

NATO's point of contact with the Maritime Community

Regarding use of information on our website

Respect our intellectual property and give us the credit, then no agreement is needed to disseminate our web product

Our website is an open source and you are welcome to link to our homepage and use the information given there, provided that you respect our intellectual property and observe common law on the subject, for example that you must reference the source and you cannot use our name on your material and that the website is legitimate.

Our logo or name cannot be used to promote an event, a company, or company products, with which we are not directly involved. Our logo or name cannot be used directly or indirectly to "accredit" a private company or its products, for example by referring to us as "partner", or by claiming that the product is launched based on an agreement with us.