German surgeon general visits AF, Army members

by Airman 1st Class Trevor Rhynes
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The German air force surgeon general (Brig. Gen.) Jörg Binneweis visited various medical assets June 13 on Ramstein.

Binneweis and members of his official party visited Airmen and Soldiers at the Contingency Aeromedical Staging Facility, the 86th Aeromedical Evacuation Squadron and Landstuhl Regional Medical Center.

"I have the opportunity to talk with my American counterparts about the flight surgeon duty and the command here at Ramstein," Binneweis said. "I wanted to learn about how the aeromedical evacuation process works for wounded warriors who come from the Middle East and how they are handled."

Having a distinguished visitor such as Binneweis gives members of Team Ramstein the opportunity to demonstrate their mission.

21st TSC offers support to war fighters during exercise

CAMP ADAZI, Latvia — The 21st Theater Sustainment Command, based in Kaiserslautern, provided the bulk of logistical support for the U.S. Army Europe-led, multinational training exercise Saber Strike 2012, which took place here and ended today.

They provided a wide variety of expert and professional logistics support needed to meet the demands of a field training exercise with about 1,300 participating soldiers from five different partner nations.

The 21st TSC deployed much of its Special Troops Battalion along with functional providers from several other subordinate units to Camp Adazi, Latvia, to run the operational element, known as the mayor cell, for Saber Strike, accomplishing that formidable task. With nearly 60 Soldiers working around-the-clock in the mayor cell, the 21st TSC assisted in the exercise by providing or coordinating everything dealing with life support from fuel, ammo, communications, rations and transportation to laundry services, billeting, finance, maintenance and medical support to more than 550 service members from more than 10 different military units, including Army, Air Force and Marines.

"The mission of the 21st TSC here is to provide all the logistical support to the service members who are participating in Exercise Saber Strike 2012," said Capt. Eunice H. Sorrell,

Managing risks of an everyday AF life

by Capt. Heather Tevebaugh
86th Aerospace Medicine
Squadron

Is risk management simply a required checklist to complete before performing your duties? Something to cover the basics? What about RM and your off-duty activities? The fact that the Air Force loses more Airmen to off-duty mishaps compared to on-duty warrants a look at what we do every day that puts us at risk.

As the dreary spring weather gives way to summer, we're all ready to get out, fire up the barbecue, travel and spend time outdoors. However, summertime is a time when safety professionals hold their breath — not because of increased operations, deployments or longer shifts, but because of what you do off duty. No doubt you've had many long-weekend safety briefings, and while those events are good for sharing information, warnings, etc., the most influential way to foster a 24/7 safety mindset results from conversations within your work area and with your family.

The idea of talking about safety outside of a mandatory briefing never hit home until my previous assignment with 15 years of service. My flight commander found creative ways to make it personal and to get us to think about what we do every day and the risks associated. We had the required briefings for high-interest items and long weekends, but here's where he made an impact: Instead of long lectures filled with stats, he asked each of us to identify our weekend activity with the highest risk. He then asked us to give the risks or hazards associated with that event and ways to mitigate, or reduce, the level of risk.

I don't think any of us were surprised when someone mentioned activities including kayaking, nights out at the club or skydiving as presenting multiple risks. But for me, I am a mom of teenagers. My off-duty time happily revolves around transporting them to sporting, acting and social events. I never saw this as risky until the day we talked about it. So, what's the high risk associated with transporting my kids to these every day events?

A quick survey of fiscal year 2012 statistics reveals that driving is indeed dangerous. We've lost eight Airmen in car accidents so far this year — everyone was part of our Air Force team and loved by family; they're irreplaceable. This new perspective on how I identified risk transformed something as routine as driving a car into a potential high-risk activity with serious consequences.

What remained was to mitigate, or reduce, my risk associated with driving. Simple things like being well rested, staying off the cell phone and keeping my car clean to prevent flying debris in an accident help reduce risk. Seat belts are required for all passengers, regardless how short the ride. A well-maintained vehicle, quality tires and at least a half of tank of gas all reduce my risk of a breakdown or being stranded on the road.

Simple enough, right? Yet, we lost an Airman this year who was struck by a car while changing his tire.

RM is more than a quick mandatory briefing or required checklist, and we should never forget our off-duty activities.

