

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

The Alabama requirement for a separate FPCA for each election more than 30 days apart places a considerable burden on uniformed and overseas voters. Many voters think that if they request a ballot for the primary election they will automatically receive a ballot for the general election and any other elections held during the calendar year. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for both primary and general elections or for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Alabama accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the Board of Registrars in the applicant's county of voting residence within the timeframe specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections for which the voter is eligible that are held within that calendar year.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alabama allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal voter registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Alabama's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Alabama provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know in advance that they will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular state ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots to fill this need.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular state ballot. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Alabama's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Alaska allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that the District of Columbia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in the District of Columbia just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and registration requirements combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that the District of Columbia provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal timeframe. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize the District of Columbia allows electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request and permits faxing of the absentee ballot when military service prevents the voter from receiving and returning the voted ballot. However, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots for all military and overseas citizens, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter, on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate these alternatives.

Sample Language

An elections official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the District's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter resides outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the jurisdiction;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that the District of Columbia's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We recommend that Florida provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. We commend you for passing legislation this year that allowed for a state write-in ballot for general elections. However, we request that you expand this to all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame for all elections. Thus, a voter would know that they could exercise their right to vote for all Florida elections, not just one. We encourage you to include this as a revision in your bill which addresses parts overlooked in the election reform law passed earlier this year.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. - (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Hawaii military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

Although Hawaii allows the use of a single FPCA to request ballots for primary and general elections in a calendar year, the state requires that voters submit a separate FPCA for special elections not held in conjunction with these regularly scheduled elections. Many voters think that if they request a ballot for the primary and general elections they will automatically receive a ballot for any other elections held during the calendar year. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Hawaii accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county clerk in the applicant's county of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote, including special elections not held in conjunction with regularly scheduled elections.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note Hawaii has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than 60 days before the election for registered citizens. The "not earlier than" limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Although Hawaii counties may be holding "absentee ballot requests received within a reasonable time before the election", UOCAVA citizens are barred from registering at certain moments they have set aside from their busy schedule to fulfill their voting requirements. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Hawaii allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Notary Requirement

Current Illinois election law requires that in order to vote a full ballot, the state affidavit of registration from unregistered Illinois residents temporarily outside the U.S. must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Armed Forces or a family member of a member of the Armed Forces, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she must subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

Illinois currently allows members of the Armed Forces or merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election who return to the state too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that Illinois expand this procedure and allow family members of these service personnel and civilians recently separated from overseas employment to be able to register late or be exempt from registration and be allowed to vote in the upcoming election. Like members of the Armed Forces, many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after employment abroad. Expanded procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Application for Ballot by Proxy to Overseas Citizens

Currently, Illinois allows spouses, and other family members, to use a special application provided by the local election official to request that an absentee ballot be mailed to members of the Uniformed Services. We recommend this option be expanded to allow spouses and other family members of overseas civilian citizens to request an absentee ballot be mailed to them.

Sample Language

If a spouse, dependent, mother, father, sister or brother of a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) is registered to vote in the same county as that citizen, he or she may request that an absentee ballot be mailed to that voter by completing a special application provided by the local election official.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Illinois provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Armed Forces or family member of a member of the Armed Forces and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 90 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Illinois enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ballot requests by members of the Armed Forces. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 10 of the Illinois Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress passed the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) which the Federal Voting Assistance Program administers. Reference to the UOCAVA in the state election code would help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections, except in five states that have expanded its use beyond the Federal law. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in these elections would reduce the need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded use of the FWAB beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the State money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency, it is recommended that Illinois' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and this office could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission or fax. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, or if an election contest court finds that there were errors in the conduct of an election making it impossible to determine the result.

The chief election official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Iowa enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application request for registration and an absentee ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The following sample language would allow for these procedures.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We understand Iowa currently allows discharged military personnel to register late. We encourage expanding this option to their family members and overseas citizens who may go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after active duty or employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-three states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Kansas' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Kansas allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Louisiana military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Presidential elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states currently have a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Louisiana's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Uniformed Services, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Louisiana allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Louisiana provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections, not only the Presidential election. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state’s registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Late Registration Procedures

Although we understand that the Maryland General Assembly deleted the late registration provision from the law, we never-the-less encourage you to recommend that Maryland reinstate procedures to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services and their family members to be able to register late (or be exempt from registration). Previously, honorably discharged military personnel and their spouses and dependents could still vote absentee if a Federal Post Card Application arrived not later than 8 p.m. on election day. Additionally, we recommend that Maryland expand this procedure to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration.

Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Uniform Timetable for Receipt of Voted Ballots

In Maryland, ballots for non-presidential primary elections and special primary elections are due not later than 4 p.m. on the Wednesday following election day; voted ballots for the general or special election, mailed from within the United States, are due not later than 4 p.m. on the Wednesday following election day; and ballots for the general election, Presidential primary election or special election, mailed from outside the United States, are due not later than 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day.

Citizens voting under the UOCAVA are often confused by this variety in election procedures and the deadlines to which they must adhere. Consequently, we recommend that for all elections, the deadline for all voted ballots from UOCAVA citizens be not later than 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day. This is 10 days following the election. This should not interfere with your gubernatorial primary certification process. This would avoid confusion about different deadlines for receipt of voted ballots. In addition, it would provide sufficient mail transit time to meet the state deadline for counting of ballots.

Sample Language

All citizens voting under the UOCAVA must postmark their ballot by the day of the election and return it so it is received by the local board of elections by 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

Although we agree that Maryland provides ample time for transit of ballots under normal circumstances, especially with late counting, we want to continue to recommend that Maryland provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections as a means to vote in case there are delays in mailing and returning absentee ballots. Again, the main purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We request your consideration again to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Maryland allows faxing of the FPCA for an absentee ballot request; however, we encourage expansion of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration (since we instruct voters to submit the original, signed FPCA after faxing and the FPCA form is a simultaneous request for registration and request for absentee ballot), electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below accommodates these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local board of elections may receive FPCAs for registration, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include other elections, e.g., primary,

for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Allowing use of the FWAB in other elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Also, during the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA. To address your concerns about lack of control over the process, the citizen must provide a valid Maryland residence address and sign the FPCA attesting that he/she is a U.S. citizen and is not voting in any other jurisdiction.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular state ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular state ballot. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Massachusetts's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Massachusetts has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot via electronic transmission from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ALL Elections in a Calendar Year

Michigan election law provides that an application for an absentee ballot received before a primary or special election may be for either that primary only or for that primary and the election which follows. To submit an FPCA before a primary election and request an absentee ballot for both the primary and the general election, the voter must specifically request on the FPCA, “primary and general elections” or “all elections if permitted by state law.” Many voters are confused concerning the requirement to submit a separate request for a ballot for each election and, in 1998, many were disenfranchised for this reason alone. They thought that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary election, they would automatically receive a ballot for the general election. We again recommend this year that Michigan accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. Note that forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for both the primary and general elections or for ALL elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the city or township clerk in the applicant's city or township of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We appreciate the fact that you have provided an administrative instruction to hold applications that arrive earlier than 75 days before the election. However, we urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated by legislation. Further, we recommend a part in the statutes be established for Federal absentee voters separate from regular absentee voters. Your laws now address each class of voter the same way even though there are quite different circumstances between a regular absentee voter who will not be present at the polls on election day due to vacation, hospitalization, etc. and a Federal absentee voter who requires more time to request an absentee ballot. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state’s normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state’s registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Michigan provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Michigan Election Law refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

We request that you seriously consider in this year's legislative session, the expansion of the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Michigan enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request. However, we encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal offices only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Michigan's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Montana provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

In our view the Montana requirement for a separate FPCA for special elections places an unnecessary burden on uniformed and overseas voters. Many voters think that if they submit an FPCA absentee ballot request that they will automatically receive a ballot for every election in which they are qualified to vote. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Montana adopt this procedure for UOCAVA voters.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the County Election Administrator in the applicant's county of voting residence within the timeframe specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible.

Bring Montana Election Code into Conformance with the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In our recent update to the Voting Assistance Guide it came to our attention that there is a discrepancy in the definition of eligible citizens between the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) and the Montana Election Code. Section 13-2-211 of the Montana code defines an “elector in the United States service” as members of the armed forces, merchant marine, religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces, or citizens temporarily residing outside the U.S. territorial limits, and their spouses and dependents. UOCAVA does not cover members of religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces unless they are serving overseas. In addition to the other categories of citizens listed in the Montana code, UOCAVA also includes “uniformed services” – the Coast Guard and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. (See 42 U.S.C. 1973ff-1 and ff-6.)

We recommend that Montana review the language in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act of 1986 (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973ff et seq.) and make appropriate amendments to the state election law provisions to include the Uniformed Services groups referenced above.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Montana has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials - for example, during the period beginning 75 days before the election. The “75 days before” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the period “beginning 75 days before the election” for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Montana’s Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states now have given the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Nebraska enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot requests. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the unvoted ballot to the voters covered by UOCAVA, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters via electronic transmission. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Nebraska's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face New York military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. This is why it is necessary to allow a minimum of 45 days transit time for absentee ballots.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that New York allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that New York provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the New York election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the New York Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider using modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, the blank ballot to the voter, and the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A county board of elections official may receive absentee ballot applications, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We are aware that North Carolina continues to require UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election. This deadline, of course, is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could also present a problem for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend that North Carolina accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Sample Language

Citizens covered by UOCAVA must return their voted ballot so it is received by the local board of elections by the close of polls on election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that North Carolina provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. - Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*

“Not Earlier Than” Restrictions

We note that North Carolina continues to have a specified time during which requests for registration by overseas citizens and North Carolina residents temporarily outside the U.S. may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 50 days or not later than 5:00 p.m. on the Tuesday before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a great problem for these citizens. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We strongly urge that the “not earlier than” dates for registration be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We realize that North Carolina currently allows persons recently separated from the Armed Forces to register and vote in person up to and including election day. We recommend expanding this option to Uniformed Services family members and to citizens returning from overseas employment. Many of these citizens go through a transition period and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the North Carolina election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Ohio's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Uniformed Services and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include the merchant marine and their family members, as well as citizens outside the U.S. The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

Not Earlier Than Restrictions

Ohio has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than January 1st of the year of the election, or not earlier than 90 days before the election, whichever is earlier, and not later than 3 days before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-six states have already removed such requirements.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Ohio provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-six states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include all groups covered in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) definitions. The following is an extract from the UOCAVA, 42 USC 1973ff-6. Section 107. Definitions:

“(1) "absent uniformed services voter" means --

- (A) a member of a uniformed service on active duty who, by reason of such active duty, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote;

- (B) a member of the merchant marine who, by reason of service in the merchant marine, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote; and
- (C) a spouse or dependent of a member referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) who, by reason of the active duty or service of the member, is absent from the place of residence where the spouse or dependent is otherwise qualified to vote “

and

“(7) “uniformed services” means the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service, and the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration”.

The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) Request for Registration and a Ballot for All Elections in a Calendar Year by All UOCAVA Citizens

Puerto Rico requires in person registration to vote a full ballot. In addition, citizens are required to submit a separate FPCA for each election. Many voters are confused concerning the requirement to register in person for a full ballot and/or submit a separate request for a ballot for each election and, in 1998, many were disenfranchised for these reasons. They thought that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary election, they would automatically receive a ballot for the general election. Forty-eight states and territories now accept one FPCA request for registration and ballot for both the primary and general or for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Puerto Rico accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

For United States citizens who are voting residents of Puerto Rico, a Federal Post Card Application for registration and absentee ballot by mail must be received by the Secretary, Commonwealth Elections Commission within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Puerto Rico election law requires that the FPCA and the ballot return envelope must be sworn to by a person authorized to administer oaths. Depending on the category of UOCAVA voter, the oath must be administered by a commissioned officer, the highest officer on board ship, an official in the school registrar's office, a notary public, or a consular officer. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states and territories have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Puerto Rico allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in Puerto Rico just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet Puerto Rico's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a commonwealth's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states and territories currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular commonwealth deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Puerto Rico provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from Puerto Rico in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from Puerto Rico. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from Puerto Rico does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, commonwealth, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. Puerto Rico will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the commonwealth for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the commonwealth's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate commonwealth election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the commonwealth money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, commonwealth and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the commonwealth of Puerto Rico;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate Puerto Rico election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Commonwealth Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the commonwealth's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states and territories now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Although Puerto Rico currently allows requesting an absentee ballot electronically once registered, we encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration, and electronically sending the unvoted ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. The Commonwealth Elections Commission may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Puerto Rico's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states and territories have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this commonwealth, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the Commonwealth.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

Rhode Island military and overseas voters continue to have an extremely short period of time to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted (21 days). While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time, insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Rhode Island's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

Even though Texas has enacted a 30-day registration deadline as a safeguard to prevent fraud, we still encourage Texas to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late, e.g., up to the day of the election, or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election (within 30 days of the election). This time frame does not meet your state's current registration requirements. Further, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and the Texas registration requirement may combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize that Texas provides a state special write-in absentee ballot to Uniformed Services members if they are unable to cast a ballot on election day or during the early voting period because of a military contingency. We recommend expansion of this state write-in absentee ballot to provide a method for voting by other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We request your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Texas provides for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and early voting ballots. Additionally, in 1997, Texas enacted legislation to allow the electronic transmission of the voted ballot by members of the U.S. Armed Forces on active duty overseas, or their family members, if the Armed Forces members are casting the ballot from an area where the members are eligible to receive hostile fire pay or imminent danger pay, or that has been designated by the President of the United States as a combat zone. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to all Texas UOCAVA voters who request it, and accepting the voted ballot where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An elections official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that instead of the Texas Governor, Texas' Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Federal Voting Assistance Program is in closer contact with the Chief Election Official and could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Vermont military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Vermont allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, many small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned.

