

ANDREW M. SHERMAN
Chief Communications Officer

As Chief Communications Officer, Andrew M. Sherman serves as the official point of contact with Congress, providing direct liaison on behalf of the Public Printer and the agency. Sherman also oversees the agency's public relations and employee communications operations, and Web site development.

Biography

Sherman has been with GPO since 1980 and has extensive experience with the agency's budget, appropriations, legislation, planning, and public affairs operations. He has worked for the Office of the Public Printer in various capacities since 1985. He was GPO's Director of Legislative and Public Affairs 1997 – 2003 and Director of Congressional Relations 2003 – 2011. He is a recipient of the Public Printer's Award Certificate (1982), three Public Printer Meritorious Service Awards (1987, 1988, 2005), and the Public Printer's Distinguished Service Award (1992), GPO's highest honor.

Sherman earned a B.A. (with Distinction) in Government in 1976 and an M.A. in Government in 1981, both from The University of Virginia. He held a Governor's Fellowship at The University of Virginia's Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs 1976-77. Prior to joining the GPO he was a graduate teaching assistant in American history at Old Dominion University 1978-80.

He has served as Eastern regional director (1993-95), treasurer (1996), and president of the National State Publishing Association (1997; now the National Government Publishing Association), an organization of state and other government printing and publishing organizations.
