The movie studios are raking in huge profits, and yet they are asking the Federal Government to give them more and more power and to give the people fewer and fewer constitutional protections. This is pure, old-fashioned greed. Their continuing refusal to widely adopt online business opportunities is hindering progress. In an age where consumers are screaming for on-demand access, the studios are frantically adding restrictions to maximize their revenues while completely ignoring all market signals. Why should my taxes go toward subsidizing their greed and stupidity?
