IN THE FIELD. IN THE CLASSROOM. ONLINE.

The Academy for International Conflict Management and Peacebuilding is USIP's education and training arm. Building on two decades of research and work in the field, the Academy's activities strengthen knowledge and skills in peacebuilding and conflict management for civilian and military professionals and citizens around the world.

The Academy offers

- practitioner-oriented courses at the Institute's headquarters in Washington and elsewhere;
- conflict management workshops and training in zones of conflict;
- institutional and programmatic support for educational systems and other institutions in fragile societies;
- distance learning for professionals, teachers, and students around the world;
- faculty and curriculum development for high school and college-age students.

CONFLICT ANALYSIS

Understanding Causes, Unlocking Solutions

Matthew Levinger

"A must read for all analysts and practitioners seeking to cope with conflict. The book is broadly rooted in the literature on analysis and planning and provides good concrete examples at every point. A deep and thoroughly practical handbook."

—Dean G. Pruitt, Institute for Conflict Analysis and Resolution,
George Mason University

The change in the patterns and nature of deadly conflicts since the end of the Cold War has spurred many organizations in and outside governments to develop robust strategies to anticipate, prevent, and respond to these conflicts. Conflict analysis is the critical first step toward meeting these objectives.

Conflict Analysis: Understanding Causes, Unlocking Solutions is a guide for practitioners seeking to prevent deadly conflict or mitigate political instability. Governments, nongovernmental organizations, and businesses operating in conflict zones will find this volume to be a practical, accessible reference for understanding and communicating persuasively about threats of organized violence. This handbook integrates theory and practice and emphasizes the importance of analyzing the causes of peace as well as the causes of conflict. It stresses that conflict analysis is a social as well as an intellectual process, helping practitioners translate analysis into effective action. To illustrate key points, Levinger draws on both historical and contemporary cases, including the Cuban missile crisis, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, the Yugoslav wars of secession, the Rwandan genocide, the 9/11 attacks, and the Iraq and Afghanistan wars.

Part I examines contemporary global conflict trends, perspectives on the causes of conflict and peace, and quantitative models for early warning and risk assessment. Part II provides practitioners with a menu of analytical tools for systematically assessing causes and potential trajectories of deadly conflicts. Part III focuses on the role of conflict analysis in decision making and program implementation, including the social dimensions of conflict analysis.

The analytical tools in this volume illuminate emerging trends in complex, volatile, and ambiguous environments and will enable practitioners to anticipate and respond with greater agility to threats and opportunities.

MATTHEW LEVINGER is visiting professor of international affairs and director of the National Security Studies Program at The Elliott School of International Affairs, George Washington University. Among his previous positions, he was a senior program officer at USIP's Academy of International Conflict Management and Peacebuilding, director of the Academy for Genocide Prevention at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum, and a William C. Foster Fellow at the U.S. Department of State.

Conflict Analysis is the second volume of the U.S. Institute of Peace Academy Guides, a series developed by the Institute's Academy for International Conflict Management and Peacebuilding. Combining theory and practice and emphasizing strategic thinking, the Guides are geared for policymakers and third parties working in conflict zones, as well as for students of conflict management and peacebuilding.

THE BRILLIANT ART OF PEACE

Lectures from the Kofi Annan Series

Abiodun Williams, editor

Foreword by Kofi Annan

"Literature has the power to transform us in ways that politics never can."

—Kofi Annan

"Music may be the last refuge of hope beyond language because it is in every human being."

—Leon Botstein

"I am convinced that the language that has the most force, that requires the more acumen, talent, grace, genius, and, yes, beauty, can never be, will never again be found in paeans to the glory of war or erotic rallying cries to battle. The power of this alternative language does not arise from the tiresome, wasteful art of war, but, rather, from the demanding, brilliant art of peace."

—Toni Morrison

Act of Creation: The Founding of the United Nations

The United Nations wrestles daily with questions of peace and security, sustainable development, human rights, the rule of law, good governance, and humanitarian assistance. But at root, the UN's work is about mobilizing efforts to serve humanity.

Kofi Annan, the UN's seventh secretary-general, recognized a role in these efforts beyond that of diplomats and peacekeepers. He engaged not only the governments of the UN's 193 member states but also academics, artists, and other opinion shapers, aware of their enormous potential as advocates and valued partners in achieving the goals of the UN. As part of this initiative, in 2002 he established the Secretary-General's Lecture Series.