Alternatively, we recommend unregistered applicants be instructed to read the Freeman's Oath prior to signing the FPCA. Item 8e of the 1995 FPCA contains language where the applicant swears/affirms under penalty of perjury that he or she is "a U.S. citizen, eligible to vote in the above jurisdiction and subscribe to any required state/local oath or statement." This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Vermont currently allows for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter. We encourage enacting legislation for acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below is sample legislation that will provide for this alternative.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Vermont allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Vermont provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from the State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now have state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. Thirty-two states have modified state election code to reference UOCAVA.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Late Registration Procedure

The Virgin Islands currently allows members of the Armed Forces and merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election and who return to the Virgin Islands too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that the Virgin Islands expand the scope of this procedure and allow Uniformed Services personnel (Coast Guard, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), civilians recently separated from overseas employment, and the spouses and dependents of all these groups to be eligible for the same procedure. These citizens also go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. Expanding the scope of your existing procedure would solve this problem. Fourteen states currently have a late registration procedure that includes all UOCAVA citizens.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend the Virgin Islands provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with Virgin Islands registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state or territory, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Virginia enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below includes these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An elections official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, Virginia law allows the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) to be used in all elections and from inside or outside the United States. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope be accepted as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the completed FWAB. This would simplify the process and improve transit time. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope, is the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). This does not change the data required from your state for these citizens. The FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB could be simultaneously accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45-day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Washington military and overseas voters is the relatively short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note Washington has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than 90 days before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Washington allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register up until the election or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting Washington's 15 day late registration deadline. We recommend that UOCAVA citizens be permitted to register up to the day of the next ensuing election when these circumstances arise. Twenty-four states currently allow this procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Commonwealth Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Washington's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

The Alabama requirement for a separate FPCA for each election more than 30 days apart places a considerable burden on uniformed and overseas voters. Many voters think that if they request a ballot for the primary election they will automatically receive a ballot for the general election and any other elections held during the calendar year. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for both primary and general elections or for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Alabama accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the Board of Registrars in the applicant's county of voting residence within the timeframe specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections for which the voter is eligible that are held within that calendar year.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alabama allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal voter registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Alabama's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Alabama provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that the District of Columbia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in the District of Columbia just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and registration requirements combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that the District of Columbia provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal timeframe. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize the District of Columbia allows electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request and permits faxing of the absentee ballot when military service prevents the voter from receiving and returning the voted ballot. However, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots for all military and overseas citizens, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter, on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate these alternatives.

Sample Language

An elections official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the District's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter resides outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the jurisdiction;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that the District of Columbia's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We recommend that Florida provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. We commend you for passing legislation this year that allowed for a state write-in ballot for general elections. However, we request that you expand this to all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame for all elections. Thus, a voter would know that they could exercise their right to vote for all Florida elections, not just one. We encourage you to include this as a revision in your bill which addresses parts overlooked in the election reform law passed earlier this year.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Hawaii military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

Although Hawaii allows the use of a single FPCA to request ballots for primary and general elections in a calendar year, the state requires that voters submit a separate FPCA for special elections not held in conjunction with these regularly scheduled elections. Many voters think that if they request a ballot for the primary and general elections they will automatically receive a ballot for any other elections held during the calendar year. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Hawaii accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county clerk in the applicant's county of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote, including special elections not held in conjunction with regularly scheduled elections.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note Hawaii has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than 60 days before the election for registered citizens. The "not earlier than" limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Although Hawaii counties may be holding "absentee ballot requests received within a reasonable time before the election", UOCAVA citizens are barred from registering at certain moments they have set aside from their busy schedule to fulfill their voting requirements. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Hawaii allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Notary Requirement

Current Illinois election law requires that in order to vote a full ballot, the state affidavit of registration from unregistered Illinois residents temporarily outside the U.S. must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Armed Forces or a family member of a member of the Armed Forces, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she must subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

Illinois currently allows members of the Armed Forces or merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election who return to the state too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that Illinois expand this procedure and allow family members of these service personnel and civilians recently separated from overseas employment to be able to register late or be exempt from registration and be allowed to vote in the upcoming election. Like members of the Armed Forces, many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after employment abroad. Expanded procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Application for Ballot by Proxy to Overseas Citizens

Currently, Illinois allows spouses, and other family members, to use a special application provided by the local election official to request that an absentee ballot be mailed to members of the Uniformed Services. We recommend this option be expanded to allow spouses and other family members of overseas civilian citizens to request an absentee ballot be mailed to them.

Sample Language

If a spouse, dependent, mother, father, sister or brother of a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) is registered to vote in the same county as that citizen, he or she may request that an absentee ballot be mailed to that voter by completing a special application provided by the local election official.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Illinois provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Armed Forces or family member of a member of the Armed Forces and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 90 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Illinois enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ballot requests by members of the Armed Forces. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 10 of the Illinois Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress passed the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) which the Federal Voting Assistance Program administers. Reference to the UOCAVA in the state election code would help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections, except in five states that have expanded its use beyond the Federal law. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in these elections would reduce the need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded use of the FWAB beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the State money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency, it is recommended that Illinois' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and this office could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission or fax. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, or if an election contest court finds that there were errors in the conduct of an election making it impossible to determine the result.

The chief election official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Iowa enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application request for registration and an absentee ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The following sample language would allow for these procedures.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We understand Iowa currently allows discharged military personnel to register late. We encourage expanding this option to their family members and overseas citizens who may go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after active duty or employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-three states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Kansas' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Kansas allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Kansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Louisiana military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Presidential elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states currently have a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Louisiana's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Uniformed Services, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Louisiana allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Late Registration Procedures

Although we understand that the Maryland General Assembly deleted the late registration provision from the law, we never-the-less encourage you to recommend that Maryland reinstate procedures to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services and their family members to be able to register late (or be exempt from registration). Previously, honorably discharged military personnel and their spouses and dependents could still vote absentee if a Federal Post Card Application arrived not later than 8 p.m. on election day. Additionally, we recommend that Maryland expand this procedure to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration.

Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Uniform Timetable for Receipt of Voted Ballots

In Maryland, ballots for non-presidential primary elections and special primary elections are due not later than 4 p.m. on the Wednesday following election day; voted ballots for the general or special election, mailed from within the United States, are due not later than 4 p.m. on the Wednesday following election day; and ballots for the general election, Presidential primary election or special election, mailed from outside the United States, are due not later than 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day.

Citizens voting under the UOCAVA are often confused by this variety in election procedures and the deadlines to which they must adhere. Consequently, we recommend that for all elections, the deadline for all voted ballots from UOCAVA citizens be not later than 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day. This is 10 days following the election. This should not interfere with your gubernatorial primary certification process. This would avoid confusion about different deadlines for receipt of voted ballots. In addition, it would provide sufficient mail transit time to meet the state deadline for counting of ballots.

Sample Language

All citizens voting under the UOCAVA must postmark their ballot by the day of the election and return it so it is received by the local board of elections by 4 p.m. on the second Friday following election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

Although we agree that Maryland provides ample time for transit of ballots under normal circumstances, especially with late counting, we want to continue to recommend that Maryland provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections as a means to vote in case there are delays in mailing and returning absentee ballots. Again, the main purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

We request your consideration again to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Maryland allows faxing of the FPCA for an absentee ballot request; however, we encourage expansion of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration (since we instruct voters to submit the original, signed FPCA after faxing and the FPCA form is a simultaneous request for registration and request for absentee ballot), electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below accommodates these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local board of elections may receive FPCAs for registration, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include other elections, e.g., primary,

for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Allowing use of the FWAB in other elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Also, during the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA. To address your concerns about lack of control over the process, the citizen must provide a valid Maryland residence address and sign the FPCA attesting that he/she is a U.S. citizen and is not voting in any other jurisdiction.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular state ballot. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Massachusetts's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Massachusetts has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot via electronic transmission from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ALL Elections in a Calendar Year

Michigan election law provides that an application for an absentee ballot received before a primary or special election may be for either that primary only or for that primary and the election which follows. To submit an FPCA before a primary election and request an absentee ballot for both the primary and the general election, the voter must specifically request on the FPCA, “primary and general elections” or “all elections if permitted by state law.” Many voters are confused concerning the requirement to submit a separate request for a ballot for each election and, in 1998, many were disenfranchised for this reason alone. They thought that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary election, they would automatically receive a ballot for the general election. We again recommend this year that Michigan accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. Note that forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for both the primary and general elections or for ALL elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the city or township clerk in the applicant's city or township of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We appreciate the fact that you have provided an administrative instruction to hold applications that arrive earlier than 75 days before the election. However, we urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated by legislation. Further, we recommend a part in the statutes be established for Federal absentee voters separate from regular absentee voters. Your laws now address each class of voter the same way even though there are quite different circumstances between a regular absentee voter who will not be present at the polls on election day due to vacation, hospitalization, etc. and a Federal absentee voter who requires more time to request an absentee ballot. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state’s normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state’s registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Michigan provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Michigan Election Law refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

We request that you seriously consider in this year's legislative session, the expansion of the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Michigan enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request. However, we encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An elections official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal offices only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Michigan's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Montana provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

In our view the Montana requirement for a separate FPCA for special elections places an unnecessary burden on uniformed and overseas voters. Many voters think that if they submit an FPCA absentee ballot request that they will automatically receive a ballot for every election in which they are qualified to vote. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Montana adopt this procedure for UOCAVA voters.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the County Election Administrator in the applicant's county of voting residence within the timeframe specified by law. The single absentee ballot application serves both to register the citizen and to request absentee ballots for all elections held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible.

Bring Montana Election Code into Conformance with the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In our recent update to the Voting Assistance Guide it came to our attention that there is a discrepancy in the definition of eligible citizens between the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) and the Montana Election Code. Section 13-2-211 of the Montana code defines an “elector in the United States service” as members of the armed forces, merchant marine, religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces, or citizens temporarily residing outside the U.S. territorial limits, and their spouses and dependents. UOCAVA does not cover members of religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces unless they are serving overseas. In addition to the other categories of citizens listed in the Montana code, UOCAVA also includes “uniformed services” – the Coast Guard and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. (See 42 U.S.C. 1973ff-1 and ff-6.)

We recommend that Montana review the language in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act of 1986 (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973ff et seq.) and make appropriate amendments to the state election law provisions to include the Uniformed Services groups referenced above.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Montana has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials - for example, during the period beginning 75 days before the election. The “75 days before” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the period “beginning 75 days before the election” for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Montana’s Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states now have given the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Nebraska enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot requests. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the unvoted ballot to the voters covered by UOCAVA, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters via electronic transmission. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Nebraska's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face New York military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. This is why it is necessary to allow a minimum of 45 days transit time for absentee ballots.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that New York allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that New York provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the New York election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the New York Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints. Currently, forty-eight states allow electronic transmission of election materials.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We enlist your support once again this year in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all parts of the process. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider using modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, the blank ballot to the voter, and the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A county board of elections official may receive absentee ballot applications, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices,

citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that New York's Chief Election Official (CEO) have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The CEO and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state. The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We are aware that North Carolina continues to require UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election. This deadline, of course, is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could also present a problem for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend that North Carolina accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Sample Language

Citizens covered by UOCAVA must return their voted ballot so it is received by the local board of elections by the close of polls on election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that North Carolina provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. “Not Earlier Than” Restrictions

We note that North Carolina continues to have a specified time during which requests for registration by overseas citizens and North Carolina residents temporarily outside the U.S. may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 50 days or not later than 5:00 p.m. on the Tuesday before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a great problem for these citizens. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We strongly urge that the “not earlier than” dates for registration be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedures

We realize that North Carolina currently allows persons recently separated from the Armed Forces to register and vote in person up to and including election day. We recommend expanding this option to Uniformed Services family members and to citizens returning from overseas employment. Many of these citizens go through a transition period and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Uniformed Services and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include the merchant marine and their family members, as well as citizens outside the U.S. The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

Not Earlier Than Restrictions

Ohio has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than January 1st of the year of the election, or not earlier than 90 days before the election, whichever is earlier, and not later than 3 days before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Ohio's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include all groups covered in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) definitions. The following is an extract from the UOCAVA, 42 USC 1973ff-6. Section 107. Definitions:

“(1) "absent uniformed services voter" means --

- (A) a member of a uniformed service on active duty who, by reason of such active duty, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote;

- (B) a member of the merchant marine who, by reason of service in the merchant marine, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote; and
- (C) a spouse or dependent of a member referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) who, by reason of the active duty or service of the member, is absent from the place of residence where the spouse or dependent is otherwise qualified to vote “

“(7) “uniformed services” means the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service, and the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration”.