What is it that you do that poses a risk? Mowing the yard, crafts, working out, do-it-yourself projects around the house, etc.? Take time to discuss the risks and ways to mitigate them with your supervisor, co-workers and never forget with your family. To be forewarned is to be forearmed. Be prepared with a 24/7 safety mindset as you head out to enjoy the wonderful summer weather. Make it your goal to enjoy a fun, safe 2012 with no regrets.

Maj. Gen. Noel T. Jones officially assumed his new position as the U.S. Air Forces in Europe vice commander today on Ramstein.

Jones has been selected for promotion and will pin on the rank of lieutenant general in August.

"It is a privilege and an honor to be selected as the vice commander for USAFE," Jones said. "I look forward to working with the men and women of USAFE as well as our NATO and African partners."

Jones came to USAFE from Washington where he was the director, Operational Capability Requirements, deputy chief of staff for Operations, Plans and Requirements, Headquarters U.S. Air Force.

In this position he was responsible for supporting major commands in developing and evaluating requirements for Air Force-wide modernization programs, including fighters, bombers, mobility aircraft, space systems, command and control, munitions, missile defense, and Air Force irregular warfare requirements.

“We’re thrilled to have him here, we touched on various agencies who have diverse missions,” said Col. Jay Neubauer, U.S. Air Forces in Europe command surgeon. “We highlighted our aeromedical evacuation process and wounded warrior care, which are mutual items of interest.”

For Binneweis, this tour offers him the chance to discuss hot topics with another medical community.

“You can tell our communities have a good relationship because of our interaction at the medical conference held here in the spring,” he said. “At this conference, we discuss the latest issues and how to solve them or propose different ideas.”

Neubauer hopes hosting this tour builds ties with other medical groups.

“This visit should lead to kindling a better relationship between the medical community in the German air force and the medical forces in Europe,” Neubauer said. “This opportunity leads to further networking between the medical community in the German air force and the (American) medical forces in Europe.”

the company commander of the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 21st STB. “It’s an incredible feeling to know that because of our support, the U.S. forces that we’re providing logistics for can go out and train and take part in training without any worries that they are taken care of with all their life support needs.”

Another capability that the 21st TSC provided was real-world security analysis and force protection measures.

Force protection’s job was to ensure U.S. forces and military equipment were secure and to ensure personnel were aware of their surroundings and the threat level in the local areas.

“Our job here is important because all the military assets here are far away from their home stations, regardless of whether we live in the states or in Germany,” said Staff Sgt. David P. Miller, the force protection and antiterrorism noncommissioned officer for the exercise control cell. “We don’t want service members getting complacent and expecting things to be the same as they are at their home bases, so it is our job to ensure that proper security measures are taken and force protection procedures are implemented.”

“I think taking part in this exercise is a great opportunity and it’s good to see all the nations come together and train with one goal in mind — making our world a safer place,” Miller said. “And I am glad to be able to do my job and in-turn, keep them safe while they train.”

In order to plan for an exercise of this stature, the 21st TSC started preparing for it more than three months in advance. Three weeks prior to the mission, meetings were held two times and, in some cases, three times a week to ensure everyone was participating and on the same page.

The 21st TSC started deploying its support personnel May 31, prior to the exercise beginning June 11. They remained in Latvia well after the exercise end date.

“I think that the Soldiers here have done an outstanding job supporting our warfighters while they train,” said Sgt. 1st Class David M. Miron, an electronic maintenance supervisor for the 21st STB. “I’m proud of each and every one of them and it’s because of our support personnel that this mission is a success.”

Saber Strike 2012 is a multinational, tactical field training exercise that involves more than 2,000 personnel from the U.S. Army’s 2nd Cavalry Regiment; Pennsylvania National Guard; 21st Theater Sustainment Command; 4th U.S. Marine Division; the 127th Wing of the Michigan Air National Guard; Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian armed forces; and contingents from Canada, Finland, France and the U.K.

The exercise, led by USAREUR, is designed to enhance joint and combined interoperability between the U.S. Army and partner nations.

It also aims to help prepare participants to operate successfully in a joint, multinational, interagency, integrated environment.

In addition, the general was director, Strategic Plans and Assessment, U.S. Forces-Iraq, U.S. Central Command and held staff assignments at North American Aerospace Defense Command, Air Combat Command and the National Security Agency.

He is a command pilot with more than 3,500 flying hours, primarily in the F-16, including combat sorties over Iraq in operations Southern Watch, Desert Fox and Iraqi Freedom.

