

6.5.2 Funding Levels of Top 6 and Bottom 5 States with Active Public Benefit Efficiency Programs

|               | Total EE Budget ($million) |             | Total EE Budget per Capita ($) |             |
|---------------|------------------------------------|-------------|--|-------------|
|               | 2009                        | 2010 | 2009                            | 2010 |
| Vermont       | 33                                 | 36          | 52                                     | 58          |
| Massachusetts | 222                                | 386         | 34                                     | 58          |
| Rhode Island  | 37                                 | 37          | 35                                     | 35          |
| Minnesota     | 134                                | 200         | 25                                     | 38          |
| California    | 1,377                              | 1,497       | 37                                     | 40          |
| New York      | 421                                | 632         | 22                                     | 32          |
| Kansas        | 4                                  | 5           | 4                                      | 5           |
| Mississippi   | 9                                  | 13          | 9                                      | 13          |
| Alabama       | 0                                  | 0           | 0                                      | 0           |
| North Dakota  | 0                                  | 1           | 0                                      | 1           |
| West Virginia | 0                                  | 0           | 0                                      | 0           |

Source(s): American Council for an Energy Efficient Economy, A National Survey of State Policies and Practices for the Evaluation of Ratepayer-Funded Energy Efficiency Programs, Feb. 2012, Table B-1, p. 52-53.