

The Vet Center provides a personal and informal atmosphere and is in operation to assist eligible Veterans and their families. Therapy and support groups enable Veterans to discuss their experiences and to better understand them. Groups also help foster feelings of camaraderie among Veterans who have had similar experiences. Individual and family counseling is also offered. Family members are eligible for readjustment counseling when related to the resolution of the Veteran's readjustment issues. Increasing public awareness of the effects of military trauma also helps the community better understand our Veterans and be a contributing factor in the healing process. We are hoping we may be of assistance to you whenever the need arises.

WOMEN VETERANS

Back home things didn't change much. Each day seemed more important halfway around the globe. Life in a combat zone seldom feels routine. Now, no one talks much about the war. Does anyone think about life and death half a world away—besides you?

Coming home from war after a year or more isn't easy. Survival instincts develop fast when you are exposed to gunfire, explosions and the chaos that evolves wherever armed combatants clash. Learning to dial those survival instincts back when you get home is hard. Getting back into the swing with family and friends, work and your old interests can be surprisingly difficult too. Being a woman can complicate things too because we often put ourselves and our needs last.

Vet Centers can help. We specialize in helping warzone Veterans return to lives that they find meaningful and healthy. Through readjustment counseling, we can help you get back to everyday living when the fanfare of homecoming is over. Your family and significant others are welcome too because we know that they are a big part of readjustment and that they are affected by deployments also.

We also know that Military Sexual Trauma (MST) is unfortunately something many women and men have endured. We provide caring and specialized care for survivors of MST.

Vet Centers work closely with other VA offices and can assist with referrals for benefits and healthcare. We also collaborate with state and community based agencies helpful to Veterans.

Many Vet Center counselors are Veterans themselves and many of us are women. We have delivered readjustment services since 1979. We pride ourselves on our experience, cultural awareness and sensitivity.

Welcome home! Call us today or stop by one of our Vet Centers so that we can assist you.

I think if you talk to women...in the military we see ourselves as soldiers...We don't really see it as man versus woman...What I am doing is no greater or less than the man flying next to me or in back of me.
