Falcon Heritage Forum hits the road

Ten Air Force Academy cadets had the opportunity to walk through history with World War II veterans in the nation's capital April 7-9, as part of the Falcon Heritage Forum.

The forum is hosted by the Center for Character and Leadership Development and historically provides cadets a chance to interact directly with veterans from various backgrounds. For the first time ever, event organizers partnered with the Rocky Mountain Honor Flight, a local organization that provides World War II veterans in the region an opportunity to visit the National World War II Memorial in Washington, to give 10 lucky cadets the chance to interact directly with 29 veterans from America's greatest generation.

"This is the first time we have done something like this for FHF," said Capt Julie A. Mustian, Falcon Heritage Forum program director. "In the past, the veterans came to the Academy and offered the Cadet Wing several short interactive sessions. The 10 traveling cadets, although a smaller group than what FHF usually reaches, were immersed in World War II history for three days, enabling each of them to form an emotional, intimate and lasting relationship with each other and the veterans."

It was an incredibly humbling experience hearing the stories of those who fought in a war that we'll never experience or come close to experiencing," said Cadet 1st Class

Megan Hoskins, Cadet Squadron 10. "Their bravery, courage, and own humbleness about their service was so inspiring and it was amazing to see how much of an impact our mere presence had on them. It seemed as though we brought them to life, asking about their stories and providing them the opportunity to mold their future leaders. Not only did the veterans make us feel like superstars, but the manner in which RMHF executed the activities and the incredible welcomes and attention these veterans received from passers-by or from those who came out just to see them, makes me feel better about our population's support for what the military stands for."

Along with the visit to the World War II memorial, cadets and veterans also witnessed a changing of the guard at Arlington National Cemetery and visited the U.S. Navy Memorial - Lone Sailor Memorial, Seabee's Memorial, Women's Memorial, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial, the Lincoln Memorial, the Marine Corps Memorial - Iwo Jima Memorial, the Air Force Memorial, the Korean War Memorial, the Vietnam War Memorial, and the Washington Navy Yard.

"The trip turned out to be more than we could have imagined," Capt Mustian said. "With every turn, there was another unique surprise to honor the veterans. Upon arrival at Baltimore Washington Airport we were welcomed on the taxi way by fire trucks with blazing sirens and spraying hoses - literally showering the plane with gratitude for the veterans and their service. Cheers rang

Do you know the truth about yourself?

Commentary by Col. Robert Eatman
60th Mission Support Group commander

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — “The unexamined life is not worth living” - Socrates

There is a risk associated with success and a great risk associated with great success.

As you rise in rank, it's easy to start believing you are smarter, better looking and less fallible, when a quick glance in a mirror would reveal the truth. Do you know the truth?

When my new first sergeant, an Army E-8, reported to duty to work for me when I was a combatant commander headquarters commandant, I told him one of his jobs was to be a “truth teller.” As my senior ranking enlisted member with an office next door, I expected him to come in, close the door and tell me when I had it all wrong.

It didn't take long before, at a meeting, without asking for opinions from my staff, I made an unnecessarily hasty decision. After the meeting, my first sergeant followed me into my office and asked me, “Sir, what the heck are you thinking? That's not going to work out like you think it is, sir.” He was right. I was wrong. And I was grateful he had the courage to close my door and speak his mind.

It takes an effort for leaders, and I'd argue more effort the more senior the leader, to build an environment where they can see a true reflection in their leadership mirror. I don't have all the answers, but I have some really great questions, to help develop an accurate reflection of yourself.

Are you steady, calm, predictable and approachable? Do you accept good and bad news with equal enthusiasm, humor and bearing? If your Airmen know they can bring you news, any news, and they don't have to worry you'll fly off the handle, you're on the right track.

If you are genuinely grateful when an Airman tells you something you don't know, even if it is painful to hear, Airmen will tell you things you need to know.

