

Grand Coulee Visitors Center

[music]

Craig Sprankle: I'm in the visitor center for Grand Coulee Dam and we're pretty excited about this new exhibit system, "Many Voices, One River", that we're opening this year. This is the first new exhibit system we've had in twenty five years here at Grand Coulee.

It contains a lot of exhibits on the dam, the operation of the river, the effects of the dam. A lot of interactives, we've got video games, we've got working jack hammers, we've got a game where people get an opportunity to actually operate Grand Coulee Dam under different scenarios.

We get about four hundred thousand visitors here at Grand Coulee each year and those folks range from very technical people down to grade school and kindergarten children. So these exhibits we've tried to put something into them so that there'll be something for everyone in the exhibit. There's things that children will love to do, there's things that adults will find very interesting, it's for all ages and all abilities. I hope people will come out and see it.
