USAG BW PUBLIC AFFAIRS INTERN

Family members, friends, special guests and other members of U.S. Army Garrison Baden-Württemberg attended the garrison's final Change of Responsibility ceremony on Patton Barracks in Heidelberg Friday.

As Eppelheim Mayor Dieter Mörlein and others watched, Command Sgt. Maj. Annette R. Weber passed the colors to Col. Bryan D. DeCoster, USAG Baden-Württemberg commander, who in turn passed them to incoming Command Sgt. Maj. Kenneth J. Kraus Jr. and appointed him as the garrison's last command sergeant major. De-Coster also presided over the ceremony.

The ceremony was also a time for garrison community members to say goodbye to Weber, who had served the garrison for three years. DeCoster then thanked Weber for her expertise in managing garrison affairs.

"CSM Weber, it's been my privilege to have you as my right hand, my battle buddy and my compass of what right looks like, and even as my children sometimes call you, 'Daddy's boss,'" DeCoster said in his speech to an audience, who laughed at the reference to the sergeant major.

First Sgt. Tony Hockensmith of Headquarters and Headquarters Company saw Weber's openness to her Soldiers as her unique trait. He worked with her daily and witnessed her receptivity first-hand.

"[When] I had issues, I was able to go in and ... cry on her shoulder, and she would listen to me. And then ... she would tell me, 'Okay, you need to go home and go talk to your wife. [Or, you] need to go talk to your son,' Hockensmith said about Weber's supportive nature.

Nina Richter, Director of USAG BW Resource Management, said Weber's kindness was memorable. Af-

NATIONAL PARKS PASSES

Service members and their families can enter America's national parks free of charge for a year under an initiative announced this spring. The pass — the America the Beautiful National Parks and Federal Recreation Lands Annual Pass, which normally costs $80 - is available to service members andtheir families. The pass allows the holder and passengers in a single private vehicle access to some 2,000 sites that charge per vehicle. At sites where entrance fees are charged per person, it covers the pass owner and three adults age 16 and older. Military personnel can get the passes at any national park or wildlife refuge that charges an entrance fee by showing military ID. Family members can also obtain their own pass, even if the service member is deployed or if they are traveling separately. The pass will be accepted at National Park Service, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bureau of Reclamation, Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Forest Service and U.S. Army Corps sites that charge entrance or standard amenity fees. The free pass will be made available for activated members of the National Guard and Reserve, but not for military veterans or retirees, who have other opportunities for free or reduced admission.

Best Warriors, Junior Officer named

By Sgt. Michael Reinsch U.S. ARMY EUROPE PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The winners for the Best Warrior and Junior Officer competition were announced during an award luncheon Aug. 16 in Heidelherg.

Staff Sgt. Mathew Senna, an instructor at the 7th Army Noncommissioned Officer Academy, and Pvt. 1st Class Richard Shepard, an intelligence analyst for 21st Theater Sustainment Command, earned their titles after competing against 16 other noncommissioned officers and Soldiers at the 2012 USAREUR BWC hosted at the Grafenwöhr Training Area, July 30-Aug. 3.

"To find yourself working and competing with and alongside those individuals and being named above them is staggering," said Senna, a Sacramento, Calif., native.

"[Winning Best NCO for USAREUR] feels good," Sen-

Sgt. Michael Rei

Lt. Gen. Mark Hertling, U.S. Army Europe Commander, left, and Command Sgt. Maj. SAFETY MESSAGE

Remember these bus safety "do's" and "don'ts"

By Otto Mueller

DISTRICT TRANSPORTATION SUPERVISOR, KAISERSLAUTERN

Instruction begins for Department of Defense Dependents Schools in Europe Monday. As a reminder, here are some "do's" and "don'ts" when riding the bus to keep children safe.

When meeting children at the bus stop:

- DO wait on the same side of the street as the bus stop. DO go to your child at the bus stop.
- *DO NOT wait in a parked car. DO NOT wait in a building. DO NOT allow your child to come to you.
- Bottom line: When you meet your child at the bus stop, take charge of the situation. You are the adult; only you can reduce the risk and control the danger.

Getting on and off the bus:

- ◆Be on time walk, do not run to the bus stop.
- When waiting for the bus, take at least three large steps away from the curb.
- Take your seat and stay in it while the bus is moving. Use seatbelts if available.
- When getting off the bus, take three large steps away from the curb and wait for the bus to leave before crossing the street.
- Never cross the street in front of or behind the bus.

Danger zones:

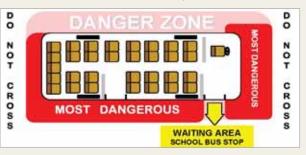

Educate your child on the danger zones as shown on the picture below. We ask that you and your child take extra precautions when near a school bus. Teach them to never cross in front of or behind a bus. Remember: traffic in Europe does not stop for loading and unloading of school buses.

