

B. Transition Period

For the following reasons, the OCC has concluded that transition periods should be provided to insured Federal depository institutions to provide sufficient opportunity for institutions to conform their swaps activities in an orderly manner. First, section 716 assumes a regulatory framework that is not yet complete. Further development of the Title VII regulatory framework is necessary for insured Federal depository institutions to make well-informed determinations concerning business restructurings that may be necessary for section 716 conformance.⁷ Second, the provision of transition periods while the Title VII regulatory framework continues to develop will provide regulatory certainty for insured Federal depository institutions in the near term and will mitigate potential disruptions to client services.⁸ Third, transition periods will mitigate operational and credit risks for insured Federal depository institutions.⁹

Section 716 anticipates that transition periods will be provided to avoid unwanted adverse consequences from premature implementation of section 716. For the reasons discussed above, the OCC believes that implementation of section 716 without transition periods would cause unwanted adverse consequences and that transition periods therefore are appropriate. Accordingly, an insured Federal depository institution that is or will be a swaps entity and that seeks a transition period for its nonconforming swaps activities should formally request a transition period from the OCC.¹⁰ The OCC is prepared to consider such requests favorably, provided that the requests conform to the guidance provided below.

Each request must be written and specify the transition period appropriate to the institution, up to a two-year transition period commencing from July 16, 2013. The request must also discuss:

1. The institution's plan for conforming its swap activities;
2. How the requested transition period would mitigate adverse effects on mortgage lending, small business lending, job creation, and capital formation;
3. The extent to which the requested transition period could have a negative impact on the institution's insured depositors and the DIF;
4. Operational risks and other safety and soundness concerns that a transition period would mitigate.
5. Other facts that the institution believes the OCC should consider.

An insured Federal depository institution that is unsure if or when it will be or become a swaps entity may request a transition period. The request must contain the elements described above and additionally explain why the institution believes it might be or become a swaps entity under the CFTC's definition of swap dealer or the SEC's definition of security-based swap dealer.¹¹ The OCC may require a requesting insured Federal depository institution to provide additional information before establishing a transition period. The OCC may impose such conditions on a transition period as it deems necessary and appropriate.¹²
