

Fredrik Andersson Financial Economist

Fredrik Andersson is a Financial Economist in the Credit Risk Analysis Division of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

Dr. Andersson's current research interests include credit risk modeling, labor economics, spatial economics, and confidentiality research.

Before joining the OCC in 2008, Dr. Andersson worked for Cornell University and was affiliated with the Census Bureau's Longitudinal Employer-Household Dynamics Program. He holds a doctorate in economics and econometrics from Uppsala University and an undergraduate degree in economics from Vaxjo University in his native Sweden.

His fields of interest include credit risk modeling, labor economics, spatial economics, and confidentiality research.

