General Policies and Procedures

Introduction

The Comptroller's Licensing Manual (manual) explains the Comptroller of the Currency's (OCC) policies and procedures to form a new national bank, enter the national banking system, and effect structural changes and corporate expansion. The manual standardizes OCC processing of notice and application filings to bring consistency to the record keeping and decision-making processes.

The manual describes how national banks and others submit filings, how the public may comment on them, and how OCC personnel review and analyze them. It contains policies, procedures, a glossary of terms, and reference citations pertaining to those activities. This publication is a procedural guide only and may not list all factors that may be assessed during the analysis phase.

The OCC has an electronic process, titled e-Corp, that allows a bank to complete and submit an application or notice on-line. E-Corp represents the OCC's continuing effort to add value to the national charter, eliminate unnecessary regulatory burden, simplify administrative processes, enhance communications, reduce paperwork, and take full advantage of e-government mandates. All national banks registered on National BankNet—the OCC's free, extranet Web site—can access e-Corp. Every registered bank has a BankNet agent who can provide the necessary information. If you are not sure your bank is registered for BankNet or you need to identify your agent, contact the OCC by e-mail at NationalBankNet@occ.treas.gov.

The OCC charters, regulates, and supervises national banks and federal branches and agencies of foreign banks in the United States, accounting for over half of the nation's banking assets. Its mission is to ensure a safe, sound, and competitive national banking system that supports the citizens, communities, and economy of the United States.

The OCC acts on filings for corporate activities according to national banking laws that grant it the general authority to regulate national banks. The OCC also acts pursuant to its corporate regulations (for example, 12 CFR 5 and 28). This booklet consolidates general policies and procedures that are broadly applicable to most OCC filings. It is to be used with other booklets in the manual to prepare specific types of filings.

General Filing Instructions

Prefiling Discussions and Meetings

The OCC encourages applicants to contact the OCC prior to filing to discuss corporate proposals. Prefiling communications may take the form of informal discussions (for example, telephone or conference calls) and more formalized prefiling meetings.

An applicant may request a prefiling meeting with appropriate OCC staff to review a proposed transaction and the applicable processing steps. The OCC also may require a prefiling meeting to discuss the submission requirements and appropriate policies and procedures relating to a proposed filing (for example, charters). Generally, Licensing staff in the district offices:

- Arranges meetings between appropriate OCC staff (for example, licensing, legal, supervision, compliance) and the applicant.
- Summarizes the meeting in a memo, which is held in a pending file until, and if, an application is filed.

Filers requesting OCC approval of an activity or transaction involving novel, precedential, or highly complex or sensitive issues should contact Licensing staff in the appropriate district office before actually submitting the application to discuss the issues it raises. This prefiling discussion facilitates the filer's ability to prepare the filing effectively. It also enhances the OCC's ability to process the filing efficiently. Such filers are expected to provide supporting written analysis, including a legal opinion.

Responsibility

The OCC expects each filer to prepare accurately and completely each filing submitted to it. Each applicant certifies that its filing or supporting materials submitted to the OCC contain no material misrepresentations or omissions. Any person who misrepresents or omits facts in a filing or supporting materials may be subject to enforcement actions or other penalties, including criminal penalties, provided in 18 USC 1001 and 1014.

Each filer should:

- Submit all necessary information about a proposed filing to aid the OCC in reaching an informed decision quickly.
- Provide a response to each request for information as outlined in the sample filing formats (see the Forms column at the OCC's Web site, manual). All filing items should be answered with complete and accurate information that is subject to verification. If the answer is "not applicable," "unknown," or "none," the applicant should so state. Answers of "unknown" should be explained.
- Provide a cross reference to a specific cite or location of any documents attached as supporting information. The sample filing form is not intended to duplicate information supplied on another form or in an exhibit.
- Determine compliance with all applicable statutes and regulations.

Each applicant files a standard type of application, unless it qualifies for an expedited or notice submission. These requirements are included in each booklet, if applicable.

Each filer must notify the OCC of any significant change to each proposal, whether it occurs prior to the OCC's initial decision or after. If the OCC discovers a material misrepresentation or omission after deciding the filing, it may nullify or revoke its decision.

Requests for Information

During the time an application is pending, the OCC provides the public file to any person who requests it from the processing office. The public file for an application consists of those portions of the filing, supporting data, and supplementary information submitted by the applicant and information submitted by interested persons for which confidential treatment has not been requested. When the first request for a copy of the filing or other submission is received, the district Licensing staff establishes a public file that is available to anyone.

The processing office for most applications is the appropriate district office for the applicant bank. Innovative applications or applications by certain of the largest national banks are usually processed in the Washington office. When a transaction stimulates significant public interest, the OCC may post the public file on the OCC's Internet site.

Headquarters Licensing staff can identify the processing office for anyone who is uncertain about where to submit a request for the public file. After the application is acted upon, all requests for the public file should be directed to the Disclosure Officer, Communications Division, Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, DC 20219.

Requests for the public file should be submitted in writing by postal mail or by facsimile transmission. Once created, the public file also will be available, by appointment, for inspection at the processing office (or the Communications Division, after the application is acted upon) during that office's regular business hours. Any request for information beyond that in the public file should be submitted as a Freedom of Information Act request to the Disclosure Officer, Communications Division, under the procedures described in 12 CFR 4, subpart B.

The OCC may impose a fee for research and duplication expenses (see 12 CFR 4) for any materials provided. However, for application information requests, the OCC will provide noncommercial requesters with 100 pages and two hours of search time free of charge. This generally means there is no charge to a member of the public who requests a single copy of the public file for a single application. In addition, the OCC may waive or reduce fees for parties who specifically request such treatment.

Requests for Confidential Treatment

A filer or other person submitting information to the OCC may request confidential treatment for information submitted. That request should be made at the time confidential materials are submitted. Anyone making such a request should draft the request for confidential treatment precisely to extend only to those portions of a document considered confidential.

The request must discuss the justification for the requested treatment. The filer's reasons for requesting confidentiality should specifically demonstrate the harm (for example, loss of competitive position, invasion of privacy) that would result from public release of that information. The filer should separate the confidential from the nonconfidential information and label it "Confidential."

The application or filing should include a comprehensive index or table of contents that identifies each item or section for which confidential treatment is being requested. Generally, requests for confidential treatment should not extend to an entire application.

Each applicant should understand that a request(s) for confidential treatment of information submitted in an application may delay the OCC's decision, because of the time needed to resolve the confidentiality issues, if third parties request such information on a particular filing.

