Brig. Gen. Rhonda Cornum, the director of the Army's Comprehensive Soldier Fitness program talks with a community member during a May 26 meeting with the installation's Comprehensive Soldier / Community Fitness council members at garrison headquarters. Cornum listened as local council members discussed how they have implemented CSF at USAG Vicenza and the unique challenges facing the program overseas. Cornum said she will take back some of the ideas, calling USAG Vicenza a leader in CSF initiatives.

Outlook Editor

During a two-day visit to Caserma Ederle, Brig. Gen. Rhonda Cornum, director of the Army's Comprehensive Soldier Fitness Program met with installation senior leaders to share her vision for CSF.

Cornum also met with the installation's Comprehensive Soldier / Community Fitness Council members May 26 to learn how CSF is being implemented locally.

She said she was pleased with the council's initiatives and plans to take several ideas back with her to Washington to see if they can be implemented Army-wide.

"What I saw during my visit here was very positive," she said. "Vicenza is definitely a leader in Comprehensive Soldier Fitness."

MEMORIAL DAY SPECIAL: All gave some, some gave all

USARAF Soldiers honor WWII fallen during North Africa ceremony

U.S. Army Africa

TUNIS, Tunisia – As the lonely sound of "Taps" drifted over 2,833 bleached-white headstones Monday, dozens of U.S. Army Africa Soldiers raised their hands in salute at the North African American Cemetery.

They were among a group of U.S. service members who traveled to the cemetery to honor the fallen, men who paid the ultimate sacrifice during the North African campaign in World War II.

The ceremony began with a prayer and remarks from Hon. Gordon Gray, U.S. ambassador to Tunisia. Then Gen. William E. Ward, commander, U.S. Africa Command, stepped to the podium echoing the words of Gen. Omar Bradley, who led U.S. Army II Corps in North Africa.

"We are given one life. The decision is ours whether to wait for circumstances to make up our mind, or whether to act... and in acting, to live," Ward said. "Those whom we honor today certainly embody this sentiment. The results of their sacrifice live within us and in our way of life."

Wreaths were laid, anthems played and salutes rendered. But the most moving part of the event followed the ceremony, when U.S. service members fanned out among the seemingly endless rows of white markers.

A strong Mediterranean breeze caught the huge U.S. flag hung at half staff. Tiny American flags next to each grave marker fluttered.

“But there’s also a silent communication between the Soldier living and Soldier dead that is so powerful it reduces grown men to tears.”

American flags were placed at every grave marker Monday at the North Africa American Cemetery and Memorial near Carthage, Tunisia. Single roses were placed at graves of the unknown.

Single roses, wilted from the hot Tunisian sun, marked headstones of the unknown that read, "Here rests in honored glory a comrade in arms known but to God."

In all, there are 2,841 burials in the cemetery, to included 240 unknowns. Amid the graves are fountains surrounded by flowers, where Soldiers sat to contemplate those who gave the ultimate sacrifice in the defense of freedom.

"This should be the first stop for any American planning to visit Tunisia," said Maj. Philip Archer, a U.S. Army Africa officer who plans the command's partnership engagements in North Africa. "This is a solemn place."

For U.S. Army Africa Soldiers, the Memorial Day service was the culmination of a four-day journey through Tunisia's World War II battlefields.

CYSS working to improve hourly child care availability. Find out how

By ELIZABETH MONTANINO
CYSS Deployment Support

Child, Youth and School Services has many hourly child care options available in Vicenza.

Hourly care is available 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the Child Development Center Bldg. 395, and can be reserved up to two weeks in advance by calling 634-7559.

If space is not available for the desired time, the customer can request to be placed on the waiting list. Families on the waiting list are contacted when an hourly slot becomes available.

In addition, CYSS Services is filling full-day spaces with hourly care when they become vacant due to a child's leave or illness.

Due to the high demand for hourly care for more than 600 community children who use hourly care, CYSS Services has begun implementing an hourly child care policy limiting customer use to three times per week and/or 24 hours each week per child.

"This allows more children in the community access to hourly care and hopefully reduces the stress experienced by parents in obtaining a reservation," said Luca Harbeson, CDC Bldg. 395 director.

