A note on the Committee's membership during the 107th Congress

During the 107th Congress, the Senate dealt with a number of historic organizational problems, which impacted the committee structures along with the full Senate.

The election of 2000 produced an equally divided Senate, with 50 Democrats and 50 Republicans; only one previous election, in 1880, had resulted in a tie between the two major parties, and precedents from that time were no longer considered applicable.<sup>1</sup> Furthermore, the narrow victory of the Republican presidential ticket meant that incoming Vice President Richard B. Cheney, serving in his capacity as President of the Senate, would give the Republicans a tie-breaking vote and thus a functioning majority.

The time lag between the January 3, 2001 convening of the new Senate and the January 20 inauguration of the new President, however, gave outgoing Vice President Albert Gore, Jr. a 17-day period in which he served as head of a functioning Democratic majority.

Dealing with this unusual situation, the Senate named Democratic chairmen of the legislative committees to serve from January 3 to January 20, and Republican chairmen to serve beginning at 12:00 noon on January 20.<sup>2</sup> It was further agreed that each committee would "be composed equally of members of both parties" for the duration of the 107th Congress, unless a change occurred in the party ratio of the Senate as a whole.<sup>3</sup>

That change occurred with the May 24, 2001 announcement by Sen. James M. Jeffords of Vermont that he would leave the Republican party, register as an independent, and caucus with his Democratic colleagues when the Senate returned June 5 from its Memorial Day recess. Thus, on June 6, the Senate met with a 50-49-1 Democratic majority control, marking the first time either house of Congress had changed control in mid-session.<sup>4</sup>

The following pages detail the membership of the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, and its five Subcommittees, during this historic period.

<sup>4</sup> The 83rd Congress convened in January 1953 with a 48-47-1 Republican majority. Over the next two years, nine senators died and one resigned, but neither party attempted a reorganization. Senate Historical Office, Washington, DC 20510. For information on the House of Representatives, see Office of History and Preservation, Office of the Clerk, Washington, DC 20515.

During the period of January 3-20, 2001 in which Vice President Gore oversaw a 50-50 Senate, all legislative committees continued as they had been constituted at the end of the 106th Congress in December 2000 (minus those members who were no longer in office<sup>5</sup>). Thus, Senator Paul S. Sarbanes (D-MD) would briefly serve as Chairman of the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs with a Republican numerical majority.<sup>6</sup>

When Democrats regained a majority on June 6, 2001, committees reverted back to the December 2000 lineups until the Senate could agree upon revised assignments for members.<sup>7</sup>

<sup>6</sup> Senator Don Nickles (R-OK) was appointed to the committee on December 6, 2000, pursuant to S.Res. 354, September 12, 2000. Congressional Record (September 12, 2000), vol. 146, p. S8423 and Congressional Record (December 6, 2000), vol. 146, p. S11660.

During the two periods of 2001 in which the full committee was constituted according to its December 2000 membership, the five subcommittees likewise retained their previous lineups (minus those members who were no longer in office).

In the transition period to Democratic control (June-August 2001), three subcommittees held hearings: Housing and Transportation, Economic Policy, and International Trade and Finance. While subcommittee assignments had not yet been announced, negotiations to that effect were ongoing. As it was expected that Senators Jack Reed, Charles E. Schumer, and Evan Bayh, respectively, would become chairmen of those subcommittees, they carried out that duty during the transition period. The remaining subcommittees, Securities and Financial Institutions, did not hold hearings during the interim, and so did not designate chairmen.
