

Biography

GINGER THOMAS
Chief Human Capital Officer

As the Chief Human Capital Officer, Ginger Thomas plans and implements the human resources systems and oversees the policies and procedures that guide GPO's innovative human resources operation — policies designed specifically to strike a balance of honoring the culture and values of GPO's rich history while positioning the agency to meet the evolving human capital demands of the future.

Biography

Thomas has more than 30 years of human capital experience in the Federal Government. She came to GPO in 1999 and has held management positions in GPO's Customer Services and Human Capital business units. Thomas recently served as Director of Human Capital Operations, where she played a key role in the agency's workforce planning transformation. Prior to GPO, Thomas held various human resources positions at the National Institutes of Health, Department of the Interior, and the Architect of the Capitol. Thomas is a recipient of several honors, including GPO's Outstanding Performance Award. She attended Howard University and is a native of Washington, D.C.