The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

Not Earlier Than Restrictions

Ohio has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than January 1st of the year of the election, or not earlier than 90 days before the election, whichever is earlier, and not later than 3 days before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Ohio provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state’s registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) Request for Registration and a Ballot for All Elections in a Calendar Year by All UOCAVA Citizens

Puerto Rico requires in person registration to vote a full ballot. In addition, citizens are required to submit a separate FPCA for each election. Many voters are confused concerning the requirement to register in person for a full ballot and/or submit a separate request for a ballot for each election and, in 1998, many were disenfranchised for these reasons. They thought that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary election, they would automatically receive a ballot for the general election. Forty-eight states and territories now accept one FPCA request for registration and ballot for both the primary and general or for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that Puerto Rico accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year.

Sample Language

For United States citizens who are voting residents of Puerto Rico, a Federal Post Card Application for registration and absentee ballot by mail must be received by the Secretary, Commonwealth Elections Commission within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Puerto Rico election law requires that the FPCA and the ballot return envelope must be sworn to by a person authorized to administer oaths. Depending on the category of UOCAVA voter, the oath must be administered by a commissioned officer, the highest officer on board ship, an official in the school registrar's office, a notary public, or a consular officer. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states and territories have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Puerto Rico allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in Puerto Rico just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet Puerto Rico's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a commonwealth's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states and territories currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular commonwealth deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Puerto Rico provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from Puerto Rico in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from Puerto Rico. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from Puerto Rico does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, commonwealth, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. Puerto Rico will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). - (3) the request is received by the appropriate commonwealth election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the commonwealth money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, commonwealth and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the commonwealth of Puerto Rico;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate Puerto Rico election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Commonwealth Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the commonwealth's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states and territories now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Although Puerto Rico currently allows requesting an absentee ballot electronically once registered, we encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration, and electronically sending the unvoted ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. The Commonwealth Elections Commission may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Puerto Rico's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states and territories have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this commonwealth, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the Commonwealth.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

Rhode Island military and overseas voters continue to have an extremely short period of time to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted (21 days). While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time, insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Rhode Island's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

Even though Texas has enacted a 30-day registration deadline as a safeguard to prevent fraud, we still encourage Texas to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late, e.g., up to the day of the election, or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election (within 30 days of the election). This time frame does not meet your state's current registration requirements. Further, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and the Texas registration requirement may combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently have such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize that Texas provides a state special write-in absentee ballot to Uniformed Services members if they are unable to cast a ballot on election day or during the early voting period because of a military contingency. We recommend expansion of this state write-in absentee ballot to provide a method for voting by other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We request your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Texas provides for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and early voting ballots. Additionally, in 1997, Texas enacted legislation to allow the electronic transmission of the voted ballot by members of the U.S. Armed Forces on active duty overseas, or their family members, if the Armed Forces members are casting the ballot from an area where the members are eligible to receive hostile fire pay or imminent danger pay, or that has been designated by the President of the United States as a combat zone. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to all Texas UOCAVA voters who request it, and accepting the voted ballot where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An elections official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that instead of the Texas Governor, Texas' Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Federal Voting Assistance Program is in closer contact with the Chief Election Official and could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Vermont military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Vermont allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, many small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned.

Alternatively, we recommend unregistered applicants be instructed to read the Freeman's Oath prior to signing the FPCA. Item 8e of the 1995 FPCA contains language where the applicant swears/affirms under penalty of perjury that he or she is "a U.S. citizen, eligible to vote in the above jurisdiction and subscribe to any required state/local oath or statement." This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Vermont currently allows for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter. We encourage enacting legislation for acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below is sample legislation that will provide for this alternative.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Vermont allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Vermont provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from the State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now have state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. Thirty-two states have modified state election code to reference UOCAVA.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Late Registration Procedure

The Virgin Islands currently allows members of the Armed Forces and merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election and who return to the Virgin Islands too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that the Virgin Islands expand the scope of this procedure and allow Uniformed Services personnel (Coast Guard, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), civilians recently separated from overseas employment, and the spouses and dependents of all these groups to be eligible for the same procedure. These citizens also go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. Expanding the scope of your existing procedure would solve this problem. Fourteen states currently have a late registration procedure that includes all UOCAVA citizens.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend the Virgin Islands provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below includes these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An elections official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, Virginia law allows the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) to be used in all elections and from inside or outside the United States. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope be accepted as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the completed FWAB. This would simplify the process and improve transit time. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope, is the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). This does not change the data required from your state for these citizens. The FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB could be simultaneously accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

The Need for 45-day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Washington military and overseas voters is the relatively short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. "Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note Washington has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than 90 days before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Washington allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register up until the election or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting Washington's 15 day late registration deadline. We recommend that UOCAVA citizens be permitted to register up to the day of the next ensuing election when these circumstances arise. Twenty-four states currently allow this procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Six states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Washington's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alabama allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Alabama's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Alabama provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state’s registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Alabama money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only - except in five states that have expanded its use beyond the Federal law. This ballot is repositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Arkansas military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Arkansas allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Arkansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the State money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Arkansas enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot requests and that registration is waived. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 7-5-406 of the Arkansas Election Laws refers to the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Arkansas's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize California allows a single FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

The most persistent problem which continues to face California military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states provide a 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that California's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have provided this authority to their Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving

United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face California military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that the District of Columbia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in the District of Columbia just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and registration requirements combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that the District of Columbia provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal timeframe. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize the District of Columbia allows electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request and permits faxing of the absentee ballot when military service prevents the voter from receiving and returning the voted ballot. However, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots for all military and overseas citizens, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter, on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate these alternatives.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the District's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter resides outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local and Federal offices.

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the jurisdiction;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that the District of Columbia's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We notice Delaware requires UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 12:00 noon on the day before the election. This deadline is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Delaware accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expanded use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Delaware has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Delaware allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Notary Requirement

Current Guam election law requires that the ballot return envelope must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state or territory and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state or territory, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Guam allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Guam Election Code

The Guam Election Code refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the '55 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the Guam election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Guam Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Guam provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from Guam in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state or territory does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Hawaii military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-one states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Hawaii allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Although Hawaii Revised Statute Section 15-3 states "...any former registered voter of Hawaii may vote an absentee ballot in any presidential election occurring within twenty-four months after leaving Hawaii...", This statute does not cover members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or citizens employed overseas, and family members that have been away for over 24 months. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

The adoption of this initiative would save Hawaii money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Notary Requirement

Current Illinois election law requires that in order to vote a full ballot, the state affidavit of registration from unregistered Illinois residents temporarily outside the U.S. must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

Illinois currently allows members of the Armed Forces or merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election who return to the state too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that Illinois expand this procedure and allow family members of these service personnel and civilians recently separated from overseas employment to be able to register late or be exempt from registration and be allowed to vote in the upcoming election. Like members of the Armed Forces, many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's 30-day residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Expanded procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Application for Ballot by Proxy to Overseas Citizens

Currently, Illinois allows spouses, and other family members, to use a special application provided by the local election official to request that an absentee ballot be mailed to members of the Uniformed Services. We recommend this option be expanded to allow spouses and other family members of overseas civilian citizens to request an absentee ballot be mailed to them.

Sample Language

If a spouse, dependent, mother, father, sister or brother of a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) is registered to vote in the same county as that citizen, he or she may request that an absentee ballot be mailed to that voter by completing a special application provided by the local election official.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Illinois provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. We realize Illinois enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ballot requests by members of the Armed Forces. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 10 of the Illinois Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress passed the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) which the Federal Voting Assistance Program administers. Reference to the UOCAVA in the state election code would help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Illinois' State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission or fax. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Iowa enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application request for registration and an absentee ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The following sample language would allow for these procedures.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We understand Iowa currently allows discharged military personnel to register late. We encourage expanding this option to their family members and overseas citizens who may go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after active duty or employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Kansas' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Kansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and

Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and runoff elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 117 of the Kentucky Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Kentucky's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Kentucky enacted legislation, which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ballot request and the electronic receipt of the blank ballot by the voter. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Kentucky allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Kentucky provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Louisiana military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Presidential elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states currently have a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Louisiana's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

Although we understand that the Maryland General Assembly deleted the late registration provision from the law, we never-the-less encourage you to recommend that Maryland reinstate procedures to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services and their family members to be able to register late (or be exempt from registration). Previously, honorably discharged military personnel and their spouses and dependents could still vote absentee if a Federal Post Card Application arrived not later than 8 p.m. on election day. Additionally, we recommend that Maryland expand this procedure to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration.

Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

Although we agree that Maryland provides ample time for transit of ballots under normal circumstances, especially with late counting, we want to continue to recommend that Maryland provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections as a means to vote in case there are delays in mailing and returning absentee ballots. Again, the main purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official. Also a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Maryland has done an exceptional job passing legislation on behalf of UOCAVA voters and we recognize the recent adoption of procedures regarding the faxing of the unvoted ballot. However, we request your consideration again to make further changes in Maryland law/administrative procedures that would include the faxing of the voted ballot for all UOCAVA absentee voters and of the FPCA for registration purposes. We realize that Maryland allows faxing of the FPCA for an absentee ballot request and now the unvoted ballot and that Maryland law prohibits electronic facsimile if the document requires a signed affidavit. However, we encourage expansion of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration (since we instruct voters to submit the original, signed FPCA after faxing and the FPCA form is a simultaneous request for registration and request for absentee ballot) and acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter (signature already on file) where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below accommodates these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local board of elections may receive FPCAs for registration, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

We appreciate the action taken by the Maryland State Board of Elections recently to allow overseas voters to cast votes for state and local offices in primary and special Federal elections using the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB). Since this ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership, many overseas citizens have access to it and would not be disenfranchised because their regular ballots were not received in a timely manner.

In addition, however, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, we request the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB. This would further simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for elections for Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA. To address your concerns about lack of control over the process, the citizen must provide a valid Maryland residence address and sign the FPCA attesting that he/she is a U.S. citizen and is not voting in any other jurisdiction.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-five states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts’ Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Massachusetts's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Massachusetts has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot via electronic transmission from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Massachusetts money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

[We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. DELETE]

We appreciate the fact that you have provided an administrative instruction to hold applications that arrive earlier than 75 days before the election. However, the recently passed, Help America Vote Act, prohibits refusal of an application on the grounds of early submission. Thus, we urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated completely from your statutes by legislation as soon as possible. Further, we recommend a part in the statutes be established for Federal absentee voters separate from regular absentee voters. Your laws now address each class of voter the same way even though there are quite different circumstances between a regular absentee voter who will not be present at the polls on election day due to vacation, hospitalization, etc. and a Federal absentee voter who requires more time to request an absentee ballot. [Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements. DELETE]

Congress modified the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in December 2001 to require the States, effective immediately, to accept a single FPCA, that is received 30 days or more before an election, as a simultaneous voter registration and absentee ballot application for all elections for Federal offices held in the State during that calendar year. FVAP reminds you of this requirement and recommends extension of this provision to include all State and local elections for which the citizen is eligible to vote. We recommend that the following procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state’s normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state’s registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Michigan provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Michigan provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Michigan Election Law refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

We request that you seriously consider in this year's legislative session, the expansion of the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Michigan enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request. However, we encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal offices only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Michigan's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Minnesota military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as State Department personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Minnesota allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Notary Requirement

We realize notarization of the FPCA and the ballot return envelope is not necessary if a voter provides his/her military ID number or passport number. However, if a voter overlooks this requirement or if he or she is unable to obtain notarial services, he or she may be disenfranchised. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Minnesota provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states beyond Federal law that have expanded the use of the FWAB and the 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Current Mississippi election law requires that the FPCA and the affidavit on the absentee ballot return envelope must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We notice Mississippi requires UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. the day before the election. This deadline is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, the voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Mississippi accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Title 23, Section 23-15-677 of the Mississippi Election Laws refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the '55 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Mississippi provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Special State Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Montana provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Bring Montana Election Code into Conformance with the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In our recent update to the Voting Assistance Guide it came to our attention that there is a discrepancy in the definition of eligible citizens between the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) and the Montana Election Code. Section 13-2-211 of the Montana code defines an “elector in the United States service” as members of the armed forces, merchant marine, religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces, or citizens temporarily residing outside the U.S. territorial limits, and their spouses and dependents. UOCAVA does not cover members of religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces unless they are serving overseas. In addition to the other categories of citizens listed in the Montana code, UOCAVA also includes “uniformed services” – the Coast Guard and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. (See 42 U.S.C. 1973ff-1 and ff-6.)