The Licensing staff will place all requests for confidential treatment in the official file.

The OCC will forward a request for confidential materials to the Disclosure Officer, Communications Division, to be processed in the same manner as a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request under procedures described in 12 CFR 4, subpart B. If, after reviewing the materials, the OCC determines that a basis for confidential treatment has not been substantiated, it will notify the person who requested that treatment. After notification, the OCC will include the material in the public file.

In addition to addressing requests for confidential treatment, the OCC will withhold personal, private information about persons that fits within the meaning of exemption 6 of the FOIA, 5 USC 552(b)(6) (for example, personal biographical and financial information).

Standards for Granting Confidential Treatment

The OCC will review requests for confidentiality in terms of the exemptions outlined in the Freedom of Information Act. The burden of establishing the applicability of an exemption to information submitted in an application lies with the party seeking nondisclosure. The mere assertion of confidentiality is not sufficient for the OCC to make a determination. Also, a broad or undefined assertion of confidentiality by an applicant may delay the processing of the application.

The exemption most frequently asserted in requests for confidentiality is found at 5 USC 552(b)(4), which protects "trade secrets and commercial or financial information obtained from a person [that is] privileged or confidential.” When asserting that exemption for material required in an application, the applicant must establish the likelihood, not only the possibility that substantial competitive harm would result from disclosure. For material submitted voluntarily, the standard may be somewhat less stringent. Applicants or others interested in the confidentiality of official corporate file materials should contact the Disclosure Officer, Communications Division.

Sample Forms and Submission Requirements

The manual booklets contain sample forms for each type of application or notice that may be filed with the OCC. Those sample forms may be downloaded or searched on the OCC’s Internet site.

Alternatively, some of the sample forms are available on e-Corp, the OCC’s electronic filing process. A bank may use those sample forms on e-Corp, to draft, save, and submit its after-the-fact notices and prior approval requests. Banks have the ability to develop the filing in draft and then return to the saved drafts. Once completed, the bank can submit the entire filing, including attachments and exhibits, and then sign and certify the application or notice electronically. The bank is not required to mail a paper copy of the same filing to the OCC.

Upon request, the OCC will make available to any filer a diskette containing the sample format in commonly used, word processing software. The OCC will accept an application on a standard 3½-inch diskette or a compact disc (CD) in commonly used, word processing software. Each submission should be accompanied by a cover letter identifying the filer, the filing, the file name on the diskette, and the word processing software used. The signed original pages of the application or attachments along with copies of the diskette or CD attachments should accompany the diskette or CD submission.

Unless filing by diskette or CD, all filings and supporting documentation should be submitted on standard letter-sized paper (that is, no larger than 8½ by 11 inches) and unbound. Regardless of the filing format (that is, paper, diskette, or CD), all submissions must be in English. An original foreign language document should accompany each translated one, if prepared by another party. In addition, the OCC normally requires financial statements prepared in a foreign country to be restated in United States dollars, using accounting standards that are generally accepted (GAAP) in the United States.

Except for filings under the Bank Merger Act and the Change in Bank Control Act, each filer should submit an original and one copy of an application or notice. An applicant filing under the Bank Merger Act should submit an original and four copies. Anyone filing under the Change in Bank Control Act should submit an original and five copies. Do not bind any of the copies you submit to the OCC.

In lieu of following the OCC’s sample form, filers may submit a form, application, or other document submitted to another federal agency, if that submission covers the proposed action and contains substantially the same information the OCC requires.

To avoid preparing lengthy background or supporting documentation each time a filer submits an application, the applicant may incorporate by reference relevant information given to the OCC or another federal agency in a previous application or filing by attaching it as an appendix or exhibit.

Each filer may submit its original filing, including copies, by one of the following methods: hand delivery, regular mail, mail with return receipt requested, express or overnight mail service (for example, Federal Express, Express Mail, United Parcel Service), or e-Corp. Filers may submit additional information by any of those methods or by facsimile to the appropriate district office. Sometimes, the OCC may accept limited information by telephone.

Entrants to the National Banking System

A group of new national bank organizers generally submits its charter application to the director for district licensing in the appropriate OCC district office for the new institution. A bank or thrift that proposes to convert into a national bank generally submits its filing to the director for district licensing in the appropriate district office for the converting institution. Foreign banks operating federal branches and agencies file with the director for district licensing in the Northeastern District.

Existing National Banks

Each existing national bank submits filings to the director for district licensing in the appropriate district office.

Fees

The OCC publishes a fee schedule at least annually in a bulletin entitled, "Notice of Comptroller of the Currency Fees." The OCC mails the bulletin to all national banks. A copy of the current bulletin, and notice of any fee suspensions, may be obtained from the OCC's Communications Division or by accessing the issuances section of the OCC's Internet site.

The appropriate fee must be paid by check or other means, if any, listed in the bulletin. Checks should be payable to the "Comptroller of the Currency".

The OCC generally does not refund a fee. However, when justified by the OCC's processing cost or in extenuating circumstances, the OCC may grant a request for a fee waiver, reduction, or refund (fee concession). To request a fee concession, the filer should make a written request, including justification, to the director for district licensing in the appropriate district office before or simultaneously with submission of its filing. The OCC decides all requests individually. A fee concession may be warranted for:

- A corporate reorganization when numerous affiliates are being combined, but only one analysis is needed.
- A transaction when multiple filings are necessary to comply with statutory or regulatory requirements.

- A filing necessitated by a natural disaster.

Publication

Applicants for certain types of transactions must publish notices as required by law or regulation (public notice). This notice is followed by a comment period during which the public may provide comment to the OCC. The specific publication requirement for each type of filing is discussed in the relevant booklet in this manual. (The "Public Notice and Comments" booklet also contains a general discussion of public notice requirements.)

The OCC publishes in its Weekly Bulletin a notice of all applications subject to a public notice and other filings received or acted upon each week. The Weekly Bulletin may be downloaded or searched on the OCC's Internet site. Those notices provide additional information to the public, but do not satisfy the applicant's public notice requirements. Information about how to subscribe to the Weekly Bulletin and other OCC publications is available from the OCC's Internet site and the Communications Division.

Communications

The OCC encourages each filer to appoint a contact person to serve as its primary liaison. To enhance communications between the OCC and the filer and to expedite handling, the OCC encourages contact persons to use a 12-digit control number on all communications with it during the filing process. This control number, which identifies each filing uniquely, is assigned by the Corporate Activities Information System (CAIS), an OCC automated online system designed to monitor the OCC's filings.

