

Partisan Political Activity Rules for “Less Restricted” DoD Civilians

Applicability: The following rules apply to the majority of DoD civilian employees, referred to as “Less Restricted” employees, including Schedule C political appointees, but excludes: Presidential Appointees confirmed with the consent of the Senate (PAS), non-career and career members of the SES, contract appeals board members, all employees of the National Security Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, and the National Geo-Spatial-Intelligence Agency.

General Information about the Hatch Act

1. What is the Hatch Act?

A. Passed in 1939, the Hatch Act (Act) is the law that restricts the partisan political activity of civilian executive branch employees of the Federal Government, District of Columbia Government, and some state and local employees who work in connection with federally funded programs. The Act was significantly amended in 1993, to allow most Federal employees to engage in certain types of political activities while in their personal capacities.

2. Do the Hatch Act restrictions apply to Members of the Armed Forces?

A. No. Members of the Armed Forces are not covered by the Act. The political activities of Members of the Armed Forces are governed by Department of Defense (DoD) Directive 1344.10, Political Activities by Members of the Armed Forces on Active Duty.

3. Are the Restrictions on partisan political activities the same for all DoD civilian employees?

A. No, the restrictions are not the same. At DoD, there are 2 sets of rules for 3 groups of employees. The first set of restrictions applies to: (1) individuals appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate and individuals serving in non-career SES positions, who are further restricted by DoD policy; (2) career members of the SES, contract appeals board members, and all employees of the National Security Agency (NSA), the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), and the National Geo-Spatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA). The second, and more lenient set of restrictions, applies to all other employees (including Schedule C political appointments). Employees in Groups 1 and 2 are prohibited from taking an active part in partisan political management or political campaigns and are referred to as “Further Restricted” employees.

4. What is political activity?

A. For purposes of these rules, political activity is defined as an activity directed toward the success or failure of a political party, candidate for partisan political office or partisan political group. Examples of political activities include: volunteering for the campaign of a candidate for partisan political office, serving as an officer of a political party or club, serving as a delegate to a political convention, or distributing campaign literature for a candidate for partisan political office.

5. Does the Hatch Act restrict employees from participating in nonpartisan elections?

A. No. The Hatch Act does not prohibit employees from participating in or being candidates in nonpartisan elections. A nonpartisan election is one in which none of the candidates is to be nominated or elected as representing a political party, i.e., none of the candidates are running, for example, as representatives of the Democratic or Republican party. Classification of nonpartisan elections is determined at the state or local level. Employees who are interested in running for state or local office should first check with their local board of elections to clarify the nonpartisan status of the election. Employees who are candidates for public office in nonpartisan elections are not barred by the Act from soliciting, accepting, or receiving political contributions for their own campaigns.

A nonpartisan election can also include an election involving a question or issue which is not specifically identified with a political party, such as a constitutional amendment, referendum question, or a municipal ordinance (e.g., gun control, gay marriage, tax issues, climate change, and DC statehood).

6. Can a nonpartisan election become partisan?

A. Yes. Evidence showing that partisan politics actually entered any of the candidates' campaigns may invalidate the nonpartisan nature of an election. No bright-line rule exists that identifies the type or amount of conduct (either by the candidates or political parties) needed to prove that a statutorily designated nonpartisan election, in fact, became a partisan one. The ultimate answer regarding what activity may change a nonpartisan election into a partisan one rests on the totality of the circumstances. Accordingly, a nonpartisan election could become partisan if, for instance, one of the candidates were to: participate in and win a party caucus; hold himself out as having the party's political support by advertising this in his speeches, flyers or mailings; seek and advertise the political party's endorsement; or receive party support in the form of funding, supplies (e.g., wooden stakes for signs, bulk mail permit), campaign volunteers, campaign publications (e.g., flyers, posters) or use of party headquarters.