We recommend that Montana review the language in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act of 1986 (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973ff et seq.) and make appropriate amendments to the state election law provisions to include the Uniformed Services groups referenced above.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Montana’s Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible

or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Nebraska enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot requests. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the unvoted ballot to the voters covered by UOCAVA, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters via electronic transmission. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Nebraska money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We are aware that North Carolina continues to require UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election. This deadline, of course, is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could also present a problem for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend that North Carolina accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Sample Language

Citizens covered by UOCAVA must return their voted ballot so the local board of elections receives it by the close of polls on election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that North Carolina provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently eight states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 ——— days before the election.*

Late Registration Procedures

We realize that North Carolina currently allows persons recently separated from the Armed Forces to register and vote in person up to and including election day. We recommend expanding this option to Uniformed Services family members and to citizens returning from overseas employment. Many of these citizens go through a transition period and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Title 16 of the North Dakota Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include all groups covered in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) definitions. The following is an extract from the UOCAVA, 42 USC 1973ff-6. Section 107. Definitions:

“(1) "absent uniformed services voter" means --

- (A) a member of a uniformed service on active duty who, by reason of such active duty, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote;

- (B) a member of the merchant marine who, by reason of service in the merchant marine, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote; and
- (C) a spouse or dependent of a member referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) who, by reason of the active duty or service of the member, is absent from the place of residence where the spouse or dependent is otherwise qualified to vote “

“(7) “uniformed services” means the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service, and the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration”.

The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

Not Earlier Than Restrictions

Ohio has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than January 1st of the year of the election, or not earlier than 90 days before the election, whichever is earlier, and not later than 3 days before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Ohio provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state’s registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Ohio's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include all groups covered in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) definitions. The following is an extract from the UOCAVA, 42 USC 1973ff-6. Section 107. Definitions:

“(1) "absent uniformed services voter" means --

- (A) a member of a uniformed service on active duty who, by reason of such active duty, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote;

- (B) a member of the merchant marine who, by reason of service in the merchant marine, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote; and
- (C) a spouse or dependent of a member referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) who, by reason of the active duty or service of the member, is absent from the place of residence where the spouse or dependent is otherwise qualified to vote “

“(7) “uniformed services” means the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service, and the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration”.

The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Ohio provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is repositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year As a Simultaneous Request for Registration and An Absentee Ballot

Per the amendment to Section 104 of the UOCAVA under the National Defense Appropriations Act of 2001, you have notified your counties of the use of one FPCA for all elections in a calendar year. We need to also ensure that the use of the state Voter Registration Mail Application (VRMA) is no longer required for UOCAVA voters. Since the amendment to Section 102 of UOCAVA requires states to accept the FPCA as a voter registration application, it is our understanding that the Pennsylvania VRMA is no longer required for all UOCAVA voters. Further, the recently passed, Help America Vote Act provides for the use of a single application through the next two regularly scheduled general elections for Federal office. We urge you to include this provision in your statutes as soon as possible.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We continue to note that Pennsylvania requires voters covered under the Uniformed and Overseas Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the Friday before the election. This deadline is earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Pennsylvania accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five other states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Pennsylvania allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in Pennsylvania's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We request your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process in all counties. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that most Pennsylvania counties allow the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include all counties electronically accepting the FPCA for registration and ballot request, sending the blank ballot and receiving the voted ballot from all UOCAVA citizens where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them.

Sample Language

An applicant, who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. Election officials may receive absentee ballot applications, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that Pennsylvania's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Current Puerto Rico election law requires that the FPCA and the ballot return envelope must be sworn to by a person authorized to administer oaths. Depending on the category of UOCAVA voter, the oath must be administered by a commissioned officer, the highest officer on board ship, an official in the school registrar's office, a notary public, or a consular officer. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states and territories have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Puerto Rico allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in Puerto Rico just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet Puerto Rico's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a commonwealth's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states and territories currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular commonwealth deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Puerto Rico provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from Puerto Rico in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from Puerto Rico. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. If the regular absentee ballot from Puerto Rico does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, commonwealth, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. Puerto Rico will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Commonwealth Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the commonwealth's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states and territories now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Although Puerto Rico currently allows requesting an absentee ballot electronically once registered, we encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration, and electronically sending the unvoted ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. The Commonwealth Elections Commission may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states and territories have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this commonwealth, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the Commonwealth.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

Rhode Island military and overseas voters continue to have an extremely short period of time to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted (21 days). While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time, insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Rhode Island's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirements

Currently South Dakota requires the ballot return envelope to be certified by a noncommissioned or commissioned officer if it is not possible to obtain a military postmark on or before election day. This requirement creates a burden for military members who may be assigned to a small military installation that may not have an officer available at all time. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that South Dakota allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that South Dakota's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Below is suggested language allowing for electronic transmission to be used in these three steps of the absentee voting process.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend South Dakota provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

Even though Texas has enacted a 30-day registration deadline as a safeguard to prevent fraud, we still encourage Texas to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late, e.g., up to the day of the election, or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election (within 30 days of the election). This time frame does not meet your state's current registration requirements. Further, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and the Texas registration requirement may combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently have such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize that Texas provides a state special write-in absentee ballot to Uniformed Services members if they are unable to cast a ballot on election day or during the early voting period because of a military contingency. We recommend expansion of this state write-in absentee ballot to provide a method for voting by other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Texas provides for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and early voting ballots. Additionally, in 1997, Texas enacted legislation to allow the electronic transmission of the voted ballot by members of the U.S. Armed Forces on active duty overseas, or their family members, if the Armed Forces members are casting the ballot from an area where the members are eligible to receive hostile fire pay or imminent danger pay, or that has been designated by the President of the United States as a combat zone. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to all Texas UOCAVA voters who request it, and accepting the voted ballot where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that instead of the Texas Governor, Texas' Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Federal Voting Assistance Program is in closer contact with the Chief Election Official and could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Currently Utah requires the ballot return envelope to be certified by a noncommissioned or commissioned officer if it is not possible to obtain a military postmark on or before election day. This requirement creates a burden for military members who may be assigned to a small military installation that may not have an officer available at all time. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Currently, acceptance of electronic transmission of election materials varies from county to county in Utah. Consideration should be given to more uniform use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage statewide adoption of procedures to allow for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot request, electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize Utah provides a Special Military Write-In Absentee Ballot if the citizen will be unable to vote by regular ballot. We recommend expanding use of this ballot to provide a method for voting to other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states have implemented state write-in absentee ballots for this purpose.

On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB and the 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or family member of a Uniformed Service member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in the general election. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner.

Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. On an ad hoc basis, during past primaries, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Vermont military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Vermont allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, many small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned.

Alternatively, we recommend unregistered applicants be instructed to read the Freeman's Oath prior to signing the FPCA. Item 8e of the 1995 FPCA contains language where the applicant swears/affirms under penalty of perjury that he or she is "a U.S. citizen, eligible to vote in the above jurisdiction and subscribe to any required state/local oath or statement." This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Vermont currently allows for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter. We encourage enacting legislation for acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below is sample legislation that will provide for this alternative.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Vermont allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Six other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Vermont provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from the State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now have state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. Thirty-two states have modified state election code to reference UOCAVA.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Vermont military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Late Registration Procedure

The Virgin Islands currently allows members of the Armed Forces and merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election and who return to the Virgin Islands too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that the Virgin Islands expand the scope of this procedure and allow Uniformed Services personnel (Coast Guard, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), civilians recently separated from overseas employment, and the spouses and dependents of all these groups to be eligible for the same procedure. These citizens also go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. Expanding the scope of your existing procedure would solve this problem. Fourteen states currently have a late registration procedure that includes all UOCAVA citizens.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend the Virgin Islands provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Virginia enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below includes these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An elections official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, Virginia law allows the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) to be used in all elections and from inside or outside the United States. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope be accepted as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the completed FWAB. This would simplify the process and improve transit time. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope, is the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). This does not change the data required from your state for these citizens. The FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB could be simultaneously accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45-day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Washington military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-five states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Washington allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting Washington's 15-day late registration deadline. We recommend that UOCAVA citizens be permitted to register up to the day of the next ensuing election when these circumstances arise. Twenty-five states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Commonwealth Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Washington money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Washington's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that West Virginia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that West Virginia's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request, electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for all aspects of the process.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend West Virginia provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the State. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

For those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information that is requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the territory’s registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the territory money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the territory;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We recommend that Wyoming provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure near real-time delivery of election materials between the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time substantially.

We note that Wyoming permits absentee ballot requests to be made by telephone and email. We encourage the further use of electronic transmission to include electronically sending the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request, sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Alabama provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Alabama's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alaska allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only - except in five states that have expanded its use beyond the Federal law. This ballot is repositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Alaska money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Alaska's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Arkansas military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Arkansas allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Arkansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the State. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the State money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Arkansas enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot requests and that registration is waived. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 7-5-406 of the Arkansas Election Laws refers to the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize California allows a single FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections during a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that the District of Columbia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in the District of Columbia just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and registration requirements combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that the District of Columbia provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal timeframe. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize the District of Columbia allows electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request and permits faxing of the absentee ballot when military service prevents the voter from receiving and returning the voted ballot. However, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots for all military and overseas citizens, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter, on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate these alternatives.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the District's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter resides outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the jurisdiction;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in the U.S., they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that the District of Columbia's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We notice Delaware requires UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 12:00 noon on the day before the election. This deadline is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Delaware accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expanded use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Delaware has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Delaware allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Delaware's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Notary Requirement

Current Guam election law requires that the ballot return envelope must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state or territory and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Guam Election Code

The Guam Election Code refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the '55 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the Guam election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Guam Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Guam provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from Guam in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state or territory does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Hawaii military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-one states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Hawaii allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Although Hawaii Revised Statute Section 15-3 states "...any former registered voter of Hawaii may vote an absentee ballot in any presidential election occurring within twenty-four months after leaving Hawaii...", This statute does not cover members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or citizens employed overseas, and family members that have been away for over 24 months. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. The adoption of this initiative would save Hawaii money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Notary Requirement

Current Illinois election law requires that in order to vote a full ballot, the state affidavit of registration from unregistered Illinois residents temporarily outside the U.S. must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

Illinois currently allows members of the Armed Forces or merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election who return to the state too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that Illinois expand this procedure and allow family members of these service personnel and civilians recently separated from overseas employment to be able to register late or be exempt from registration and be allowed to vote in the upcoming election. Like members of the Armed Forces, many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's 30-day residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Expanded procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Application for Ballot by Proxy to Overseas Citizens

Currently, Illinois allows spouses, and other family members, to use a special application provided by the local election official to request that an absentee ballot be mailed to members of the Uniformed Services. We recommend this option be expanded to allow spouses and other family members of overseas civilian citizens to request an absentee ballot be mailed to them.

Sample Language

If a spouse, dependent, mother, father, sister or brother of a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) is registered to vote in the same county as that citizen, he or she may request that an absentee ballot be mailed to that voter by completing a special application provided by the local election official.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Illinois provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. If the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Illinois enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ballot requests by members of the Armed Forces. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 10 of the Illinois Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress passed the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) which the Federal Voting Assistance Program administers. Reference to the UOCAVA in the state election code would help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded use of the FWAB beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Illinois money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Illinois' State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission or fax. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Iowa enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application request for registration and an absentee ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The following sample language would allow for these procedures.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We understand Iowa currently allows discharged military personnel to register late. We encourage expanding this option to their family members and overseas citizens who may go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration

The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

Chapter 117 of the Kentucky Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Louisiana military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Presidential elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states currently have a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Louisiana's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Uniformed Services, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Louisiana allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Louisiana provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections, not only the Presidential election. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state’s registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Maine allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Maine has enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) request for registration and ballot. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. The Need for 45 Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Maine military and overseas voters is the short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Federal elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. However, our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Maine's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

Although we understand that the Maryland General Assembly deleted the late registration provision from the law, we never-the-less encourage you to recommend that Maryland reinstate procedures to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services and their family members to be able to register late (or be exempt from registration). Previously, honorably discharged military personnel and their spouses and dependents could still vote absentee if a Federal Post Card Application arrived not later than 8 p.m. on election day. Additionally, we recommend that Maryland expand this procedure to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration.

Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

Although we agree that Maryland provides ample time for transit of ballots under normal circumstances, especially with late counting, we want to continue to recommend that Maryland provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections as a means to vote in case there are delays in mailing and returning absentee ballots. Again, the main purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official. Also a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Maryland has done an exceptional job passing legislation on behalf of UOCAVA voters and we recognize the recent adoption of procedures regarding the faxing of the unvoted ballot. However, we request your consideration again to make further changes in Maryland law/administrative procedures that would include the faxing of the voted ballot for all UOCAVA absentee voters and of the FPCA for registration purposes. We realize that Maryland allows faxing of the FPCA for an absentee ballot request and now the unvoted ballot and that Maryland law prohibits electronic facsimile if the document requires a signed affidavit. However, we encourage expansion of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration (since we instruct voters to submit the original, signed FPCA after faxing and the FPCA form is a simultaneous request for registration and request for absentee ballot) and acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter (signature already on file) where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below accommodates these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local board of elections may receive FPCAs for registration, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

We appreciate the action taken by the Maryland State Board of Elections recently to allow overseas voters to cast votes for state and local offices in primary and special Federal elections using the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB). Since this ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership, many overseas citizens have access to it and would not be disenfranchised because their regular ballots were not received in a timely manner.

In addition, however, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, we request the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB. This would further simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for elections for Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA. To address your concerns about lack of control over the process, the citizen must provide a valid Maryland residence address and sign the FPCA attesting that he/she is a U.S. citizen and is not voting in any other jurisdiction.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-five states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts’ Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Massachusetts money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

[We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. DELETE]

We appreciate the fact that you have provided an administrative instruction to hold applications that arrive earlier than 75 days before the election. However, the recently passed, Help America Vote Act, prohibits refusal of an application on the grounds of early submission. Thus, we urge that the "not earlier than" dates for ballot requests be eliminated completely from your statutes by legislation as soon as possible. Further, we recommend a part in the statutes be established for Federal absentee voters separate from regular absentee voters. Your laws now address each class of voter the same way even though there are quite different circumstances between a regular absentee voter who will not be present at the polls on election day due to vacation, hospitalization, etc. and a Federal absentee voter who requires more time to request an absentee ballot. [Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements. DELETE]

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ALL Elections in a Calendar Year

Congress modified the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in December 2001 to require the States, effective immediately, to accept a single FPCA, that is received 30 days or more before an election, as a simultaneous voter registration and absentee ballot application for all elections for Federal offices held in the State during that calendar year. FVAP reminds you of this requirement and recommends extension of this provision to include all State and local elections for which the citizen is eligible to vote. We recommend that the following procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state’s normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state’s registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Michigan provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

We request that you seriously consider in this year's legislative session, the expansion of the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Michigan enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request. However, we encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Michigan's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, such legislation. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Minnesota military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as State Department personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Minnesota allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Notary Requirement

We realize notarization of the FPCA and the ballot return envelope is not necessary if a voter provides his/her military ID number or passport number. However, if a voter overlooks this requirement or if he or she is unable to obtain notarial services, he or she may be disenfranchised. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Minnesota provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states beyond Federal law that have expanded the use of the FWAB and the 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Minnesota has enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Minnesota's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Current Mississippi election law requires that the FPCA and the affidavit on the absentee ballot return envelope must be sworn to before a commissioned officer or other person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We notice Mississippi requires UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. the day before the election. This deadline is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, the voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Mississippi accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Title 23, Section 23-15-677 of the Mississippi Election Laws refers to the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the '55 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Mississippi provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Special State Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Montana provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and U.S. corporations. The FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from their voting jurisdiction. If the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot on time, he may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official in its place.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. The FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Bring Montana Election Code into Conformance with the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In our recent update to the Voting Assistance Guide it came to our attention that there is a discrepancy in the definition of eligible citizens between the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) and the Montana Election Code. Section 13-2-211 of the Montana code defines an “elector in the United States service” as members of the armed forces, merchant marine, religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces, or citizens temporarily residing outside the U.S. territorial limits, and their spouses and dependents. UOCAVA does not cover members of religious groups or welfare agencies attached to the armed forces unless they are serving overseas. In addition to the other categories of citizens listed in the Montana code, UOCAVA also includes “uniformed services” – the Coast Guard and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. (See 42 U.S.C. 1973ff-1 and ff-6.)

We recommend that Montana review the language in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act of 1986 (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973ff et seq.) and make appropriate amendments to the state election law provisions to include the Uniformed Services groups referenced above.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Montana’s Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible

or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Nebraska enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot requests. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the unvoted ballot to the voters covered by UOCAVA, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters via electronic transmission. Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Nebraska money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We are aware that North Carolina continues to require UOCAVA voters to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election. This deadline, of course, is a day earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could also present a problem for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend that North Carolina accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Sample Language

Citizens covered by UOCAVA must return their voted ballot so the local board of elections receives it by the close of polls on election day.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that North Carolina provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently eight states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 ——— days before the election.*

Late Registration Procedures

We realize that North Carolina currently allows persons recently separated from the Armed Forces to register and vote in person up to and including election day. We recommend expanding this option to Uniformed Services family members and to citizens returning from overseas employment. Many of these citizens go through a transition period and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Title 16 of the North Dakota Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that North Dakota's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

We realize that Ohio enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot request and electronic transmission of the blank ballot to voters in the Uniformed Services. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to all UOCAVA citizens to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application for registration, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expansion of Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Ohio allows late registration for discharged military personnel and their spouses. However, we recommend expanding this alternative to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may not know in which state they will live. Others may move to a new state and not meet the state's residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services by separation from the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable such persons to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Waiver of Registration for Citizens Covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

While we realize that registration is waived in Ohio for members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their family members, we encourage expansion of this provision to include all groups covered in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) definitions. The following is an extract from the UOCAVA, 42 USC 1973ff-6. Section 107. Definitions:

“(1) "absent uniformed services voter" means --

- (A) a member of a uniformed service on active duty who, by reason of such active duty, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote;

- (B) a member of the merchant marine who, by reason of service in the merchant marine, is absent from the place of residence where the member is otherwise qualified to vote; and
- (C) a spouse or dependent of a member referred to in subparagraph (A) or (B) who, by reason of the active duty or service of the member, is absent from the place of residence where the spouse or dependent is otherwise qualified to vote “

“(7) “uniformed services” means the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service, and the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration”.

The sample language below will accommodate this provision.

Sample Language

If you are a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act, your registration is waived and you may request an absentee ballot by submitting an FPCA so it is received by the county board of elections not later than 3 days before the election.

Not Earlier Than Restrictions

Ohio has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, for example, not earlier than January 1st of the year of the election, or not earlier than 90 days before the election, whichever is earlier, and not later than 3 days before the election. The “not earlier than” limitation causes a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters. We urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Ohio provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year As a Simultaneous Request for Registration and An Absentee Ballot

Per the amendment to Section 104 of the UOCAVA under the National Defense Appropriations Act of 2001, you have notified your counties of the use of one FPCA for all elections in a calendar year. We need to also ensure that the use of the state Voter Registration Mail Application (VRMA) is no longer required for UOCAVA voters. Since the amendment to Section 102 of UOCAVA requires states to accept the FPCA as a voter registration application, it is our understanding that the Pennsylvania VRMA is no longer required for all UOCAVA voters. Further, the recently passed, Help America Vote Act provides for the use of a single application through the next two regularly scheduled general elections for Federal office. We urge you to include this provision in your statutes as soon as possible.

Return of Voted Ballot by Close of Polls on Election Day

We continue to note that Pennsylvania requires voters covered under the Uniformed and Overseas Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) to return their voted ballot by 5:00 p.m. on the Friday before the election. This deadline is earlier than the deadline for voting if these citizens were voting in person. This could present a problem, particularly for citizens stationed overseas, where mail is frequently delayed and unpredictable. In these cases, these voters need every day available to them prior to the close of polls to ensure timely return of ballots. It is for this reason we recommend Pennsylvania accept voted ballots from all UOCAVA citizens until the close of polls on election day. Only five other states require the return of the voted ballot before election day.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Pennsylvania allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in Pennsylvania's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We request your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process in all counties. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that most Pennsylvania counties allow the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include all counties electronically accepting the FPCA for registration and ballot request, sending the blank ballot and receiving the voted ballot from all UOCAVA citizens where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them.

Sample Language

An applicant, who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. Election officials may receive absentee ballot applications, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that Pennsylvania's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state. The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Current Puerto Rico election law requires that the FPCA and the ballot return envelope must be sworn to by a person authorized to administer oaths. Depending on the category of UOCAVA voter, the oath must be administered by a commissioned officer, the highest officer on board ship, an official in the school registrar's office, a notary public, or a consular officer. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, some small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states and territories have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Puerto Rico allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in Puerto Rico just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet Puerto Rico's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a commonwealth's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states and territories currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular commonwealth deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that Puerto Rico provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from Puerto Rico in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from Puerto Rico. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. If the regular absentee ballot from Puerto Rico does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, commonwealth, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. Puerto Rico will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner.

Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. Seven states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the commonwealth for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the commonwealth's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate commonwealth election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the commonwealth money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, commonwealth and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the commonwealth of Puerto Rico;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the* request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate Puerto Rico election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the Commonwealth Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the commonwealth's election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. 33 states and territories now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Although Puerto Rico currently allows requesting an absentee ballot electronically once registered, we encourage the use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration, and electronically sending the unvoted ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Nine states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. The Commonwealth Elections Commission may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Puerto Rico's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states and territories have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this commonwealth, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the Commonwealth.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

Rhode Island military and overseas voters continue to have an extremely short period of time to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted (21 days). While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time, insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, it is recommended that Rhode Island's Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirements

Currently South Dakota requires the ballot return envelope to be certified by a noncommissioned or commissioned officer if it is not possible to obtain a military postmark on or before election day. This requirement creates a burden for military members who may be assigned to a small military installation that may not have an officer available at all time. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that South Dakota allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Below is suggested language allowing for electronic transmission to be used in these three steps of the absentee voting process.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend South Dakota provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

Even though Texas has enacted a 30-day registration deadline as a safeguard to prevent fraud, we still encourage Texas to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late, e.g., up to the day of the election, or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election (within 30 days of the election). This time frame does not meet your state's current registration requirements. Further, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and the Texas registration requirement may combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently have such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize that Texas provides a state special write-in absentee ballot to Uniformed Services members if they are unable to cast a ballot on election day or during the early voting period because of a military contingency. We recommend expansion of this state write-in absentee ballot to provide a method for voting by other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a "full" slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. We request your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process. With proper controls, this would cut the ballot transit time at least in half, reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that Texas provides for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and early voting ballots. Additionally, in 1997, Texas enacted legislation to allow the electronic transmission of the voted ballot by members of the U.S. Armed Forces on active duty overseas, or their family members, if the Armed Forces members are casting the ballot from an area where the members are eligible to receive hostile fire pay or imminent danger pay, or that has been designated by the President of the United States as a combat zone. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to all Texas UOCAVA voters who request it, and accepting the voted ballot where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states, most recently West Virginia, have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where there is a short time frame for ballot transmission, we recommend that instead of the Texas Governor, Texas' Chief Election Official have the authority in law to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Federal Voting Assistance Program is in closer contact with the Chief Election Official and could mutually establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Notary Requirement

Currently Utah requires the ballot return envelope to be certified by a noncommissioned or commissioned officer if it is not possible to obtain a military postmark on or before election day. This requirement creates a burden for military members who may be assigned to a small military installation that may not have an officer available at all time. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Currently, acceptance of electronic transmission of election materials varies from county to county in Utah. Consideration should be given to more uniform use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage statewide adoption of procedures to allow for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and ballot request, electronically sending the ballot to the voter, and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We realize Utah provides a Special Military Write-In Absentee Ballot if the citizen will be unable to vote by regular ballot. We recommend expanding use of this ballot to provide a method for voting to other persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive regular absentee ballots sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states have implemented state write-in absentee ballots for this purpose.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or family member of a Uniformed Service member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in the general election. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. - (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Vermont military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Eleven states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for All Elections in a Calendar Year

We realize that Vermont allows the use of one FPCA to request ballots for both the primary and general elections in a calendar year. However, this is confusing for citizens desiring to vote in other elections, such as special elections. These citizens think that since they requested and received a ballot for the primary and general elections, they would automatically receive a ballot for other elections. Forty-eight states now accept one absentee ballot request for all elections in a calendar year. We recommend that this procedure be adopted.

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, many small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned.

Alternatively, we recommend unregistered applicants be instructed to read the Freeman's Oath prior to signing the FPCA. Item 8e of the 1995 FPCA contains language where the applicant swears/affirms under penalty of perjury that he or she is "a U.S. citizen, eligible to vote in the above jurisdiction and subscribe to any required state/local oath or statement." This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Vermont currently allows for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter. We encourage enacting legislation for acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below is sample legislation that will provide for this alternative.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Vermont allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-four states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Eight states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. - (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Vermont provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from the State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now have state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. Thirty-two states have modified state election code to reference UOCAVA.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Forty-two states have provisions for the 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Vermont's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Removal of Notary Requirement

Current Vermont election law requires that the FPCA used to register must be notarized. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. Also, many small military installations may have no commissioned officer assigned.