The major decorations Jones holds include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Defense Superior Service Medal with oak leaf cluster, the Legion of Merit with oak leaf cluster and the Bronze Star.

AF captain leads Normandy 'invasion'

Staff Sgt. Travis Edwards
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Timing, precision, guts and excellence — this is the mission commander, someone who takes more than 100 men and women from their home station and drops them on a foreign piece of land with one main mission: getting the aircraft and people to the right places at the right times.

One captain, who has been on four off-station training exercises and worked his first mission commander job at an air drop in Romania, was about to get his will tested when he was hand-selected to be the mission commander for the highly complex, multi-aircraft air drop and flyover above the beaches and towns of Normandy, France.

"Leadership is easy when you are leading great Airmen," said Capt. Dan Walton, 86th Airlift Wing executive officer, C-130J Super Hercules evaluator pilot and mission commander for the air component of the 68th commemoration of the D-Day drops in Normandy. "I had the opportunity to work with some exceptional Airmen from the 86th Airlift Wing and 435th Contingency Response Group. We led the airborne operations for the entire Air Force team, including Reserve, National Guard and international players."

The mission commander is in charge of creating timelines, procuring aircraft and personnel, and ensuring the success of the overall mission. When it came down to execution, Walton said if not for the support around him, the mission would have failed.

"The devil is in the details — It's easy to remember the big rocks," Walton said about the huge tasks and actions they had to execute. "It's the small ones that are harder to nail down. Every item needs to be accomplished, they all need coordination and someone to accomplish them, and they can all trip you up."

But the time and effort everyone put into the OST beforehand, he said, was for only one purpose: to make the mission easier for everyone.

"I always attack these command positions by putting myself in the role of the user. What would I want or need to make my life easier as aircrew flying in, a maintainer turning wrenches or even what kind of information, support or tools would I need that would be helpful to get the job done in a strange, unfamiliar place?" he said.

To pull off such a feat, Walton worked at least 12-hour days through the month before the kick-off of the OST.

"Captain Walton worked for almost an entire year to make this year's D-Day anniversary event happen," said Lt. Col. Matthew Wehner, who was the 37th Airlift Squadron director of operations at the time of the air drop. "As is his standard, he pulled it off in an outstanding fashion, fitting of a 37th (Airlift Squadron) Bluetail Warrior."

Due to the complex nature of planning a seven-day training scenario, Walton said he employed the help of Capt. David "Milo" Milodragovich, an instructor pilot with the 37th AS, Staff Sgt. Marie Gamache, 435th Contingency Response Group security forces detail in charge of keeping all Air Force and other multinational aircraft safe, and a host of Airmen within the 86th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron and the 435th CRG.

Milodragovich was in charge of all 37th AS assets and was second in charge of the formation air drop. His aircraft also housed the Army's "Golden Knights," an elite group of demonstration and competition parachute teams, who jumped out of the C-130J from about 12,500 feet.

"I couldn't have done it without the help of everyone else, including Milo," said Walton, who is pushing eight years in the Air Force. "He and Staff Sergeant Gamache were amazing assets for the whole team when it came to execution."

The culmination of all the paperwork, coordination, support and aircraft came together in the end when three C-130Js, three Air Force Reserve command C-130s, one Air National Guard C-130, a special operations cargo aircraft and a German Transall C-160 together dropped more than 120 parachutists onto the fields of Normandy.

"It was amazing, flying the same route and wearing the same patch as the brave men who went before us on the original D-Day mission and to see the plan come together after all the hours of preparation," Walton said. "We knocked it out of the park and I am truly proud our team made it happen."

ROSC gives back to KMC through bazaar

by Senior Airman Katherine Holt
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