7. What are "partisan political groups?"

A. "Partisan political groups" are committees, clubs and other organizations, which are affiliated with a political party or candidate for partisan political office. The term also includes committees, clubs, and other organizations that are organized for a partisan political purpose or engage in partisan political activity (e.g., the "Organizing for America" website specifically states that Organizing for America is "a project of the Democratic National Committee." Accordingly, Organizing for America is affiliated with a political party and is therefore a partisan political group or organization.). Further, organizations which are created primarily to influence the selection, nomination, election, appointment or defeat of candidates to federal, state or local public office, known as "527 organizations" are considered partisan political organizations (e.g., EMILY's List, GOPAC, and American Crossroads).

Finally, 501(c)(3) non-profit organizations are not partisan political groups as the tax code specifically prohibits them from participating in any campaign activity in support of or against political candidates (e.g., the League of Women Voters, the Brady Center to Prevent Gun Violence, and the Audubon Society).

8. What political activities are prohibited for all DoD civilian employees?

A. All DoD employees are prohibited from: (1) using their official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with or affecting the result of an election; (2) knowingly, personally soliciting, accepting or receiving a political contribution from any person; (3) running for the nomination or as a candidate for election to a partisan political office; (4) participating in political activity while on-duty or in any room or building occupied in the discharge of official duties by an individual employed by DoD; (5) engaging in political activity while wearing a uniform or official insignia identifying the office or position of the DoD employee; (6) engaging in political activity while using any vehicle owned or leased by the Government of the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof; (7) knowingly soliciting or discouraging the participation in any political activity of any person who has an application for any compensation, grant, contract, ruling, license, permit, or certificate pending before the employee's office; and (8) knowingly soliciting or discouraging the participation in any political activity of any person who is the subject of or a participant in an ongoing audit, investigation, or enforcement action being carried out by the employee's office.

Campaign Activities for “Less Restricted” Employees

9. May a Less Restricted employee volunteer to work for the campaign of a candidate running for partisan political office?

A. Yes, while off-duty and outside of a Federal building (in their personal capacity), less restricted DoD civilians may volunteer with a partisan campaign. Examples of permitted volunteer activities include: attending and being active at political rallies and meetings, distributing campaign literature, writing speeches, hosting a meet and greet, circulating nominating petitions, and working to get out the vote on Election Day.

10. May Less Restricted employees place campaign signs in their yards?

A. Yes. All DoD civilians may place signs or banners supporting a candidate for partisan political office in their yards.

11. May a Less Restricted employee be listed as a supporter in the campaign literature of a candidate running for partisan political office?

A. Yes, with limitations. While an employee may allow her name to be used in campaign literature, she may not use her DoD title, or reference her official position in connection with any partisan political activities. Employees who participate in partisan campaigns must do so in their personal capacity. Therefore, she could be listed as “Robin Smith,” but not as “Robin Smith, Senior Attorney, DoD.”

12. May a Less Restricted employee make a contribution to the campaign of a partisan candidate or to a political party or organization?

A. Yes. All DoD employees may contribute (consistent with Federal Election Commission rules) to the campaign of a candidate for partisan political office or to a political party or organization, provided they do not do so while on duty or in a Federal building.

13. May a Less Restricted employee make a contribution using his DoD computer?

A. No. All DoD employees are prohibited from engaging in partisan political activity while in Federal buildings or while using Government equipment.

14. May a Less Restricted employee work at the polls on Election Day for a political party or candidate for partisan political office?

A. Yes. An employee may stand outside a polling place on Election Day and hand out brochures on behalf of a candidate for partisan political office or a political party. Additionally, an employee may work as an election judge or poll-watcher on behalf of the city or county

15. May a Less Restricted employee write a letter to the editor of a newspaper or post a comment on a blog endorsing a candidate for partisan political office?

A. Yes, but with some limitations. All DoD employees are permitted to express their personal opinions publicly on political subjects and participate in political activities to the extent not expressly prohibited by the rules. DoD employees may not, however, express their personal views while on duty or in a Federal building, and may not use their official title or refer to their DoD position when expressing privately held opinions. In other words, DoD employees retain their First Amendment right to express their personal opinions absent any connection to DoD.

