

JIM BRADLEY
Assistant Public Printer
Operations

As Assistant Public Printer of Operations, Bradley oversees GPO's revenue generating business units, which include Secure & Intelligent Documents, Plant Operations, Official Journals of Government, Customer Services, Agency Account & Marketing and Business Products & Services. Bradley is responsible for managing the production of some of our Nation's most important documents such as: the U.S. passport, Trusted Traveler Program cards for the Department of Homeland Security, the President's Budget, The Congressional Record, The Federal Register and other Congressional materials.

Biography

Bradley has played an important role in GPO's operations for more than three decades as member of the agency's senior management team and as Congressional staffer. Bradley previously served as GPO's Managing Director of Official Journals of Government overseeing the print and electronic requests for the daily newspapers, The Congressional Record and The Federal Register and processing work for Senate and House bills, reports, hearings, documents and other Congressional Publications. He also led the agency's print procurement and customer services business units. Bradley came to GPO in 1996 from the Joint Committee on Printing (JCP), the agency's oversight committee, where for 14 years he served as a professional staff member and lead technical advisor for the Committee.

From 1980 to 1983, Bradley was the Printing Officer for the Department of Energy. From 1971 to 1980, he held a variety of operational and management positions at the Internal Revenue Service, including managing the composition, procurement, and production of business and individual tax forms for nationwide distribution.

Bradley holds a B.S. in printing management, with a minor in business administration, from Sam Houston State University.