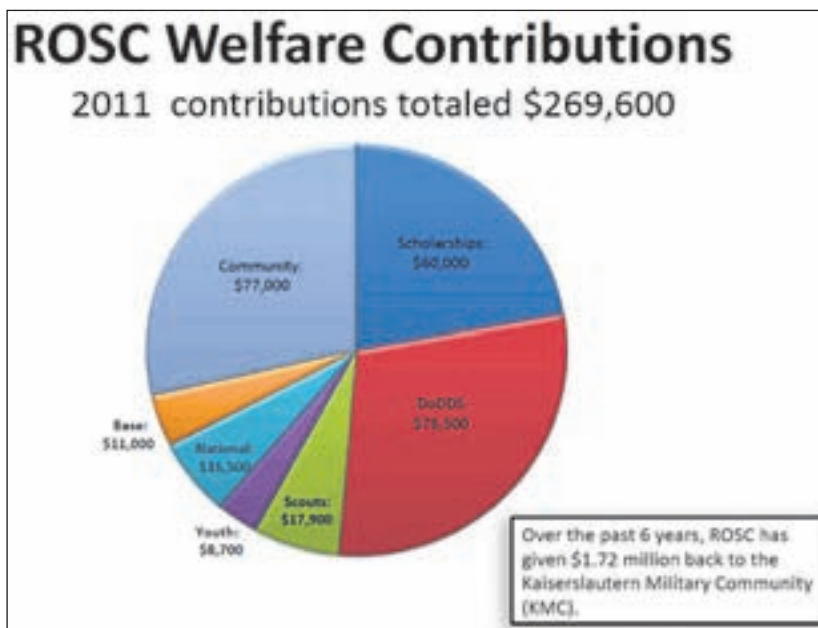

For more than 50 years the Ramstein Officers' Spouses Club has given back to Ramstein and the KMC.

In the past six years, the ROSC has given back more than $1.75 million in scholarships, welfare grants and charitable donations.

"Our No. 1 goal is to touch and affect, in a positive way, as many people and groups in the KMC area," said ROSC president Trish Dotson. "The way we do that is with our Ramstein Welfare Bazaar."

The ROSC donated $269,600 to various organizations in the KMC, along with proceeds from the 2011 Ramstein Welfare Bazaar, including Department of Defense Dependent Schools, community programs, base organizations, youth sports and scouting programs, Air Force Village, Air Force Aid Society, and scholarships for spouses and dependents.

"Last year the bazaar brought in $1.98 million in sales," said Cheryl Price, Ramstein Welfare Bazaar chair. "After all vendors and expenses were paid, nearly $271,000 was left over for the ROSC which unteers are essential to making everything run smooth.

"It takes many people to make this week-long event possible," Price said. "In 2011, 19,723 hours were volunteered from the bazaar committee and other helping organizations. During the bazaar alone, 15,824 hours were volunteered."

The bazaar already has 140 vendors from various countries and 25 food booths from local booster clubs and service groups scheduled to participate in this year's bazaar Sept. 13 to 16.

"Our goal this year is to break $2 million," said Price. "All of the hard work we put in pays off when we get to see the end result."

Part of seeing that outcome is having the opportunity to give spouses and dependents the opportunity to further their education through scholarships.

"We partnered with the Kaiserslautern Landstuhl Spouses Association and the Ramstein Enlisted Spouses' Association to present 70 scholarships totaling $102,000," Dotson said. "We do it for the people. We are a support group, not just for our spouses, but for the entire KMC."

we, in turn, gave out."

Price said booster clubs and private organizations also benefitted from the bazaar, raising more than $150,000.

"The ROSC does great work for Airmen and their families here," said ROSC member Jodie Hyde.

Lt. Gen. Craig Franklin, 3rd Air Force commander, gives command of the 603rd Air and Space Operations Center to Col. Jeffrey Marker during a change of command ceremony Tuesday on Ramstein. The 603rd AOC is the only Air Force unit of its kind that supports two geographic combatant commands. Made up of 500 Airmen, Soldiers, Sailors and coalition partners, the 603rd AOC provides command and control of airpower in the U.S. European and U.S. Africa Commands' areas of responsibility.

Air, space ops continue as leadership changes

by Master Sgt. Brian Bahret
3rd Air Force Public Affairs

As its Airmen maintained their 24-hour vigil at their terminals while ensuring a constant overwatch of air and space operations over Europe and Africa, the 603rd Air and Space Operations Center changed its leadership in a ceremony Tuesday at Ramstein's Hangar 1.

Col. Jeffrey Marker, 603rd AOC commander, took command of the unit from Col. Peter Davey, who will become the NATO Allied Air Command director of staff.

Made up of 500 U.S. Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and coalition partners, the AOC provides command and control of air and space power in the U.S. European Command's and the U.S. Africa Command's areas of responsibility.