Accordingly, a DoD employee may write a personal letter to the editor or post a personal comment on a blog endorsing a candidate, provided she does not do so while on duty or in a Federal building. Further, she may endorse that candidate, but only in her personal capacity, and may not identify her DoD position or office. Finally, the endorsement may not contain a request for political contributions or information about where voters may contribute, even if the employee makes the endorsement anonymously because Federal employees are strictly prohibited from political fundraising as discussed below.

16. May a Less Restricted employee serve as a treasurer for a partisan political campaign?

A. It depends. Federal employees may actively participate in partisan political campaigns and partisan political management to the extent not expressly prohibited by the Act. [Thus, while an employee may serve as treasurer for a partisan political campaign or other partisan political group, he may not solicit, accept, or receive political contributions from any person (or engage in any other of the Act's prohibited activities).] Furthermore, an employee serving as the treasurer of a partisan political campaign may not allow his name to appear anywhere on a letter soliciting political contributions for the campaign, including in the letterhead of such a letter. Some states require the campaign treasurer's name to appear on all campaign materials, including solicitations. Thus, an employee living in one of those states would be prohibited from serving as the treasurer. He could, however, hold another position within the campaign, or serve as a co-treasurer (keeping the books), if the duties did not involve soliciting, accepting or receiving political contributions.

17. May a Less Restricted employee be a delegate to a political convention?

A. Yes. An employee may serve as a delegate to a national, state, or local convention.

18. May an employee solicit and accept contributions to help pay for the costs of attending a political party convention as a delegate?

A. No. The Act prohibits employees from soliciting, accepting or receiving political contributions. A political contribution is defined as any gift, subscription, loan, advance, or deposit of money or anything of value, made for the purpose of promoting or opposing a political party, candidate for partisan political office or partisan political group. The purpose of being a delegate to a party's convention is to vote for and support a particular candidate as the nominee of that party. Accordingly, contributions made to a delegate to help cover the costs of attending the national convention constitute political contributions for purposes of the Act. Because the Act prohibits employees from soliciting or accepting political contributions, the Act would prohibit a Federal employee from soliciting or accepting contributions to help pay for the costs of attending a party convention as a delegate.

Political Activity in a Federal Building or While on Duty

19. When is an employee on duty?

A. An employee is on duty during the time period when he or she is: (1) in a pay status other than paid leave, compensatory time off, credit hours, time off as an incentive award, or excused or authorized absence (including leave without pay) or (2) representing an agency or instrumentality of the United States Government in an official capacity.

20. May a Less Restricted employee engage in partisan political activity in a Federal building when he is off-duty?

A. No. At DoD, all employees are prohibited from engaging in partisan political activity while they are in a Federal building, regardless of their duty status.

21. May a Less Restricted employee send a partisan political email (an email directed toward the success or failure of a political party, candidate for partisan political office, or partisan political group) from his work computer? May an employee send the email after normal duty hours?

A. No to both questions. All DoD employees, are prohibited from engaging in partisan political activity while in a Federal building, while on duty, or when using Government equipment. This means that even when DoD employees are not on duty (e.g., Saturday at 10:00 AM), they still are prohibited from engaging in partisan political activity while in a Federal building. Therefore, an employee may never send a partisan political email while in a Federal building.

22. An employee receives a partisan political email in his Government email account while at work. Did he violate the Act?

A. No. Simply receiving a partisan political email while at work does not constitute prohibited political activity as defined under the Act. An employee may not, however, send or forward that email to others.

23. May an employee send or forward a partisan political email from his work email address to his personal email address while at work, i.e., on duty and in a Federal room or building?

A. Yes. If an employee receives a partisan political email at his work email account, he may send that email to his personal email address while at work. Simply sending such an email to his personal email address does not constitute prohibited political activity as defined under the Act or its regulations. However, an employee would violate the Act if he sends the email to his personal email address and then using the personal email account, sends the partisan political email to other people while he is on duty and/or in a Federal building.

24. May an employee display a picture of a candidate for partisan political office in her office, have a partisan screen saver on her computer or wear a partisan political button or t-shirt while at work?