Peak hours for hourly child care requests are usually from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., so families who have some flexibility for when they need care are encouraged to request afternoon reservations, which are easier to obtain.

Hourly care is also available from Family Child Care providers who provide care in their Villaggio homes. FCC providers offer hourly care from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday. There is also one extended care provider who can provide some evening and weekend care. As another option, Parent Central Services has a list of American Red Cross certified baby sitters in the area. The Army Family Covenant provides benefits for deployed families. Due to these benefits, including free and reduced cost hourly child care, the request for hourly child care increases significantly during deployment. At the CDC facilities, there is a struggle to provide staffing and space to meet the increased hourly need while providing care for all the children with single or dual working parents who need regular full-day and part-day care.

CYSS Services is committed to providing as many opportunities as possible for families to use benefits. In addition to offering hourly care during regular duty hours, Vicenza offers extended child care opportunities the first Saturday of the month from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and care for Parents' Night Out from 7 p.m. to midnight every third Friday of the month.

Reservations for Saturday Care are accepted two weeks in advance at CDC Bldg. 395, and reservations for Parents' Night Out are accepted starting the first business day of the month at Parent Central Services.

"Although with over 38 hourly care spaces available daily at the CDC, Vicenza probably offers more hourly care than most other Army garrison in Europe," said Eric Weisel, CYSS Services coordinator. Weisel said the following steps are being taken in hopes of making hourly child care more readily available: CDC Bldg. 398 will begin operating an additional hourly infant classroom as of June 1 and both CDCs will continue to fill no-show full day spaces with hourly care. In addition, a part-time toddler classroom is due to open in the fall.

Please visit Parent Central Services for information about child care options in advance of your need to ensure you are aware of all that is offered and have time to complete any paperwork.

For organizations that need child care for a special event during non-duty hours, call Elizabeth Montanino at 634-7401 at least one month in advance.

* Recruiting and hiring more staff is a current focus for CYSS. Anyone who is interested in working is encouraged to visit the NAF Human Resource office next to SATO to apply for child care provider positions.

CG, staff visit places of Army legend during Memorial Day trip

troops. Their first fights were with Vichy French units, who later joined the Allied cause. Together, they pushed east into Tunisia, where they clashed with German and Italian troops among craggy, cactus-covered hills and washed out wadis.

The battles that followed were retold in detail by Rick Atkinson in his book "An Army at Dawn," a historical novel that brought the ghosts of the winter of 1943 to life during U.S. Army Africa's staff ride, dubbed "Lion Torch."

Maj. Gen. William B. Garrett III, commander of U.S. Army Africa, and roughly 30 members of his staff made visits to places of Army legend, such as El Guettar, Longstop Hill and Kasserine Pass. They also paid respects at the resting place of French and British Commonwealth troops who died during the North African campaign.

Retired Army Col. Len Fullenkamp, who guided U.S.

Army Africa's staff ride, said discussions touched on the human dimension of war and the human costs of war.

"When we walk through a cemetery, stop at a marker and read the name of the Soldier, you make a connection. You read out loud the date he was killed and make a connection with a particular battle," Fullenkamp said. "But there's also a silent communication between the Soldier living and Soldier dead that is so powerful it reduces grown men to tears."

Col. Bill Phillips, U.S. Army Africa's chaplain, walked along the 364-foot limestone wall listing the 3,724 names of those whose remains were buried at sea or never found.

"There are more lost and unknown than there are headstones here," Phillips said. "That really hit me."

Phillips also thought of his visit to Hill 609, where the 34th Infantry Division fought in the final days of combat in Tunisia.

"We stood at the foot of the hill looking up, thinking about how they fought their way to the top, now we are here where many of them are laid to rest," Phillips said. "It's overwhelming."

Nearby, Sheila Perks, a Wisconsin-native whose husband works in Tunisia, walked with her daughters Holly, 6, and Lauren, 4. The girls curiously ducked between headstones, asking questions about the men who died.

They wondered why the grave marker of Pvt. Nicholas Minue has a gold star and gold lettering. Minue, a 1st Armored Division Soldier, was awarded the Medal of Honor after braving machine gun fire to charge the enemy with a fixed bayonet. Perks, who thought it was important to bring children to such a place, especially on Memorial Day, spoke to the girls in a way anyone could understand.

