European Colleges/Universities

More than seventy-five percent of DoDDS-Europe seniors enroll in a two or four year college or university after graduation. For a variety of reasons, many of these students remain in Europe to continue their education. Many make this choice because they have lived outside the United States most of their lives. Many choose to stay to be near their families because they are either European citizens or their families' profession (Soldier or civilian) require the tour of duty.

I have attempted to provide you with an updated list of many of the colleges/universities offering programs or degrees to American students.

Questions parents and prospective students should ask the institutes are:

- Is the school accredited?
- Is financial aid available?
- Is the FAFSA (Free Application for Student Aid) accepted?