The Brilliant Art of Peace presents lectures delivered by seventeen of the world's most eminent thinkers, including several Nobel laureates, during Annan's tenure. The lectures challenge prevailing thinking on important issues such as globalization, human rights, identity, religion, science and technology, economics, the humanities, language, music, and the United Nations. The reader will find humor, moral rigor, and wit in this thought-provoking and timeless collection. A must-have for any reader interested in the human condition.

ABIODUN WILLIAMS was recently named president of The Hague Institute for Global Justice. Prior to this role, he was senior vice president of the Center for Conflict Management (CCM), where he led USIP's work in major conflict zones such as Afghanistan, Iraq, Pakistan, the Middle East, and North Africa. Previously he also served as director of strategic planning in the Executive Office of the UN Secretary-General during the last six months of Kofi Annan's first term and during the entire five years of his second term.

DETECT, DISMANTLE, AND DISARM

IAEA Verification, 1992–2005

Christine Wing and Fiona Simpson

“The important work of the IAEA in verifying dismantlement and disarmament has attracted surprisingly little attention—until now. In this comprehensive study, Wing and Simpson fill that lacuna by collecting and analyzing a wealth of data about all the relevant cases. Developing machinery capable of effectively verifying the rollback of nuclear weapon programs, especially in a noncooperative setting, is a critical element of creating a rules-based nuclear order able to meet today’s nuclear threat. This useful and interesting volume advances that vital goal.”

—James Acton, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

The ability to verify compliance with nuclear agreements is key to the success of those agreements. Until 1991, neither the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) nor the broader international community had ever definitively located a covert nuclear program and therefore had no experience in verifying that such programs had been dismantled. That situation changed at the end of the Gulf War with the discovery of a nuclear weapons program in Iraq, which had been a longstanding party to the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty. During the course of the next decade, three additional developments—the verification of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea’s (DPRK) nuclear holdings, the revelation of South Africa’s decades-old weapons program, and the announcement of Libya’s weapons program—stretched the IAEA well beyond its original mission of promoting the peaceful use of nuclear energy.

In Detect, Dismantle, and Disarm, the first nontechnical book on the IAEA’s role in verification, Christine Wing and Fiona Simpson examine the agency’s experience in these four cases and capture the elements of the verification process most useful for the design of future verification missions. The authors contend that the IAEA’s presence is a key factor in states’ willingness to cooperate with verification, providing credibility and reassurance that involved parties are acting in good faith toward mutually agreeable solutions. Drawing lessons from each case, the authors show how the IAEA has effectively functioned across governments and international bodies to achieve goals specific to each situation. Operations in Iraq, the DPRK, South Africa, and Libya demonstrate how organizational, historical, political, and technical forces shape states’ compliance. Each chapter includes the history of nuclear weapons programs, a description of the actors involved, and an evaluation of the mission to date.

CHRISTINE WING is an independent consultant. She teaches about nuclear nonproliferation, is a nonresident senior fellow at the Center on International Cooperation at New York University, and was a grantee of USIP, 2007–2008. FIONA SIMPSON was a senior fellow at the Center on International Cooperation during the writing of this book. Previously, she worked at the International Atomic Energy Agency. Simpson currently works in the Weapons of Mass Destruction Branch of the United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs.

WHERE IS THE LONE RANGER?

America's Search for a Stability Force

Second Edition

Robert M. Perito

"A timely assessment of America's ability to develop and field an essential component of stability operations—constabulary forces, also known internationally as 'formed police units.' Perito demonstrates their importance by drawing on American experience, particularly in Iraq and Afghanistan, and explains why America has been slow to arrive at this solution, as well as why its governmental system inhibits its implementation."

—David Bayley, Distinguished Professor Emeritus and former Dean, School of Criminal Justice, State University of New York, Albany

Where Is the Lone Ranger? examines the evolution of U.S. policy toward peace and stability operations through the prism of U.S. experiences with police and constabulary forces in Bosnia, Kosovo, Iraq, and Afghanistan.

Perito uses a series of dramatic case studies to show how the U.S. was ill-prepared to prevent looting, control civil unrest, and fight insurgency because of an absence of U.S. police and constabulary in its force inventory. He chronicles the costs to the U.S. of relying upon allied forces in the Balkans and indigenous forces in Iraq and Afghanistan when those conflicts demanded more than conventional forces. To address the gap, Perito calls for creating a U.S. Stability Force of police, constabulary, and judicial teams to establish sustainable security and the rule of law in future peace and stability operations.

ROBERT M. PERITO is director of the Security Sector Governance Center of Innovation at the U.S. Institute of Peace. He also directs the Institute's Haiti Program. Before joining the Institute, he was a Foreign Service officer with the U.S. Department of State and deputy executive secretary of the National Security Council. Perito also led the International Criminal Investigative Training Assistance Program at the U.S. Department of Justice.