Before presenting the Legion of Merit to Davey, Lt. Gen. Craig Franklin, 3rd Air Force commander, acknowledged many of Davey's significant accomplishments: he integrated 12 nations into the AOC within 48 hours as Operation Odyssey Dawn began; he led the transition from U.S.- led to NATO-led operations, called Operation Unified Protector; he relocated the 603rd into its new state-of-the-art facility; and he merged the 617th AOC with the 603rd, making the 603rd the only AOC to report to two combatant commands.

Davey attributed his successes to the team.

"You've dreamed big and achieved more," Davey said as he addressed the 300 people attending the ceremony. "You've impressed me and amazed the senior leadership; you have furthered operational command and control to unparalleled heights. You have met every milestone from the president of the United States on down — advanced ballistic missile defense, supported the war on terror and provided unrivaled support to those in need.

"It has been my deepest honor and pleasure to serve as your commander," he continued.

Franklin, who presided over the ceremony, thanked Davey for his commitment and his leadership.

"He's cool, calm and collected even under the most strenuous circumstances ... and, that leadership has been crucial," Franklin said. "I'm proud of you and everything you've accomplished with the Wolfhounds."

Embracing the future, Franklin welcomed Marker as commander of the 603rd AOC. Marker's previous assignment was the director of operations for U.S. Air Forces Central Command at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C.

"We look forward to your leadership and the next level you'll take the AOC to in the next two years," Franklin said. "The Airmen here are the heart and soul of the AOC. There's a lot of great equipment, but it's the Airmen, Soldiers and Sailors who make it run, and they're also our greatest future for our forces."

Marker, a master navigator with 2,400 hours, said he was humbled to lead the 603rd AOC.

"You have a reputation worldwide as an exceptional organization and the model air and space operations center," Marker said. "You are the warriors that make the mission happen, every day, 24 hours a day ... without fail. You have done so with extraordinary class, professionalism and an acknowledged warrior ethos. Well done."

He said his goal is to continue executing the mission while integrating new technologies and capabilities.

"We will continue to strive to be the recognized leaders in joint and allied command and control integration," Marker said. "We will focus on integrating all aspects of our joint air, space and cyber power to defend the national interests of the United States and our allies throughout Europe and Africa."

The Boise, Idaho, native said interoperability with coalition partners will help the 603rd maximize its capabilities across the full spectrum of operations from humanitarian relief to counter-terrorism to major combat operations.

"I see it as my duty," he said, "to ensure you have the vision, guidance and resources necessary to continue to carry out our mission in the same manner ... and to strive to even newer heights."

Marker said by employing a comprehensive training regime, the 603rd will be able "to execute, unimpeded, under any conditions, circumstances or operating environment, and we will do so with the service, integrity and excellence expected of all Air Force Airmen."

521st AMOW greets new command chief

by Airman 1st Class Hailey Haux
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The 521st Air Mobility Operations Wing welcomed its new command chief, Chief Master Sgt. Gay L.C. Veale, last month.

Veale represents the wing's highest enlisted level of leadership and represents all Airmen to wing leadership. She serves as the personal adviser to the commander on all issues regarding the welfare, readiness, proper utilization and progress of the enlisted force within the 521st AMOW.

Veale recently sat down with Ramstein public affairs to talk about her views on the 521st AMOW's role in the Air Force mission, education and the things that shape her as a person.

What does it mean to you to become the new 521st Air Mobility Operations Wing command chief?

Being a command chief for any wing is a huge honor and a privilege. It's an honor to serve our Airmen and to be able to use my experiences to serve the Airmen of the world's greatest Air Force.

This wing in particular is really cool for me because I was assigned to one of the squadrons before the unit became a wing. From 2003 to 2006, I was assigned to the 727th Air Mobility Squadron at Royal Air Force Mildenhall, U.K. To find out that "I can assure you, leaders notice. The recipients of your efforts notice, whether it's resupplying warfighters, delivering much needed aid to victims of natural disasters, providing aeromedical evacuation for a wounded warrior, or enabling aerial refueling of military aircraft.

— Chief Master Sgt. Gay L.C. Veale

Chief Master Sgt. Gay L.C. Veale

I was selected to be the command chief of this wing, I was floored!

What are some of the most important priorities and goals you plan to achieve over the next couple of years?

My priorities are my commander's priorities. For me, in the role of command chief, it is to remove barriers, accomplish the mission and to take care of our Airmen. That's my priority, to make sure Airmen have the tools, equipment, resources, man power and anything that is in my control or anything that I can influence that is in someone else's control, to make their job easier or more efficient to complete our mission.