DODEA behavior standards for students:

Stress good behavior on the bus — good behavior and safety go hand-in-hand. On or around buses, students must conduct themselves in accordance with these school bus rules:

- •Obey the driver or adult.
- •Enter and exit the bus safely and always show your bus pass.
- Stay properly seated and use seat belts when available.
- •Keep your hands, feet and other body parts to yourself.
- •Do not throw things inside or outside the bus.
- •Remain quiet and do not disturb the driver or others.
- •No profanity, indecency, smoking, prohibited items or vandalism.
- •Do not eat, drink or chew gum.
- •Be responsible and be safe.

Don't miss out on the action!

Fence removal symbolic of joint unity

By Rick Scavetta

U.S. ARMY GARRISON KAISERSLAUTERN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

KAISERSLAUTERN – In the woods behind Kapaun Air Station, Airman 1st Class Michael Callaghan snipped barb wire from fencing as Airman 1st Class Nicholas Diibon dug out fence posts.

Nearby, on Vogelweh's main street, fellow 786th Civil Engineer Squadron Airmen tore through concrete on a Cold War-era guard shack. Their goal: open the area for pedestrians and vehicles to move freely between the two Air Force bases and Pulaski Barracks, said Tech Sgt. Leonard Collins, who oversaw the project.

"It's about two miles' worth of fences and three guard shacks that needed to be removed," said Collins, 28, from Riverside, Calif. "It's a pretty big project."

Eight Airmen worked for more than a month to complete the removal, collecting 100 tons of debris from the guard shacks, Collins said. Roughly 150 fence posts were recycled.

Passing by, Lt. Col. Lars Zetterstrom watched the crews removing the barriers and thought the Army should do likewise.

"This effort is indicative of the overall relationship we have here in the Kaiserslautern Military Community," said Zetterstrom, commander of U.S. Army

Rick Scavetta

Airman 1st Class Michael Callaghan helps fellow 786th Civil Engineer Squadron Airmen remove fences from Kapaun Air Station, part of an effort to open up the area between Army and Air Force bases in Kaiserslautern.

Garrison Kaiserslautern, who ordered the garrison's public works directorate to remove 885 feet of fencing from Pulaski Barracks, near the traffic circle linking the Army post to Vogelweh and Kapaun.

Blurring physical lines is more than just aesthetics; it's symbolic of the Army and Air Force togetherness, Zetterstrom said

"Tearing down fences between two Air Force bases and an Army installation represents what's happening in our community," Zetterstrom said.

"The Army and the Air Force are really starting to cooperate together, to find better ways to provide for our joint service members and their families."

In the past, both services built fences to deter external threats. But those physical barriers eventually had an impact on Army and Air Force cooperation, Zetterstrom said.

In fact, the demarcation had more to do with the KMC's past than the current joint community, where Army and Air Force live side by side and use the same on-post services, he said.

With the barriers now removed, heavy trucks making deliveries now move more easily through roadways. Airmen on Kapaun have a direct path to the commissary, bowling alley and eateries. Service members can also use the area for short hikes.

"These three installations are now integrated into a joint community that should appear seamless to the public," Zetterstrom said.

"It really makes the whole area look more visually appealing."

Top cops prep for Kiss and Drop program

Dijon Rolle

Maj. Tulip Frazier and Maj. Joseph Hissim examine the signage on orange traffic barriers near Patrick Henry Elementary School in Heidelberg Aug. 15. The barriers will be used to set up the Kiss and Drop Zone beginning Monday. A Military Policeman and a PHV staff member will monitor the zone as parents drop off and pick up their children each school day.

By Dijon Rolle

USAG BADEN-WÜRTTEMBERG PUBLIC AFFAIRS

With only a few days remaining, Maj. Tulip C. Frazier and Maj. Joseph E. Hissim, both from U.S. Army Garrison Baden-Württemberg's Provost Marshal's Office, check and re-check the final few details needed for the launch of the garrison's Kiss and Drop program at Patrick Henry Village Elementary School in Heidelberg Monday, the first day of school.

On Aug. 15, the pair checked the signage on a set of orange barriers Military Police will use to direct traffic near the school during the key pick-up and drop-off hours of 7:15-8:15 a.m. and 2:15-3:15 p.m. each school day.

Nearby, new blue and white Kiss and Drop signs were posted in the housing areas by the school to inform residents of the change in the flow of traffic (before and after school).

According to Frazier, Military Police and safety officials have already conducted a series of rehearsals to ensure everything goes as planned next week. Information flyers and maps were also sent to PHV residents informing them of the change in traffic flow due to the Kiss and Drop program.

In March, Frazier – along with the garrison commander, command sergeant major, school officials and several members of the garrison staff – began talks to create a program designed to increase the safety of students by reducing traffic and congestion near the school during peak drop-off and pick-up hours.