Interested parties may file written comments to support, or oppose, a proposed transaction or activity during the public comment period (see the "Public Notice and Comments" booklet). The OCC encourages banks and interested persons, including community groups, to communicate continuously on matters of material interest, not only when an application is filed.

Application Process

Licensing staff in the appropriate district office processes most corporate applications (see previous discussion at Sample Forms and Submission Requirements). Upon receipt, Licensing staff reviews each filing to determine whether it contains all information necessary to reach a decision. Licensing staff:

- Requests additional information from the applicant by a specific due date, if the filing does not contain all information necessary to reach a decision.
- Solicits input from appropriate OCC staff (for example, licensing, legal, supervision, compliance).
- Processes each application in a timely manner.

If at any time the Licensing staff determines that the filing presents significant policy, legal, CRA, consumer compliance, or supervisory issues, staff will contact headquarters Licensing (HQ LIC) to decide:

- Whether the application should be forwarded to HQ LIC for processing (broad policy or legal issues).
- Whether specific issues should be separated from the application to be handled by HQ LIC, while the application continues to be processed in the appropriate district office.

Expedited Review

The OCC's expedited review procedures create greater assurance that certain filings from healthy banks with satisfactory or better CRA ratings will be approved. Applications from those "eligible banks" or "eligible depository institutions" may be given expedited review for:

- Establishment of branches.
- Branch and main office relocations.
- Certain business reorganizations and other acquisitions.
- Fiduciary powers.
- Change in permanent capital.
- A national bank charter sponsored by a holding company whose lead depository institution is an eligible depository institution.
- A conversion to a national bank charter.

Processing

Upon receipt of a filing, the OCC verifies the applicant's eligibility for expedited review. If the applicant is eligible and the filing qualifies for expedited review, the OCC reviews the filing to ensure that all necessary information has been submitted and that:

- It does not present a significant supervisory, CRA (if applicable), or compliance concern; or
- It does not raise a significant legal or policy issue.

The OCC will send the applicant an acknowledgement letter or e-mail on a filing afforded expedited review. This letter also serves as the OCC's decision unless the OCC notifies the applicant that it has been removed from expedited processing and will be subject to standard processing.

Removal from Expedited Review

The OCC will notify the applicant orally, followed by notice in writing if an application is removed from expedited review. The OCC will remove an application from expedited review, if:

- The application does not contain information needed to make an informed decision.
- The filing itself, or an adverse public comment about the filing, presents a significant supervisory, compliance, or CRA concern or raises a significant issue. Refer to the "Public Notice and Comments" booklet for a detailed discussion of how CRA impacts the application process.
- The filing presents competitive concerns.
- The OCC needs additional time to conduct hearings or meetings or obtain or analyze information relevant to the application.
- The applicant requests removal of an application from expedited review.

The OCC will not remove a filing from expedited review if it determines that adverse comments:

- Do not raise significant concerns or issues.
- Are frivolous.
- Have been filed primarily as a means to delay action on the filing.
- Raise CRA issues that the OCC determines have been resolved satisfactorily (see the Community Reinvestment Act discussion in the "Public Notice and Comments" booklet).

Expedited Time Frames

The time periods for processing filings afforded expedited review are specified in the appropriate sections of 12 CFR 5 (see Appendix A—Target Time Frames). For applications subject to public comment periods, the time period generally expires 15 days after the end of the comment period.

Standard Review

The OCC will review all filings not accorded expedited review according to the standard review procedures described in the booklet covering the particular filing. The OCC will determine whether approval is consistent with applicable law, regulations, policies, and safety and soundness considerations. Criteria applicable to each type of filing are contained in the respective manual booklet. The OCC will request any additional information or opinion it needs to reach an informed decision and may conduct investigations or examinations, if necessary.

Acknowledgement of Receipt

Within five business days of receipt, the OCC will acknowledge receipt by telephone, writing, e-mail, facsimile, or otherwise, of the following correspondence:

- An initial submission of a filing if:
 - It is received by regular mail or similar delivery that does not provide the sender notice of receipt; or
 - The filing status (expedited versus standard filing) is inaccurate.
- A comment on a filing from an interested person.
- A request for copies from a public file.
- A request from an interested person for a hearing.
- A request for information and other miscellaneous correspondence.
- A request for information under FOIA.

If receipt is acknowledged, the OCC normally will provide the applicant with an estimated target time frame for processing the filing. OCC staff will update that estimate if the situation changes.

Subsequent correspondence from an applicant, its representatives, or interested persons will not necessarily be acknowledged.

Time Considerations

When a filer submits two or more related filings jointly, even if one or more, but not all, of the submissions meet the qualifications for expedited review, expedited procedures do not apply, and the OCC will follow standard review procedures. If all of the filings qualify for expedited review, they will be deemed approved as of the end of the longest applicable time period, unless the OCC has issued a decision or advised the applicant that the filings will not be given expedited treatment, because they raise significant legal, policy, supervisory, CRA, or compliance concerns or issues.

Twelve USC 4807 requires that the OCC (and all other federal banking agencies) take final action on any application before the end of a one-year period beginning on the date a complete filing is received. A filer may request the agency to waive this requirement for any filing; however, the OCC expects to render a decision on each application well in advance of the one-year deadline.

Additional Information Requests

Although the OCC will strive to ask for additional information or opinions at the earliest possible date, it may make that request of an applicant at any time during the processing of a filing. When requesting additional information, the OCC will advise the applicant of the due date for that submission. A request for additional information does not suspend the review period for filings accorded expedited review. However, failure to provide the information in a timely manner could result in a delayed, conditionally approved, denied, or abandoned application.

Minor corrections may be addressed over the telephone or by e-mail. If the application contains major deficiencies, the OCC normally will send a letter to the applicant detailing the deficiencies and requesting additions or corrections.

If additional information substantially changes the nature of the original filing, the OCC may direct a filer to republish and provide the public with another opportunity for comment.

After-the-Fact Notice

In certain instances, the OCC does not conduct a prior review of permissible activities or grant approval, but it does require an after-the-fact notice. The OCC uses this information to determine continuously its supervisory strategy for the bank and to maintain the accuracy of its institutional database.

