As professional photographers, we depend upon the Copyright protection afforded to us as creators of art, photography, published books, CD/DVD's and other printed and electronic publications and digital imaging offered as stock photography or art, all of which have our copyright symbol and name. Reproducing any of them without written permission and payment for such use needs to be protected by the copyright law as well as intellectual information that is copyrighted.

Our business depend upon copyright protection to survive.

There are a lot people copying our work without paying for it. The copyright law is necessary to at least keep the honest people honest and to let those who infringe on the copyright protection law to be procecuted to the full extent of the law for damages.