The result was the creation of the Kiss and Drop program, where parents can drop their children off safely inside a specially-designated zone close to the school without impeding traffic or parking illegally in residential spaces.

The Kiss and Drop zone will be located at the intersection of South Gettysburg and Little Big Horn on PHV near the school.

Military Police and a staff member from Patrick Henry Village Elementary School will monitor the intersection as parents drive up to drop-off their children.

Parents then make a left turn onto Little Big Horn and head out toward the South Lexington intersection, where they can turn either left or right.

Frazier added that working collectively to create and carry out the program's concept was a bonus for everyone involved.

"Safety was the overall concern," she said. "But through this process, we've also been able to build a relationship with the elementary school. The only relationship I had with the elementary school as the Provost Marshal was the DARE program and having the fire inspectors going in the school conducting training with the kids, but we didn't have a bond between the Military Police station and the elementary school staff. So I think the Kiss and Drop will be a benefit we're all going to reap from." Frazier said.

Despite the obvious safety benefits to the community and its members, Frazier is aware the program may still have some critics.

"We're trying to satisfy everyone by keeping nonresidents out of the residential parking spaces and keep traffic flowing, but of course we understand that we are not going to satisfy everyone.

"There are going to be residents that may be a little upset because we're changing the traffic flow, and some parents may not like the exact location of the Kiss and Drop. But again, our number one concern is the safety of the children," Frazier said.

Even with the new program in place, she urged drivers, pedestrians and parents to remain vigilant by obeying the speed limit, continuing to watch for children crossing the street outside of designated areas, following directions from Military Police who will be on site and allowing for extra time to reach destinations during peak school

'Safe people, safe places' key message for child safety

Teaching children to avoid 'strangers' no longer considered effective

By Michele Barber

ARMY COMMUNITY SERVICE FAMILY ADVOCACY PROGRAM MANAGER

Child abduction is every parent's nightmare, and with recent incidents in the Kaiserslautern Military Community, many are talking about "stranger danger" and what the U.S. Army Garrison Baden-Württemberg community is doing to protect children.

While there are many safeguards in place, parents are the first line of defense in keeping children safe. Here are some tips for parents:

- 1. Teach your children to use the telephone and to dial the local emergency numbers (DSN 114, civ. 06221-57-114). If you have speed dialing, pre-program and test the number.
- 2. Teach your children not to go anywhere alone, but to go with a friend or sibling instead. Also, teach them not to take shortcuts through the woods, empty lots or back streets, but to follow the safe path that you have established with them.
- 3. Talk to your children about "safe people, safe places" and how they can stay safe when you are not around. Most often, children are abducted or molested by people they know. They need to know how to protect themselves, both with strangers and with people they know and trust. It's important to let them know about "safe places" where they can go for help, perhaps the Military Police station, the Village Pavilion Community Center in Heidelberg or the school. They also need to know who the "safe people" in the community are, those who can provide help, like their teacher, a neighbor or a close friend.
- 4. Create a family rule that prohibits making changes to plans or getting into anyone's car unless you have approved it. There is no need to specify a stranger or a stranger's car. Children often don't think of friendly and nice-looking people as strangers, and teaching children to avoid "strangers" is no longer considered effective.

5. Create a "no secrets" rule in your family. Children are generally helpful, seek adult approval and are responsive to adult directives. Often they can be tricked by adults seeking to abuse them. Help your children feel comfortable in telling you anything, so if something does happen, they will tell you.

6. Teach children to kick and fight, and yell out, "No. Go away. I don't know you" if they feel threatened by someone they don't know. This will alert others to the situation. Have them practice shouting this phrase; it will help them remember it and find their voice in the critical moment.

The most important step to protecting children is following the U.S. Army Europe Child Supervision Guidance summarized at right. The guidance was written considering the developmental needs of children and provides the minimum appropriate supervision that is required for children from birth through 12th grade.

Parents who provide supervision based on their maturity level are protecting their children's safety and well-being. The military police enforce this guidance, which is briefed at in-processing. Violations can result in a citation and a report of child neglect to the Family Advocacy Program.

Children need to be taught safety skills and empowerment to keep themselves safe with positive messages that build their self confidence. Allow your children to attend the "Child Safety" classes that will be taught at the elementary schools this fall, and follow up with them at home using the parent's guide and student's workbook that they bring home. These educational materials will also be available at the C.A.R.E. Fair Saturday at the Village Pavilion Community Center on Patrick Henry Village.

Children don't need to be taught that the world is a dangerous place; most people they will encounter are basically good. Most importantly, children need to know their parents and other trusted adults are there for them if they are in trouble, and they should be encouraged to seek help from "safe people, safe places."

For additional information or training on child safety for your unit or group, call Army Community Service at civ. 06221-57-6883.

Child Supervision Guidelines

Newborn through age 4 – May not be left alone at home, in cars or outside, even when playing.