Alternatively, we recommend unregistered applicants be instructed to read the Freeman's Oath prior to signing the FPCA. Item 8e of the 1995 FPCA contains language where the applicant swears/affirms under penalty of perjury that he or she is "a U.S. citizen, eligible to vote in the above jurisdiction and subscribe to any required state/local oath or statement." This would eliminate the need to attach the oath to the FPCA. For the reasons stated above, we recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-nine states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Vermont currently allows for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request and electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter. We encourage enacting legislation for acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below is sample legislation that will provide for this alternative.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Vermont allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-five states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Vermont provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from the State in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now have state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA)

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. Thirty-five states have modified state election code to reference UOCAVA.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Late Registration Procedure

The Virgin Islands currently allows members of the Armed Forces and merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election and who return to the Virgin Islands too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that the Virgin Islands expand the scope of this procedure and allow Uniformed Services personnel (Coast Guard, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration), civilians recently separated from overseas employment, and the spouses and dependents of all these groups to be eligible for the same procedure. These citizens also go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. Expanding the scope of your existing procedure would solve this problem. Fourteen states currently have a late registration procedure that includes all UOCAVA citizens.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-in Absentee Ballot

We also recommend the Virgin Islands provide special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance when they know that they will be unable to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal and local offices. Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member or family member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available "90 to 180" days before the election.

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

The adoption of this initiative would save Virgin Islands money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Virginia enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and ballot request. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below includes these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An elections official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, Virginia law allows the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) to be used in all elections and from inside or outside the United States. We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope be accepted as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the completed FWAB. This would simplify the process and improve transit time. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope, is the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). This does not change the data required from your state for these citizens. The FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB could be simultaneously accepted as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of local election officials.

The Need for 45-day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Washington military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-five states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Washington allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting Washington's 15-day late registration deadline. We recommend that UOCAVA citizens be permitted to register up to the day of the next ensuing election when these circumstances arise. Twenty-five states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the Commonwealth Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Washington's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The chief election official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The chief election official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request, electronically sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for all aspects of the process.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend West Virginia provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the State. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

For those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information that is requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the territory's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the territory money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the territory;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We recommend that Wyoming provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure near real-time delivery of election materials between the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time substantially.

We note that Wyoming permits absentee ballot requests to be made by telephone and email. We encourage the further use of electronic transmission to include electronically sending the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request, sending the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the merchant marine, or their family members, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Seven other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Wyoming's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have provided this authority to their Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Honorable W. Fox McKeithen
Secretary of State
300 State Capitol Drive
Baton Rouge, LA 70804-9125

Dear Secretary McKeithen:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Louisiana's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified six initiatives, which the Louisiana legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Louisiana's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Louisiana and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Louisiana currently has 26,603 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 19,952 voting age family members and more than 56,315 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $10,640,867.63 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Louisiana citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Louisiana's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Terry Wade will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann
Deputy Director

3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Massachusetts and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Massachusetts currently has 13,938 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 10,454 voting age family members and more than 80,450 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $11,218,107.62 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Massachusetts citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Massachusetts's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Paul Mendez will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

The Honorable Terri L. Land
Secretary of State
Treasury Bldg., First Floor
430 W. Allegan Street
Lansing, MI 48918-9900

Dear Secretary Land:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Michigan's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified eight initiatives, which the Michigan legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Michigan's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or email to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Michigan and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Michigan currently has 53,666 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 40,250 voting age family members and more than 120,675 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $456.68 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these eight initiatives, we can help ensure that Michigan citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Michigan's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Elaine Perna Tucker will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Nebraska's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Nebraska and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Nebraska currently has 8,154 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 6,116 voting age family members and more than 24,135 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $5,861,050.13 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these four initiatives, we can help ensure that Nebraska citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Nebraska's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Paul Mendez will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann

As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing New York's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified seven initiatives, which the New York legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for New York's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Executive Director
P.O. Box 27255
Raleigh, NC 27611-7255

Dear Mr. Bartlett:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing North Carolina's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified five initiatives, which the North Carolina legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for North Carolina's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with North Carolina and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, North Carolina currently has 36,579 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 27,434 voting age family members and more than 104,585 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $35,940,097.13 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these five initiatives, we can help ensure that North Carolina citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in North Carolina's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Elaine Perna Tucker will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann
Deputy Director

After reviewing Pennsylvania's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified six initiatives, which the Pennsylvania legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Pennsylvania's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Members of the Armed Forces had $10,377,290.84 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Pennsylvania citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Pennsylvania's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Elaine Perna Tucker will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

The Honorable Matt Brown
Secretary of State
217 State House
Providence, RI 02903

Dear Secretary Brown:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Rhode Island's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified two initiatives, which the Rhode Island legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Rhode Island's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Rhode Island and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Rhode Island currently has 3,542 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 2,657 voting age family members and more than 16,090 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $2,476,138.16 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these two initiatives, we can help ensure that Rhode Island citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Rhode Island's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Utah and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Utah currently has 6,984 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 5,238 voting age family members and more than 24,135 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $5,958,180.86 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Utah citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Utah's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Betty Collins will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Dear Secretary Markowitz:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Vermont's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified nine initiatives, which the Vermont legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Vermont's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Vermont currently has 3,873 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 2,905 voting age family members and more than 8,045 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $1,042,264.33 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. The Honorable Joseph B. Meyer
Secretary of State
State Capitol Building
Room 106
Cheyenne, WY 82002-0020

Dear Secretary Meyer:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Wyoming's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified five initiatives, which the Wyoming legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Wyoming's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Wyoming and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Wyoming currently has 7,684 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 5,763 voting age family members and more than 8,045 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. By continuing to work together to implement these five initiatives, we can help ensure that Wyoming citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Wyoming's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Terry Wade will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann
Deputy Director

As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Virgin Islands's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified four initiatives, which the Virgin Islands legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Virgin Islands's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). By continuing to work together to implement these four initiatives, we can help ensure that Virgin Islands citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

The Honorable Nancy L. Worley
Secretary of State
Alabama State Capitol, Room S-105
600 Dexter Avenue
Montgomery, AL 36103

Dear Secretary Worley:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Alabama's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified six initiatives, which the Alabama legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Alabama's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Alabama and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Alabama currently has 25,839 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 19,379 voting age family members and more than 56,315 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $15,585,887.02 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Alabama citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Alabama's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Paul Mendez will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann
Deputy Director

After two decades of working cooperatively with Colorado and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Colorado currently has 20,233 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 15,175 voting age family members and more than 56,315 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $13,097,460.37 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these five initiatives, we can help ensure that Colorado citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Colorado's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. John Godley will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Susan Bysiewicz
Secretary of State
State Capitol, Room 104
210 Capitol Avenue
Hartford, CT 06106

Dear Secretary Bysiewicz:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Connecticut's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified seven initiatives, which the Connecticut legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Connecticut's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Connecticut currently has 12,116 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 9,085 voting age family members and more than 40,225 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $4,132,021.94 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these seven initiatives, we can help ensure that Connecticut citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Idaho's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified six initiatives, which the Idaho legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Idaho's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Idaho and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Idaho currently has 10,479 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 7,859 voting age family members and more than 16,090 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $3,687,652.13 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Idaho citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Idaho's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Brian Griffiths will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann

Dear Secretary Brown:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Kentucky's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified seven initiatives, which the Kentucky legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Kentucky's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

Dear «SALUTATION»:

As we prepare for the 2004 elections, I am writing each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. After reviewing «STATE»'s existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified «DISTRICT» initiatives, which the «STATE» legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for «STATE»'s citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The NDAA FY02 (Section 1606) requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year. The HAVA (Section 706) requires the FPCA to be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of these legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a temporary reporting requirement that takes effect with dissemination of the attached 2002 legislative initiatives and will continue through 2004.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. The state insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter.
4. Use the enclosed suggested report format to respond to the above requirements electronically.

After more than a decade of working cooperatively with <<STATE>> and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, «STATE» currently has «PHONE» citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over «OFFICE» voting age family members and more than «SEAT» citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $«NUM» in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2001. By continuing to work together to implement these «DISTRICT» initiatives, we can help ensure that «STATE» citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in «STATE»'s legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. «ADDRESS1» will contact «HOMESTATE» soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

P.K. Brunelli
Director

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alabama allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in the U.S. and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would otherwise not have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to Alabama's use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We encourage use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration from all citizens covered by UOCAVA, electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Twelve states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the unvoted ballot, and accepting the voted ballot. Forty-nine states allow electronic transmission of at least part of the absentee voting process.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Alabama provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state’s registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Alabama money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Alabama's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of voting materials for Active Duty Military. Fourteen states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedure

We recommend that Alaska allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine or overseas employment, and their family members, to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. Thirty-six states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that citizen is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Notary Requirement

Current American Samoa election law requires that the FPCA must be sworn to by a person authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S. or the Territories

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state or territory and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state or territory, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a citizen outside the Territory who has never lived in the Territory has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that American Samoa's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that American Samoa allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend American Samoa provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from American Samoa in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. Presently, there are nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow the chief election officer more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize that American Samoa allows the electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. The chief election officer may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information that is requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the territory's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the territory money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the territory;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45 Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face American Samoa military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Arizona military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Arizona allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Arizona's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership.

By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in Federal elections only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Arkansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the State. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Arkansas enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the FPCA for ballot requests and that registration is waived. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 7-5-406 of the Arkansas Election Laws refers to the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975. In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of the 1955 Act and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Connecticut enacted legislation to provide for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for registration and absentee ballot request. However, voters using the FPCA to register are required to simultaneously mail the original, which must arrive by 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election for the ballot to be counted. The electronic transmission methodology is there to ensure the FPCA is received by the state's deadline. If the electronically transmitted FPCA for registration is not recognized until the mail version is received then the availability of electronic transmission is of no benefit to the voter. We realize the original FPCA should be mailed in all cases regardless, however we urge an extension to the acceptance deadline for the original FPCA when the voter has utilized the electronically transmitted option.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We realize that Connecticut law allows recently discharged members of the military returning to the state too late to register during the regular registration period to register to vote up until 5:00 p.m. on the last weekday before an election. We recommend that Connecticut allow persons recently separated from overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet the normal residency requirements. Often, the date of termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise an overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem.

Sample Language

A person who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Connecticut extend the availability of the state write-in absentee ballot to non-Uniformed Services overseas electors. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by persons overseas who, due to special circumstances such as those faced by Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Use of the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB)

The state of Connecticut is exempt from use of the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) by Section 103 (f) in the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These statements exempt states that make ballots available to military voters at least 90 days before the general election and as soon as the candidate list is available for other UOCAVA citizens.

The intent of the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) is to aid the enfranchisement of U.S. citizens overseas wishing to vote for Federal Offices in general elections who make timely application for, but do not receive an absentee ballot.

The intent of the current Connecticut Special Write-In Absentee Ballot is to assist members of the military and their family members who are not able to follow the regular absentee ballot application procedure.

The Connecticut Special Write-In Absentee Ballot does not accommodate citizens who request a state absentee ballot in a timely manner and do not receive it in time to vote and return it to meet the state's ballot deadline. The FWABs, which are prepositioned at military installations and U.S. Embassies and Consulates worldwide fulfill this purpose for all overseas U.S. citizens except those whose legal residence is Connecticut.

We recommend that Connecticut allow overseas UOCAVA citizens who have requested a state absentee ballot in a timely manner and not received it in time to vote and return it to meet the state's ballot deadline be allowed to use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot.

Sample Language

The Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) will be accepted from overseas voters who make timely application for, and do not receive a regular absentee ballot. The following rules shall apply with respect to the FWAB:

(1) In completing the ballot, the overseas voter may designate a candidate by writing in the name of the candidate or by writing in the name of the political party (in which case the ballots shall be counted for the candidate of that political party).

(2) In the case of the offices of President and Vice President, a vote for a named candidate or a vote by writing in the name of the political party shall be counted as a vote for the electors supporting the candidate involved.

(3) Any abbreviation, misspelling, or other minor variation in the spelling of the name of a candidate or a political party shall be disregarded in determining the validity of the ballot, if the intention of the voter can be ascertained.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent.