Filers must submit after-the-fact notices for the following types of activities no later than 10 days after beginning the new activity:

- The acquisition or establishment of operating subsidiaries conducting specified activities (see "Investment in Subsidiaries and Equities" booklet).
- The acquisition or establishment of financial subsidiaries.
- Investment in or performance of certain activities by bank service corporations.
- Aggregate investment in bank premises up to 150 percent of the bank's capital and surplus (notice submitted 30 days after overinvestment to the appropriate supervisory office).
- Voluntary liquidation.
- Consolidation or merger into a resulting state bank or federal savings association.
- Certain subordinated debt filings.

Specific Requirements

Articles of Association Amendments

A bank's Articles of Association may be amended if authorized by votes cast on behalf of a majority of the voting shares of the bank, unless otherwise provided for in the articles, at any meeting held pursuant to appropriate notice or waiver (12 USC 21a). However, two-thirds of the shareholders must approve amendments to the capital stock article. A certified copy of every amendment to the articles adopted by the shareholders must be forwarded to the director for district licensing at the appropriate district office, or for large banks to the director of licensing activities, HQ LIC.

For a discussion of amendments to the second article, see the Expansion or Contraction of Assets or Activities section located below.

Bylaw Amendments

A majority of the bank's directors may amend its bylaws. A copy need not be submitted to the OCC.

A bank must designate in its bylaws the body of law selected for its corporate governance procedures. A bank may elect to follow the corporate governance procedures of the law of the state in which the main office of the bank is located, the law of the state in which the holding company of the bank is incorporated, the Delaware General Corporation Law, or the Model Business Corporation Act. (Refer to 12 CFR 7.2000 for corporate governance procedures.)

Community Reinvestment Act (CRA)

Congress enacted the CRA to require federal bank and thrift regulators to encourage insured depository institutions to help meet the credit needs of their entire communities, including low- and moderate-income neighborhoods, consistent with the safe and sound operation of the institutions. In accordance with the CRA, the OCC considers an applicant's record of CRA performance in deciding applications for:

- Establishment of a domestic branch.
- Relocation of a main office or branch office.
- Business combination.
- Conversion to a national bank charter.

An applicant for a new national bank charter (other than a conversion applicant) submits a description of how it will meet its CRA objectives. The OCC evaluates the description in considering the application.

The OCC publishes in Interpretations and Actions decision letters with CRA conditions or otherwise addressing CRA issues in applications. The OCC posts the full text of Interpretations and Actions on its Internet site. The letters describe the rationale for the decision, including any significant deficient area in the bank's performance, the source of the OCC's information on the problems, and the resolution of issues raised by an adverse comment, if any, and how the applicable conditions address the deficiencies. (See the "Public Notice and Comments" booklet for a further discussion of the effect of CRA on an application.)

Branch and Trade Names

The OCC permits national banks to operate branches under different trade names. However, the OCC is concerned that if customers believe they are dealing with two different depository institutions, they may inadvertently exceed FDIC insurance limits (generally, $100,000 per institution) by depositing excess amounts in different branches of the same institution. The OCC believes it is important that customers understand the scope of FDIC insurance in those circumstances. Accordingly, a bank that intends to use a different name for a branch or other facility should be advised to take reasonable steps to ensure that customers will not become confused and believe that its facilities are separate institutions or that deposits in the different offices are separately insured (refer to the Interagency Statement on Branch Names). Such measures may include, but are not limited to:

- Disclosing, clearly and conspicuously, in signs, advertising, and similar materials that the facility is a branch, division, or other unit of the bank. The bank should exercise care that the signs and advertising do not create a deceptive or misleading impression.
- Using the legal name of the bank for legal documents, certificates of deposit, signature cards, loan agreements, account statements, checks, drafts, and other similar documents.
- Educating bank staff about the possibility of customer confusion over deposit insurance. The OCC recommends that the bank instruct staff at the branch and any other facilities operating under trade names to inquire of customers prior to opening new accounts, whether they have deposits at the bank's other facilities or branches. In addition, during the time period soon after the bank combines with, acquires, or is acquired by another depository institution, staff should be reminded to call customers' attention to disclosures that identify a particular branch or facility as part of an institution.
- Obtaining from depositors opening new accounts at the branch a signed statement acknowledging that they are aware that the branch and other facilities belong to the same bank and that deposits held at each facility are not insured separately.

In addition, the practice of banks using different trade names over a computer network, such as the Internet, raises similar concerns. Accordingly, institutions intending to use different trade names over a computer network should take reasonable steps to ensure that customers will not be confused about either the bank's identity or the extent of FDIC insurance coverage.

Corporate Seal

Since national banking laws require that a bank affix its corporate seal to certain documents, such as a resolution to voluntarily liquidate, an organizing, converting, or existing bank must adopt a corporate seal. Consistent with OCC policy, the bank need not use its official name in the corporate seal.

Shareholder Meetings

Corporate governance procedures address the ability of shareholders to act by unanimous written consent in lieu of a shareholders' meeting. When the bank's corporate governance procedures permit, the notice and meeting are not required for shareholders' approval.

National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) and National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA)

The OCC considers historical preservation and environmental factors in deciding an application for:

- New bank charters.
- Establishment of federal branches and agencies.
- Establishment of domestic branches and seasonal agencies.
- Relocation of existing bank offices.

Regarding these applications, the applicant should not take any action that may affect a historic property or the quality of the human environment prior to contacting the OCC. Such actions include site preparation, demolition, alteration, renovation, and construction.

NHPA

Applicants must certify whether a proposed transaction will affect any historic properties as stated in the NHPA, 16 USC 470-470x-6. Historic property means any prehistoric or historic district, site, building, structure, or object included in, or eligible for inclusion in (see Glossary), the National Register of Historic Places maintained by the Secretary of the Interior. This term includes artifacts, records, and remains that are related to, and located within, such properties. The term includes properties of traditional religious and cultural importance to an Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization and that meet the National Register criteria.

To review the National Historic Preservation Act, implementing regulations, and other information, refer to the Web sites for the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation (ACHP) and the National Register of Historic Places. Also, through the ACHP's Web site, applicants can access contact information for state and tribal historic preservation officers as well as link directly to each of the preservation officers' Web sites for additional information.

The requirement to consider historic properties is established at section 106 of the NHPA (16 USC 470f), and 36 CFR 800 defines the process for identifying and considering historic properties. The OCC cannot approve an application until the section 106 review process is completed. Also, the applicant may not take any action that may affect a historic property, until the review process is completed or the OCC otherwise authorizes that the action may proceed. If any applicant takes an action that affects historic properties before the section 106 review is completed, the OCC may deny the application.

