Special Uniform Issue Becomes Reality!

I can't believe it's finally in print — the Special Uniform Issue has finally become a reality! At 60-plus pages, this is the largest issue of The Reservist ever published in the 53-year history of this publication (breaking the old record of 56 pages in October 2001 following 9/11).

The road to getting this in your hands has been rocky at times. Here's a quick summary.

Several years ago, I proposed and we talked about publishing an issue devoted entirely to Coast Guard uniforms. The scope of a uniform issue was daunting; we didn't want to publish it unless we did it right and were as thorough as possible. For various reasons, the project never quite got off the ground, would get back-burnered or would be overtaken by events (OBE).

We didn't give up though!

Late last year, members of our staff sat down with Mr. Carol Brewton, Uniform Program Manager and his staff and pounded out an outline of proposed stories. We also asked for input from our readers nationwide in early 2006 and, as usual, you responded with suggestions, comments, and questions galore (good questions too that required extensive research). A number of them are published here as well. Also, in preparation for this issue, we've held two all-day photo shoots of members wearing the various USCG uniforms.

From a uniform history and the "catalog of uniforms" to an updated Awards and Medals chart (our first since March 1996), this issue is as comprehensive as possible without republishing the Uniform Regulations (COMDTINST M1020.6E). Keep in mind that this issue serves as a quick reference and supplement but certainly does not replace the official Uniform Regulations.

Some interesting features include stories on the USCG Clothing Design and Technical Office, the Uniform Distribution Center, and Uniform Inspections. One note: Although some of our reservists drill at Air Stations, Reserve aviation has been on hiatus for quite some time, so we did not include uniform aviation info (devices, flight suits, etc.).

This was truly a team effort and my hat is off to all of our contributors. Special thanks to Mr. Carol Brewton and his fine staff in the Uniform Division (CG-1221), as well as our staff here at the Office of Reserve Affairs (CG-1313). A special salute to Mr. Chris Rose, who did all of the graphics work you see in these pages, and to LCDR Lisa Schulz, who did a lot of legwork, logistics and research.

The goal of this issue was to produce a comprehensive and practical guide to educate, update and inform our reservists on the proper wear of the USCG uniform. I think we have achieved our goal. I'm proud to finally get this issue on the street and into your hands. Enjoy the journey through the pages of the largest Reservist magazine in history!

Greetings from USCG's Military Uniform Program!

By Mr. Carol W. Brewton,
Uniform Program Manager, Commandant (CG-1221)

I wanted to take this opportunity to introduce myself as the new Uniform Program Manager. I came on board in July 2005 and am thrilled to be a part of this organization. My background is 30 years of experience in textiles, logistics, and management. My most recent position was with Border and Transportation Security at the Department of Homeland Security.

I have found the people of the USCG to be friendly, professional, passionate, and they have a terrific work ethic. I have spent the last several months getting to know the process, the uniforms, traveling to meet with the troops in various areas [north and south] and listening to what is desired, wanted, and needed. As with most things, opinions are varied, and sometimes they contradict each other. The good thing is that members consistently take pride in their uniforms and are truly interested in looking professional.

Exciting things are happening for you, now and in the coming months in the world of uniforms. First, a Uniform Board convened recently for the first time in several years. The package is in the approval process and is making its way through the senior management chain. Good news will be forthcoming. Second, news from that Uniform Board will be followed by an ALCOAST announcement, followed by revised Uniform Regulations. Third, a new web-based function for placing orders will be installed by the time this edition "hits the street," thereby allowing orders to be placed with the Uniform Distribution Center (UDC) 24/7. Fourth, the UDC will be installing state-of-the-art bar code equipment, improving the inventory control process to ensure the appropriate stock levels are available for you.

I want to point out that one limiting factor is that we must buy U.S. products. This is good news for American manufacturers, but there are not many to choose from. So, it adds another challenging dimension being in the business of USCG uniforms.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

MATERNITY OPERATIONAL DRESS UNIFORM (ODU)

ALCOAST 059/06 announced that the maternity ODU is now available to order from UDC.

SUPER BOOT II

Many are unaware that the Super Boot has been substantially improved. Our questionnaire has provided us positive feedback, and some substantial changes were made. No more clown looking toes — the new Super Boot II gives you the best combination of materials in one boot — the eight-inch tall upper is constructed of abrasion-resistant nylon fabric and leather. So the break-in time is less than that for an all-leather boot, and heat dissipation is better. You also get the built-in safety of a composite toe that meets the ANSI Z41-1999 standard, and a removable cushion insert for increased comfort.

In the Super Boot II, the GORE-TEX® lining surrounds your foot. Along with being a barrier to water penetration, this lining also resists perspiration and contamination by petroleum, oils, and lubricants. At the same time, it lets perspiration escape the boot, so your feet stay dry and comfortable. And the non-melt Vibram® shipboard sole gives you excellent shock absorbency and traction. The Super Boot II is available from the UDC and is a "sea bag" issue for all recruits.

As I have traveled around to various USCG units, the comment I have heard over and over is, "Please keep the Winter Dress Blue Shirt as an optional item — it is the best looking uniform." Good news — the Winter Dress Blue Shirt is here to stay for the foreseeable future. We are increasing our stock at the UDC so it will be available for you. Ordering information can be found at <http://www.uscg.mil/uniforms>.

FUTURE PLANS

1. There is significant interest in improvements and changes to the ODU throughout the Coast Guard, and there is ongoing research into those improvements, but currently there are no changes planned in the near future. The request for an "untucked" version ODU has been heard loud and clear and is being explored, to include looking at other service uniforms to see if there is an existing uniform that will fit Coast Guard needs, but there is a large investment in the current ODU and there is simply too much cost to abandon or re-create the ODU. The Uniform Program is investigating the use of a new fabric for ODU's. The fabric will be more oil/lubricant resistant, more color fast, and more wrinkle free.
2. We will be conducting a review of the entire sea bag. We will be looking to replace/update/eliminate items and enhance our offerings.
3. We will look to have more frequent Uniform Board Meetings (five years since the last one is way too long).
4. We will conduct a review of organizational clothing procedures and a review of all optional clothing, with a vision of being more uniform (after all, the definition of uniform is "consistent, always having the same form, not varying"). Our decisions will not be based on anecdotal comments but on factual data, measurements, and feedback.