Can you name at least one fearless, honest broker you can count on to tell you when you are wrong, no matter what? When is the last time he or she told you that you just might be wrong? Have you ever changed your mind after having been advised that it's not going to work out like you think it is?

Do you reward those with the courage to speak their mind and tell you what you need to hear, especially when it is not what you want to hear?

Two quick stories come to mind. After a crowded exercise hot-wash, when a colonel asked how we would do on an upcoming deployment exercise, a young lieutenant replied she thought we would do well if we got on with the planning process more quickly. She wasn't particularly diplomatic, but she was courageous and told us things we needed to hear and not what we wanted to hear.

Late one night, while I was visiting our civil engineers as they worked in the cold, pouring rain on a potentially dangerous power substation, I heard them talk about what they needed to do to restore power to hundreds of housing residents. They knew their leadership, me included, wanted power back on. One of them suggested with the current conditions, fatigued Airmen and other complications, we were better off finishing the work after a little rest, in the light of day and with no live wires nearby. It meant continued inconvenience, but it was the right advice. I coined both of those truth-tellers and I hope the message is clear -- truth is truth, good or bad, and I want it raw and unvarnished.

Great danger awaits officers and senior noncommissioned officers who rely only upon their own eyes to see. Be sure you surround yourself with those who will share with you what they see. Even the Roman generals on their triumphal parade had a servant who whispered “Memento mori” in their ear. Remember thou art mortal (fallible), all glory and fame is fleeting, and, perhaps, you're not as smart or as good looking as you think.

Academy celebrates Arbor Day

QUICK LOOK

- Today, seedlings will be planted in the burn area in Douglass Valley.
- April 21, Forest City Earth Day event, at the Activity Center in Pine Valley, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.
- April 22, Earth Day educational fair at the base exchange, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Academy received its 18th consecutive Tree City USA award during its annual Arbor Day assembly and tree planting at Douglass Valley Elementary April 8.

Kindergarten students participated in a tree poster contest, with six student prize winners posing for a picture with Smokey Bear. The seventy-five kindergarteners then helped plant three spruce trees next to the school, where they can watch them grow throughout their years at Douglass Valley.

As part of the assembly, Colonel Rick LoCastro, 10th Air Base Wing commander, accepted the Academy's 18th consecutive Tree City USA award from Mr. Andy Schlosberg of the Colorado State Forest Service, recognizing the Academy's continued effort in taking care of our trees.

A second Arbor Day event is scheduled for today, Colorado's official Arbor Day, April 15. The 10th Medical Support Squadron is partnering with Academy Natural Resources to plant 130 seedlings in the recently burned area near Douglass Valley and the Pioneer Cabin.

Lt. Col. Mark Russo, 10th Civil Engineer Squadron commander, will kick off the event with a reading of the Academy's Arbor Day Proclamation, after which the group will enjoy a presentation on the history of the cabin by Jack Anthony, Academy faculty and amateur historian. Located just east of the burn area, this historic structure was narrowly missed by the recent flames.

Several other events are also planned in honor of Earth Day. Environmental, Energy and Natural Resources will host an Earth Day educational fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 22 at the Academy's base exchange. Staff will be present for questions, with informational brochures available to the public.

The 10th CES Environmental Flight will also host its 6th Annual Art/Poetry Contest at Douglass Valley Elementary, with 420 first through fifth graders participating. Informative brochures will be given to all students to help educate, with winners awarded prizes from local businesses including Burger King, Academy Lanes, and Laser Quest.

Winners will have their art or poetry displayed in the Community Center Library, and all students will receive an appreciation of participation certificate.

Awards will be presented to students late May (Date to be announced) during their end of year awards ceremony.

Forest City is also planning an Earth Day event from 3-5 p.m. April 21 at the Forest City Resident Activity Center in Pine Valley Housing.

Academy Cadet named Student Leader of the Year

By Leslie Finstein
Air Force Academy Public Affairs

The Air Force Academy develops leaders of character; and this week, one future leader was recognized for being the best in the state.

