

Librarian's Choice

January 2010

Barack Obama and the Future of American Politics by Paul Street 373.932 OBA

“That the Obama phenomenon is of considerable significance in American social and political history should hardly be in doubt....This lucid and penetrating book situates it firmly within the ‘corporate dominated and militaristic U.S. elections system and political culture’, explores in depth its substantive content and its limits, and draws valuable lessons about how these might be transcended in the unending struggle to achieve a more just and free society and peaceful world.”

Noam Chomsky

Something in the Air by Marc Fisher 384.54 FIA

“A wildly entertaining, definitive book on the history and future of radio.” George Pelecanos.

The Psychology of Humor: An Integrative Approach by Rod A. Martin 152.43 MAR

The main purpose of this book is to provide an integrative review of theory and research findings in all areas of the psychology of humor.

Economics for Humans by Julie A. Nelson. 174 NEL

“In this book, the author shows how to humanize economics without abandoning its commitment to rigorous description and explanation.” Viviana A. Zelizer