A. No. Employees are prohibited from displaying campaign pictures, posters, bumper stickers, screen savers, t-shirts and all other campaign materials of candidates for partisan political office in a Federal building.

25. May an employee display a picture of a President who is running for reelection in his or her office?

A. No. As stated above, the Act prohibits all DoD employees from displaying pictures of candidates for partisan public office in a Federal building. Because a sitting President is a candidate for reelection, the Act prohibits an employee from displaying his photograph in the federal workplace, unless one of the two exceptions applies. The first exception applies to official photographs of the President. The Act does not prohibit the continued display of official photographs of the President in the Federal workplace, including both public and employee work spaces. Official photographs include the traditional portrait photo of the President displayed in all Federal buildings, as well as photographs of the President conducting official business (e.g., President meeting with heads of state). Pictures that are distributed by the President's campaign or a partisan organization are not official, even if they depict the President performing an official act. Similarly, pictures downloaded from the internet or clipped from magazines or newspapers, screens savers and life-size cutouts are not official photographs for purposes of this exception.

The second exception, applies to an employee's personal photographs. An employee would not be prohibited from displaying a photograph of a candidate for partisan political office in his office, if all of the following apply: the photograph was on display in advance of the election season, the employee is in the photograph with the candidate, and the photograph is a personal one (i.e., the employee has a personal relationship with the candidate and the photograph is taken at some kind of personal event or function, for example, a wedding, and not at a campaign event or some other type of partisan political event).

26. May an employee place a bumper sticker on her personal car and park the car in a Government lot or in a private lot if the Government subsidizes their parking fees?

A. Yes. All DoD employees are permitted to park their privately owned vehicles that display a partisan political bumper sticker in a Government lot or in a private lot, even though they receive a parking subsidy from their agency.

Fundraising

27. May a DoD employee solicit, accept or receive contributions on behalf of a candidate for partisan political office?

A. No. Generally employees are prohibited from soliciting, accepting or receiving contributions on behalf of a candidate for partisan political office.¹ The prohibition on soliciting, accepting or receiving contributions applies to employees even when they are off-duty and in their personal capacity. Federal employees are prohibited 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (except for the limitations noted above) from soliciting, accepting or receiving contributions.

28. May an employee's name appear on an invitation to a political fundraiser as a sponsor, host, or point of contact?

A. No. An employee's name may not be shown on an invitation to a political fundraiser as a sponsor, host, or point of contact as this suggests that the employee is soliciting a political contribution.

29. May a Less Restricted employee help organize a political fundraiser?

A. Yes. Although the Act would prohibit an employee from hosting or serving as a point of contact for a fundraiser, the employee is allowed to help organize a fundraiser. For example, the employee could set up tables for the event, put the sound system together, select the menu or check people in at the door. The employee may not, however, personally solicit, accept or receive political contributions.

¹ There is an exception for members of labor and employee organizations at 5 C.F.R. 734.208(b)(3) and another exception for elections in designated municipalities at 5 C.F.R.733.103 & 733.105.

30. May a Less Restricted employee notify his or her friends about a fundraiser simply by forwarding an invitation that she received, if she does not actually ask or invite them to attend herself?

A. No. The Act prohibits employees from soliciting, accepting or receiving political contributions, which includes inviting individuals to political fundraisers, personally or by forwarding an email.

31. May a Less Restricted employee speak at a political fundraiser?

A. Yes. A Less Restricted employee is allowed to give a personal speech or keynote address at a political fundraiser, as long as she is not on duty, appears only in her personal capacity and does not solicit political contributions.

32. When a Less Restricted employee speaks at a political fundraiser, what information about the employee may be printed on the invitation?

A. A Less Restricted employee's name may be shown as a guest speaker. The reference should not, however, in any way suggest that the employee solicits or encourages contributions. Importantly, invitations to fundraisers may not include an employee's official title or reference his official position.

33. May an employee's spouse host a political fundraiser?

A. Yes. Hatch Act coverage is not transferred to a spouse or family members. Therefore, as long as the employee's spouse is not covered by the Act (i.e., is not a Federal employee), then she may host a fundraiser.