"I explained to them, this is why we have our freedom," Perks said. "These men did not die for you, they lived for you."

Garrett: I'd like to be remembered as son of Vicenza

By ANNA CICCOTTI
Special to Outlook

As they prepare to leave Vicenza, U.S. Army Africa Commander Maj. Gen. William B. Garrett III and wife Kimberly Garrett share with The Outlook some impressions about their experience in bella Italia.

Despite multiple missions to Africa and endless official duties, they managed to carve out some time from their busy schedules to travel in and around Italy and make the most of their time in the Veneto region.

"Vicenza has easily been our favorite assignment in nearly 30 years of service," said Garrett, his only regret being that "it took so many years to finally get here."

They arrived two years ago, wide-eyed tourists, like so many newcomers. Their expectations centered around the typical iconic structures - ancient cities, immense cathedrals, impressive monuments, art and statues.

"Certainly, all of that is here," said Garrett, "however, places like Camisano or Scanno in Abruzzo show that Italy is also a place of a thousand small villages and towns, each with its own rich history, traditions, culture, food, wine and proud citizens who are eager to describe the unique charms of their own very special place."

When asked what they liked - and disliked the most - about Italy, without hesitation they said they liked the Italian people most of all for being "very warm, friendly, generous, gracious, considerate, and deeply caring about family and friends."

In fact, if there is one thing they will take back to the United States to share with their son Matthew and their American friends, it is the importance of maintaining tight-knit family relationships. Another trait they admire is that Italians take genuine pride in every aspect of their craft or profession.

Their one dislike? The geographical distance between Italy and the United States.

From a sightseeing perspective, their perfect Italian day would be hiking in the Dolomites, relaxing in Capri or visiting cultural jewels like Galleria Borghese in Rome. Mrs. Garrett suggests that a nice gourmet cooking class is another way to enjoy a fundamental aspect of Italian culture.

Even if all roads lead tourists to Rome, "Caserma Ederle remains an absolutely wonderful place to live, work and play," said Garrett.

In fact, Ederle has fundamentally changed over the last two years.

From small, but significant, things like the crossed U.S.-Italian flags at the gates to all the new and renovated buildings to the dramatically increased activities, the Garretts are leaving behind a thriving and bustling installation.

"The setting is also quite inspiring, as Caserma Ederle sits inside bella Vicenza - in the shadow of Palladio," noted Garrett.

A great lover of the famous Vicentino architect, Garrett says if he could be invisible, he would visit every Palladian villa in the region, always returning to Vicenza's centro storico to enjoy the cheerful fizz of chilled Prosecco with his dear wife.

There is already a bit of nostalgia in his words when he says that one day he'd like to be remembered as "a son of Vicenza."

GARRETT: MI PIACEREBBE ESSERE RICORDATO COME UN FIGLIO DI VICENZA

By ANNA CICCOTTI
Special to Outlook

A pochi giorni dalla partenza da Vicenza, il comandante della SETAF e U.S. Army Africa, il Magg. Gen. William B. Garrett III e la signora Kimberly condividono con i lettori di Outlook alcune impressioni sulla loro esperienza nella "Bella Italia".

Nonostante le molteplici missioni in Africa e tutti gli impegni ufficiali, sono comunque riusciti a trovare del tempo per viaggiare e apprezzare al meglio il periodo trascorso qui in Veneto. "È facile dire che Vicenza è stata la nostra sede di assegnazione preferita in quasi trent'anni di servizio", dice Garrett. "L'unico rimpianto è che ci sono voluti così tanti anni per arrivarci".

Sono arrivati infatti due anni fa per la prima volta, anche loro come molti turisti stranieri, sbalorditi di fronte a tanti tesori d'arte. Si aspettavano di trovare le attrattive tipiche - città antiche, chiese immense, monumenti e statue imponenti. "Certamente tutto questo c'è", dice Garrett, "tuttavia, visitando posti come Camisano o Scanno in Abruzzo, si scopre che l'Italia è anche un paese di mille piccoli borghi e cittadine con la propria storia, cultura, tradizioni e specialità enogastronomiche. Sono luoghi abitati da cittadini molto orgogliosi di vantare le attrattive uniche e speciali del proprio territorio."