Kindergarten through Grade 5 — May not be left home alone and may not baby-sit, even siblings. They may be left outside unattended in yards or playgrounds if they are within sight or hearing distance and have immediate access to adult supervision. Kindergartners may not walk alone to or from school or other activities. Those in grades 1 through 5 may walk to and from school and other Department of Defense-sanctioned activities alone. Parents must consider the distance to be walked, school building opening times, hours of darkness and the child's maturity. Kindergarten through grade 3 may not be left unattended in cars. Fourth and fifth-graders may be left unattended in cars for up to 10 minutes if the keys have been removed and the handbrake is applied.

Grades 6 and 7 — May be left at home alone for up to 6 hours in a 24-hour period with ready access to adult supervision, but not overnight. They may be left outside unattended for up to 6 hours and may be left unattended in cars. Baby-sitting restrictions: Sixth graders may baby-sit siblings (but not others) up to 3 hours. Seventh-graders may baby-sit siblings or others up to 6 hours. Neither group may baby-sit overnight and may only baby-sit with ready access to adult supervision.

Grades 8-10 — May be left at home alone but not overnight, and may be left unattended outside or in cars. Baby-sitting restrictions: They may baby-sit (with ready access to adult supervision) siblings or others up to 12 hours, but not overnight.

Grades 11 and 12 — May be left at home alone and may be left unattended outside or in cars. They may be left alone overnight up to 48 hours, but an adult neighbor or adult friend must check in on them at least every 12 hours. Minors must have telephone access to a neighbor in case of an emergency and must know where at least one parent is.

Walker Unearths Spy Tunnel

Werner Sobolewski's afternoon stroll in the northern countryside a few weeks ago was interrupted when he came across a wide section of corrugated metal pipe poking out of the ground. The curve of steel stirred a distant memory for the 62-year-old, who had worked at an East German army base in the Mecklenburg Western-Pomerania area. He remembered recruits running through the tunnel during training, but had a feeling there was more to it than that. He was right; the two-meter diameter tube had once been part of a tunnel built by western intelligence agencies from their part of Berlin to directly under the East Berlin telephone exchange used by the Soviets, Dubbed "Operation Gold" by the 300 American and British agents operating it, the 450 meter-long tunnel was stuffed with tapping equipment and was said to have enabled spies to listen to 440,000 phone calls in the year they used it. Until now, historians believed most of the tunnel dug up from under the eastern side of the city had been lost, as there was a chance the top-notch steel was melted

Far-Right Activists Stage Protest

Hundreds of police were braced for clashes Saturday when around 50 members of the Pro Deutschland group displayed the provocative cartoon alongside banners reading "Stop Islamization." A police spokesman said around 100 far-left and anti-Nazi activists staged a counter-protest nearby, with fears the two sides could descend into violence. Several years ago, an infamous Danish cartoon of the Prophet Mohammed prompted a violent reaction around the world, as his depiction is prohibited under Islamic law. Nevertheless, Berlin's administrative court granted Pro Deutschland the right to march following an appeal by three mosque congregations "to prevent the citizens' movement Pro Deutschland from showing so-called Mohammed caricatures in front of their premises." The court said the cartoons were protected as "artistic freedom" and could not legally be considered as abuse of a religious group. "Simply showing the Mohammed cartoons does not qualify as a call to hatred or violence against a specific segment of the population," it ruled.

Dear Ms. Vicki,

My husband cheated, and he blames me. He said I'm not attentive, I'm not sexy, I'm too involved with the children and I don't want to romance him. I guess he is saying these women provide his every need?

Then why is he staying married to me? If the other women are making him so happy, then why doesn't he stay with them permanently? Instead he comes home and tries to crawl in bed with me.

He is making me sick, and I don't think I can forgive this. My mother said, "He's a man." What does that mean? Does it mean that men don't know how to respect their wives?

I didn't ask for this. Yes, I'm tired because I work, take care of the children and take care of the house, and he doesn't do anything to help.

Maybe if he got off the video games, stopped watching TV and helped me around the house, I wouldn't be so tired and maybe I would feel sexy and romantic. He doesn't compliment me and make me feel pretty. Everything is a complaint. I've gained too much weight; I look old; blah, blah, blah.

Am I supposed to be responsible for everything, even his cheating? I'm Heartbroken

Dear Heartbroken,

It's not your fault your husband is cheating. However, from your report it appears your marriage has some issues that could definitely cause marital problems. I'm not saying your husband should cheat, but I think there is a disconnection between the two of you.

In counseling sessions with couples who have experienced infidelity, the one who cheated always reports an emotional disconnection from their partner. In their mind, it's a reason to seek that affection from someone else.

Listen, I'm not blaming you; I'm just saying perhaps you and your husband could benefit from marriage counseling and gain insight into your behaviors.