A FINAL WORD

The Uniform Program was recognized recently for their efforts in getting emergency replacement uniforms rapidly to our members who lost everything during the Katrina disaster. Hats off to the Uniform Distribution Center and Uniform Program Staff! I am proud to serve with this team!

The overall message from the Uniform Program is that we desire to be progressive, professional, and financially good stewards. We want you to wear the USCG uniform with pride and will continue working to ensure you have professional uniforms available to you.

Ed's note: To see the full text of this article, which includes information on uniforms of the Revenue Service, Life-Saving Service and Lighthouse Service, see the Coast Guard Historian's Web site at: <http://www.uscg.mil/hq/g-cp/history/collect.html> (under Uniforms, Medals, Flags and Seals).

From the founding of the Revenue Service in 1790, to the present-day Coast Guard, the military aspect of the service has been unmistakable. Alexander Hamilton emphasized the need for commissioned officers in this naval service. Until the U.S. Navy was reestablished in 1797 - after being disbanded at the close of the American Revolution - the Revenue Service was the nation's only naval entity and there was a definite need for visible symbols of authority. A standardized uniform was the result. The history of these uniforms reflects both the traditions and roles of the Revenue Service and the Coast Guard, as well as the fashions of the day.

The early history of Revenue Service uniforms is vague to non-existent. The scarcity of information is due in part to two fires at the Treasury Department building in Washington. The British destroyed most of the records when they torched government buildings in 1814 and another conflagration in 1833 destroyed even more documents.

The earliest surviving written description of a Revenue Service uniform dates from 1819. The officer was described as outfitted in a "neat and becoming suit of blue, a body coat, trimmed with brass buttons, having for a design an eagle perched upon an anchor surrounded by stars. The pants and vests were blue, with tall, round hats, black cockades, leather stocks and cut and thrust swords."

The first existing Revenue Service regulations regarding uniforms appeared in 1830, under Treasury Secretary Samuel D. Ingham. It is doubtful that earlier regulations existed and it appears that there had been little uniformity in any event. One old veteran stated that the officers "paid but little attention to dress ... and adapted such patterns as the caprice of the commanding officer selected."

Before 1832, the existence of distinctive Revenue Service uniforms was further clouded by regulations which allowed U.S. Naval officers to hold Revenue Service commissions while on furlough from their own service. Many such officers refused to relinquish their Navy uniforms while commanding their Revenue vessel - a practice no doubt confusing and frustrating to both enlisted and officers.

Under the 1830 regulations, the full dress captain's outfit was blue with nine buttons per lapel, two on the collar, four on the cuffs and six more on the skirts. Yellow braid closed each seam of the coat, the outer seam of the pants and the seams of the nine button buff vest. The high crowned black hat had a black cockade and eagle button on the left.

Revenue Service, circa 1862.

The undress uniform apparently dispensed with the braid and had narrow lace on the shoulders rather than the prescribed epaulettes of the full dress. Lieutenants had fewer buttons on the cuff, three for first lieutenant, two for second lieutenant. In full dress, each wore one epaulette. First lieutenants wore one epaulette on the right shoulder and second lieutenants, one epaulette on the left.

This blue uniform met with immediate criticism and within a year the regulations were altered, doing away with the abundance of yellow braid trim. Shortly afterwards, the collar and cuff buttons were also eliminated.

In 1833 the high hat was replaced by a chapeau - the "fore-and-aft" hat. Rank was designated by gold lace cuff stripes rather than buttons. Captains wore one stripe an inch wide; first lieutenants one stripe a half-inch wide; second lieutenants two half-inch stripes; and third lieutenants wore three one-quarter inch stripes.

Though this uniform was said to have met with general approval by the Revenue Service officers, it raised a storm from the naval side of the sea services. Now that naval officers could no longer hold simultaneous commissions in the Revenue Service (now known as the Revenue Marine), they were not pleased that revenue officer's uniforms were so similar to, and patterned upon, U. S. Navy uniforms.

The controversy was highlighted at a grand ball in Charleston, S.C., shortly after the new uniform regulations were adopted. In attendance were officers of several revenue cutters, as well as Commodore Jesse D. Elliott of the U.S. sloop-of-war Natchez and his staff. In the glitter of the evening, Elliott and staff were literally outshone by the appearance of Captain William A. Howard of the Revenue Cutter JACKSON, apparently fresh from Washington arrayed in the new uniform, complete with epaulettes and lace. The new uniform was well placed on Howard, a man of many accomplishments and described as one of the handsomest men of his day. Howard's impression was sufficient to compel Elliott to immediately complain to Secretary of the Navy Levi Woodbury demanding that the Revenue Service uniform be modified to remove the resemblance to Navy uniforms. In particular, it seems that the wearing of epaulettes was objectionable. Woodbury moved from the Navy to the Treasury Department in 1834 where he immediately moved to correct this situation.

Secretary Woodbury directed a board of revenue officers to design a distinctive uniform without epaulettes. Failing to dissuade them from these shoulder decorations, the secretary retaliated by changing the color to gray. This uniform was apparently unanimously disliked in the Revenue Service. Their argument was the same as that used in the Civil War Confederate Navy: whoever heard of a sailor in a gray uniform? Such was the unpopularity of this gray uniform that within two years it succumbed to its critics and blue returned.

In 1843, regulations described the earliest known Revenue Service sword. This was a straight sword with Roman hilt and spring guard with elaborate engraving on the blade. Decorated with the spread eagle, the national shield, and a blue and gold bullion and silk sword knot, this was called the most handsome the service ever authorized. Prior to this regulation, swords were apparently either Navy type or left to the individual's preference.

In 1844, further means were sought to distinguish the revenue uniform from the Navy's. To accomplish this, the epaulettes, which were described as plain in the earlier regulations, were to be decorated with an anchor surmounting the Treasury shield. The same device was to be on the cap band. With typical service cost consciousness, the same die was to be used for both cap and epaulette devices, with the latter in silver and the cap ornament in gold. Captain Fraser, senior officer of the service at the time, wrote that if all the officers cooperated and had these fabricated at the same place, the cost could be kept down to $5 each.