Cadet 1st Class Megan Hoskins was named Colorado Leadership Alliance Student Leader of the Year by the Denver Metro Chamber Leadership Foundation and the Boettcher Foundation.

Cadet Hoskins, Cadet Squadron 10, will receive the award at the 2011 CLA Luncheon in Denver on Tuesday. Each year this event brings together more than 700 business and community leaders from across the state to recognize the collegiate leaders of the Colorado Leadership Alliance, in addition to raising funds for program support of the CLA.

A graduate of Dallas' prestigious Hockaday School, Cadet Hoskins is a leading member of the Academy's Center for Character and Leadership Development's CLA club. After graduation, the economics major with a French minor will train to be an intelligence officer at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas.

"It was definitely a huge surprise -- there are so many students in the CLA doing such phenomenal things in their communities, and for the world, so I feel like I'm joining ranks with some really incredible people and it's a huge honor," said Cadet Hoskins on receiving the award.

"The real award for me, though, has been the privilege of working with the students I've met through the CLA and the Student Scholars Board," Cadet Hoskins explained.

"They're an amazing group of people who truly are going to change the world, and I'm excited to see where we all end up in 10 years because the impact they'll have will be pretty epic."

During this academic year, Cadet Hoskins planned and executed the 4th Biennial Colorado Leadership Alliance Invitational in October 2010, hosting 38 students at the Air Force Academy for a two-day seminar on visionary leadership. She is planning to conduct a similar seminar for local high school students April 29-30.

Further, she created a charity partnership among her classmates to help the homeless in Colorado Springs -- rallying her squadron mates to raise more than $4,000 in a donation drive. She has been recognized on the Academy's Dean's and Commandant's list every semester of her cadet career, and she was hand-picked to lead more than 3,000 students as summer cadet wing commander, among other accomplishments.

"Cadet Hoskins is the most professional and competent cadet I have worked with in more than 10 years at the Academy," said Major Sheilagh Carpenter, of the Commandant of Cadets staff, who nominated Cadet Hoskins for the award. "In addition to completing all that is required of her as a cadet, she takes on extra projects and opportunities to further her own and others' professional development. She is a master at enabling others to realize their potential."

"Some cadets excel in academics, others in athletics, still others in military performance or people skills. Rarely do you see a cadet who excels in all areas. Megan is the whole package," Carpenter added.

out as the travelers and service members from the local Baltimore/DC area created a tunnel of appreciation as we exited the aircraft.”

And that was just the beginning. On the return trip, veterans received an old fashioned “mail call” with each receiving letters from friends, family and grateful Americans thanking them for their service. Upon their arrival at the Denver airport, cadets and veterans received heroes’ welcomes.

“We were welcomed home by 200+ Americans waiting to offer a true homecoming to the generation that never had one,” Capt. Mustian said. “The Cadet Drum and Bugle Corps along with bagpipers serenaded the veterans as people flooded the terminal waving flags and signs to say ‘thank you’ to some of America’s finest. It truly was a sight to see.”

Kevin Conroy, an Air Force Academy contractor, was an escort for the trip, and was very impressed with the interaction he saw.

“The cadets experienced in three days something on the emotional and spiritual level of the history and lives of our American heroes, our greatest generation ever,” Mr. Conroy said. The veterans seemed quite comfortable in handing the torch of what they once guarded to our Cadets. That, to me, makes me proud to a part of this institution.”

Now that they’ve returned to the Academy, the cadets have been charged with showcasing their experiences to the Cadet Wing on April 27-28 in Arnold Hall. Participating cadets, veterans, and RMHF members will be in attendance. The Showcase event will premiere the trip video and offer a question and answer session.

“Hanging out with a group of people that were alive in a time where the country as a whole came together was very motivating,” said Cadet 2nd Class Matthew Clinard, from Cadet Squadron 8. “I hope that we can inspire the Cadet Wing to remember that we are here to serve our country and something bigger than ourselves, but also to go out and give back to the American people because so many need help and support.”