How do you see the 521st AMOW's role in the sphere of the Air Force influence?

We provide en route services — aircraft maintenance, aerial port and command and control — in Europe, Southwest and Central Asia, and Northern Africa. Our wing has personnel spread across 19 bases in 13 different countries. But we come together every day as a team to enable AMC's mission in those areas to move safer, faster and more efficiently.

Do you have any recommendations on success for young Airmen?

I always tell our Airmen to exceed the standard. Do your job and do it well and great things will come to you. I have never complained about a job that I have had. I always just take the job that I have and do it better than anyone else and that has always served me very well in my career.

What is one of the highlights of your career?

Getting the opportunity to attend the U.S. Navy's Senior Enlisted Academy at Naval Station Newport, R.I. Not only did I get to learn about and experience the culture of a sister service, but I also got an inside peek at the Navy's Chiefs' Mess.

The Chiefs' Mess is the Navy's version of our Top 3 and is a very close-knit group that is highly respected throughout the Navy. Additionally, we got to visit the USS Constitution in Boston and spend three days at their basic training in Great Lakes, Ill. It was simply an amazing experience all around.

Are there any instances in your past that have helped mold you into the person you are today?

Every single mistake I have made has helped me learn and made me the Airman I am today. Some people see mistakes as failures, but I think of them as learning experiences. I have made plenty, I'm not perfect, but I have learned a lot more from my mistakes than my successes.

"I am overjoyed to be a part of this wing and this organization," Veale said. "I am amazed and proud of what you (our Airmen) do every day."

She said it is easy to get focused on the tasks at hand — fixing an aircraft, moving a pallet, assisting a passenger or providing en route aircrew support.

"I can assure you, leaders notice," she said. "The recipients of your efforts notice, whether it's resupplying warfighters, delivering much needed aid to victims of natural disasters, providing aeromedical evacuation for a wounded warrior, or enabling aerial refueling of military aircraft. Thank you for executing the mission safely and efficiently, every day. I'm lucky to be a part of this team."

Ramstein blood drive keeps hearts pumping

Tech. Sgt. Chad Thompson
86th Airlift Wing
Public Affairs

Airmen from the 86th Vehicle Readiness Squadron sponsored a blood drive Tuesday at Hercules Theater.

Mike Peacock, Armed Services Blood Program recruiter for Europe, said these unit-run blood drives are very important for the blood collections here in Germany.

“On average each unit collects about 30 units of blood,” he said. And depending on the unit, the competition can get a little heated.

Peacock said the 86th VRS, 76th Airlift Squadron and 86th Operations Support Squadron are the units leading the charge when it comes to these unit-run blood drives, and each unit’s method is a little different.

“VRS likes to do their drives at the Hercules Theater so it’s close to their office,” he said. “Where the 76th (AS) holds their drives at the (base exchange) and uses volunteers from their units to collect as much blood as they can. Each unit has different needs and we try and fulfill those needs.”

In general, to donate blood someone should weigh at least 110 pounds, be at least 17 years of age, have been feeling well for at least three days, be well hydrated, and have eaten something prior to donating.

There are some travel restrictions that may also apply, but that doesn’t mean someone can’t still help out with the process.

Peacock said one of the best ways someone can help is to volunteer, or in this case, host a blood drive.

“I’m really humbled by the fact that these (Airmen) take the time to do this,” he said.

For one member who stopped in to donate, helping those in need is what the military community is all about.

“It’s good to do your part,” said Staff Sgt. Charles Smith, 86th Airlift Wing unit deployment manager. “I like to give back and be able to help those in need.”

Donations such as this can save a service member injured in action, child with cancer or possibly even a family member in need of surgery.

For those interested in running their own blood drive, call Armed Services Blood Program at 487-6497 or 06371-86-6497 or visit <http://www.militaryblood.dod.mil> for more information.

To schedule to donate online, visit <http://www.militarydonor.com>.

President Obama honors outstanding teachers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Obama recently named 97 mathematics and science teachers as recipients of the prestigious Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching. The educators will receive their awards in Washington, D.C., later this month.

Among those honored for the Department of Defense Education Activity was Spencer Bean, a math teacher in Baumholder who is being transferred to Ramstein High School in the fall.

The Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching is awarded annually to outstanding K-12 science and mathematics teachers from across the country.

The winners are selected by a panel of distinguished scientists, mathematicians and educators following an initial selection process done at the state level. Each year the award alternates between teachers teaching kindergarten through sixth grade and those teaching seventh through 12th grade. The 2011 awardees named today teach seventh through 12th grade.

Winners of this presidential honor receive a $10,000 award from the National Science Foundation to be used at their discretion. They also are invited to Washington, D.C., for an awards ceremony and several days of educational and celebratory events, including visits with members of Congress and the administration.

President Barack Obama has committed to strengthen science, technology, engineering and mathematics education and prepare 100,000 effective science and mathematics teachers over the next decade.

These commitments build on the president's "Educate to Innovate" campaign, which has attracted more than $700 million in donations and in-kind support from corporations, philanthropies, service organizations and others to help bolster science and technology education in the classroom.

"America's success in the 21st century depends on our ability to educate our children, give our workers the skills they need and embrace technological change. That starts with the men and women in front of our classrooms.

"These teachers are the best of the best, and they stand as excellent examples of the kind of leadership we need in order to train the next generation of innovators and help this country get ahead," Obama said.

This award brings new responsibilities. Brust has been asked to consult with the district and share his sound teaching practices with his colleagues.

"It's an extreme surprise and honor to be recognized as Teacher of the Year," Brust said.

Brust began teaching in 2000 and has taught almost every course in the math sequence of middle school and high school, including math 7 and 8, algebra 1 and 2, math analysis, and advanced placement calculus and statistics.

Hikers walk through 'old world,' taste local food

by Petra Lessoing

86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Clubs and associations of the Niederkirchen-Heimkirchen community will sponsor a culinary hike through the so-called "old world" from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The first old world hike will lead participants on four to five kilometers through valleys, meadows and forest areas.

The "old world" is located in the valley of the Gelbbach creek in the northern part of Kaiserslautern County.

"I invite everybody to experience the landscape around Heimkirchen with its green meadows and woody hills," said Martin Müller, mayor of the Otterberg Union Community.

Hikers can stop at nine locations along the route to taste culinary specialties. Recipes from grandma's kitchen will be served such as meatballs with horseradish and sauerkraut, roast on a spit (suckling pig) with potato salad, goulash from game, beef salad with fried potatoes, bratwurst, smoked trout and salmon. Vegetarians will have a choice of potatoes with white cheese and baked cinnamon rolls (rusty knights) with vanilla sauce. One stand will serve various bundt cakes and another one strawberry cake and cheesecake. Members of the women's association Landfrauen will be in charge of the baking specialties.

Palatinate culture will be presented in the biggest farming museum of the region. The Pflieger family will grant free admission to their museum on Holbornerhof, which they opened after stopping farming. Visitors will see agricultural equipment, tools and many items from former times. The family displays a big collection on four floors documenting a farmer's life.

The Niederkirchen Music Association will provide the musical entertainment.

"I hope all visitors will enjoy this unforgettable event and I wish them a lot of fun on their hike," Müller said.

Culinary hikers can start from five different parking lots in the village.

Showing skin: 7 ways to dull risks of sun damage

by Capt. Shamana Stevens

86th Medical Group

Summertime is here! We will soon enjoy time at the beach, at swimming pools, during bike rides and during other outdoor activities all because of precious sunlight.

The sun provides us with the benefits of vitamin D production, warmth and a good mood. While we enjoy those wonderful solar benefits, it is important to use proven methods to reduce the risk of skin cancer.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, skin cancer is the most common type of cancer among Americans. More than 2 million people are diagnosed with skin cancer every year, which exceeds the combined amount of breast, prostate, lung and colon cancer. One in 5 Americans will develop skin cancer in their lifetime.

What can you do to prevent skin cancer?

- Find the shade — Between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., the ultraviolet rays of the sun are strongest, which means more damage to your skin can occur in a short amount of time. This leads to premature aging and wrinkling of the skin. Water, sand and even snow reflect up to 30 percent of ultraviolet rays, further increasing chance of sunburn.

- Learn not to burn — "I burn first, and then I am able to tan." Repeated sunbathing escalates damage to your skin. Just one isolated sunburn significantly increases one's risk of developing skin cancer, especially in children.