After a couple of decades of general satisfaction with the uniform, 1871 brought another controversial set of regulations. These called for the reinstatement of the swallowtail coat, this time with seven buttons per lapel and four buttons on the cuffs. These buttons bore the treasury shield with U to the left and S to the right. The vest was also seven-buttoned and the blue or white pants had a black silk cord decorating the outside seam. The undress coat was a seven button double-breasted version of the popular civilian sack coat which was very similar to the modern suit coat.

However, the controversy over these new uniforms did not center on the cut or style, but on the ornaments and devices. Shoulder straps and lace were abandoned and the rolling collar was decorated with a horizontal foul anchor, with the rank perpendicular to the anchor's shank and the letters U. S. R. M. in Old English forming an arc around the upper part of the rank. Epaulettes displayed the fouled anchor with the rank. The U.S.R.M. in Old English was also arched over a vertical anchor on the cap. These devices, particularly the Old English letters, were described as the poorest and ugliest ever authorized - and, due to their small size, nearly un- decipherable from a distance. Many officers simply refused to comply with the new regulations.

In two years the objectionable features were discarded officially and shoulder straps were restored. At this time the cap ornament was standardized for all officers. This was the spread eagle with shield grasping a fouled anchor and a semi-circle of thirteen stars. The basic elements of this emblem have remained unchanged ever since, with only the elimination of the stars and re-configuration of the eagle's wings.

New regulations were promulgated in 1878, reverting to the nine button double-breasted frock coat for undress use. The tail coat was retained for full dress. (Note that early in the 1890s, the service discarded the title Revenue Marine and Revenue Cutter Service became the official designation.)

A heavy overcoat was part of the 1908 regulations. This was double-breasted with seven plain buttons on each side and a rolling collar wide enough to protect the ears. Both shoulder marks and sleeve rank were authorized for this, but the sleeve braid was to be black. A boat or deck cloak was also authorized. This was a nearly circular cut of heavy wool, made to hang two inches below the ends of the fingers. It fastened at the neck with a hook and eye and a clasp underneath, and had decorative black braid on its front. Both full dress and service caps had the "scrambled eggs" decoration on the visor for senior officers. Engineers had a gold band one-half inch wide on their visor.

In 1915 the Revenue Service and the Life-Saving Service combined to form the U.S. Coast Guard. The new service soon had its distinctive uniform characteristics. By the 1920s two major changes were seen in Coast Guard uniforms. First was the adoption of the double-breasted service coat similar to that still worn by the U.S. Navy. This was worn without shoulder straps, and rank designations were on the lower sleeve, with the familiar shield device above the rank stripes. Enlisted men, below petty officer, adopted the Navy-style white duck hat, though the traditional Donald Duck flat cap remained standard. The vessel name on the hat ribbon was to read, for example: U.S.S. Manning, C.G.

In 1941, for the first time, Coast Guard uniforms became officially a modification of Navy regulations. The garments themselves were the same as naval uniforms and included the khaki undress combination with sewn-in belt. Both services used the "combination cap": the officer's peaked headgear with interchangeable covers to match khaki, white or winter uniforms. Only the distinguishing corps devices, buttons, shoulder marks, etc., were distinctively Coast Guard. The officer's cap device for the Coast Guard was the most obvious difference. It consisted of a large spread eagle with shield, with a single horizontal anchor held in the eagle's talons. The Naval device had, and still has, a smaller eagle over crossed anchors. Also, the Naval eagle was silver; the Coast Guard's, gold.

The Coast Guard uniform coat also continued to have the national shield placed above the sleeve rank stripes. Coast Guard gilt buttons centered their design on a perpendicular anchor, with a rope like inner-rim. The Naval button consisted of an eagle, facing Dexter over a horizontal anchor.

It should also be noted that the Coast Guard accompanied the Navy in the short-lived adoption of a grey undress uniform. This uniform, which was a dark steel grey, cut in the khaki single breasted pattern, was to be a cost-cutting replacement for both the khaki and double-breasted navy blue (black) uniforms. As with the other uniforms, it was complete with a grey cover for the combination cap. It was adopted in 1943 and phased out in 1947, when it became obvious that the Navy was not interested in abandoning the double-breasted uniform.

The interchangeability with Navy uniforms continued until after the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department of Transportation and the subsequent adoption of today's lighter blue, single-breasted uniform. (Today, the only uniforms still identical to the navy's are the officer's summer white service and full dress combinations.) The only non-interchangeable uniform was that of the enlisted surfmen adopted in 1943. This was single-breasted and worn by mounted beach patrols and port security personnel.

The SPAR uniform of World War II was designed like the navy's female uniform although Coast Guard emblems were worn on the lapels. The winter uniform was dark blue; the summer was grey/blue seersucker. There have been few major changes to the women's uniform over the years. Certain items have been phased in and out and there have been modifications to the style and fit but the uniform has remained fairly similar.

The present enlisted uniform marked the first major change in enlisted uniforms in over a century. Dissatisfaction with the old traditional sailor suit jumper goes back decades but tradition held on. Two explanations were given for the change to the blue uniforms under Commandant Chester R. Bender. The first was to create a distinctly different uniform from that of the Navy and to solidify the fact that the Coast Guard was a separate organization. The second reason was to update the uniform to be consistent with contemporary society. The particular shade of blue was chosen because it was different from the shades used by the other services.

Coast Guard uniforms have seen two basic trends in their history. One marked a similarity to the uniforms of the U.S. Navy, the other was to have totally different uniforms from that sister service. Today, the blue uniform is probably the most distinctive since the day of the unloved gray uniform of the 1840s, but today's blues have the distinct advantage of retaining the blue color, as appropriate for a service steeped in serving on the seas.