I have seen marriages survive infidelity, but your husband can't blame you. He has to accept responsibility for his behavior and stop being condescending and making degrading remarks. He should also help with the children and the housework. It's only fair.

Check for marriage counseling options on base or contact Military OneSource or Tricare. They will connect you to a therapist in your local community. Hang in there.

Dear Ms. Vicki,

My husband cannot seem to get his bearings since he redeployed from Afghanistan. He was wounded by an improvised explosive device, and he lost one of his legs and has some injuries to both arms and scarring all over his body. He feels like he is used goods, yesterday's leftovers.

I totally understand how he feels. He was quickly isolated from his unit like he had a disease, and his battle buddies quickly forgot about him. He's had numerous surgeries trying to restore his skin and the function in his hands and arms.

Trying to get the right prosthetic for his leg was a nightmare. It's like no one cares anymore. My husband has been tossed aside because he is not useful to his country any longer. But when he was capable of serving 24/7, he was important.

Ms. Vicki, I know you get a lot of letters. Surely we are not the only couple who feels this way. I want to help my husband, but I feel lost, too.

From: Soldier and wife both dumped by their country

Dear Wife.

I know this is a very difficult time for you and your husband. No one is to blame, and your feelings are normal. You have been stressed, overwhelmed and you are grieving many losses: your husband's previous level of functionality, his military career and the zest for life that you both previously had before his injuries.

It sounds like your husband is being taken care of medically, but it's important you both reach out for support from family, friends and spiritually. I also recommend therapy. I know it's hard, but your husband defines himself based on his injuries and you are doing the same. He is still a great man.

Exchange school meals to meet new nutrition standards

Army and Air Force Exchange Service

MAINZ KASTEL – Students will find new healthy school cafeteria choices on bases in Germany, the United Kingdom, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Turkey that will be provided by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

"The Exchange will be serving healthy meals for [Department of Defense Dependents Schools] that meet new federal nutrition standards, ensuring that the meals are well-balanced and provide students all the nutrition they need to succeed at school," said Al Tagab, Senior Restaurant Program Specialist for the Exchange's Europe Region.

School meals offer students milk, fruit, vegetables, meat, a meat alternative and grains, and they must meet strict limits for calories and saturated fat.

"We're always working to offer students in the Europe Region healthier, tastier choices, and Capt. Kate Schrumm, Registered Dietician, Exchange HQ in Dallas, provides us direct guidance and expertise to ensure menus offered meet all United States Department of Agriculture nutrition standards," Tagab said.

"In addition to meeting new nutrition standards, we're spicing up our school lunch menu with items that have been specifically chosen for their mass appeal and that we can make with less sodium and reduced fat.

"We'll also unveil a new program logo, signage, menu board and uniforms," Tagab added.

A few new selections students will see this fall include black bean quesadillas, chicken parmesan, turkey hot dogs and frozen fruit juice swirl cups, Tagab said.

Some whole grain choices added this year are whole wheat tortillas (also in tomato and spinach flavors), whole grain pirogues and whole grain chicken egg rolls, along with many other selections.

Starting this fall, school lunches will meet additional standards requiring:

- •Age-appropriate calorie range
- •Larger servings of vegetables and fruit (students must take at least one serving of fruit or vegetables)
 - •A wider variety of vegetables, including legumes, dark green, red or orange varieties

- •Fat-free or one-percent milk (flavored milk must be fat-free)
 - •More whole grains
 - •Less sodium

Other changes for the school lunch program in the fall include a new application that allows parents to track their child's school lunch balance.

The Meal Pay Plus site where parents paid for their children's school lunch has been changed to My Meal Payment Plus and can now be found at www.mypaymentsplus.com. The old Meal Pay Plus site address automatically defaults to the new address

As an option to paying their children's balance online, parents can also go to any Exchange customer service department at their main Exchange store to add funds or make changes to their child's lunch account.

To find out more about the school meals served by the Exchange, log onto www.shopmyexchange.com, go to Community Info at the bottom of the page and click on the school lunch program.

THE CAMPAIGN

(Will Ferrell, Zach Galifianakis) When long-term congressman Cam Brady commits a major public gaffe before an upcoming election, a pair of ultra-wealthy CEOs plot to put up a rival candidate and gain influence over their North Carolina district. Their man: naive Marty Huggins, director of the local tourism center. At first, Marty appears to be the unlikeliest possible choice, but, with the help of his new benefactors' support, a cutthroat campaign manager and his family's political connections, he soon becomes a contender who gives the charismatic Cam plenty to worry about. Final hunters competition held in Oftersheim

By Dominic Knoll
USAREUR DJV CHAIRMAN

Held annually for more than 25 years, the last American Deutsche Jagdschutz Verband Hunters Competition Shoot took place at the Heidelberg Rod and Gun Club in Oftersheim Aug. 11.