Under the section 106 review process, the first step to determine whether historic properties may be affected is to define the scope of the proposed project. Taking the scope into consideration, the next step is to establish the area of potential effects (see Glossary) for the project. Once the area of potential effects is established, the applicant next determines whether any historic properties exist within that area. The applicant should:

- Review existing information on historic properties that may be potentially affected, including information that unidentified historic properties may exist.
- Seek information from local governments, Native American tribes, public and private organizations, and other parties that may have knowledge or concerns about historic properties in the area.
- Request the views of the appropriate State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO), or the appropriate Tribal Historic Preservation Officer (THPO), on further ways to identify historic properties that may be affected. In some situations, it will be necessary to involve both the SHPO and THPO in the review process. The applicant should contact the SHPO or THPO as early as practicable in the planning process.

At this point, the applicant should conclude whether historic properties exist within the area of potential effects. If historic properties are identified, the next step is to make a determination of the effect (see Glossary) of the proposed project on each of the historic properties. Under the NHPA, the review may result in one of three determinations:

- No historic properties affected; that is, there are no historic properties present or there are historic properties but the project will have no effect upon them,
- No adverse effect, or
- Adverse effect.

Upon completion of its review, the applicant should submit its documentation, including a complete description of its proposed project and its determination on historic properties, to the SHPO or THPO for review and comment. If the applicant received comments from any interested parties, those should be provided as well. To ensure that the submission is complete, the applicant should verify the SHPO or THPO's documentation requirements prior to requesting its review. The SHPO or THPO has 30 days from receipt to provide comments. The applicant should submit copies of all correspondence between it and the SHPO or THPO to the OCC. The OCC cannot complete the section 106 review process until the SHPO or THPO has had an opportunity to provide its comments.

In the event that an adverse effect determination is made, the applicant should notify the OCC promptly. The NHPA requires that the OCC notify the ACHP of a determination of "adverse effect" and submit documentation supporting the determination. The OCC also would notify the ACHP when the reviewing parties, or other interested parties, do not agree on the determination. In certain circumstances, the ACHP will participate in the resolution of "adverse effects."

If the proposed project will have an adverse effect on a historic property, the applicant will need to consider other alternatives. After fully considering the alternatives, the project may be allowed to proceed subject to measures that mitigate the adverse effects. Mitigation measures are developed through consultation involving the applicant, the SHPO or THPO, the OCC, and any interested parties and may include the ACHP. Once the mitigation measures are agreed to, the consulting parties will execute a Memorandum of Agreement to ensure that the measures are carried out.

NEPA

Applicants must certify whether a proposed transaction will affect the quality of the human environment significantly (that is, air and water quality, noise levels, energy consumption, congestion of population, solid waste disposal, or environmental integrity of private land) within the meaning of the NEPA, 42 USC 4321-4347. To review the NEPA, implementing regulations, and other information, refer to the Web sites for the Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ) and NEPAnet.

Applicants should submit information from the state and other organizations about specific plans to mitigate the potential adverse impact of a proposal on the quality of the human environment. Submission of this information with the application helps to expedite the OCC's processing.

Expansion or Contraction of Assets or Activities

Bank management that wishes to substantially change the bank's assets or activities may need to submit an application to the OCC, submit a business plan, revise its articles of association, or submit other materials to the OCC for review prior to implementing the proposed change.

Significant Deviations

A bank's significant deviation (see Glossary) from its existing business plan may materially alter the underlying factors upon which the decision to approve the charter application was based. Those deviations may have a positive or negative effect on the bank. A bank that is subject to a condition to seek prior OCC review of significant deviations may not change its operations significantly without the OCC's review and nonobjection. This includes most recently chartered banks.

After a bank opens for business, management and the board may discover that the bank is achieving slower or more rapid growth than anticipated. Management and the board also may determine that the bank is not able to generate quality loans or attract a significant volume of deposits. There may also be concerns about poor risk management practices. Management and the board should investigate thoroughly the underlying reason(s) for each item before taking action.

Examiners will evaluate proposed significant deviations to determine if they are prudent. (See Appendix G of the Charters booklet for specific guidance on identifying and evaluating significant deviations, communication requirements, and related procedures.)

Change in Asset Composition

The OCC requires prior written approval for a change in the composition of all, or substantially all, of the bank's assets either through the sale or other disposition of assets. Prior written approval also is required if a bank, once having disposed of all or substantially all the assets, reactivates its operations through the subsequent purchase, acquisition, or other expansion of its operations (12 CFR 5.53). This includes acquiring assets by any means, including generating new assets through the bank's own efforts. The requirements of 12 CFR 5.53 are primarily designed to address changes to and from dormant bank (see Glossary) status.

The regulation does not apply if the change is:

- In response to the OCC's direction (for example, an enforcement action pursuant to 12 USC 1818).
- Part of a voluntary liquidation pursuant to 12 USC 181 and 12 CFR 5.48 if the liquidating bank stipulates in its notice of liquidation that the liquidation will be completed, the bank dissolved, and its charter returned to the OCC within one year of the date it files the liquidation notice.
- A result of a bank's ordinary and ongoing business of originating and securitizing loans.

If, as a part of a prior corporate approval, a bank is subject to a "significant deviation condition" requiring OCC's prior written approval before making changes and is also subject to 12 CFR 5.53 because it is changing the composition of all, or substantially all, of its assets, the bank need only file an application under 5.53.

Generally, public notice under 12 CFR 5.8 does not apply to a change in asset composition unless the OCC determines that the application presents a significant or novel policy, supervisory, or legal issue where a public notice is considered necessary. A public notice also may be required when a change in asset composition application is accompanied by a second application that requires a publication notice under 12 CFR 5.8. In this instance a public notice describing the entire transaction may be necessary to ensure that the public has a full understanding of the entire transaction.

Asset Disposition Transactions

If a change in the composition of assets is subject to 12 CFR 5.53, the selling national bank must file an application with the OCC if it is selling, disposing, or transferring assets, whether it be to another national bank, a state bank, or to any other person or entity.

The OCC has a long-standing practice of discouraging a national bank from removing substantially all of the assets and liabilities of the bank, creating a dormant bank or shell operation. The OCC has serious supervisory concerns including how the management or the board may use such a dormant bank charter; the nature of the services and products that might later be initiated; and increased operations and concentration risk. The OCC will consider the appropriateness of permitting a substantive sale that creates a dormant bank and the plan for final disposition and winding up of the bank's existence.