MEN'S COMBINATION CAP: For wear with all uniforms (Except ODUs). Consists of a military cap with a black visor, rigid standing front, flaring circular rim, a detachable plain white cover (cloth or vinyl) over the crown framework in a smooth and wrinkle free manner, and a blue cap band and mount for attaching the large cap insignia. Officers wear a metal or embroidered eagle. Chiefs wear the enlarged version of the collar insignia. Enlisted wear the Coast Guard medallion. One-half inch chin straps are worn, gold for officers and black patent leather or plastic for enlisted, with the chinstrap grommet positioned to the wearer's left. Rain Covers are optional for both officers and enlisted and are clear plastic with an elasticized bottom edge. Visor ornamentation is required for senior officers O-5 and above. For Flag Officers, the visor is covered in two rows of gold acorns and oak leaves. For captains and commanders, the visor is covered in one row.

WOMEN'S COMBINATION CAP: For wear with all uniforms (Except ODUs). Consists of a stiffened oval crown with detachable white cover, a blue cap band that is 1-1/4 inches wide with integral mount for insignia and a blue brim. The brim is rolled at the sides and flat in the front and back. Two blue streamers are attached to the band at the back and a blue cap band and mount for attaching the large cap insignia. Officers wear a metal or embroidered eagle. Chiefs wear the enlarged version of the collar insignia. Enlisted wear the Coast Guard medallion. For all officers, chinstraps are 1/2 inch wide, faced with gold lace. Rain Covers are optional for both officers and enlisted and are clear plastic with an elasticized bottom edge. Visor ornamentation is required for senior officers O-5 and above. Flag Officers wear a double row of oak leaves and acorns on the hatband. For captains and commanders, the hatband has one row of gold oak leaves and acorns.

GARRISON CAP: For wear with Service Dress Blue Bravo, Tropical Blue Long, and Winter Dress Blue. A fore and aft style cap made of Coast Guard Blue serge fabric. Men and women wear the same style garrison cap. When cap is not worn, it is carried under the belt on the right side of the body with the Coast Guard insignia facing outward. The center of the insignia are placed 1-1/2 inches from the bottom of the cap, and 2 inches right or left of the front crease. Officer's wear two insignia, the left insignia on the garrison cap shall consist of the miniature version of the eagle worn on the combination cap and the right insignia shall be of the same design as the collar insignia. Enlisted wear only one insignia, positioned on the right side of the cap. For chief petty officers E-7 through E-9 and MCPO-CG, the insignia shall consist of the miniature version of the anchor worn on the combination cover. For enlisted personnel E-4 through E-6, the garrison cap insignia shall consist of the collar grade rank insignia. For enlisted personnel E-3 and below the garrison cap insignia shall consist of the miniature version of the silver and gold Coast Guard medallion.

BALL CAP: All personnel E-4 and above shall wear rank/grade collar insignia on the working blue and unit ball cap. The insignia worn on the working blue and unit ball cap may be standard metal or embroidered collar insignia. All insignia shall be 1 to 1-1/4 inches above the visor or centered on the front of the cap so as not to interfere with the lettering. Captain insignia is worn with the Eagle facing the wearer's right. For enlisted personnel E-3 and below, the insignia shall consist of the silver and gold Coast Guard medallion that is also worn on the garrison cap.

COLD WEATHER CAP:

For all officers, the insignia worn on the Cold Weather Cap shall be the miniature version of the eagle that is worn on the combination cap. For chief petty officers E-7 through E-9 and MCPO-CG, the insignia shall consist of the miniature version of the anchor worn on the combination cap. For enlisted personnel E-6 and below, the insignia shall consist of the silver and gold CG medallion that is also worn on the garrison cap by E-3 and below.

INSPECTIONS

WITH A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

OK, so your commanding officer or officer in charge has just announced that next month there will be a uniform inspection. What do you do — panic, go on vacation, retire? Of course not, but there are strategies you can use, even today, to have an outstanding uniform and serve as an example for all Coast Guard members around you. What we are going to focus on in this article is how to make your uniforms look professional and razor sharp. For the purposes of this article we will look at the Tropical Blue Long uniform. However, many of the tips discussed can be applied to other uniforms as well.

START PREPARING EARLY

If you take it one step at a time, preparing for a Personnel Inspection (PI) is really very simple. The first step is to begin your preparations several weeks in advance and know what is expected. The Coast Guard Uniform Regulations, COMDINST M1020.6E (series), available both in hard copy and on-line, as well as this issue of the Reservist, are the best resources available for all your uniform questions. They contain everything you need to know about what is required for each Coast Guard uniform.

To begin with, let's break out that Tupperware box that you keep all the accessories in — it's probably been some time since you gave them a look with your most critical eye. What are we talking about? In short, your cover (combination or garrison), collar devices, name tag, ribbons, qualification insignia, devices and badges, belt, shoes, and your ID card. Yes, in a proper and full inspection, even your ID card will be checked. Let's go down the checklist:

Is your combination cap shaped properly and does it sit correctly on your head? Is the brim curved evenly and clean? Is the hat device centered and correct? What about the cover itself — is the white really white? If not, consider cleaning or replacing as needed. For covers with chin straps, are the eagles on your buttons flying, which really means right side up? If not, turn them clockwise to tighten and align correctly. Is your garrison cap clean, or dingy? Is it the correct size? Are your insignia shiny and pinned correctly? Check the Uniform Regulations to ensure their proper placement.

COLLAR DEVICES

How about the collar devices, are they clean and shiny? Many tours at sea will bring that greenish tint to the devices, not what you're striving for during an inspection. When you place them on the collar, check the Uniform Regulations for proper placement, and use a ruler to get them positioned exactly as required.

NAME TAG

If the name tag you intend to use has seen better days, order a new one. Have you ever seen a name tag that appears dull and has a build up on it? To clean it up and get rid of some of the scratches, here is a helpful little tip. Put a dab of Brasso on a cloth towel and place on a hard surface. Rub the name tag vigorously back and forth over the Brasso, trying to keep the motions straight, for a couple of minutes. Wipe the excess Brasso off and use some rubbing alcohol on a cotton swab to clean the letters and the back. Buff on a clean towel and coat with a little Pledge. This is referred to as burning a name tag. Remember, when you put it on your uniform, it's centered one-quarter inch above the right pocket (again, use your ruler).

