Douglas C. Smith, President and CEO

Doug Smith is president and CEO of Oceus Networks, a broadband services and solutions provider that empowers government and industry across the globe to deliver high-speed voice, video and data communications. For more than 20 years, he has led teams focused on the advancement of broadband communications, and was recognized by Tech America with the 2011 Innovator Award for Government Services. Prior to his current role, Smith served as president and CEO of Ericsson Federal Inc. where he established the company as a leader in delivering broadband communications to the civilian and defense government communities. Smith also led Ericsson North America's business development activities, including formation of the team and identification of key markets, new customers, investment opportunities and risk analysis.

Before joining Ericsson, Smith was president and general manager for Broadband Networks Inc., a venture capital start-up focused on the fixed broadband wireless market. He established BNI as the leader in this space leading to the company's acquisition by Nortel Networks. He also held various sales, marketing and engineering roles at Ericsson Inc. Smith's education is in fields which remain a strong interest today and underlie his passion for the way technology is used to transform businesses and our economy. He earned his MBA in International Economics with marketing and economics emphasis from Texas Christian University, and received his undergraduate degree in Electrical Engineering with an emphasis in physics and the sciences from Oklahoma State University
