

From: [REDACTED]
To: FN-OMB-IntellectualProperty
Subject: Intellectual property is the key ingredient in the information age.
Date: Tuesday, March 23, 2010 3:06:43 PM

Competition is important in our economy. The information age is bringing us closer together as people from around the world and the real problem is that people outside of the United States are stealing ideas and developing technologies faster and more inexpensively as a result. We need to find a secure method of patenting ideas and products through the internet so that American innovation can continue. In order to do this you need to come forward with better web site securities and more controls for government patent procedures.

Sincerely,
John E. Luke

<http://home.comcast.net/~johnlukenj/>