Neville Pattinson CIPP CISSP CSCIP

Neville Pattinson is the Senior Vice President for Government Affairs, Standards and Business Development at Gemalto, Inc. based in Austin, TX. Within that role he constantly evangelizes the need to move to smart card based solutions to protect both identity and privacy.

Mr. Pattinson is a leading expert and thought leader on digital security identity solutions such as smart cards, electronic passports and hardware tokens that use secure microprocessor chips to keep identity credentials including biometrics secure and private.

Heavily involved in leading the policy, planning and implementing a number of federal government security initiatives, Mr. Pattinson's experience includes the Department of Defense Common Access Card (CAC); Homeland Security Presidential Directive -12 (HSPD-12), Federal Identity Processing Standard 201 and the Personal Identity Verification (PIV) Federal Employee credentialing program; privacy protections implemented in the Department of State's electronic e-Passport and Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative technology selection. He also championed the Transportation Worker Identity Credential (TWIC) program and the secure credentialing of first responders as part of Federal Emergency Management Agency. He was consulted as part of the White House formation of the National Strategy for Trusted Identities in Cyberspace (NSTIC) and is now serving on the Management Board of NSTIC's Identity Ecosystem Steering Committee.

Mr. Pattinson is a founding Board Member of the Secure ID Coalition, an organization advocating for the use of technology solutions that enable strong identity and privacy protections for U.S. citizens. He previously served as Chairman of the Smart Card Alliance and is presently serving as the Alliance's Technical Chairman along with Vice-Chairman of the Identity Council. Mr. Pattinson is active within several other associations such as TechAmerica, AAMVA, INCITS, IAPP and Univ. of Texas' Center for Identity.

In his capacity as well known privacy advocate, Mr. Pattinson was privileged to serve a five-year term (2006-2011) appointed by Secretary Chertoff, as a Special Government Employee to the Department of Homeland Security's "Data Privacy and Integrity Advisory Committee" (DPIAC).

Mr. Pattinson became a U.S. citizen on 15th December 2005 and calls Austin, Texas home.