- Avoid sun tanning and tanning beds — Ultraviolet light from tanning beds and the sun causes cancer and wrinkling of the skin. The Skin Cancer Foundation reports that people who engage in indoor tanning are 74 percent more likely to get melanoma, a potentially fatal form of skin cancer.

- Generously apply sunscreen — Generously apply a broad spectrum (UVA/UVB) product with an SPF of 15 or higher. For extended outdoor activity, use a water-resistant sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or higher; reapply every two hours and after swimming or sweating. Be sure to use one ounce to cover every bit of exposed skin 20 minutes before going outside. This allows the sunscreen time to bind to the proteins of your skin and give it the best possible defense.

- Wear protective clothing — In the summer sun, a wide-brimmed hat and sunglasses should be considered must-haves. The hat casts a shadow over the face and neck — the most vulnerable areas to sun exposure. Sunglasses prevent damage to the eyes. Lack of sun protection is associated with increased incidence of cataracts. Wear long pants and long sleeves when possible. In today's market, there is a wide variety of clothing options touting sun-blocking effects.

Interesting fact: We've been taught to wear white and light colors for protection in the sun, but bleached fabrics offer the lowest level of protection because they lack UV absorbing pigment. Go for color!

- Check the UV index — The UV index provides important information to help you plan your outdoor activities in ways that prevent sun overexposure. The UV index forecast for Kaiserslautern can be found at accuweather.com.

- Examine your skin — Do a head to toe visual exam every month and see your physician for a yearly professional exam if you have ever been diagnosed with skin cancer or identified as high risk.

Garrison employee trains for international football tournament

Torrance Brown swiftly moved from one task to the next in the Kleber Gym, first pumping weights to work out his leg muscles, then moving to the gym floor for some serpentine shuffling, followed by receiving and pattern drills.

This was the hardest part, said Brown about the training.

“Once you show up for training camp, it’s not a thing where you’re doing conditioning there,” he said. “You have to go there already being conditioned. You go there and you hit the ground running and you hit the ground running hard.”

Training camp for Brown is mid-July in Stuttgart, where he will join approximately three dozen other teammates, plus coaches, with the Team USA Eagles, a club football organization that carries football to countries around the world.

Immediately after camp, the team will travel to Rome, Italy, where they will play against teams from Italy, Spain and Denmark, countries where interest in football is rapidly growing, Brown said.

The club “was founded to promote the development of the sport of American football within the United

For Brown, a contract specialist with U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern, playing for the team — which he joined in 2005 — is about doing something he loves for his country.

“We’re a group of guys that gets

KMC Cycling Club sends riders to USAG Hohenfels

The KMC Cycling Club sent five riders to participate in the first race of the 2012 U.S. Forces Europe Mountain Bike Championship Series held on U.S. Army Garrison Hohenfels, Germany, June 9.

Hohenfels features some of the best riding in the series with a mix of old and new twisty, single-tracks strewn with rocks and tree roots.

Recent rains and logging activities made the course slick and unpredictable with mud-stricken descents and climbs that racers were forced to navigate either on or off the bike. But the KMC cycling racers came prepared, dominating the competition and securing the top three places on the podium.

Finishing first on the 23km course with a winning time of 1:16:16 was Justin Koppa. Hot on his heels in second place was Chad Hendrickson, followed by single speeder Michael Larson in third place.

KMC cycling racers George Smolinski and Matthew White finished eighth and 26th respectively. The next race in the series will be the Kaiserslautern MTB Race held in Rodenbach on July 22.

The Three Stooges (PG) — Left on a nun’s doorstep, Larry, Curly and Moe grow up finger-poking, nyuk-nyuking and woo-woo-wooing their way to uncharted levels of knuckleheaded misadventure.

Out to save their childhood home, only The Three Stooges could become embroiled in an oddball murder plot, while also stumbling into starring in a phenomenally successful TV reality show.

Starring Sean Hayes and Will Sasso.

Rock of Ages (PG-13) — “Rock of Ages” tells the story of small town girl, Sherrie, and city boy Drew, who meet on the Sunset Strip while pursuing their Hollywood dreams.

Their rock ‘n’ roll romance is told through the heart-pounding hits of Def Leppard, Joan Jett, Journey, Foreigner, Bon Jovi, Night Ranger, REO Speedwagon, Pat Benatar, Twisted Sister, Poison, Whitesnake and more.

Starring Tom Cruise and Julianne Hough.