When reviewing an application to dispose of all, or substantially all, of a bank's assets, the OCC considers:

- Reasons for the proposed decrease in asset size.
- The impact on the bank's safety and soundness (for example, remaining asset concentrations).
- Any effect on bank customers (including continued FDIC insurance coverage).
- Plans for terminating the bank charter, through a voluntary liquidation or merger into a nonbank affiliate.

Increasing Assets of a Dormant Bank

The OCC requires that a dormant bank file an application and obtain the OCC's prior approval before ending its dormant status and restarting operations. A national bank with a dormant charter could restart operations by obtaining or acquiring assets through any means, including generating new assets through the bank's own efforts. For example, the dormant bank may restart business by first taking new deposits and then using those deposits to fund new assets; or a dormant bank will restart by engaging in activities that significantly deviate or are a change from its original business plan or operations.

The change in asset composition regulation applies to all situations in which a dormant bank increases its assets regardless of when the bank became dormant or whether approval under 12 CFR 5.53 was required for the original sale or disposition.

When reviewing an application to increase the assets of a dormant bank, we will consider:

- The reasons for the proposed increase in asset size.
- The impact on the bank's safety and soundness.
- Any effect on bank customers (including continued FDIC insurance coverage).
- Competent management, including a board of directors, with ability and experience relevant to the types of services to be provided.
- If capital is sufficient to support the projected volume and type of business.
- If the proposed business plan can achieve and maintain profitability.

Substantial Changes in the Scope of Activities

Bank management that wishes to expand or contract the bank's primary business may need to revise its articles of association and submit other materials to the OCC for review prior to implementing the proposed change.

Full Service Charter to Limited Charter

If management desires to convert a full-service charter to a limited-service charter (such as a cash management or trust bank), it should amend its articles of association and submit a notice to the Licensing staff in the appropriate district office. The notice should include a proposed business plan, changes in the bank's capital structure, a description of planned changes in bank premises, and a list of proposed management. The OCC does not charge a fee for this notice.

If a consequence of this change to the powers or services is a reduction in capital, the bank is required to file a letter of intent and any appropriate fee (see the "Capital and Dividends" booklet). If the bank intends to relocate its head office or any branch in its change to a limited-service charter, the bank must submit the appropriate relocation application and filing fee (see the "Branches and Relocations" booklet). In addition, the FDIC may terminate deposit insurance if the bank stops accepting insured deposits as part of a plan to contract its banking business.

Although the OCC does not require a public notice to convert to a limited-service charter, the bank may need to provide public notice for related applications or notices (such as a purchase and assumption, relocation, or branch closing).

Additionally, for a limited purpose bank, the articles stipulate that the bank may not expand or alter its business beyond that stated in its articles without the prior approval of the OCC.

Limited Charter to Full Service Charter

If management of a limited charter bank wants to expand the bank's powers to those of a full service commercial bank, it must amend its articles of association and submit a request to the Licensing staff in the appropriate district office. The request must include a proposed business plan, filing fee, and list of management. The OCC also may request other parts of the new bank charter application to evaluate sufficiently the proposed change to full service banking. In addition, an uninsured bank will need to file a deposit insurance application with the FDIC if it plans to begin accepting insured deposits as part of an expansionary plan.

Filings Required for Undercapitalized Banks

Twelve USC 1831o requires that an undercapitalized bank must obtain the FDIC's or the OCC's prior approval to acquire, directly or indirectly, any interest in any company or depository institution, establish or acquire any additional branch office, or engage in any new line of business. To grant approval to an undercapitalized bank, the OCC must determine that:

- The bank has submitted an acceptable capital restoration plan.
- The bank is implementing the plan.
- The proposed filing is consistent with and will further the achievement of the plan.

Key Policies

The OCC evaluates the complete filing to determine whether the applicant may complete the transaction legally and operate the proposed activity in a safe and sound manner. Each filing is evaluated on its merits. Specific decision criteria are contained in each relevant manual booklet.

Change in Federal or State Law

After a law that affects a national bank activity is enacted or amended to permit a banking activity or facility previously prohibited by federal or state law, the OCC usually will accept, but will not act upon, applications prior to the effective date of the amended law. This practice will minimize unnecessary delays for applicants, minimize processing burdens on the OCC, and enable an approved facility to be opened or an activity initiated as soon as it becomes legal under the law.

Consolidated Entity

In reaching its decision, the OCC considers the activities, resources, or condition of an affiliate of the applicant that reasonably may reflect on or affect the applicant. For example, the OCC recognizes that the strength of a parent, combined with the direct support it offers, can mitigate supervisory concerns about an affiliated bank. Conversely, the OCC recognizes when the satisfactory condition of an affiliate bank is overshadowed by that of its parent or affiliate companies. In those cases, the OCC considers the extent to which the condition of the bank is affected by the overall condition of the consolidated entity.

Approval or Conditional Approval

Generally, the OCC may approve or conditionally approve any filing, including one accorded expedited review, after reviewing the application and considering the relevant factors. The OCC may impose conditions if it determines that they are necessary or appropriate to ensure that approval is consistent with applicable statutes, regulations, and OCC policies.

The OCC imposes on many filings standard requirements that must be met before completing the proposed transaction (for example, opening a bank or a branch or completing a merger). In addition, the OCC sometimes imposes special conditions that corporate filers must satisfy before the OCC will allow completion of the proposed transaction. Final approval occurs once the filer has complied with all of the requirements of its approval letter, but has not, as yet, consummated the transaction.

In some cases, the OCC may impose conditions enforceable under 12 USC 1818. These are included in approvals containing conditions that remain in effect after the effective date or consummation date of an approved transaction or activity and continue until the OCC removes them. Examples of conditions that may be imposed include:

- Provisions that limit the activities that a bank subsidiary may conduct or set standards for how certain activities may be conducted.
- Special supervisory conditions that require adherence to a capital or CRA plan.

In approval letters that include a reference to enforceability, the following language will be inserted in a separate paragraph that precedes a list of conditions:

The following conditions of this approval shall be deemed to be a "condition imposed in writing by the agency in connection with the granting of any application or other request" within the meaning of 12 USC 1818.

Denial

The OCC may deny a filing if:

- Significant supervisory, CRA (if applicable), or compliance concerns exist.
- Approval would be inconsistent with applicable law, regulation, or OCC policy.
- The applicant fails to provide information in a timely manner that the OCC requested to make an informed decision.

Abandonment

A filing must contain information described in the appropriate booklet of this manual. If an applicant fails to provide required or additional requested information within the time period the OCC specified, the OCC may deem a filing abandoned.

