, Dr. Hooks was appointed by Governor Frank G. Clement as the first African American criminal court judge in the Shelby Criminal Court. In 1966, he would later campaign for and win a full term to the same judicial office that he had been appointed to due to a vacancy. In 1972, President Richard Nixon appointed Dr. Hooks to be one of the five commissioners to the Federal Communications Commission, FCC. As a member, he addressed the lack of minority ownership of television and radio stations, the minority employment statistics for the broadcasting industry, and the image of African Americans in mass media. Dr. Hooks served as a producer and host for several local television shows in Memphis.

Dr. Hooks' honors and awards include the NAACP Spingarn Medal for outstanding achievements made by an African American, receiving the Presidential Medal of Freedom from President George W. Bush in November of 2007, and he was inducted into the International Civil Rights Hall of Fame at the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. National Historic Site on January 12, 2008. The Memphis Library Branch is also named in his honor. The NAACP later created the Benjamin L. Hooks Distinguished Service Award, which is awarded to persons for their efforts in implementing policies and programs which promote equal opportunity.

So it is with great pride and admiration that we honor Dr. Benjamin Lawson Hooks as a great civil rights leader, and as a successful businessman, judge, lawyer, and minister. He has fought triumphantly for the rights of African Americans and made great contributions to the African American community.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, April 27, 2010 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.

Congressional Record

printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed one time. ¶Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available through GPO Access at www.gpo.gov/gpoaccess. Customers can also access this information with WAIS client software, via telnet at swais.access.gpo.gov, or dial-in using communications software and a modem at 202-512-1661. Questions or comments regarding this database or GPO Access can be directed to the GPO Access User Support Team at: E-Mail: gpoaccess@gpo.gov; Phone 1-888-293-6498 (toll-free), 202-512-1530 (D.C. area); Fax: 202-512-1262. The Team's hours of availability are Monday through Friday, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, except Federal holidays. ¶The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche edition will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $252.00 for six months, $503.00 per year, or purchased as follows: less than 200 pages, $10.50; between 200 and 400 pages, $21.00; greater than 400 pages, $31.50, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $146.00 per year, or purchased for $3.00 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. To place an order for any of these products, visit the U.S. Government Online Bookstore at: bookstore.gpo.gov. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371954, Pittsburgh, PA 15250-7954, or phone orders to 866-512-1800 (toll free), 202-512-1800 (D.C. area), or fax to 202-512-2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, American Express, or GPO Deposit Account. ¶Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. ¶With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to the Superintendent of Documents, Congressional Record, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, along with the entire mailing label from the last issue received.