RIBBONS

You can make a great impression by the manner in which your ribbons and devices are worn. First of all, is your ribbon bar up to date? Take a good look at how the ribbons look together. Are they worn out or faded? Are devices and attachments missing or tilted? Are they in the correct precedence? If they are tired and need replacing or updating, consider having a set professionally made. Ribbons are centered one-quarter inch above the left pocket. Don't forget that the Uniform Regulations provide guidance for all of your accompanying qualification and designation badges.

BELT & BUCKLE

How about that belt and buckle? Take a look, how does that brass look? Is it scratched and dented, or when you view it from the

UNIFORM CLOTHING

Now that all of the items that go on, below or on top of the uniform are taken care of, what about the uniform itself? A couple weeks prior to inspection, turn in your uniform for alterations and cleaning. When you pick it up, go over it thoroughly checking for loose threads, proper placement of sewn-on items, and to ensure all your buttons survived the white water rafting trip it just took through the cleaners.

For shirts, they should be clean and pressed. Is your shirt faded or do you have ring around the collar?

Have you ever noticed a shirt on someone's uniform that is tailored and snug to the belt line both in the front and rear? The trick here is shirt stays. They are neat little devices that pull your shirt down and keep it from pulling up in the front and rear. Two in front and two in the rear work great. One hint: crisscross them on the lower half before attaching them to your socks; this helps them fit snugly on your leg. Yes, they do take some getting used to; however, in presenting a sharp uniform, nothing beats them. Your pants also should be checked. Are they worn at the pockets? Are they too tight or too loose? The bottom of the belt should rest directly on the top of your hipbone, not under it or way above. With the belt sitting at it's correct position, the front of the pant should drape to the second eyelet of the shoe (counting from the tip of the shoe) — with no breaks in the front crease!

If wearing a skirt, ensure that the hemline is no higher than the crease in the back of the knee or lower than three inches below the crease in the back of the knee.

How about your Bravo jacket? Is it clean and does it fit properly? If not, have it cleaned or altered.

Finally, place your uniform in a garment bag for safekeeping.

top, can you see years of caked-up Brasso inside the buckle? Generally speaking, there are three types of buckles you might see during inspections: common brass plated which looks good for the shortest period of time, officer brass which is plated with a high luster and looks fine when new, and polished bare brass. Side by side, you can spot polished brass any day and it looks terrific. So the next time you're in front of the TV, get out the Nev'r-Dull or Brasso and make your buckle shine.

SHOES

Of course we can't forget our shoes. If you have the shiny plastic kind (Corfams) it may take less time to bring them up to inspection standards. However, even if you have leather, fear not — a little work and they can shine just as well. Do you recall your boot camp lessons on shoe shining? Try a cotton ball, with just enough water to make it moist, rub in that polish until the luster begins. Once you have them shining nicely, give them one more coat with parade polish and you should be in good shape. Additionally, for a finishing touch, you can use edge dressing on the edges of the soles. It might take two coats, but it really makes a shoe stand out.

HAIR

Uniform Regulations state that hair must not fall below the eyebrows, ears, or extend below the front of properly worn headgear. A proper haircut is tapered, not blocked and is no more than 1 1/2 inches in bulk. If men choose to grow a moustache, ensure it doesn't extend below the top of the upper lip and it can't extend beyond the corners of the mouth. Sideburns cannot extend below a point level with the bottom of the ear opening. Women should ensure hair is no more than two inches in bulk and hair must not fall below the bottom edge of the collar.

ID CARD

Remember we mentioned your ID card? Well the reason they are inspected is to ensure they are up to date (paygrade, expiration date and medical information). Why medical information? The blood type information can provide critical information should you be injured or incapacitated, and it needs to be legible and accurate. Remember, if you look the night before the inspection, it's not enough time to have a replacement made.

INSPECTION DAY

On inspection day, bring that Tupperware box with a lint roller, shoe polish, soft cloth and sewing kit (for the button that pops) with you. If you have spare ribbons, devices and attachments, bring them too. You never know when a shipmate will be in need at the last minute.

So, what should I expect at an inspection and what will they look for? The Reviewing Party should check the proper wear of your uniform, compliance with Coast Guard Regulations, and your attention to detail. Do not chew gum or wear a cell phone.

Before you depart for inspection, double check your gig line, run a lint roller over your entire uniform, put your ID card in your pocket, then have a shipmate check you over one last time.

You've already checked your cover and it's spotless, right? When standing inspection, ensure it's squarely on the head and parallel to deck. Hair shall not be visible below the front brim.

Did you secure all loose threads and put on a crisply pressed shirt? A common critical mistake that will get you noticed in the worst way is improper placement of collar devices. So double-check your measurements! Are your ribbons and name tag clean, up to date, and positioned properly?

Check your trousers for worn, improper fit and possible missed belt loops. Your belt should be clean and cut properly so when it's worn with the trousers the belt tab isn't peaking from behind the belt or brass. Make sure your shoes are properly laced, not cracked, and heels are not worn down.

During the inspection, remain at attention and answer any questions asked using proper military courtesy. The Reviewing Party will look to see that you are within proper uniform and grooming standards, a recorder will write down any deficiencies and will inform you of any after the inspection. Sometimes, the person inspecting you may mention a deficiency verbally as you're inspected. But after reading this article and putting it to practice, hopefully there won't be any.

These tips are meant to help you prepare an inspection-perfect uniform. Many of these tips are applicable to other uniforms as well. Leaving your preparation to the night before just won't help. Get started on it now, review the Uniform Regulations COMDINST M1020.6E (series), and when you do get the word that an inspection is coming, you won't have to scramble.

Editor's Note: Master Chief Takakjian served as a Company Chief Petty Officer at the Coast Guard Academy from July 2003 until July 2005 and is currently stationed at ISC Boston(fp) where he is an instructor. Chief Sparks was a Company Commander and Company Commander School Chief at Training Center Cape May from June 2002 through July 2005, and is currently stationed in the Master Chief Petty Officer of the Coast Guard Office at Headquarters.

HOW TO ROLL YOUR SLEEVES

STEP BY STEP INSTRUCTIONS:

Sleeves may be worn down with cuffs buttoned or with sleeves neatly rolled.

When properly rolled, the cuff should be approximately 2" above the elbow (mid-bicep) with only the cuff visible.