Notification of Interested Persons

The OCC provides commenters and other interested persons with a written decision immediately after the filer is notified. Interested persons may not appeal the OCC's decision. (See also the "Public Notice and Comments" booklet.) A member of Congress who files a congressional inquiry also will receive a copy of the OCC's decision from the OCC's Congressional Liaison.

Post Decision Issues

Extension of Time

When the OCC approves or conditionally approves a filing, it generally gives the applicant up to 18 months to begin the new or expanded activity. If the approval time runs out and the transaction is not consummated, the OCC's approval ends automatically.

The OCC normally does not grant extensions of time. However, in extenuating circumstances, extension of the approval time may be requested from the Licensing staff in the appropriate district office. However, the applicant must provide sufficient information to prove that the reason for the delay is beyond its control (for example, environmental clean up that must be done before a branch office can be built).

Satisfaction Survey

The OCC includes a Satisfaction Survey with the decision letter to the applicant. Comments are welcomed and used to improve licensing policies and procedures continuously.

Nullifying a Decision

After rendering a decision on a filing, the OCC may nullify its decision if it discovers:

- A material misrepresentation or omission.
- The decision is contrary to law, regulation, or OCC policy.
- A clerical or administrative error, or a material mistake of law or fact occurred.

Appeal

An applicant may request review of an OCC decision according to the National Bank Appeals Process (OCC Issuance 2002-9). Applicants may appeal a decision to the deputy comptroller for Licensing or the Ombudsman.

Modification of Condition of Approval

An applicant may request that the OCC modify a condition that was imposed in a final decision. The request should be in writing and should provide a detailed justification for such modification. The request should provide the CAIS Control Number and a description of the condition imposed that the bank wishes to modify. A board of directors' resolution approving the request to modify should accompany the request.

The removal or modification of a condition that was imposed is considered a policy issue.

Request for OCC Corporate Decision

Final decisions on filings are available to the public. Requests for those decisions should be directed to: Comptroller of the Currency, Attn: Disclosure Officer, Communications Division (3-2), Washington, DC 20219. Requests for final decisions generally are answered within 10 business days of receipt.

Analysis and Recommendation

Licensing Staff

13. Reviews comments received from other OCC staff.
14. Considers and evaluates:
 - The reasons for the proposed decrease in asset size.
 - The impact on the bank's safety and soundness (for example, remaining asset concentrations).
 - Any effect on bank customers (including continued FDIC insurance coverage).
 - Plans for terminating the bank charter, through a voluntary liquidation or merger into a nonbank affiliate.

Note: The analyst should assess the likelihood that the transaction will happen as planned and coordinate the related transactions that end the charter. If appropriate, the OCC obtains a written representation from the applicant that it immediately will begin voluntary liquidation in accordance with 12 CFR 5.48 if the transaction does not go as planned. An OCC approval will be conditioned upon the applicant submitting a plan to wind up its affairs and terminate its status as a national bank if the original plan does not occur. (Refer to Termination of National Bank Status booklet.)

15. Determines how long the dormant bank may continue. If there will be ongoing activities, evaluates the bank's one-year business plan, including pro forma balance sheet, income statement, and capital calculation showing the effects of the transaction. If operating in any capacity, determines:

- How the transaction changes the business plan and operations.
 - How the transaction changes the institution's risk profile.
 - The effect of the transaction on any existing supervisory concerns.
 - The prospects of generating sufficient income to meet competition and conduct its affairs free of supervisory concern. Consider the proposal's effect on the bank's cost of money and yield on assets. Consider future growth or shrinkage.
 - Whether capital is adequate based upon the risks inherent in the resulting bank's assets and economic, as well as other, factors.
 - Whether management changes and resources are appropriate given the changing business of the bank. The experience and performance record of those in key managerial positions and on the board should be evaluated. Management should have the necessary expertise, staffing, controls, and systems in place to implement the business plan. In addition, management should have adequate oversight of the activities and accountability to the board.
 - The extent to which the transaction will affect the communities to be served and the impact, if any, on operating efficiency of the resulting institution. The applicant should discuss any expected changes in the delineated local community, in the performance of the institution in helping to meet the credit needs of the community, and in the effect the transaction will have on the availability of credit and savings services in the community. A copy of the amended CRA plan should be provided if it will be amended; any changes should be discussed.
16. Reviews the terms of any written or oral contracts, agreements, or understandings where any person or company will receive directly or indirectly, any money, property, service, release of pledges made, or other thing of value, whether tangible or intangible, in connection with the transaction.
 17. Ensures that all applicable board and shareholder resolutions have been submitted and that the appropriate changes have been made to the Articles regarding the business of the bank, if applicable.
 18. If there are issues to be determined by HQ LIC, but the filing is still delegated to the district, goes to step 24.
 19. Prepares the Confidential Memorandum (CM) and drafts the decision letter. The decision letter should address related decisions, such as those concerning dividends, decreases in capital, or branch closings.

20. Forwards CM and draft decision letter to the appropriate ADC and ADC analyst, or large bank EIC, and requests that the ADC or large bank EIC provide final comments within five business days. Incorporates appropriate comments into the draft documents.
21. For transactions that the district deputy comptroller (DDC) or deputy comptroller for Midsize Banks (MDC) decides to review, forwards the CM, draft decision letter, and the supervisory office and ADC comments to the district deputy comptroller (DDC) or MDC. Requests the DDC or MDC comments within five business days.
22. If the filing is delegated to the district and there are no issues to be decided by HQ, goes to step 26.
23. If the decision is delegated to HQ, forwards the file to HQ and goes to step 32.

Appendix B: Guidelines for Additional Communications and Contacts

The OCC often receives significant information, other than that contained in an application form or written comment on an application, which it uses in the decision-making process. This information often comes from meetings, telephone contacts, or other discussions held with applicants or interested persons, often without all interested parties being involved at the same time.

Those types of contacts, beyond written comments, are permitted, while a filing is pending before the OCC. To ensure that the information received through such contacts is handled properly, all OCC staff must follow these guidelines.

Guidelines

The official file should reflect all significant information an OCC employee receives through written and oral communications, whether by letter, e-mail, fax, telephone, or in-person meeting. (See the Glossary for official file definition.)

Documents in the official file form the basis for the public file. (See the discussion under Requests for Information for information on how documents are included in or excluded from the public file.)