Dept. of Management retains accreditation

The Academy’s Department of Management is one of 68 schools to have maintained its accreditation in business from the AACSB.

The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business is the premier accrediting body for institutions offering undergraduate, master’s, and doctorate degrees in business and accounting.

“We are honored to receive this international honor that recognized the high quality of our program, our students, and our faculty,” said Col. Andrew Armacost, Permanent Professor and Head, Department of Management. “We are proud of the innovative undergraduate management program we offer, which helps prepare our future officers for their service to the nation. Our AACSB accreditation provides an important external validation of our high quality faculty, students, and academic program.”

“The AACSB moniker stands for outstanding quality, and this distinction honors our faculty, our students, and our program,” he added.

AACSB accreditation is the hallmark of excellence in business education and has been earned by less than five percent of the world’s business schools. Today, there are 620 business schools in 38 countries that maintain AACSB accreditation.

“AACSB commends the faculty, deans, directors, and administrative staffs of each institution for their exemplary work in helping their schools earn or maintain the highest honor in business school accreditation” said John J. Fernandes, president and chief executive officer of AACSB International.

Achieving accreditation is a process of rigorous internal review, evaluation, and adjustment and can take several years to complete. During these years, the school develops and implements a plan to meet the AACSB accreditation standards which require a high quality teaching environment, a commitment to continuous improvement, and curricula responsive to the needs of businesses.

“It takes a great deal of commitment and determination to earn or maintain AACSB accreditation,” said Jerry Trapnell, executive vice president and chief accreditation officer of AACSB International. “Schools must not only meet specific standards of excellence, but their deans, faculties and staffs must make a commitment to ongoing improvement to ensure that the institution will continue to deliver high quality education to students.”

Lamoureux wins Lowe's Senior CLASS Award

ST. PAUL, Minn. —Air Force forward Jacques Lamoureux has been selected as the 2010-11 Lowe's Senior CLASS Award winner in men's ice hockey. The announcement and trophy presentation were made April 7 by Lowe's, an official corporate partner of the NCAA®, at the NCAA Men's Frozen Four® in Saint Paul, Minn.

The award, chosen by a nationwide vote of Division I head coaches, national media and fans, is given annually to the most outstanding senior student-athlete in NCAA Division I men's ice hockey. To be eligible for the award, a student-athlete must be classified as an NCAA Division I senior and have notable achievements in four areas of excellence – community, classroom, character and competition.

"This is truly an honor and humbling to accept this award on behalf of my teammates and the Air Force Academy," Lamoureux said. "We have had a lot of worthy candidates the last few years and for someone to win this award from the Academy is a tremendous honor."

Lamoureux maintains a 3.76 grade point average in his management major. He has been on the Dean's List three times and was on the Superintendent's List in 2007 for excellence in academics, military and athletics. In 2010, he was selected to travel to Washington D.C., in the Cadet Summer Research Program. Lamoureux worked in the Pentagon, researching and analyzing data that pertains to combat effectiveness and deployments. Lamoureux has visited numerous schools in the Colorado Springs area, reading to youngsters, demonstrating the sport of hockey and talking about the importance of education and teamwork.

"Jacques Lamoureux stands for everything the Lowe's Senior CLASS Award represents," head coach Frank Serratore said. "He is an outstanding student, a tremendous leader and a highly decorated player. I am both proud and happy for Jacques as he is a very deserving and worthy recipient."

This season, Lamoureux led Air Force to its fourth Atlantic Hockey Association title in five years and the fourth NCAA appearance in school history. He earned second-team all-league honors this season as he scored 24 goals and had 44 points. He leads the nation with 13 power-play goals this season. The senior was also named the MVP of the AHA Tournament this season.

Brittany Dutton is the first Air Force gymnast to win the USAG uneven bars title.