More than 40 participants competed in rifle shooting disciplines including both stationary and moving targets at 100 and 50 meters, as well as shooting trap and skeet targets with a shotgun.

United States Army Europe DJV Chairman and shoot organizer Dominic Knoll noted that many shooters came from far away, including the Black Forest, Rheinland Pfalz, Bavaria and Hessen for the annual American Large Gold competition. After the shoot, participants enjoyed a grillfest of steaks, bratwurst and hamburgers cooked to order by grillmeisters Brad Tauch and Mike Sinnema.

At the closing ceremony, Knoll thanked a host of volunteers, both German and American, who assisted in running registrations and ranges, noting that without them, it would be impossible to hold these shoots.

Among the many volunteers were Gisela Vierling, Gabriele Caudell-Knoll and Anna Nance, who kept registrations straight, as well as and Heinrich Vierling, Ernst Nagel, Martin Loercher, Bob Nicholson, Ed Puterbaugh, Tom Winkel and Gerry Clayton, who kept events running smoothly on the range. Their many years of experience and dedication to the sport helped make the event a success.

Knoll then presented three gold, five silver, and five bronze American DJV pins to shooters who qualified. In addition, on behalf of the Rod and Gun Club Advisory Council, Brad Tauch presented the Council Silver Certificate to Mike Sinnema for his volunteer work over the last several years, noting that he will soon be departing to join his wife Jennifer King-Sinnema in Alabama.

Heidelberg Rod and Gun Club hunters continue to hone their shooting skills as competition winds up for the American Forces Team of the top six shooters to attend the DJV Bundesmeisterschaft (German Nationals) to be held early September near Hamburg

Heidelberg Golf Club Championship

By Rex Gribble
HEIDELBERG GOLF COURSE

Four golfers won championships at the annual Club Championship at the Heidelberg golf course Saturday and Sunday.

Twenty-year-old Martin Mahler shot rounds of 78-75 to win the men's title by a single stroke over Marco

Armbruster. The latter shot a two-under-par 34 with an Eagle 3 on the 8th hole for a two-stroke lead over Mahler at the turn Sunday, but Mahler played the final four holes in one-under-par to win after Armbruster bogeyed the final hole.

Paul Walzenbach won the senior men's division by three strokes over Carsten Straetz with 152 from the up-front senior's tees, after his wife Roswitha beat Gudrun Kugelmann in a playoff for the senior ladies title. Both women had 187. Anna Zilli won the ladies division with 180.

Net winners (without handicap) in the four divisions were Gunther Birkel in the men's, Tom Powell for senior men's, Young Hi (ladies) and Gudrun Kugelmann (senior ladies.)

Long drive winners were William Price, Charles Addison, Sy Daranouvong, James McKay, Roswitha Walzenbach, Gudrun Kugelmann, Un Hui Braun and Claudia Bohl. Closest to the pin winners were McKay, Armbruster, Karl-Heinz Knieriem, Helga Worm and Claudia Bohl.

Club Director Ed Galvan conducted the awards ceremony, thanking his staff and participants for taking part in the hottest weekend of the summer.

Sembach Soldiers 'kick back' at new Warrior Zone

By Capt. Daniëlle Hamer

30TH MEDCOM RESERVE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICER

SEMBACH - The smell of new leather embraces Soldiers who walk into the renovated Warrior Zone in the bowling alley on Sembach Kaserne.

Soldiers entering the Warrior Zone are welcomed by tall coffee-shop style tables, magazines to read, couches to sink into in front of a multitude of TVs and gaming systems and neatly positioned remote controls on each side table ready to comply with their users' endless demands.

The space evokes a sense of coziness that feels like a living room, with its plush couches and flowers on

'We want Soldiers to feel at home here. This is a VIP lounge for everybody," said Gert Lindenau, recreational aide for Family and Morale, Welfare and

The updated Warrior Zone features six flat screen TVs with cable and DVD players, six XBOX 360 systems, eight computers, a pool table and free Wi-Fi through three different hubs. Soldiers can also enjoy snack bar foods from the bowling alley portion, which has 12 bowling lanes.

"I think the Wi-Fi is really great, and it's just a comfortable place to kick back and watch a movie," said Spc. Julie Brinko of 30th Medical Command, who has worked on Sembach two weeks.

"I go eat at the bowling alley in the morning and then I use it," Brinko said of the Warrior Zone and

Brinko said it's a nice recreation point for Soldiers

It is not just tenant unit Soldiers who enjoy the center. Soldiers who live on other installations in the area use the facilities with the same ease.

"I come here during lunch or whenever I am on Sembach," said Spc. Anthony Stokes of the 95th Military Police Battalion who lives on Vogelweh but works and often spends time with friends on Sembach Kaserne.

"My favorite part is the couches," Stokes said.

