Edward Bennett Williams Law Library – Georgetown University Law Center

Since the 1980s, the Georgetown University Law Center has expanded from one building to a campus that includes one of the finest law libraries in the nation. The Georgetown University Law Library, encompasses the Edward Bennett Williams Law Library the third largest academic law library in the United States, and the John Wolff International and Comparative Law Library. These libraries fully support the research and educational endeavors of the students and faculty of the Georgetown University Law Center. They do so by collecting, organizing, preserving and disseminating legal and law-related information in any form and offering access to electronic information systems, effective service and instructional programs.

The tour will include a review of the collections of both the Williams Library and the Wolff Library. The tour will also feature some of the unique items in the special collections department, including the National Equal Justice Library collection.