34. An employee's spouse is hosting a political fundraiser. Can the employee assist with the event?

A. Yes, but only in a limited capacity. The Hatch Act Regulations state that a Less Restricted employee may help organize a fundraiser as long as he does not personally solicit, accept, or receive contributions. An employee may even suggest names to his spouse to add to the invitation list; however, the suggested invitees must have a relationship with the spouse independent of the employee. For example, the DoD employee can suggest a neighbor or community member that is known to both. The employee cannot suggest his spouse invite his co-workers, if the spouse does not know the co-workers well enough to invite them on her own. Finally, employees cannot act or appear to act as the host of the event, including introducing any speakers or attendees.

35. May a Less Restricted employee solicit uncompensated volunteer services for a political campaign?

A. Yes. A Less Restricted employee may ask others to volunteer for a campaign as long as she does not solicit subordinate employees for such service.

36. May a supervisor invite a subordinate to a fundraiser for a candidate for partisan political office or for a political party?

A. No. Inviting subordinate employees to a political fundraiser would violate at least two provisions of the Act. First, inviting other individuals to a political fundraiser would violate the Act's prohibition against soliciting, accepting, or receiving political contributions, even if the supervisory employee does not expressly ask the individuals to contribute money. Second, inviting subordinate employees to any political event would violate the Act's prohibition against using one's official authority or influence to affect the result of an election. Such conduct is inherently coercive, and violates the Act even if the supervisory employee does not threaten to penalize subordinates who do not attend or promise to reward those who do attend.

Candidacy

37. May a Less Restricted employee be a candidate for partisan political office?

A. Generally, Federal employees may not be candidates for partisan political office. However, the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) has issued a regulation designating specific localities² in which a Federal employee may run as an independent candidate in a local partisan election. OPM's list of designated localities can be found at 5 C.F.R. § 733.107.

A partisan election is one in which any candidate is to be nominated or elected as representing a political party. An election is partisan even if only one candidate represents a political party and the others do not. Examples of political parties that received votes in the last Presidential election include the Democratic, Republican, Libertarian and Green Parties.

The prohibition against being a candidate in a partisan election does not include running for an office or position within a political party or affiliated organization. Less Restricted employees may hold office in political parties or political organizations.

Other

38. May an employee encourage subordinates or contractors of DoD to participate in the campaign of a candidate for partisan political office?

A. No. An employee may not use his official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with, or affecting the result of an election. This prohibition includes using his official authority to coerce any person to participate in partisan political activity.

39. May an employee encourage subordinates to vote?

² A designated locality is a municipality or political subdivision in Maryland or Virginia and in the immediate vicinity of the District of Columbia, but not the District of Columbia, or a municipality in which the majority of voters are employed by the Government of the United States, when OPM determines that, because of special or unusual circumstances, it is in the domestic interest of employees to participate in local elections. 5 C.F.R. 733.107.

A. Yes. The Federal Government has a longstanding policy of granting employees limited time off from work (i.e., excused absence) to vote in Federal, State, county, or municipal elections or in referendums on any civic matter in their community. Agencies have discretionary authority to grant excused absence to the extent that such time off does not seriously interfere with agency operations. Adhering to this policy, a supervisor may encourage employees to vote in a manner that is consistent with DoD policy. The supervisor may not encourage or suggest that subordinates vote for a specific candidate or a specific political party's candidates.

40. Is an employee serving under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act (IPA) covered by the Hatch Act?

A. Yes. A non-Federal employee, who is appointed to a Federal position as an IPA, is considered to be a Federal employee for virtually all purposes, including application of the Hatch Act. Therefore, the guidance provided in this document is applicable to an IPA.

41. Are Special Government Employees (SGE) covered by the Hatch Act?

A. A. Yes, but with limitations. SGEs are covered by the provisions of the Act only during the hours that they are "on-duty" for the Government. While in their personal capacities, SGEs are free to participate in partisan political activities, including running for partisan political office and soliciting political contributions.