To properly roll the sleeves takes some patience and a little practice, but once mastered can be achieved without difficulty. Depending on an individual's size and sleeve length some sleeves may be rolled with one fold while others will take two.

1. Fully extend and flatten the sleeve on a level surface.

Starting at the cuff turn sleeve inside out to armpit as shown. Take care to flatten the sleeve to remove any irregular folds or creases.

To form the fold, roll the sleeve in half again to form two equal segments the width of the "cuff."

Next, turn the cuff down over the fold. Pinching the outer edge of the sleeve to begin the fold will help to keep the fabric from slipping.

Once in place, take care to flatten the sleeve to remove any irregular folds or creases. When properly done, only the cuff should be visible.

NOTE: To remove the roll, simply pull the lower edge of the cuff downward toward the wrist.

UNIFORM DISTRIBUTION CENTER TWO NEW JERSEY SITES DISTRIBUTE USCG WARES

What do you do when you need a uniform item? You pay a visit to the Coast Guard's Uniform Distribution Center (UDC). The UDC is the primary source for all Coast Guard uniforms.

The primary mission of the Uniform Distribution Center is to supply sea bag uniform items to all recruits. They also service the Coast Guard Academy, clothing lockers, reservists and auxiliaries with standard sea bag and optional uniform items. UDC also supplies all members of the Coast Guard based abroad.

UDC opened its doors at Cape May in 1988 as a central ordering facility for shipping and receiving of Coast Guard uniform items. Prior to that time, Cape May was a clothing locker much like others currently in the Coast Guard. As the need for uniform items continued to grow, Cape May's facility quickly became too small for such a large operation. In 1997, the UDC moved the majority of its operations to Woodbine, 23 miles north of Cape May in south central New Jersey.

The UDC in Woodbine currently leases several warehouse spaces along with several office spaces. All together, UDC Woodbine utilizes approximately 41,000 square feet. Meanwhile, UDC Cape May uses approximately two-thirds of the Dempsey Hall building, which includes office spaces, a warehouse, and two issue rooms. Although the UDC is physically located in both Woodbine and Cape May, it is considered one command.

The UDC employs approximately 30 members including three Coast Guard officers: Manager LT Mike Bowman, two chief warrant officers and 27 civilian employees ranging from WG-5 to GS-9. Woodbine, being the larger facility, has 20 members while Cape May has 10 members.

"The UDC is more labor intensive than most would believe as all telephone orders for the Coast Guard, including TRACEN Cape May, Coast Guard Academy, reservists, and auxiliaries are placed through three customer service reps," said CWO2 Dave McLaughlin, Assistant Manager of UDC. "These three reps, who work out of the Woodbine site, take between 250 and 650 calls on any given day. This number does not include fax orders that the three reps enter as well."

During an average month, UDC sells and/or issues approximately 60,000 uniform items valued at $700,000. The UDC currently stocks 2,712 items. So, the next time you need a uniform item, check out the UDC's web site: www.uscg.mil/uniforms.

"SERVICING THOSE WHO SERVE"

UDC & CGES PRICE DISPARITY EXPLAINED

After checking out your local Coast Guard Exchange and buying some uniform items you realize that some of the prices on items are the same as those you obtained from the Uniform Distribution Center (UDC), but a few appear higher or different. Why?

The Nonappropriated Fund Instrumentalities (NAFI) Manual (COMDTINST M7010.5A) states: "In order to make required uniform items readily available to service members, CGES sells, at cost, military uniforms, which are brought from the Coast Guard Uniform Distribution Center. CGES is reimbursed from appropriated funds for operating costs associated with the sale of issue uniform items."

"That is 100 percent correct," said Mr. John Reiley, Director of Merchandise for the Coast Guard Exchange System (CGES). "The different prices people see are items that the CGES purchases commercially, not from UDC. An example of this is the light blue Creighton shirts. The Creighton shirt costs more than the standard light blue shirts we buy from UDC."

Reiley says that CGES tries to charge a fair and equitable price to the member. Part of that mark-up goes back to the Coast Guard community to support Coast Guard Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR).

The bottom line is that UDC products sold to patrons at Coast Guard Exchanges should be the exact same price as those you buy directly from UDC. If you ever discover a price disparity, CGES would like to know. Please contact your local CGES manager or SKC Benny Rodriguez, CGES (G-WPX), 870 Greenbrier Circle, Chesapeake, VA 23320-2681; 757-420-2480; benny.rodriguez@uscg.mil

PLACING AN ORDER WITH UDC

All items that the UDC carries are indicated in their Stock Book located on their web site:
www.uscg.mil/uniforms

SHOP ON-LINE

Just visit www.uscg.mil/uniforms and visit their all new online store. The entire warehouse is at your fingertips.

FAX ORDERS

Orders may be faxed 24 hours a day, seven days a week including holidays. Uniform orders can be faxed to the UDC using the same order form mentioned above. Please fax your order only once to avoid duplicate orders. If you do not receive your order within seven business days, please call (800) 874-6841 to check the status of your order.

Please fax your orders to: (609) 861-7930.

PHONE ORDERS

Phone orders may be placed from 0800 to 1530, Monday-Friday, Eastern Standard Time. You may use your personal MasterCard, Visa, Discover, American Express, or the Charge-To-Pay method (Coast Guard Active Duty members only). To reduce your phone holding time, have a list of items needed and your specific measurements.

To place a phone order call: (800) 874-6841 or (609) 861-1221.

ORDERS BY MAIL

Uniform orders can be mailed to the UDC by filling out the order form located on their web site, or they can mail or fax the form to you by calling their toll free number. Include check, money order, or credit card information with your order form. If paying by check or money order, please make payable to "U.S. COAST GUARD" for the exact amount of your order. Consult the Stock Book for the correct prices and stock numbers.

SPECIAL ORDERS

If the UDC does not stock a size that you require, then you may request that item by completing a special order form for your required items. The forms are located on the UDC's web site and must be faxed or mailed. While every order is expedited, the average completion time to fill a special order is approximately three months. You may call (609) 861-7934 for assistance.