The Warrior Zone may not have seen much use yet, but that is not likely to last. With several more units moving to Sembach Kaserne bringing many young Soldiers, the Warrior Zone is set up to meet their social needs.

Save A Life Tour coming to KMC next week

USAG Kaiserslautern Public Affairs

The Save a Life Tour, which uses giant simulators to explain the consequences of driving while drinking or on drugs, will be at Rhine Ordnance Barracks in Kaiserslautern Aug. 29-31.

"It's a unique opportunity for our young Soldiers to have a greater understanding and experience simulated "drunk and drugged driving" situations in the hope that they will not have one in reality," said Sandra Magill, the garrison's Employee Assistance Program Coordinator.

There are two shows each day at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. Units must reserve seats, and Soldiers in pay grade E-4 and below are encouraged to attend.

The event counts toward annual Army Substance Abuse and Prevention training, Magill said.

An Intoxiclock will demonstrate how intoxication changes with increasing alcohol levels, and ADAC will have a "roll over" car at the event.

Kaiserslautern community members share coupons, coffee

Financial Readiness Assistant Charlene Sanchez-Liccardi announces the winner of the couponing starter kit during a raffle at the coupon class held recently at Rhine Ordnance Barracks in Kaiserslautern.

By Helen Tesfai

USAG KAISERSLAUTERN PUBLIC AFFAIRS

At half past noon at the Java Café on Rhine Ordnance Barracks, the smell of freshlybrewed coffee filled the air as sounds from the espresso machine and milk foamer mixed with the blender crushing ice.

A few ladies who arrived for U.S. Army Garrison Kaiserslautern's couponing class ordered their blended coffees and white chocolate mochas. All who attended the couponing class sponsored by the Army Community Service Financial Readiness Program got 10 percent off the original price - a special offer from the garrison's directorate of Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation.

They grabbed their cups and headed to couches in a cozy corner.

Waiting there was Tedy Washington, 45, from Omaha, Neb., who remembered vividly the day she started coupon-

"On April 1 this year, I officially started couponing," Washington said. "I quit my job on March 29, thinking that we were [moving], and the orders didn't come down, so I had to start figuring out where to cut some expenses."

Now she's a successful socalled "extreme couponer," who spends roughly 40 hours each week organizing her coupons, shopping all three area commissaries and volunteering to share experiences with community members.

"I save $300 to $400 a month, compared to what I used to spend on groceries," Washington said, emphasizing her point with a nod and Lori Sweazey, of St. Louis, read about the class on ACS's monthly e-mail. Within the first few minutes, she was excited about the program.

"My husband is deployed right now and my daughter and I keep ourselves busy," Sweazey said. "So this is something that we could do together."

To make sure everyone was off to a good start, Charlene Sanchez-Liccardi, a garrison financial readiness assistant, explained where to find coupons, how to organize them and discussed local coupon policies.

"We want to promote savings; we're trying to show people how to save money, how to find extra money in their pocket," Sanchez-Liccardi said.

"We want to make sure that the Soldiers are missionready. If you're not financially ready, you're not going to be mission-ready."

The ACS Financial Readiness Program offers a couponing class every second Tuesday of the month. The next class is Sept. 11.

30th Medical Command Headquarters settles in Sembach

By Capt. Daniëlle Hamer

30TH MEDCOM RESERVE PUBLIC AFFAIRS OFFICER

SEMBACH – The 30th Medical Command has nearly finished unpacking the last boxes after a summer-long move to the unit's new home at Sembach Kaserne.

The 30th MEDCOM provides medical support for combat, humanitarian assistance and training missions for U.S. European Command, U.S. Army Europe, U.S. Africa Command and Operations Enduring Freedom and Kosovo Force. The unit's move from Heidelberg is part of the U.S. Army's ongoing transformation effort in Europe.

"Planning started over a year ago when former commander Col. John Cho toured the buildings on Sembach. We began the physical move in July," said Maj. Richard Floyd, 30th MEDCOM's deputy logistics officer.

The unit's greatest challenges were timing the relocation and whether or not the buildings would be ready for the unit to occupy, Floyd said. The move consisted of two major components, equipment and personnel. "Moving desks and computers was the easy part, but personnel are more complex," Floyd said.

To reduce uncertainty for Soldiers and their families, the unit encouraged families to be involved through town hall meetings and social media forums. For Staff Sgt. Michael Linder, relocating went very well, he said.

"I liked living in Heidelberg; the town was really great," Linder said. "But it's nice here. And the move was easy and quick."

A brief call to Heidelberg's housing office was all it took, he said. A moving truck arrived and could deliver his household goods in two days. His new daily commute, from Vogelweh to Sembach, is similar to his commute from Patrick Henry Village in Heidelberg to Nachrichten Kaserne, where 30th MEDCOM was previously located.