Brittany Dutton shares USAG title on uneven bars

With a score of 9.800, Air Force senior Brittany Dutton became the Academy's first USA Gymnastics champion on the uneven bars, as the women's gymnastics team wrapped up competition at the 2011 USAG Collegiate National Championships Sunday at the Academy's Cadet West Gym.

In the individual event finals, Air Force's senior team captain tied with Cornell's Melanie Jorgansen for the USAG national title, as the pair scored matching marks of 9.800. That score was the second-highest total of Dutton's career, coming only behind her career-best 9.825 that she set against Bridgeport in mid-February and again during the team qualifier on Friday.

Dutton is the sixth Falcon to earn a USAG national title, joining Kimberly Broughton (all-around; 2000, 2000), Bethany Stott (balance beam; 2001), Jennifer Dougherty (vault, all-around; 2002), Allison Todd (balance beam; 2002, 2003) and Jessa Liegl (balance beam; 2004).

Dutton also placed eighth on both the vault and balance beam during the event finals. She averaged a two-vault, four-judge score of 9.712, while posting a 9.425 on the balance beam.

Air Force also earned a USAG All-America citation from freshman Jessica Hanner, who placed sixth on the balance beam with a score of 9.600. She is just the second Falcon since Liegl won the 2004 title to earn a top-six finish on the beam.

The Falcons had three other gymnasts that competed in the individual event finals. Freshman Emily Bucher scored a 9.200 to place ninth on the balance beam, while classmate Jen Larsen placed 10th on the vault (9.425) and 12th on the floor exercise (9.650). Junior Samantha Jones finished 11th on both the vault (9.337) and floor exercise (9.675). w

Education news

Attention October 2010 and April 2011 CCAF graduates: Pursuing a bachelor's degree? Apply for the Pitsenbarger Award Scholarship of $400 at www.afa.org/aef/aid/pit.pdf. Submit your application to the Education Office by today. Winners will be announced at the ceremony.

CCAF graduation

The Education Office will hold a Community College of the Air Force graduation and reception May 5 at the Falcon Club for the October 2010 and April 2011 graduating classes. For more information, contact the Education Office at 333-4821.

Santa Fe Trail closure

A portion of the Santa Fe Trail will be closed weekdays but remain open weekends from April 18 to Oct. 30 while repairs are made to the Tri-Intersection Bridge on Southgate Boulevard.

Safety hazards caused by heavy construction traffic under the bridge on the trail are forcing the closure of a stretch of the trail about 2 miles from the south trail entrance to the Academy and about 4 miles from the north gate Santa Fe trailhead.

Community Activity programs

Free Movie Night - Today at Community Center Auditorium. The first movie starts at 6 p.m. and the second movie at 8 p.m. Sodas and popcorn will be for sale.

Call for bird watchers

Whether you are a casual birder or a dedicated naturalist, the Natural Resources program could use your help to monitor birds at the Academy.

Through the web-based eBird database (www.eBird.org), volunteers can report and share their real-time observations of bird abundance and distribution, while easily creating a personal online life list.

If you are interested in helping, please visit the eBird website and call Natural Resources at 333-3308.

Need some dental work?

The 10th Dental Squadron is seeking patients to be treated in its residency training program. If you are an eligible beneficiary and you have been told you have gum disease, need gum surgery or that you need a root canal, please call 333-5490 for a screening appointment.

Repairs being made at clinic

The Academy's main clinic is undergoing a complete repair of the roof and façade. No impact on parking is expected, but occasional closure of an entrance or walkway may be required. This project is estimated to be completed by late September.

Spotlight on hypertension

May is Hypertension Awareness Month, and the 10th Medical Group is sponsoring Hypertension Awareness Day from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. May 11. There will be drawings for gift certificates and other small prizes. For more information, call Juan Martinez at 333-5804.

Sweat lodge ceremony

A Native American prayer service followed by a potluck will begin at 4 p.m. Saturday at Fort Carson's Turkey Creek Recreation Area. If this is your first time, call 285-5240 or 505-453-6367.

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so shapren your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier to gets to solve the puzzle!
