Lifting a Hand to Serve

By: Chris Keels, FBI Team Leader

This issue of the FBI News Journal, is dedicated to our service providers and their recipients. The FBI has over thirty (30) service providers that offer services and resources to our mentees (offenders). Services range from clothing to vocational training. We take this opportunity to thank those institutions, organizers and funding sources for your commitment to the re-entry community and to re-entrants. If you were not committed to such a ministry, many well deserving individuals would not have an open door to enter. In these difficult economic times, it is particularly important that re-entrants have community-based services that assist in their re-entry process.

Although CSOSA is a cutting edge community supervision agency, it is realized that CSOSA cannot do it alone and should not try to meet every need of the re-entrant. Such actions would defeat the whole purpose of successful re-entry. Individuals must learn to navigate and become familiar with resources, services and role models/mentors that will assist them in the future.

Having a place to go just to talk to someone is the first step, but just as important is the desire to have someone who will listen and help with strategizing and developing options. FB Service Providers offers assistance with a special caveat called "love and commitment." Mentees and offenders who are a part of the initiative find comfort, support, friendship, role models, and life planning in your corridors.

CSOSA is particularly grateful for your commitment to re-entrants and strongly encourage you to continue your fine work for the citizens of the District of Columbia.

“CELEBRATING YOU”

Lifting a Hand to Serve– by Chris Keels, FBI Team Leader

To your credit and with your assistance, Tashia Chambers, City-Wide Outreach Coordinator for the Faith-Based Initiative was able to compile a FBI’s Service Provider Resource Manual. You can access this document through www.csosa.gov, CSOSA’s web-site beginning September 1, 2009. Ms. Chambers will be contacting each program to invite you to a meeting to discuss service gaps and ways to close the gaps. Until then, please know that your work is important, meaningful and appreciated by the staff and clients of Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency.

FBI 2008-2009 Special Emphasis Report—By Chris Keels, FBI Team Leader

Since 2007, the Faith-Based Initiative has focused its mentoring concept on addressing the needs of our offenders in a group or class process. Such avenues allow the mentors and mentees to meet on a weekly basis, focusing on the mentee's primary need. The prioritization of needs for such specialized mentoring was selected from program reviews in 2007 & 2008. In 2008, the Initiative focused on Family Reunification, Basic Parenting Classes, Pro-Social Skills Development, Gang Prevention and Intervention, Relapse Prevention and Job Coaching.

2008 Special Emphasis

The Family Reunification Program provides basic parenting, stay away orders, child support requirements, custody and legal issues, with wrap around services that include education, employment and housing during the four month class. The program began its fourth class on June 3, 2009, with twenty-nine students. The programs successes included: increased referrals, 75 - 85% completion rates, reduced recidivism, custody awards, child support negotiation and more effective parenting skills. The next graduation is scheduled for September 30, 2009, at McKendree-Simms-Brookline United Methodist Church at 6:00p.m. Please plan to celebrate with us.

The SE Parenting Class focuses on basic parenting skills and commitment to parenting ideologies for the parents. The group is in its 15th class which started on July 9, 2009, with a graduation scheduled for August 20, 2009.

The FBI has co-sponsored a number of pro-social events for offenders. Pro-Social events include concerts, workshops, festivals and other forms of education or entertainment. The purpose is to assist our clients in finding appropriate people, places and things that will promote successful re-entry. In exchange for attending and participating in the programs, the offenders receive a contact credit with CSOSA. If your faith institution is sponsoring a free event, please notify the Outreach Coordinator tchambers@daprp.org so that we can make this information available to our Community Supervision Officers (probation/parole officers) and clients.

In 2008, two faith institutions (Pilgrim AME and First Rising Mt. Zion Baptist Church) secured funding from the District of Columbia to provide gang intervention and prevention programs. The Hustle and Flow Program at Pilgrim AME has continued beyond the funding period. The group focuses on prevention, gang exiting planning, alternative forms of survival, family restoration, and etc. Contact Rev. Karen Harrison, Program Coordinator at 202-396-8582 for more information and to arrange attendance.

Order My Step Women's Relapse Prevention Group - see page 5. Two Men's Relapse Prevention Groups entitled, "Take Back What Was Stole from Me", Classes I & II, will begin in September sponsored by Community Hope-Church of the Nazarene in SE and New Canaan Baptist Church in NW.

In April 2008, FBI trained over forty mentors in the art of job coaching. In 2008, the initiative co-sponsored with our Vocational, Opportunities, Training, Education and Employment Unit (VOTEE) two job readiness conferences for offenders. Life skills topics such as interviewing skills, resume writing, dressing for success and time management were presented. Over two hundred offenders attended and one hundred resumes were completed on the spot.