Alla domanda su cosa hanno amato di più - e di meno - dell'Italia, la signora Garrett dice che hanno apprezzato soprattutto gli Italiani per il loro calore, il senso dell'amicizia e della generosità e per il valore della famiglia.

"Infatti, se c'è una cosa importante che porteranno negli Stati Uniti da condividere con il loro figlio Matthew e con gli amici in patria, è l'importanza di mantenere ben saldi i legami familiari.

Un altro aspetto che ammirano degli Italiani è il sincero orgoglio con cui si dedicano ad ogni aspetto del loro lavoro o mestiere."

La cosa che dispiace invece è la grande distanza geografica che separa l'Italia dagli Stati Uniti.

Dal punto di vista turistico, un perfetto giorno italiano li porterebbe a camminare sulle Dolomiti, rilassarsi a Capri o visitare i tesori della Galleria Borghese a Roma. La signora Garrett aggiunge che anche un bel corso di cucina tipica è un modo per gustare al meglio un aspetto fondamentale del vivere italiano.

Anche se tutte le strade dei turisti portano a Roma, in ogni caso la Caserma Ederle resta un posto ideale per vivere, lavorare e divertirsi, dice Garrett. Molte e significative le novità degli ultimi due anni: da piccole opere come l'insegna con le bandiere italiana e americana ai cancelli di ingresso, ai lavori di ristrutturazione, fino al notevole incremento di tutte le attività in generale. È infatti un'installazione vivace e in piena crescita quella che i Garrett si apprestano a lasciare.

"La sede stessa della Caserma è particolarmente felice, visto che si inserisce nel contesto urbano della bella città di Vicenza, all'ombra del Palladio," nota Garrett. Grande estimatore del famoso architetto vicentino, il generale confessa che se potesse essere invisibile, visiterebbe ogni villa palladiana dei dintorni per poi tornare nel centro storico di Vicenza a degustare un buon calice di prosecco in compagnia della sua dolce consorte.

Dalle sue parole traspare già un pò di nostalgia quando si congeda dicendo che gli piacerebbe un giorno essere ricordato come "un figlio di Vicenza."

The brigade observed the milestone—the unit reaching the six-month mark in a yearlong deployment to Afghanistan—by hosting a family fun event for about 300 families and friends of the brigade. Events included a kids’ bouncy house, dunk tank, live AFN broadcast and barbecue dinner. “Celebrating this milestone gives us the opportunity to reflect on our strength over the past six months and the push we need to continue on until redeployment,” said Kelly Thames, Brigade FRSA. “It was evident throughout the event that the deployed Soldiers were in everyone’s thoughts and hearts as pictures and video were taken to share the event and memories with the loved ones serving in Afghanistan.”

Malia Shimokawa, chief of pediatrics and newborn medicine at the Vicenza Health Center. The remarks were followed by traditional dances, activities, a roast pig barbecue and other ethnic food samplings. Soldiers and community members performed “War” and other traditional dances while girls (at left) performed dances known as “Lilo and Stitches,” “He Mele No Lilo,” and “Rollercoaster Ride.” In keeping with Samoan tradition, Tauluga—meaning the final dance—concluded the day’s event.

American Forces Network Livorno celebrated the grand opening of its new radio studio May 26.

Station Commander and Operations Manager Marisa Gaona thanked Camp Darby leadership and her staff for all their support during the construction and installation of the state-of-the-art radio broadcasting equipment.

"We're always welcome to come over and do radio spots, television spots and things like that," said Jennifer Kandell, School Age Center and Youth Center Assistant Director and longtime AFN supporter. ## ACS renovation complete, offering improved services

By CHIARA MATTIROLO
USAG Livorno Public Affairs

Camp Darby Army Community Service celebrated the opening of its newly renovated building May 28.

The $620,000 yearlong project is expected to help ACS offer improved quality of life services for Camp Darby families. A new $45,000 playground has also been built in the ACS center.