The 421st Multifunctional Medical Battalion Headquarters, one of 30th MEDCOM's direct reporting units, also relocated this summer from Wiesbaden to Baumholder. Several of its subordinate companies and detachments joined them from various locations throughout Germany. For more information, visit www.30thmed.army.mil.

everything going well up here? Is there anything you guys need?' ... [That] was the personal touch she gave us, the caring ... it was coming from her heart," Richter said.

But even the sergeant major needed help at times.

When it appeared the senior noncommissioned officer was staying late at work, Hockensmith said to her, "You need to go home and cook [for your family] tonight."

With a Master of Arts in Human Resource Development from Webster University, Weber understood the dynamics between people and organizations, and knew how to lead and interact with others based on the situation.

This keen understanding helped her run USAG Baden-Württemberg, and it will help her in her next assignment as the command sergeant major of the Soldier Support Institute at Fort Jackson, S.C.

In leaving Heidelberg, Weber said she was confident Kraus is the right candidate to help DeCoster with the garrison's 2013 inactivation.

"He has been in the unit ... and got an opportunity to see the services that a garrison provided. Now he gets an opportunity to see ... [up close] the big picture of what a garrison provides," Weber said about Kraus.

"He's the visual [who] will help the commander go through the transformation process, so I think it's great that he's coming on board and [helping] the commander out with that mission, that tough mission," she added.

The next large-scale ceremony will be when the garrison stands up USAG Kaiserslautern as a direct-reporting garrison.

DLA Troop Support welcomes new leadership

DLA Strategic Communications

Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support Europe and Africa senior leaders, employees and partners from across the region gathered to welcome the new commander during an Assumption of Command ceremony Aug. 8 in Kaiserslautern.

Army Lt. Col. Patrick E. Taylor comes to DLA Troop Support Europe and Africa from the U.S. Army Europe G4, where he served as the deployment operations chief in the Mobility Operations division.

DLA Troop Support Acting Commander Navy Rear Adm. Patricia Wolfe, who presided over the ceremony, praised Taylor for his accomplishments and shared her excitement for his new assignment.

"Congratulations to you, Lt. Col. Taylor, for being selected to command this outstanding and crucial organization," she said.

^aYour logistics experience on multiple deployments, including Iraq and Afghanistan assignments to key positions of increased responsibility ... all indicate to me the high-quality leader you are."

A member of the Army since 1987, Taylor has served in numerous transportation and logistics positions and has received many awards and honors.

He received his commission as a transportation officer from East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C., and has received many honors and awards, including the Bronze Star.

Being new to DLA Troop Support as well, Wolfe stated that the key to success is the camaraderie and network built with the various organizations that came to welcome Taylor.

Army Lt. Col. Patrick E. Taylor, center, the new Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support Europe and Africa commander, receives the organization's colors from DLA Troop Support Acting Commander Navy Rear Adm. Patricia Wolfe, left, during his Assumption of Command ceremony Aug. 8 in Kaiserslautern.

"T'm quite new to Troop Support," Taylor said. "And as I begin to make fascinating discoveries about the complexity of the work you all do here, there is one single theme that strikes me, that weaves its way through every aspect of our collective work. And that is the importance of relationships."

Wolfe noted that Taylor's knowledge and experience will make him an asset to the organization.

"I view DLA Troop Support Europe and Africa as the hub of all these organizations," Wolfe said. "Lt. Col. Taylor, you're now at the center of these relationships: ensuring communications, collaboration, clarification and focus. We're all lucky to have you as part of the team."

hours.

Initially, violators who fail to heed the Kiss and Drop instructions will receive verbal or written warnings and citations can be issued for blatant violations.

As the community braces for the new change, Frazier is busy preparing for one of her own.

Earlier this month, she handed over the reins of the Provost Marshal's Office to Hissim, her replacement.

Hissim arrived here a little over a month ago from Fort Bragg, N.C., where he served as Deputy Provost Marshal for the 18th Airborne Corps Headquarters.

"I'm excited about this opportunity, and my family is excited to be in Europe. I've been in the Army almost 20 years, and we have been trying to get over here the whole time," Hissim said.

"All the services that the MP have been providing have been excellent, and I've had a really good transition with Maj. Frazier.

"Everything has been smooth, including the operations, and I look forward to trying to maintain that level of support that they have been providing in the past," he said.

As the garrison's top cop, Hissim is now responsible for managing the garrison's force protection assets, Installation Access Control System, the Fire Department, Vehicle Registration, the access control points, daily MP patrols, incident responses and MP station operations.

Added to that is the fact he'll still be carrying out his duties in the midst of the garrison's deactivation next year.

"I think transformation is going to be the biggest challenge, for me especially.

"Shutting down while making sure we provide the same level of support and services to the community will be a challenge," Hissim said.

Even though he officially took over Aug. 15, Frazier will remain at his side until early September to answer questions and ensure the transition remains seamless.

Afterward, Frazier plans to take leave and be reassigned within the Garrison.