2009 Special Emphasis

As a result of the 2008 program review , the FBI added the following additional special emphases that includes: Housing Assistance, Grief Counseling, Relationship Restoration, Health Screenings and Prevention and Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) Intervention.

The Paramount Housing Resource and Assistance Center opened at Paramount Baptist Church in April 2009. The program assists offenders with locating apartments and rooms to rent, as well as assisting with developing agreements with home owners (family or friends) that offenders approach for housing and shelters. The Initiative is looking for a Faith Institution in NW to perform the same services. Thirty or more mentors were trained in June on the process and concept.

In terms of grief counseling, Grace Lutheran Church in NW has volunteered to provide this ministry. We are looking for a faith-institution in NE to provide grief counseling in the community.

The Initiative is also looking for a faith-institution to assist with counseling couples when offenders return to the community. Realizing that people change, re-entry counseling is necessary to help each party to adjust to the return.

This Wasn't So Bad At All! By: Mr. Davis, CSOSA Client

"Hello,

My name is Mr. Davis and I am 29 years of age and a proud parent also. The article that I'm about to write on Parenting Class will discuss my issues and views I had upon entering the class. Upon entering Parenting Class I thought to myself, "me, taking this? You got to be crazy." I've never harmed my kids and always took great care of them all to the best of my ability. So I thought to myself, I'm not the one who's hurting my kids, it's the other parent and I shouldn't be here, she should be and this whole Parenting Class is full of crap to be honest. So as a father who felt everything he was doing was right and had nothing to do with affecting his children, I tried and made every effort possible to justify and block out information that could be used to make me a better parent and/or to pass on some knowledge to someone else who has parental issues. Then as I went to class every Wednesday from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. for 15 weeks, something started to make sense. When we as parents have differences amongst one another or just do resentful things, it affects not just the parents, but the children. As the weeks went by and I started to listen to everyone else and realized that we all have different problems that got us here, and it's not about bettering us for us, it's about bettering us as parents for the children. As we already know, being black in America we are considered extinction in race and that's a major problem. To be a black man and have children and then to be out of your children lives for a certain period of time because of what we do, and not what others do, is quite ridiculous if you ask me. That's where it all begins, at home with a foundation and being able to accept that we as parents may never always be there, but the children are always forever. Looking past the bickering and saying "Mommy and Daddy loves you and no matter what we do we will always be there for you," going to the schools, and P.T.A. to let our children are there and care what goes on with them even though we are not in the same household., spend time with them, take them to the park or the movies, better yet just sit down and talk to them so they feel loved by their parents and not looking for love in the wrong places. It is then that we will see as parents and as a black race that we have a major impact on how our kids turnout and view life and its surroundings. So once those views were instilled into the situations on why I was there started to make sense. Then I decided to partake in the conversations we were having as a group. Although not all views are going to be looked at the same, but you listen because there could be something you could use to help you out. Being old or young you learn something new everyday, so better yourself not only as a parent but as a person and living would be that much simpler. So gearing up to end this journey, I said to myself, "You know what? This wasn't so bad at all!" I became a lot wiser when dealing with my children and met some of the most dedicated parents and teachers to help reform the way children should be taught, treated, and loved and that was a meaningful chapter in my life. It's what you call the 90/10 rule: it's 10 percent in what you say and 90 percent in what you do that determines what you truly want for you and your children. Thank you Mrs. Keels and Rev. Keels for allowing me to write on this subject and being part of something spectacular that will "save children and our race from becoming an extinction." His CSO is Dominique Prophet, DVIP

My Summer Experience at CSOSA By: Antoine Prue

When I first found out that I was going to be working at CSOSA for the summer, I thought "wow this is going to be a boring summer", but boy was I wrong. For the past 6 weeks I have met plenty of intelligent people, and did things that I couldn't do before (make copies, prepping interviewees for their interviews, make important business calls, preparing for FBI presentations and programs etc.). The most unforgettable experience this summer working at CSOSA would have to be working with Mrs. Christine Keels. On the first day of work, I was told that Mrs. Keels will work you hard and I learned that first hand. Mrs. Keels worked me hard and kept me busy with work most days. She gave me something to do instead of sitting in a cubicle all day and I appreciate her for that.

Ta'Kia Jackson, Sondra Hunt, and Kyra Wooden are also among some of the people that I worked for this summer that I truly appreciate and admire. From the first to the last day of my summer work, they have made me feel welcomed and have went out of their way to make sure that I had the wonderful summer experience that I had. I will never forget the time I have spent on the 13th floor of 633 Indiana Avenue and if I had the choice, I would do it again.

My Experience at CSOSA By: Andre Grissom

I have been working at CSOSA for over a month. I have learned many things about this agency during this time.

