PTA employees support dry forest project

POHAKULOA TRAINING AREA, Hawaii—Civilian employees of this Army installation, led by Robert Wright, Deputy Garrison Commander, take a break with other volunteers, members of the Waikoloa Dry Forest Recovery Project Group as they spent the day in the vicinity southwest of Waikoloa Village, cutting fountain grass and other invasive weeds as a preventative measure against fires and placing fences in designated areas to prevent wild goats and other ungulates from ravaging native vegetation. The group still needs volunteers, so if you want to be a part of this dry forest working group, call Beverly Brand, Waikoloa Dry Forest Recovery Project coordinator, who is also the Waikoloa Village Outdoor Circle president, at 883-3362 or 895-4679.