PEACEBUILDING IN COMMUNITY COLLEGES

A Teaching Resource

David J. Smith, editor

"Peacebuilding in Community Colleges is at once practical and visionary, urging the community college beyond its local mission toward global impact by displaying approaches for making a direct and literal difference in the world. Unquestionably, a useful text for campus internationalization."

—Paul J. McVeigh, Associate Vice President, Global Studies and Programs,
Northern Virginia Community College

Offering lifelong and developmental learning to over 13 million students at nearly 1,200 schools, community colleges in the United States attract a student body with remarkable economic, ethnic, and cultural diversity. They provide students with skills and foundational knowledge upon which successful professional careers and rewarding personal engagement can be built. This identity makes community colleges uniquely suited to teach global awareness and community building. Yet the development of peacebuilding and conflict resolution curricula is still a relatively new effort at these institutions.

In Peacebuilding in Community Colleges, David Smith underscores the importance of community colleges in strengthening global education and teaching conflict resolution skills. Enlisting contributions by twenty-three community college professionals, Smith has created a first-of-its-kind volume for faculty and administrators seeking to develop innovative and engaging peacebuilding and conflict resolution programs. Through case studies, how-to's, sample syllabi and course materials, and inspiring anecdotes, contributors draw on learner-centered strategies, experiential learning, and interdisciplinary relationships to teach practical skills and strengthen global connections.

The contributors are sensitive to the complexity of teaching a community college student body that often closely reflects the diversity of the local population. They discuss the challenges and opportunities presented by different learning communities—including, for example, significant military, diaspora, and religious populations among their student bodies.

Providing a common frame of analysis, Smith discusses important trends and future challenges for community colleges teaching peacebuilding, such as the transferability of credits to four-year institutions and the need to establish skills-based programs that can lead to defined and better employment opportunities. This volume is certain to be an invaluable resource in the field of peacebuilding education.

DAVID J. SMITH is a senior manager for educational outreach in USIP's Global Peacebuilding Center and a conflict resolution practitioner. A Fulbright Scholar, Smith taught at the University of Tartu (Estonia). He has also taught at Harford Community College, Goucher College, Towson University, Stevenson University, and George Mason University.

Chester A. Crocker, Fen Osler Hampson, and Pamela Aall, editors

"Captures the variety of security challenges and the diversity of conflict management practice across the regions. Featuring regional voices, this timely and innovative volume will help students and practitioners grasp the global conversations taking place on conflict and security issues. The editors are surely correct to conclude that we live in an age where security is divisible but collective action is more necessary than ever."

—Martti Ahtisaari, former president of Finland, Nobel Peace Prize laureate, founder and chairman of the board of Crisis Management Initiative.

The Cold War's end and the events of 9/11 upended traditional notions of global security. Where superpower rivalry once dominated the field, security is now increasingly fragmented and decentralized. Nowhere is this more evident than in the world's regions, which face very different security threats and have evolved very different means to address those threats. But do regions, ever more distrustful of global institutions, have the capacity to deal with the broadening array of security challenges they face? Do they have innovative approaches that strengthen or fragment the world's capacity to respond to new threats?

Rewiring Regional Security in a Fragmented World examines conflict management capacities and gaps regionally and globally, and assesses whether regions—through their regional organizations or through loose coalitions of states, regional bodies, and nonofficial actors—are able to address an array of new and emerging security threats. The volume offers a unique comparative perspective on the changing threats to security and new approaches to conflict management as seen by experts from Africa, the Middle East, Europe, Russia and Central Asia, South Asia, Southeast Asia, East Asia, Latin America, Central America, and the trans-Atlantic community.

The volume's editors, longstanding contributors to the field of conflict management, have tapped deeply knowledgeable experts to develop conceptual links between the fields of security and conflict management and expand understanding of global conflict management capacity and the balance between regional/local security initiatives and global ones.

LEASHING THE DOGS OF WAR

Conflict Management in a Divided World

Chester A. Crocker, Fen Osler Hampson, and Pamela Aall, editors

"Leashing the Dogs of War continues the high standard established by its two predecessor volumes. It provides a comprehensive, balanced overview of the mainstream consensus and debates on the causes of conflict and the efficacy of contemporary practices of conflict management."