I have been typing, filing, shredding and helping a lot. CSOSA has given me a good experience in a prototypical office environment. I have learned some of the ways of the system of this agency. CSOSA stands for Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency. They work with many areas. I have been introduced to two of these areas in Community Justice Programs: the Community Service Program and Faith-Based Initiative.

When working with CJP (Community Justice Programs), I have gained knowledge of different things like the Cont. on Page 8

The Nubian Express will be traveling through SE to provide basic medical screening. Upper Room Baptist Church is sponsoring this program which provides blood pressure testing, eye exams, foot exams and diabetes testing at two of CSOSA SE field offices. The Initiative is looking for a faith institution in NW or NE to provide the same or similar services.

The Initiative is working with our Mental Health Units to provide a group process for veterans and offenders who have committed violent crimes or been the victim of such to address Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD).

If your faith institution, sorority, fraternity or community organization is interested in getting involved with any of the aforementioned vital restorative and healing ministries, please contact Christine.Keels@csosa.gov for more information.

Such an effort will bring greater meaning and excitement in the life of your faith institutions or organization's outreach, support and evangelism ministries.

Faith-Based Initiative Researches Gaps In Services

By Tashia P. Chambers, MSW

On the evening of Tuesday, July 21, 2009, CSOSA's Faith-Based Initiative along with the Southwest Church of Christ and Greater Mt. Calvary Holy Church, graduated its second class of women from the Order My Steps Women's Relapse Prevention Group. The support group focused on gaining control over addiction and preparing to regain status in the community as productive citizens while maintaining a drug free lifestyle.

Each week, the Women's Relapse Prevention Group covered different topics from toxic relationships to alternative ways of dealing with pain. The group provided a supportive environment for the women to open-up and focus on the cause and effect of addiction. Midway through the program, mentors (some of whom have recovered) were assigned to each participant. A sisterhood quickly developed and when one member slipped, the others were there to lift her to her rightful place.

Rev. Graylon Freeman, Pastor at the Southwest Church of Christ delivered the keynote address at the graduation. He delivered a powerful word from God on how to fit all our "stuff" into our lives. The five graduates each received a new ensemble from Suited for Change, a non-profit program that dresses women who are reentering the workforce.

Graduation

Five women graduated and were featured in a fashion show and received a new bible from mentor Cynthia Artis. There was food, fellowship, and fun to follow. We wish the ladies all the best!

If you are interested in getting involved in the Order My Steps Women's Relapse Prevention Group, please contact Tashia Chambers, City-wide Outreach Coordinator at (202) 462-1360 or email tchambers@daprp.org. The next group will begin on Thursday, September 10, 2009.

"The goal of the FBI is to return the sons and daughters of the District of Columbia to the fabric of our communities." The Cluster Coordinators and I, are committed to helping men and women successfully reintegrate into the community with a sense of dignity and respect. As Citywide Outreach Coordinator, my duty is to expand the network of service providers and provide direct support to the offender population.

Since Early 2008, the Faith-Based Initiative has successfully partnered with over 30 community non-profit agencies in an effort to effect positive change in the lives of returning citizens. The Cluster Coordinators have done their part as well, by directly assisting with this effort and partnering with more churches in the city. Part of my task for this year is to assess the progress thus far and identify the gaps in services. I am currently working on a report that will summarize the FBI's partner churches and community agencies and organize the list by category as well as location in the city.

I plan to use the Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats (SWOT) Analysis to assess the FBI needs in meeting 13 offender needs such as Job Coaching, Family Reunification, Gang Intervention, Pro-Social Skills, Grief Counseling, Relapse Prevention and Housing. The SWOT Analysis is a strategic planning method used to evaluate involvement in a project. It entails specifying the objective and identifying the internal and external factors that are favorable and unfavorable to achieving the objective. I am looking forward to presenting these findings at your Cluster Advisory Council and Mentor Meetings beginning in September 2009.

Mentor Matching Report Card

By Chris Keels, FBI Team Leader

The Faith-Based Initiative through the diligent support of the Clusters, has faithfully assisted offenders in being matched with mentors. As of July 31, 2009, the following report was filed for the record:

Cluster A – 49

Cluster B— 44

Cluster C – 55

TOTAL— 148 Matches in 2009

Congratulations to the Clusters

We commend our Cluster Coordinators, their staff, the mentors and the mentee for making the commitment to working together for change.