We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Connecticut's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Twelve states have provided this authority to their Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that the District of Columbia allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and their family members to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in the District of Columbia just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and registration requirements combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Special Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend that the District of Columbia provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot in the normal timeframe. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting only for Federal offices. There are presently six states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce a major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Please consider expanding the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize the District of Columbia allows electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration and absentee ballot request and permits faxing of the absentee ballot when military service prevents the voter from receiving and returning the voted ballot. However, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballots for all military and overseas citizens, electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot electronically from the voter, on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate these alternatives.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors living outside the United States via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently, the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During the 1996 primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Eight other states have expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously

with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot for general elections and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the District's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter resides outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the jurisdiction;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

Except for the fact that they have never resided in the U.S., they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We recommend that Florida provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. We commend you for passing legislation that allowed for a state write-in ballot for general elections. However, we request that you expand this to all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame for all elections. Thus, a voter would know that they could exercise their right to vote for all Florida elections, not just one. We encourage you to include this in your next legislative package.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Although Florida passed legislation allowing the electronic transmission of the blank ballot and receipt of the voted ballot by overseas U.S. citizens, we encourage you to expand the use of this alternative. We request that Florida allow election officials to electronically send the blank ballot and accept the voted ballot electronically from military voters in the U.S., on a regular basis, where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below would accommodate this alternative.

Sample Language

An election official may send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors who are members of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family members, or qualified electors via electronic transmission.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include the electronic transmission of the blank ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. Below please find suggested sample language allowing for the electronic transmission of the blank and voted ballot.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Hawaii military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-one states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Hawaii allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register after the standard registration deadline or be exempt from registration. Although Hawaii Revised Statute Section 15-3 states "...any former registered voter of Hawaii may vote an absentee ballot in any presidential election occurring within twenty-four months after leaving Hawaii...", This statute does not cover members of the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or citizens employed overseas, and family members that have been away for over 24 months. Many members of the Uniformed Services, merchant marine and overseas citizens go through a relocation transition period when they separate from service or overseas employment. The timing of their discharge or employment termination may prevent them from meeting the normal registration deadline. A special late registration procedure for these circumstances would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently have a late registration procedure.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member, who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Hawaii provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. If the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for federal offices. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States, a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under the UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Idaho's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country whom may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Idaho allows for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for absentee ballot request. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA request for registration as well as electronic transmission of the blank ballot to the voter and acceptance of the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Idaho allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Idaho provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular absentee ballot from the State in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states have implemented state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the State. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular absentee ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently eight states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or family member of a Uniformed Service member, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Notary Requirement

Current Illinois election law requires that in order to vote a full ballot, the state affidavit of registration from unregistered Illinois residents temporarily outside the U.S. must be sworn to before a person or officer authorized to administer oaths. The notary requirement creates problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We recommend removal of the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

Late Registration Procedures

Illinois currently allows members of the Armed Forces or merchant marine, discharged within 60 days of an election who return to the state too late to register, to vote in the upcoming election. We recommend that Illinois expand this procedure and allow family members of these service personnel and civilians recently separated from overseas employment to be able to register late or be exempt from registration and be allowed to vote in the upcoming election. Like members of the Armed Forces, many overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's 30-day residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Expanded procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline, shall be entitled to register up to the day of the next election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Expand Application for Ballot by Proxy to Overseas Citizens

Currently, Illinois allows spouses, and other family members, to use a special application provided by the local election official to request that an absentee ballot be mailed to members of the Uniformed Services. We recommend this option be expanded to allow spouses and other family members of overseas civilian citizens to request an absentee ballot be mailed to them.

Sample Language

If a spouse, dependent, mother, father, sister or brother of a citizen voting under the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) is registered to vote in the same county as that citizen, he or she may request that an absentee ballot be mailed to that voter by completing a special application provided by the local election official.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Illinois provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

Chapter 10 of the Illinois Election Laws makes no reference to Federal law. In 1986, Congress passed the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) which the Federal Voting Assistance Program administers. Reference to the UOCAVA in the state election code would help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. 33 states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

Nine states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Illinois' State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including, but not limited to, electronic transmission or fax. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Eleven states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may exercise emergency powers over any election being held in a district in which either a natural disaster or extremely inclement weather has occurred. The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may also exercise emergency powers during an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The State Board of Elections/Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Indiana military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact is that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail remains the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots to all who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. We realize Indiana provides 45-day transit time for General and Primary elections. However, expanding this provision to all elections would help ensure enfranchisement. Forty-one states now provide a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Iowa enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application request for registration and an absentee ballot. We encourage expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to the voter and accepting the voted ballot from the voter where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The following sample language would allow for these procedures.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Late Registration Procedures

We understand Iowa currently allows discharged military personnel to register late. We encourage expanding this option to their family members and overseas citizens who may go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a citizen returning home after active duty or employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Kansas provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a state write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices. There are presently seven states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and runoff elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem, which continues to face Louisiana military and overseas voters, is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Presidential elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. Forty-one states currently have a 45-day transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Louisiana's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Fourteen states have granted emergency authority to the Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Uniformed Services, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Louisiana allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, the merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. We realize Massachusetts provides 45-day transit time for Primary elections. However, expanding this provision to all elections would help ensure enfranchisement. Forty-one states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. We realize Massachusetts provides a special write-in absentee ballot if the local election official does not have the regular state ballot available for mailing. However, expanding this provision by making this ballot available upon request by UOCAVA citizens and expanding its use for all elections would help ensure enfranchisement. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Fourteen states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe,

by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. Thirty-six states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

Sample Language

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to federal elections:

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Massachusetts has enacted legislation which provides for the electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the blank ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot via electronic transmission from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise them. Twelve states now allow electronic transmission of the FPCA for registering and requesting the absentee ballot, sending the blank ballot, and accepting the voted ballot.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Armed Forces or the United States merchant marine, a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local election official may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for local, state and Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine states have legislatively expanded the use of the FWAB for other than Federal offices beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save Massachusetts money, and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the chief election officer.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

January 5, 2004

The Honorable William Francis Galvin
Secretary of the Commonwealth
State House, Room 337
Boston, MA 02133

Dear Secretary Galvin:

As we continue preparations for the 2004 elections, I am writing the Governor of each state to suggest ways in which we can bring uniformity and simplification to the absentee voting process for our men and women in uniform and our overseas citizens. As a courtesy, I am sending you this letter that mirrors the letter sent to your Governor.

After reviewing Massachusetts's existing election code and procedures to include possible changes due to recent federal legislation, I have identified six initiatives, which the Massachusetts legislature might consider during its next legislative session. If these initiatives were enacted and signed into law before the 2004 general election, they would significantly help to facilitate the absentee voting process for Massachusetts's citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). These citizens are members of the Uniformed Services and their eligible family members and citizens residing outside the United States. Uniformed Services voters are defined as the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, merchant marine, Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2002 (NDAA FY02) and the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) have federally legislated two of the initiatives the FVAP had previously suggested to the states and territories. The amended UOCAVA now requires states and territories to accept one Federal Postcard Application (FPCA) as a request for all ballots a voter is eligible to receive in a calendar year and that the FPCA must be processed by the state regardless of when it is received during the year.

Section 1605 of the NDAA FY02, requires the chief executive authority of each State to submit a report on the status of implementation of the enclosed legislative recommendations. The report is required 90 days after receiving this package. The Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP), in turn, is required to transmit these reports to the respective Congressional delegations from each State. This is a three-year temporary reporting requirement of which this is the second year.

In order to facilitate this requirement I suggest the following:

1. Using the enclosed report format, insert a brief response after each of the initiatives.
2. Return these initiatives with a cover letter from the Governor in which he/she summarizes any UOCAVA related legislation that the state has passed in the past 5 years and include overall comments or observations.
3. Provide the above-mentioned documents as the Governor's Report within 90 days of receipt of this letter via mail or e-mail to vote@fvap.ncr.gov.

After two decades of working cooperatively with Massachusetts and the other 54 states and territories, we have had many successes in simplifying the absentee voting process: 48 jurisdictions have removed the requirement for notarization of registration forms and ballot envelopes; and 49 currently allow the electronic transmission of some or all election materials.

Of the more than six million citizens guaranteed their voting rights under the UOCAVA, Massachusetts currently has 13,938 citizens serving in the Armed Forces, over 10,454 voting age family members and more than 80,450 citizens residing overseas who are not affiliated with the Federal government that are eligible to vote. Members of the Armed Forces had $11,218,107.62 in state income tax withheld from their pay in 2002. By continuing to work together to implement these six initiatives, we can help ensure that Massachusetts citizens can easily exercise their right to vote for their representatives to Federal, state and local offices.

As you review these initiatives for possible inclusion in Massachusetts's legislative agenda, please do not hesitate to contact us for assistance. We can provide legislation that other states have enacted to implement similar measures and provide written or in-person testimony, if desired. Paul Mendez will be in contact soon to discuss these initiatives. We have come a long way in simplifying the absentee voting process since the enactment of the UOCAVA—let's continue our joint efforts to achieve the simplest possible absentee voting process while maintaining its integrity.

Sincerely,

J. Scott Wiedmann
Deputy Director

LEGISLATIVE IMPLEMENTATION REPORT

FOR STATE OF Massachusetts

PART I: Per the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 02, Section 1605, how did Massachusetts implement, in whole or in part, the recommendations made for Massachusetts under the Federal Voting Assistance Program on behalf of the Secretary of Defense, acting as the Presidential designee? Include a description of the changes made to Massachusetts's law to implement each recommendation. If the recommendation has not been implemented, provide a statement of the status of the recommendation before the State legislature and a statement of any recommendation the chief executive officer has made or intends to make to the legislature with respect to that recommendation.

1. 45-Day Ballot Transit Time.

2. One Federal Post Card Application for All Elections. Superseded by the National Defense Authorization Act for FY02, section 1606.

3. Notary Not Required.

4. Removed "Not Earlier Than" Restriction. Superseded by the Help America Vote Act of 2002, section 706.

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Maine allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many of these citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election and this time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, electronic transmission has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped ensure these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce the major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Consideration should be given to expand the use of modern technology in the absentee voting process. We realize Maine has enacted legislation to provide for electronic transmission of the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) request for registration and ballot. We recommend expanded use of this alternative to include electronically sending the ballot to these voters, and accepting the voted ballot from these voters where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member, or is a qualified elector living outside the United States, may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. An auditor or clerk may send and receive absentee ballot applications and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually first or second-generation citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in elections for Federal office. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

Currently the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) may be used only in general elections for Federal offices only. This ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership. By expanding its use to include special, primary and runoff elections for Federal offices, citizens would not be disenfranchised because regular ballots are not received in a timely manner. Frequently, there is insufficient time between the call for a special election and the actual election and between primary and runoff elections. Allowing use of the FWAB in these elections would reduce the possible need for legal action when insufficient time exists for the ballot to be received, voted and returned to be counted. During past primaries, on an ad hoc basis, several states and jurisdictions allowed the FWAB to be used for offices other than Federal offices. Nine other states have legislatively expanded its use beyond the Federal law.

In addition, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB would further simplify the process, improve on transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and

FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for general election and Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complied with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the part of the local election official.

Sample Language

- Expanded use of the FWAB:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot in general, special, primary, and run-off elections for local, state and Federal offices.

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States, or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, or a family member of a Uniformed Service member, and is a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;*
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and*
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.*

The Need for 45 Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Maine military and overseas voters is the short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots for non-Federal elections. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to ensuring timely delivery of absentee ballots for those who request them. However, our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application.

Sample Language

It is the intent and purpose of this Legislature that the provisions set forth in this chapter are designed to facilitate the Federal mandate of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA, 42 U.S.C. 1973 ff et. seq.).

This language is usually found under the chapter in the State Election Code that makes reference to Federal elections.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Maine's Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting

Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. Fourteen states have provided this authority to their Chief Election Official.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe, by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Late Registration Procedures

Although the Maryland General Assembly deleted the late registration provision from Maryland law, we never-the-less encourage you to recommend that Maryland reinstate procedures to allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services and their family members to be able to register late (or be exempt from registration). Previously, honorably discharged military personnel and their spouses and dependents could still vote absentee if a Federal Post Card Application arrived not later than 8 p.m. on election day. Additionally, we recommend that Maryland expand this procedure to allow persons recently separated from overseas employment and their family members to register late or be exempt from registration.

Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state's normal residency requirements. Often the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state's registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states now allow such procedures.

Sample Language

An individual, or accompanying family member who has been discharged or separated from the Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or from employment outside the territorial limits of the United States, too late to enable him or her to register by the regular state deadline for registration, shall be entitled to register for the purpose of voting at the next ensuing election after such discharge, separation, or termination of employment.

State Write-In Absentee Ballot

Although Maryland provides ample time for transit of ballots under normal circumstances, especially with late counting, we continue to recommend that Maryland provide a state write-in absentee ballot for all elections as a means to vote in case there are delays in mailing and returning absentee ballots. Again, the main purpose of the state write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular ballot from your state in the normal time frame. A voter could request a state write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot from the state in time to be counted. Twenty-seven states now provide state write-in absentee ballots.