Any written communication containing significant information should be provided to the Licensing staff for inclusion in the official file. If the communication is maintained electronically (for example, as e-mail), a printed copy should be included in the official file. (For information stored on CAIS, the director for district licensing should ensure that a hard copy of any significant information is placed in the file. If the information will be afforded confidential treatment, the director for district licensing should ensure that it will remain accessible on-line or in electronic data storage.)

Any oral communication containing significant information (for example, a meeting or telephone call) should be summarized in a written document, which should be included in the official file. If the analyst maintaining the official file is a party to the oral communication, he or she should create the summary. If the analyst maintaining the file is not a party to the communication, an OCC employee involved in the communication should create the summary of the significant information and forward it to the analyst for inclusion in the official file.

Inquiries concerning status of an application, or other routine procedural inquiries (for example, inquiries on procedures for filing comments) do not have to be included in the official file.

Any consideration to require republication of the public filing notice or to reopen a closed comment period, because of a substantial change in a filing from alterations in the nature or information received from an additional contact, should be coordinated by licensing and legal staff.

Private meetings, in which OCC representatives do not participate, between representatives of an applicant and protestants to help narrow issues or facilitate their resolution, even if arranged by the OCC, are not part of the official file of the application.

Appendix C: OMB Disclosure Statement

The information collections in this manual have been submitted to and approved by the Office of Management and Budget (Control Number 1557-0014, Expiration Date February 28, 2011¹) in accordance with the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980.

Comments about the information collection, the burden estimates, and suggestions for reducing burden may be sent to: Legislative and Regulatory Activities Division, Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, DC 20219. A copy should also be sent to the Paperwork Reduction Project, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, DC 20503.

The OCC requires this information to fulfill its statutory responsibilities and to ensure the continued safety and soundness of national banks. It uses the information to evaluate specific corporate applications of national banks and to prevent potentially unsafe and unsound practices. National banks are the likely respondents.

A list of the various information collections included in this manual follows. An average burden estimate for each filing is provided. Filings are grouped by booklets under each main heading. The average burden hours are broken down by processing type. Depending on each case, the actual time needed by respondents may vary widely.

Glossary

The area of potential effects means the geographic area or areas within which an undertaking may directly or indirectly cause alterations in the character or use of historic properties, if any such properties exist. The area of potential effects is influenced by the scale and nature of an undertaking and may be different for different kinds of effects caused by the undertaking [36 CFR 800.16(d)].

An applicant is a person or entity that submits a notice or application to the OCC.

An application is a submission requesting prior OCC approval to engage in various corporate activities or transactions.

Appropriate district office means: (1) Headquarters Licensing (HQ LIC) for all national bank subsidiaries of certain holding companies assigned to the Washington, DC, licensing unit; (2) the appropriate OCC district office for all national bank subsidiaries of certain holding companies assigned to a district office licensing unit; or (3) the OCC's district office where the national bank's supervisory office is located for all other banks.

A complete filing is fully responsive to each request for information included in a sample notice or application contained in this manual; includes any information the OCC may subsequently request; and/or provides adequate information, when considered together with other information available to the OCC for its decision.

A dormant bank is a bank that is no longer engaged in core banking activities other than on a de minimis basis. This definition includes, for example, a bank that has significantly reduced its activities and services or that has contracted out significant portions of its operations to third party service providers, other than in the ordinary course of the bank's ongoing business.

A filing is either an application or a notice.

Effect on a historic property means alteration to the characteristics that qualify it for inclusion in or eligibility for the National Register. Effects may arise from:

- Alteration of a property, including restoration, rehabilitation, repair, maintenance, stabilization, hazardous material remediation, and provision of handicapped access.
- Change of the character of the property's use or change of physical features within the property's setting.
- Introduction of visual, atmospheric or audible elements.
- Removal of the property from its historic location.
- Physical destruction of or damage to all or part of the property.
- Neglect of a property, which causes its deterioration.

Eligible for inclusion in the National Register includes both properties formally determined as such in accordance with regulations of the Secretary of the Interior and all other properties that meet the National Register criteria.

An eligible bank is a national bank that:

- Has a composite CAMELS rating of 1 or 2.
- Has an "outstanding" or "satisfactory" Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) rating. (This factor does not apply to an uninsured bank or branch or a special purpose bank covered by 12 CFR 25.11(c)(3).)
- Is well capitalized as defined at 12 CFR 6.4(b)(1).
- Is not subject to a cease and desist order, consent order, formal written agreement, or Prompt Corrective Action directive or, if subject to any such order, agreement or directive, is informed in writing by the OCC that the bank still may be treated as an "eligible bank."

An eligible depository institution means a state bank or a federal or state savings association that is FDIC-insured and that meets the eligible bank criteria.

A filer is a person, group of persons, national bank, state-chartered bank, thrift, other financial institution, or any other entity that submits a filing to the OCC.

An incomplete filing is not fully responsive to each item of information included in a sample notice or application or lacks adequate information, when considered together with other available information, for the OCC to make its decision.

The legal name of a national bank is its full name as reflected in its charter and Articles of Association, except that a bank may abbreviate terms that indicate corporate status (for example, N.A., N.S. & T., Corp., Inc.) in any document, except its charter, charter application, and Articles of Association.

A lead depository institution means the largest depository institution controlled by a holding company.

A notice is a submission notifying the OCC that a filer: (1) intends to engage in certain corporate activities or transactions; or, (2) has begun certain corporate activities or transactions (see application definition).

The official file is opened when an application or notice is filed. It becomes the official repository of all significant information about the filing. "Significant" information is nonduplicative information that may be used in the decision-making process. The official file will be made available ultimately to the decision maker and, following the decision, will be forwarded to Central Records.

The official file consists of: (1) the filing and any amendment; and (2) copies or summaries of oral or written communications involving significant information. Examples of such communications are post-filing oral or written contacts by letter, e-mail, fax, telephone, or in-person between one or more of the following:

- An OCC employee involved in the processing or review of a filing and the applicant.

- The OCC and persons who have filed formal comments on the application.
- An OCC employee or other federal regulator and persons contacted during investigations.

Prefiling communications and communications between OCC employees are included in the official file only if they contain significant information.

The public file for an application consists of those portions of the filing, supporting data, and supplementary information submitted by the applicant and information submitted by interested persons that have not been afforded confidential treatment by the office processing the application.

A significant deviation is a material variance from the bank's business plan or operations that occurs after the proposed bank has opened for business.

An undercapitalized bank is an FDIC-insured depository institution that meets the criteria established in 12 CFR 6.4(b)(3), (4), and (5), for an undercapitalized, significantly undercapitalized, or critically undercapitalized bank, respectively.
