NSWC food drive benefits Settlement House

Inland families hit by tough economic times got some holiday cheer thanks to a truckload of food collected by military and civilians based at the Naval Surface Warfare Center, Corona Division, and delivered Wednesday to Settlement House in Corona just in time for Thanksgiving.

Each year the Norco base conducts a food drive among its workforce of roughly 1,200 military and civilian scientists, engineers and contractors. The drive benefits the charity founded in 1912 by local women to aid migrant workers in the citrus orchards.

Most of the orange groves have been replaced by businesses and homes, but the need to help those less fortunate has grown along with the Inland region's population.

"It's worse this year," said

Sally Carlson, chairperson and director of the non-profit charity Settlement House. "A lot of families are hurting, a lot of people have lost jobs and it's just been hard on everybody."

The food drive is just one of several holiday events aimed at supporting the community, said Cmdr. Eric Ver Hage, commanding officer of NSWC Corona Division. "While we're providing ongoing mission support for the Navy and our troops deployed around the world, we also turn our attention to support those in our own community who are in need of a helping hand during this holiday season."

Navy Chief Petty Officer

Andra Hall, who again chaired the event, said the drive provides an opportunity for the base to express its concern for struggling families in a region that has been particularly slammed by unemployment and homelessness. "It feels good to help," he said.

The Settlement House's food pantry is the agency's biggest program. Each day, volunteers provide 45 to 50 bags of food to people in need. Typical donations that are most popular include macaroni and cheese, peanut butter and jelly, beans and rice, plus cans of tuna, corn and green beans.

Lorena Moreno, Settlement House office manager, said that donations are down this year as a reflection of a sluggish economy. She said 200 families were given a Thanksgiving turkey and all the trimmings. Some 600 other families will be aided with enough food to enjoy Christmas.

SETTING IT STRAIGHT

CORRECTION: A story in Thursday's edition about decorated Christmas trees used in a Habitat for Humanity fundraiser at The Promenade mall in Temecula misspelled the name of Menifee artist Edie Schmol.

What is Annual Enrollment and Why is it Important?

- Annual enrollment is from October 15, 2011 through December 7, 2011
- Anyone enrolled in a prescription drug plan can switch to another plan for the following year
- Those who have missed their original deadline for enrolling in Part D can join the program
- Your medication needs may have changed since last year
- Many plans change their costs and coverage from one year to another
- The coverage you get from your current plan may look very different on January 1, so it is important to evaluate your plan each year!

Make an appointment to come in to Walgreens and we can print your plan comparison report that lists the plans in your area, as well as their costs and details customized for your medications.

Questions Your Plan Comparison Report Can Help Answer

- Is my current plan still the best plan option available?
- Are all or most of my current medications covered by the plan?
- What can I expect to pay each month for coverage?
- What are my estimated annual drug costs?
- Does the plan offer any coverage during the Coverage Gap/"Donut Hole"?
- Any Walgreens store is happy to help you print your plan comparison report.
- Our pharmacists are available to walk you through the report and answer your questions.
- We offer technical support in store or at special events to help you understand the Annual Enrollment Period.

Why Choose Walgreens as My Pharmacy?

- We have the most 24 hour pharmacies
- If your plan allows, we can fill a 90-day supply of your medication
- We offer easy-open prescription caps and large print prescription instructions available in 14 different languages.
- We offer automatic prescription refills on qualified drugs
- We provide immunizations
- Walgreens 10-point safeguard check
- Our personable and knowledgeable pharmacy staff is always available to answer your questions