This state write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at Embassies and Consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular ballot from the state. They do not know in advance that they need the FWAB. However, if the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the state deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official. Also a state write-in ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine or family member and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a state write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The ballot will be available 90 to 180 days before the election.

Electronic Transmission of Election Materials

Since the 1990 general election, faxing has proven to be a valuable alternative method for facilitating the enfranchisement of military persons and overseas citizens serving their country who may have otherwise been unable to vote. This initiative has helped to ensure that these citizens were not disenfranchised by allowing them to cast a ballot when they would not otherwise have been able to vote due to time and location constraints.

Throughout an election year cycle, various circumstances exist that require the need for this alternative procedure in order for citizens to vote. The basic concept of electronic transmission of election materials is to secure high-speed delivery of election materials to and from the voter and local election officials. Your support in developing the acceptance of electronic transmission for all aspects of the process, with proper controls, would cut the ballot transit time at least in half. This would reduce a major obstacle to voting absentee and allow local election officials more administrative flexibility in preparing election materials.

Maryland has done an exceptional job passing legislation on behalf of UOCAVA voters regarding electronic transmission of election materials. However, we request your consideration again to make further changes in Maryland law/administrative procedures that would include the faxing of the voted ballot for all UOCAVA absentee voters and of the FPCA for registration purposes. We realize that Maryland allows faxing of the FPCA for an absentee ballot request and now the unvoted ballot and that Maryland law prohibits electronic facsimile if the document requires a signed affidavit. However, we encourage expansion of this alternative to include electronic transmission of the FPCA for registration (since we instruct voters to submit the original, signed FPCA after faxing and the FPCA form is a simultaneous request for registration and request for absentee ballot) and acceptance of the voted ballot electronically from the voter (signature already on file) where circumstances would otherwise disenfranchise a citizen. The sample language below accommodates these alternatives.

Sample Language

An applicant who is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, a family member, or a qualified elector living outside the United States may apply for registration and an absentee ballot by electronic transmission if otherwise qualified to apply for and vote by absentee ballot. A local board of elections may receive FPCAs for registration, send blank ballots and accept voted ballots from eligible electors via electronic transmission.

Expand Use of Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot

We appreciate the action taken by the Maryland State Board of Elections to allow overseas voters to cast votes for state and local offices in primary and special Federal elections using the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB). Since this ballot is prepositioned worldwide at Embassies and Consulates, military installations and overseas organizations and corporations with American membership, many overseas citizens have access to it and would not be disenfranchised because their regular ballots were not received in a timely manner.

In addition, however, for those citizens that desire to vote in elections for Federal office only, we request the acceptance of the FWAB transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB. This would further simplify the process, improve transit time and help ensure enfranchisement. It should be noted that the information requested on the FWAB transmission envelope is basically the same as the information requested from the voter on the Federal Post Card Application (FPCA). We recommend the FWAB transmission envelope and FWAB be accepted simultaneously as a registration form and ballot by the state for elections for Federal offices if:

- (1) the information submitted complies with the state's registration requirements;
- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted;
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

The adoption of this initiative would save the state money and alleviate administrative responsibilities on the local election official.

Sample Language

- Use of FWAB as a Combined Request for Registration and Ballot Submission:

If the voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services, merchant marine, or a family member and a qualified elector, he or she may use the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) transmission envelope as a request for registration simultaneously with the submission of the FWAB if:

(1) the information submitted complies with the registration requirements of the state;

(2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and

(3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Enfranchise Citizens Who Have Never Resided in the U.S.

There are many U.S. citizens who have never resided in a state and under current law are not entitled to vote. These are usually citizens who are subject to U.S. income tax and all other requirements of citizens. Except for the fact that they have never resided in a state, they would be eligible to vote in Federal elections. Some local election officials make exceptions and allow these citizens to vote. Twelve states have passed legislation allowing these citizens to claim the legal residence of a parent. We recommend these citizens be allowed to vote in elections for Federal offices where either parent is eligible to vote under UOCAVA. To address your concerns about lack of control over the process, the citizen must provide a valid Maryland residence address and sign the FPCA attesting that he/she is a U.S. citizen and is not voting in any other jurisdiction.

Sample Language

If a U.S. citizen outside the United States who has never lived in the United States has a parent who is a qualified elector, then that person is eligible to register and vote where his or her parent is a qualified elector.

The Need for 45-Day Ballot Transit Time

The most persistent problem which continues to face Massachusetts military and overseas voters is the extremely short period of time these voters have to receive, vote, and return their absentee ballots in order to be counted. While electronic transmission of election materials offers an alternative to inadequate ballot transit time in emergency situations, the fact remains that insufficient ballot transit time through the mail continues to be the primary obstacle to timely delivery of absentee ballots to voters. Our post-election surveys and Postal Service statistics indicate that a 45-day transit time is needed for absentee ballots sent through international mail or the military APO/ FPO (overseas) post offices. This round trip transit time is especially necessary because of the remote location of many military personnel and overseas citizens such as sailors and marines aboard ship, airmen and sailors at isolated tracking sites around the world, as well as Department of State personnel and citizen employees of American multinational corporations in remote areas. We realize Massachusetts provides 45-day transit time for Primary elections. However, expanding this provision to all elections would help ensure enfranchisement. Forty-one states now allow 45-day ballot transit time.

Sample Language

For all elections, the official charged with the printing and distribution of ballots and election materials shall print as many absentee ballots as may be necessary as soon as possible after receiving the information concerning candidates and measures to be voted on at an election, and balloting materials shall be mailed not later than the 45th day before the election.

Special State Write-In Absentee Ballot

We also recommend Massachusetts provide a special write-in absentee ballot for all elections. The purpose of the special write-in absentee ballot is to provide a method for voting by military and other persons overseas who, due to military contingencies or special circumstances such as those faced by submariners, Peace Corps volunteers, missionaries or others in remote areas, will be out of communication for extended periods of time and unable to receive the regular absentee ballot sent in the normal time frame. A voter could request a special write-in absentee ballot 90 days in advance and write in the names of the candidates or party preferences. The voter knows in advance that he or she will not be able to receive, vote, and return the regular ballot in time to be counted. We realize Massachusetts provides a special write-in absentee ballot if the local election official does not have the regular state ballot available for mailing. However, expanding this provision by making this ballot available upon request by UOCAVA citizens and expanding its use for all elections would help ensure enfranchisement. Twenty-seven states now provide special write-in absentee ballots.

This special write-in absentee ballot should not be confused with the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot (FWAB) that is prepositioned at embassies and consulates, military installations, overseas organizations and corporations. In comparison, the FWAB is generally only available to military stationed overseas and overseas citizens who have already applied for a regular absentee ballot from the state. If the regular ballot from the state does not arrive in sufficient time for the voter to return the voted ballot and meet the deadline, these voters may obtain, vote, and return the FWAB to the local election official.

It is also important to note that a special write-in absentee ballot usually provides a “full” slate of offices to be voted upon including Federal, state, and local offices. On the other hand, the FWAB generally allows voting for Federal offices only. There are presently nine states that have expanded the use of the FWAB beyond Federal law. The 1995 revised FWAB was designed to accommodate its use beyond the general election and Federal offices only.

Sample Language

If the voter is a U.S. citizen residing outside the United States or a member of the United States Uniformed Services or merchant marine, or their family members, and a qualified elector, he or she may request, not earlier than 180 days before an election, a special write-in absentee ballot. The voter must submit with the request a statement that provides that due to military or other contingencies that preclude normal mail delivery, the elector cannot vote an absentee ballot during the normal absentee voting period. The state will make the ballot available "90 to 180" days before the election.

Emergency Authority for Chief Election Official

During a period of a declared emergency or other situation where a short time-frame for ballot transmission is created, it is recommended that Massachusetts' Chief Election Official have the authority to designate alternate methods for handling absentee ballots to ensure voters have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote. The Chief Election Official and the Federal Voting Assistance Program could establish expeditious methods for handling absentee ballots including electronic transmission. As an example, in light of the surge of Guard and Reserve forces being deployed, the Chief Election Official can temporarily allow electronics transmission of all voting materials for Active Duty Military. Fourteen states have passed legislation giving the Chief Election Official authority to designate alternate methods of handling absentee ballots in emergency situation.

Sample Language

If a national or local emergency or other situation arises which makes substantial compliance with the provisions of the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act impossible or unreasonable, such as a natural disaster or an armed conflict involving United States Armed Forces, or mobilization of those forces, including State National Guard and Reserve components of this state, the Chief Election Official may prescribe,

by emergency orders or rules, such special procedures or requirements as may be necessary to facilitate absentee voting by those citizens directly affected who otherwise are eligible to vote in the state.

The Chief Election Official shall adopt rules describing the emergency powers and the situations in which the powers will be exercised.

Reference to the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in the State Election Code

In 1986, Congress updated and consolidated the provisions of Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955 and the Overseas Citizens Voting Rights Act of 1975 into the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA). Reference to UOCAVA in the state election code will help election officials and interested citizens find guidance to applicable Federal law and increase their familiarity with the statute and its application. We recommend that UOCAVA be referenced in appropriate sections of the state election code. Thirty-six states now reference the UOCAVA in their election code.

- (2) the voter is otherwise eligible to vote absentee in the jurisdiction where the request is submitted; and
- (3) the request is received by the appropriate state election official not less than 30 days before the election.

Use of One Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) for ALL Elections in a Calendar Year

Congress modified the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act (UOCAVA) in December 2001 to require the States, effective immediately, to accept a single FPCA, that is received 30 days or more before an election, as a simultaneous voter registration and absentee ballot application for all elections for Federal offices held in the State during that calendar year. FVAP reminds you of this requirement and recommends extension of this provision to include all State and local elections for which the citizen is eligible to vote. We recommend that the following procedure be adopted:

Sample Language

An application for an absentee ballot by mail must be received by the county (or municipality) clerk in the applicant's county (or municipality) of voting residence within the time frame specified by law. The single absentee ballot application must permit the person to register to vote and to request an absentee ballot for each election held within that calendar year for which the voter is eligible to vote.

Notary Requirement

Current Michigan election law requires that the FPCA used to register and request absentee ballots or to request absentee ballots only, must be sworn to before an official authorized to administer oaths if the requesters are Michigan residents temporarily residing outside the U.S. and unaffiliated with the U.S. Federal Government, or overseas citizens. This notary requirement has created continuing problems for individuals living overseas where such services are difficult and expensive, if not impossible, to obtain. Some voters have paid $90 to obtain notarial services. In many countries, there are no notaries in their system of jurisprudence. We strongly recommend action this legislative year to remove the notary requirement for all absentee balloting materials or not require notarization after initial registration notary is provided. To this end, we support HB 5086, which is currently under consideration in your legislature. Please contact us to provide testimony for, or to write letters in support of, this legislation. Forty-eight states have eliminated the notary requirement on all election materials to date.

Sample Language

If a voter is residing outside the United States or is a member of the United States Uniformed Services or a family member of a member of the Uniformed Services, and he or she is a qualified elector and is required to execute an affidavit or form for voter registration or an absentee ballot, he or she may subscribe to a self-administered oath, under penalty of perjury.

"Not Earlier Than" Restrictions

We also note that Michigan has a specified time during which requests for registration and/or absentee ballots may be received by local election officials, i.e., not earlier than 75 days before the election and not later than the Saturday before the election. The "not earlier than" limitation has also caused a problem for military personnel or other citizens overseas. Frequently, programs encouraging voter registration and participation are held at various times during an election year. During these sessions, citizens are encouraged to submit an application for registration and/or request for absentee ballot. On other occasions, a candidate may address a large gathering of citizens to encourage them to register and vote. Persons who are motivated to act as a result of these sessions could have their ~~applications rejected because they were received too early or too late by local election officials. This can be very frustrating, particularly to first time voters.~~

~~We appreciate the fact that you have provided an administrative instruction to hold applications that arrive earlier than 75 days before the election. However, we urge that the “not earlier than” dates for ballot requests be eliminated completely by legislation. Further, we recommend a part in the statutes be established for Federal absentee voters separate from regular absentee voters. Your laws now address each class of voter the same way even though there are quite different circumstances between a regular absentee voter who will not be present at the polls on election day due to vacation, hospitalization, etc. and a Federal absentee voter who requires more time to request an absentee ballot. Forty-nine states have already removed such requirements.~~

Late Registration Procedures

We recommend that Michigan allow persons recently separated from the Uniformed Services or overseas employment, and their family members, to be able to register late or be exempt from registration. Many members of the Uniformed Services and overseas citizens go through a transition period when they first leave the Uniformed Services or overseas employment and may reside in your state just prior to an election. This time frame does not meet your state’s normal residency requirements. Often, the date of discharge or termination of overseas employment and a state’s registration requirement combine to disenfranchise a discharged military member or overseas citizen returning home after employment abroad. Special procedures to allow these persons to register and vote would solve this problem. Twenty-six states currently allow such procedures.