Happy Holidays

The Birth of an Idea

By Deacon Guy Starling Jr., Chair of the Transitional Housing Task Force Greater Mt. Calvary Holy Church

On Saturday, June 13th, at the Re-Entry and Sanction Center (RSC), our mentor specialized training session was a seminar on Housing. As each presenter emphasized their topics, it became abundantly clear there was a critical need for transitional housing in the District of Columbia. Particularly, what stood out were the demographics illustrated by Mr. Sweets of the DC government Office of Ex-Offender Affairs, the abundance of abandoned property in the city coupled with the large percentage of ex-offenders returning to the District from Wards 5,6,7,8. After realizing that affording housing in D. C. (in some cases) becomes the top priority for returnees, an idea was birthed at the Mentor Training Session.

As representative of faith institutions and congregants from clusters A, B and C discussed the topic of housing, we realized it is the faith communities calling to meet the returnees at their needs. They are part of our community (city -wide) regardless of affiliation. Inspired by this cause to meet the needs of our ex-offender population, The Faith Based Transitional Housing Task Force was born, to develop a proposal for a faith based transitional housing initiative.

The co-chair of the task force is, Elder Judy Martin, Miracle Temple Non-Denominational Church at 202-584-3103 or judie01@verizon.net. If you are interested in working with this task force, please contact Guy Starling at 202-577-9706 or charlie0573@yahoo.com

You Are Invited!!!!

The Housing Task Force meets every 4th Monday at the Re-Entry Sanction Center (RSC) 1900 Mass. Ave. SE (next to the D. C. Jail). Please come join us!

systems they use and cooperating with each other during vital processes. I have learned how to create a community gathering while working on Faith-Based Initiative projects. I have also learned how to create a presentation for meetings and events. When working with the Community Service Program, I learned the process for an offender to get their community service hours. I have learned many things at CSOSA so far and I am planning to learn more during my stay at CSOSA this summer.

D.C. Summer Workers—Comments from CSOSA

Immediately, our FBI Summer Workers became engaged in FBI. They designed a flyer for a program. As a result, Grissom's school will be participating in a FBI program in January.

Grissom's was told by Mrs. Keels that his most valuable skill is proofreading; therefore, he was given standard operating procedures and other critical documents to proofread. Prue assisted with maintaining the records of the Family Reunification Program, prepared gifts packs to be given out, and surfed the web for articles related to parenting, Obama's position on re-entry and other resources. Prue assisted with scheduling interviews and sent e-mails on behalf of the manager, (which were always written in a professional tone).

Quickly, they learned to meet deadlines, and had opportunities to present at a Manager's Meeting on the FBI.

We are proud of the work of our summer interns and commend them for an outstanding performance. We expect that one day they will be knocking on the doors of CSOSA for employment and that they will present themselves as most qualified!!!!

A Strong Woman Mentee Spotlight by Tashia Chambers, OMS Coordinator

My mentee is a member of the FBI's Order My Steps Women's Relapse Prevention Group. An admitted marijuana smoker, she was referred to the group by her Community Supervision Officer and is finding it hard at times to abstain from her drug of choice. It is not always easy for her, especially given her living situation. At the time of her referral, she was renting a room from her co-worker who had been making unwanted advances towards her. While she admits being more than friends with him at one point in time, she had decided to end their relationship. It was timely that on her first day at the OMS group, the day's topic was toxic relationships. My mentee had been living with the stressful and cont. on Page 9

Daze of Our Lives—Re-Entry Spiritual Life Study

The Faith-Based Initiative and its partners invite you to this exciting Spiritual Life Study. The study is for everyone seeking to understand the barriers to re-entry and to develop solutions to the problems. The format of the study includes the utilization of the parables and stories of Christian witness that speak to the social conditions of our time. Participants will examine the “Daze of Their Lives” for the purpose of constructing their own story, and finding solutions. Such story telling and witness will be used to begin the process of healing the community and the re-entrant as witnessing and experiencing serve as a salve for healing.

This study and the development of action plans is an opportunity for everyone to come together and study the issues will charting solutions. Come, as you are for this opportunity to welcome re-entrants to pursue your responsibility toward building community.

Mentor/Mentee/CSO Quarterly Review—Staffings by Hallem Williams, Senior Program Analyst

On July 14, 15, and 30, 2009, the FBI conducted staffings with mentors, mentees and Community Supervision Officers. The purpose of the staffing was to determine whether the initial mentoring plan’s goals had been met and to discover whether additional services were needed.

While patiently waiting their turn to be interviewed, mentees (offenders) heard very meaningful presentations from area service providers on “Conflict Resolution Skills.”

We celebrate and encourage the relationships that have developed between our mentor and mentees. And of course, we recognize the support that it provides to our community supervision staff.

Throughout this newsletter, you have read the joy and excitement that our mentees find in discovering themselves through the support of others.

Many of the relationship continue well beyond the expiration of supervision, which is the intent for all to find life-long connections in the community for which they belong.

Our next Quarterly Staffing will occur in October 2009. Stay in touch with the Cluster Coordinator for more details.