GOVERNMENT CREDIT CARD ORDERS

The UDC cannot accept government credit card orders over the phone. These orders need to be faxed or mailed on a Procurement Request (form DOT F 4200.1.2CG). Please ensure the Procurement Request includes all of the following information:

- OPFAC number (cost center code)
- Ship to address
- Point of contact with telephone number
- Government credit card account number
- Card expiration date

OVER-THE-COUNTER SALES

The UDC has two locations to serve you. Both accept personal MasterCard, Visa, Discover, American Express, money orders (for the exact amount of the purchase), or the Charge-To-Pay method.

- Woodbine, NJ: Over-the-counter sales at the UDC's main warehouse are open from 0730 to 1500, Monday-Friday, excluding holidays.
- TRACEN Cape May: Due to recruit issues, over-the-counter sales at Training Center Cape May are limited to Thursdays from 0730 to 1500. Times are subject to change without notice, depending on TRACEN's recruit issue requirements. Please call (609) 898-6744 to check availability.

UNIFORM CLOTHING DESIGN & TECHNICAL OFFICE (CDTO)

SMALL STAFF MAKES BIG IMPACT ON USCG UNIFORM

BY LCDR LISA SCHULZ, USCGR

The All Weather Parka (AWP) and the Operational Dress Uniform (ODU) are the Coast Guard's newest uniforms. How did "they" know that the windbreaker wasn't warm enough for subzero temperatures and that the working blues needed to be replaced?

"They" are the Coast Guard's Uniform Clothing Design and Technical Office (CDTO). In short, it is responsible for designing and developing uniform items to better fit the needs of today's Coast Guard. The CDTO is a small shop, so small in fact, that most of the Coast Guard do not know they exist. On staff are a textile technologist, a clothing designer, a quality assurance specialist, a program assistant and a Chief Clothing Designer. Together, they have more than 100 years of industry experience.

Located in the U.S. Navy Clothing and Textile Research Facility at the U.S. Army Soldier Systems Center in Natick, Mass., the Coast Guard is the smallest CDTO of the armed services. However, being co-located is a plus, giving the Coast Guard full access to the military uniform testing facilities from every service. Using high-tech gadgets that test everything from the material's tensile strength to performance in the most extreme conditions, the CDTO is quite literally on the cutting edge of design and development.

While small in size, the CDTO is big on innovation. Responding to input from the field, it has brought style and increased functionality to the Coast Guard uniform. In the 1980s, the CDTO was the first among the armed services to design a regular and athletic fit for the Service Dress Bravo (SDB) blouse, the goal was to accommodate a wider variety of body shapes and sizes. In the 1990s, the CDTO completely revamped the women's SDB jacket and necktie to have a more flattering and practical fit. Recently, the CDTO developed the AWP and ODU as the latest additions to the Coast Guard wardrobe.

Because the AWP was designed for extreme cold weather conditions, the CDTO rigorously tested it at cold-weather simulation facilities at Natick, Mass. and subjected the AWP to extensive field testing in Alaska. After approval, the AWP went into production and is now available to Coast Guard personnel.

Where the magic happens. The entrance to the Coast Guard's Uniform Clothing Design and Technical Office (CDTO) located in the U.S. Navy Clothing and Textile Research Facility at the U.S. Army Soldier Systems Center in Natick, Mass.

The ODU went from the drawing board to the field in under 18 months, making it the fastest uniform redesign in the history of all military services. RADM Kenneth Venuto, then Assistant Commandant for Human Resources, described what happened.

"In an effort to provide a better fitting uniform for all of our members, we made a decision early in the acquisition process to contract for the production of both even and odd size uniforms (e.g. 38, 39, 40, 41, etc.), each in several different lengths/cuts (S, M, L, XL, etc.). There will be 82 different size tops and 27 different size trousers available."

The wide array of sizes turned out to be a double-edged sword. From the perspective of fit, this gave more people a well-fitting, ready-made uniform that needed little tailoring. From a logistics perspective, it could have sunk the distribution chain. However, the CDTO worked closely with the manufacturer and the Uniform Distribution Center (UDC) to ensure minimal delays and backorders. In the first 14 months of production, more than 150,000 sets of ODUs were distributed.

While Coasties carefully add insignia name tapes to newly-ordered ODUs, and crews in Alaska don their AWP's to ward off the chill, the crew at the CDTO is busy testing zippers, durability, and fade control of future uniforms.

Ed's note: In preparation for this special issue, The Reservist asked readers to send in questions, suggestions and comments. We wanted to share some of them with our readers. Responses are printed in italics after each letter. They were researched and written by CWO2 Tarvin Greene who works on uniform policy and procedures in the Military Policy and Standards Division (CG-122) at Headquarters.

OTHER SERVICE INSIGNIA

There are many Coasties who wonder why DOD breast insignia earned while a member of another branch of service cannot be worn unless earned in the USCG. I think this policy makes sense from a standpoint that the USCG does not want to cloud up its uniforms with insignia that are not universal (example: Army folks wearing a Marine Safety insignia or USCG members wearing a finance badge earned in the Air Force would be quite odd). However, why not allow for these "universal" badges (ex: airborne, diver's badges, naval aircrew) to be worn regardless of branch earned. The same insignia would be awarded whether in the USCG or if it was previously earned while serving in another branch.

— LTJG Pete Reeves

I do not understand why Coasties can not wear service devices from the DOD. For example, there is one DOD school for airborne training for all the services. If a Coast Guardsman earned their jump wings while a member of another branch of service, why can't they wear their wings?

— PS2 Shane Woodward

Please clarify the wearing of devices from other services on the Coast Guard uniform. There seems to be a lot of confusion expressed on Fred's Place about this issue.

— Norm Kiaunis

ANSWER: Many members have prior service and during that time earned some valuable skills. If a person earned a qualification insignia in another service prior to becoming a member of the Coast Guard, they are not authorized to wear the insignia on the Coast Guard uniform. However, if a person earned their insignia while a member of the Coast Guard and it is directly connected to the performance of operational missions from another United States military service, they are authorized to wear the insignia in accordance with the Uniform Regulations (COMDTINST M1020.6E). The individual member is responsible for providing proof of authority to wear another service's qualification insignia for placement in their service record.

FOUL WEATHER JACKETS

Please include information on foul weather jackets. Presently all I have been issued is an ESU Seattle commercially acquired coat with an ESU logo on it. We are being told by our local FOT that it is now against uniform regulations. Some clarification would really help us out here.