"This project and the new playground represent an important step forward," said ACS Director Evelyn Watkins. "It is a way for the military to show appreciation to the service members, civilians and families for the commitment and increasing sacrifices that they make every day."

USAG Livorno Commander Col. Steven Cade highlighted the fundamental role ACS plays in a Soldier's quality of life.

"ACS is critical in providing to Soldiers and families a quality of life that is commensurate with their service, efforts and commitments," said Cade.

Watkins thanked Rebecca Cade and Elaine Miles, who he said worked hard to make the renovation a reality, and presented them with a bouquet of flowers in appreciation.

"As a building engineer I put my expertise in ACS's service and helped interpret the needs and identify the work that needed to be done and to pass the ideas to the Directorate of Public Works personnel," said Rebecca Cade.

Rebecca Cade also said the new facility is more welcoming, user friendly and child friendly. She said the renovated facility has the proper office space and it is very well organized.

"We have new staff, new ideas and a new structure that will help us implementing new programs to meet new military needs," Watkins said.

Re-apply for Puerto Rico birth certificates

The government of Puerto Rico, in collaboration with the U.S. State Department and Department of Homeland Security, enacted a new law on issuing and using birth certificates to combat fraud and protect the identity of people born in Puerto Rico.

Beginning July 1, the new law will invalidate birth certificates issued before that date by the Puerto Rico Health Department through its Vital Statistics Record Office. Affected personnel must request new birth certificates. New birth certificates may be obtained by filling out an application form from the Puerto Rico Vital Statistics Record Office on or after July 1.

Applications are available at www.salud.gov.pr/.

Soldiers, Family members, civilian employees, and contractors who receive individual logistic support may obtain application forms from their servicing garrison military personnel division.

Local passport offices can also provide assistance on how to request new birth certificates.

CONGRATULATIONS COUGARS !!!

Vicenza grabs third at European baseball tourney

The South Region Champion Vicenza Cougars took third place in the 2010 DoDDS European Baseball Championship Tournament in Kaiserslautern, Germany, winning four of the five games they played.

All Tournament pitcher Jack Buffington was the winning pitcher in two of the games, bringing his season record to a sterling 9 wins and no losses. Jeremy Huller and Zach Paulino combined on a 1-hitter to beat regular season foe Sigonella in the tournament's first game.

For the tournament, the Cougars had four players hit above .500, led by first baseman Trevor Rice, who hit a sizzling .667.

"Being seeded No. 1 pitted us against every team's best pitchers, but the bats came alive to meet the challenge," said Coach Mark Wilson.

Vicenza led all teams in scoring, amassing an eye-popping 58 runs in their 5 games.

The Cougars lost in the semifinal game to eventual champion Rota, 11-4, but bounced back against defending champion AFNORTH, clinching third place with a 6-4 victory. The winning run was a steal of home against the AFNORTH left-handed pitcher. "It was a gutsy call by Coach George Nessmith, which Kyle Kaus executed perfectly," said Wilson.

For the season, Vicenza had four players named to the All Region team:

Buffington, Kaus, Rice and Joe Boswell. Of particular note, Boswell, who hit .480 for the season, also had an on-base percentage of .833. The Cougars finished with a record of 12 wins and 5 losses.

"The team had a great tournament and a great season," said Wilson. "I'm very proud of our players."

Ederle student excels with Italian rugby team

Special to the Outlook

Vicenza's Mini Rugby School, Rangers Vicenza, achieved another sporting success, winning the Under 10 and Under 14 categories in the finals of the 19th Trofeo Topolino May 9. Having won the double in 2007, the white and red of Vicenza did it again, placing two teams at the top of arguably the most important mini rugby tournament in Italy.

Vicenza Elementary School third-grader Jesse Swinehart took part in the Under 10 victory, beating CUS Verona by four tries to one.

The tournament boasted 5,200 athletes participating in five categories: Under 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14; an overall total of 296 teams from throughout Italy and abroad; and approximately 15,000 spectators.

With 140 athletes and nine teams lined up on Benetton's Ghirada sports fields in Treviso, the Vicenza Rangers worked their way through pools of 72 teams for the honor of competing in the finals in Northern Italy's national stadium Stadio Monigo.