—Peace & Change

"An outstanding introduction to the various challenges to global security and diplomacy in the post-September 11 world order, its breadth also makes it a handy practitioners guide. . . . It provides precious and much-craved-for insight into how international actors, such as international organizations, nongovernmental organizations, peacemakers, and reconstructing states play a crucial part in the creation and change of international security and humanitarian law."

Peacemaker's Toolkit Series

The United States Institute of Peace, in collaboration with other organizations and experts, has developed a series of "best practices" handbooks on mediation and peacemaking. Designed for experienced mediation practitioners and negotiators, these toolkits are also valuable resources for students and policymakers.

MANAGING FIGHTING FORCES

DDR in Peace Processes

Kelvin Ong

Providing guidance on the mediation and negotiation aspects of disarmament, demobilization, and reintegration (DDR) programs, this toolkit lays out eight detailed steps that mediators can take to establish appropriate linkages between DDR and other aspects of a peace process.

72 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-133-4

CONDUCTING TRACK II PEACEMAKING

Heidi Burgess and Guy Burgess

Presents the process of track II intervention as a series of steps that guide peacemakers in coordinating various track II efforts to maximize their positive impacts.

84 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-069-6

TIMING MEDIATION INITIATIVES

I. William Zartman and Alvaro de Soto

Lays out steps mediators can take to assess whether a stalemate exists, interpret the parties' perception of where they stand in the conflict, and encourage a ripe moment for mediation.

51 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-058-0

MANAGING PUBLIC INFORMATION IN A MEDIATION PROCESS

Ingrid A. Lehmann

This volume helps mediators identify and develop the resources and strategies they need to reach a wide variety of audiences, from governments and rebel forces to local and international media, NGOs and IGOs, and divided communities and diasporas.

60 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-060-3

MANAGING A MEDIATION PROCESS

David R. Smock and Amy L. Smith

This handbook provides a methodology for mediating interstate and intrastate conflicts. By consolidating the practical wisdom of managing a mediation process into an easily digestible format, this volume is designed to help mediators identify areas where they may need more research or preparation, as well as develop options and strategies relevant to the particular case on which they are working.

68 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-037-5

INTEGRATING INTERNAL DISPLACEMENT IN PEACE PROCESSES AND AGREEMENTS

Gerard McHugh

Gives mediators the tools they need to incorporate IDPs' concerns into peace processes and agreements.

80 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-051-1

WORKING WITH GROUPS OF FRIENDS

Teresa Whitfield

Explores how peacemakers can productively work with informal mini coalitions of states or intergovernmental organizations that provide support for resolving conflicts and implementing peace agreements—an innovation often referred to as groups of "Friends."

78 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-059-7

DEBRIEFING MEDIATORS TO LEARN FROM THEIR EXPERIENCES

Simon J. A. Mason and Matthias Siegfried

Examines interviews conducted with mediators and shows how lessons from individual mediators can be identified and made available both to their organizations and to a wider practitioner audience.

54 pp. 5 ½ x 8 ½
$10.00 (paper) • 978-1-60127-052-8

TALKING TO GROUPS THAT USE TERROR

Nigel Quinney and A. Heather Coyne

This handbook poses and attempts to answer a series of basic, but complex, questions: Is there any advantage to the peace process in inviting or permitting the participation of proscribed armed groups (PAGs)? What kinds of PAGs are worth talking to and which are not? What form should the talks take and whom should they involve?

101 pp. • 5 ½ x 8 ½

Cross-Cultural Negotiation Series

The basic assumptions that underlie the conceptual and country-specific studies in this series are that negotiating is the usual, if not always the preferred, technique of international problem solving, and that greater understanding of the dynamics of negotiating, greater appreciation of the cultural and institutional influences of a counterpart's behavior, and greater self-awareness will help make specific negotiating encounters more productive.

NEGOTIATING ACROSS CULTURES

International Communication
in an Interdependent World,
Revised Edition

Raymond Cohen

"Cohen demonstrates the dissonance that cultural differences can create in each stage of international negotiations. . . . He provides examples of miscommunication and misunderstanding between the United States (a low-context culture) and Mexico, Egypt, India, and Japan, all of which he labels high-context cultures."

The United States Institute of Peace is an independent, nonpartisan, national institution established and funded by Congress. Its goals are to help prevent and resolve violent international conflicts, promote postconflict stability and democratic transformation, and increase peacebuilding capacity, tools, and intellectual capital worldwide. The Institute does this by empowering others with knowledge, skills, and resources, as well as by its direct involvement in peacebuilding efforts around the globe.

The United States Institute of Peace is committed to publishing significant works that offer new insights and information to practitioners, scholars, diplomats, and students, among others.
