and

916th Air Refueling Wing

"Global Rapid Mobility--On Time, Every Time"

Seymour Johnson is a major Air Combat Command base and is the current home of the 4th Fighter Wing (4 FW). The 4 FW has a long and distinguished history supporting numerous aircraft platforms and conflicts, including being the first operational F-15E Strike Eagle wing in the Air Force. The wing now consists of four groups, over 6,227 military members, 985 civilians and 95 F-15E Strike Eagles.

The 4 FW continues a legacy forged in combat as we provide worldwide deployable aircraft and personnel in support of Operation Enduring Freedom. In addition, the wing oversees all aircraft equipment maintenance and provides standardized weapons loading and academics training in support of the wing's 12,382 sorties and 20,787 flying hours.

The 916th Air Refueling Wing, Air Force Reserve Command's first wing in North Carolina, flies the KC-135R Stratotanker aircraft in air-to-air refueling missions. With this weapon system, the unit is deployable on a global scale to support U.S. military and NATO allies in air-to-air refueling, as well as cargo and passenger hauling. All squadrons and flights are deployable to support U.S. military interests at home and abroad.