— ET1 David Heath

ANSWER: The topic of foul-weather gear is big for military members (Active, Reserve, and Auxiliary). Currently, a member can purchase (on their own) an All Weather Parka (AWP — see UDC's Web site for purchasing info). If he/she chooses not to purchase the All Weather Parka, the work jacket and windbreaker are both authorized for wear when wearing the ODU. If a heavier jacket is needed or the price is too high for member's expense, the member's command can purchase AWP's for the unit at the command's expense. This type of purchase is called organizational clothing. The clothing must be visibly marked as per the Uniform Regulations Manual and the command will be held accountable. The AWP should be turned in to the unit prior to the member's departure. If the AWP is more than what is needed, the command can purchase a lighter rain jacket, but it should follow the organizational clothing guidelines.

ARMED FORCES RESERVE MEDAL

Would it be possible to run updated info on the Armed Forces Reserve Medal? We are constantly getting questions on this and the number of awards a member can have (i.e., if they have been recalled more than once). I think it would be a good item to run. Thank you.

— SCPO Gail Owens

ANSWER:

a. ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS. The Armed Forces Reserve Medal (AFRM) is awarded for honorable and satisfactory service as a member or former member of one or more of the Reserve components of the Armed Forces of the United States, including the Coast Guard Reserve, as follows:

- (1) For satisfactory service for a period of 10 years. Such years of service must have been performed within a period of 12 consecutive years. Service in a regular component of the Armed Forces, including the Coast Guard, is excluded, except active duty service performed by members of a reserve component will be included. Any period during which Reserve service is interrupted by one or more of the following will be excluded in computing, but will not be considered as a break in the period of 12 years:

- (a) Service in a regular component of the Armed Forces.
(b) During tenure of office by a state official chosen by the voters of the entire state, territory, or possession.
(c) During tenure of office as a member of the legislative body of the United States or of any state, territory, or possession.
(d) While serving as Judge of a Court of Record of the United States or of any state, territory, possession, or the District of Columbia.
- (2) On or after 1 August 1990, the member was called to active duty and served under sections 12301(A), 12302, 12304, 12406 of Title 10 U.S.C., or Chapter 15, or, in the case of the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve, Section 712 of title 14 U.S.C.
- (3) On or after 1 August 1990, the member volunteered and served on active duty in support of specific U.S. Military Operations or contingencies designated by the Secretary of Defense, as defined in Section 101(A)(13) of Title 10 U.S.C.

b. DEVICES AND METHOD OF WEARING. The following devices are authorized for wear on the AFRM:

- (1) Mobilization ("M") Device. The "M" device is authorized for members who qualified for the AFRM under subparagraphs 5.11.a.(1) through (3), above. Coast Guard Reserve members who receive orders changing their current duty status (legal authority under which they perform duty), their duty location, or assignment to support a contingency operation are eligible for the award.
- (2) Hourglass Device. The 10-year hourglass device is authorized for wear on the AFRM to denote each succeeding 10-year period as follows:
- (a) A bronze hourglass shall be award upon completion of the first 10-year period award.
(b) A silver hourglass shall be awarded upon completion of the second 10-year period award.
(c) A gold hourglass shall be awarded upon completion of the third 10-year period award.
(d) A gold hourglass, followed by a bronze hourglass, shall be awarded upon completion of the fourth 10-year period award. If no "M" device is authorized, the appropriate hourglass shall be positioned in the center of the ribbon. If no hourglass is authorized, the "M" device shall be positioned in the center of the ribbon, followed by Arabic numerals indicating the number of times the device has been awarded, starting with the second award. (No number is worn for the first award.)

If both, the hourglass or hourglasses shall be positioned in first position on the ribbon (at the wearer's right), the "M" device in the middle position, and the number of times the "M" device has been awarded in the remaining position (at the wearer's left).

- c. ISSUANCE, PROCUREMENT, AND VERIFICATION OF ENTITLEMENT. Unit commanding officers are delegated the authority to award the AFRM to eligible personnel. Commands unable to verify qualifying service for individuals claiming entitlement to this medal who have not received it may submit requests for verification and issuance to Commandant (CG-122).

GOLD AND PEWTER BOAT FORCES PIN

I earned the Pewter Boat Forces Pin while serving at Stations Georgetown and Tybee Island, Ga. Since reporting for my second stint of Title 10 at MOL Charleston, I was wondering what qualifies a member for the Gold and Pewter Boat Forces Pin, thinking that I might try to earn it while I was here this time if possible.

— PS1 Robert Young

ANSWER: The full requirements are in the Boat Forces Operations Personnel Qualification Standard (PQS), COMDTINST M16114.30. Here is an excerpt from the manual. "Personnel who desire to wear the boat force operations insignia (silver with gold tone) and have not previously qualified must:

1. Complete all required tasks and any additional sections of this PQS.
 2. Be recommended for certification by the unit's PQS instructors.
 3. Receive final written certification from the CO/OIC.
- A copy of this PQS shall be maintained in the member's training record."

COLLAR DEVICES AND LIGHT BLUE SHIRT

The collar stay in the light blue shirt always makes it difficult to affix the collar device. I have seen some burn holes in the collar/stay. My solution, which I have submitted in the past, is to switch to soft shoulder boards.

— David Linder

ANSWER: Actually, several people sent in the same suggestion. This was on the agenda for the recent uniform policy board but no decision has been made yet.

RUBBER WRIST BANDS?

Do the Uniform Regulations specifically state that members cannot wear the rubber wristbands? We have a member on our team that has one, but I cannot find it in the manual that states he cannot wear it in uniform. Help!

— CWO Andrew Doody

ANSWER: There are only two types of bracelets allowed in uniform — a medical alert bracelet and a POW/MIA bracelet. Even though it might be for a great cause, "rubber wrist bands" are not allowed while in uniform. This can be found in the Uniform Regulations (COMDTINST M1020.6E), Section 2.A.1 (see "Bracelets" in the chart).

“Coast Guard personnel must present a proud and professional appearance that will reflect positively on the individual, the Coast Guard and the United States.”
